St. Louis, May 16.—In the United States district court Judge Adams rendered a verdict in favor of Mrs. Margaret Roth, who sued for payment of a $10,875 life insurance policy held by her husband, Adam Roth, the wholesale grocer, in the Mutual Reserve Life Association of New York. The verdict includes costs. A short time prior to his death Mr. Roth refused to pay an assessment on the policy, and this act, the company claimed, made the policy invalid. Judge Adams said:

"Mr. Roth had paid many assessments on his policy and the net value paid was sufficient to carry, after his lapse for a period extending to the time of his death. Therefore, the fact that he failed to pay an assessment constituted no defense.

KILLED BY HIS SWEETHEART.

Pat Valentine Shot By Miss Ella King at Houston, Tex.

Houston, Tex., May 16.—Pat Valentine, aged 22, was shot to death Thursday by Miss Ella King. Valentine is alleged by the girl to have refused to carry out a promise of marriage. She further alleges that she was compelled to leave home, was without work and could get no satisfaction from Valentine whereupon she shot and killed him. The first bullet went through his heart. Another bullet went wild and wounded J. A. Power, a bystander. The young woman was locked up and talks freely about the matter.

Dowie's Daughter Dead.

Chicago, May 16.—Denied medical treatment until it was too late to save her, Esther Dowie, aged 25, only daughter of John Alexander Dowie, general overseer of the Christian Catholic church in Zion, died at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, after almost 12 hours of the most frightful suffering, from the effects of burns received Wednesday morning. Dr. A. W. Campbell, a regular physician, was called in by Dr. Dowie to attend the young woman shortly before her death.

Mexican Legation in Havana.

Mexico City, May 16.—The Mexican government will establish a legation at Havana, accrediting a minister plenipotentiary. The first minister will probably be the present consul general of this country at the Cuban capital.

Probable Successor of Corrigan.

Rome, May 16.—There are persistent reports at the vatican that Bishop Charles McDonnell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is likely to be the successor of the late Archbishop Corrigan of the archdiocese of New York.

STRIKE TO CONTINUE.

One of the Greatest Labor Struggles in the Country's History.

The Miners Fight May Be Carried Into the Bituminous Coal Regions and Into Other Fields of Industry.

Hazleton, Pa., May 16.—The anthracite mine workers in convention late Thursday afternoon decided to continue the strike of 145,000 men against the mine owners and to fight it out to the end. The matter of calling out the engineers, firemen and pump runners will be decided Friday. The vote to continue the suspension was as follows: Total vote cast, 811; for strike, 461¼; against strike, 349¾; majority for strike, 111½. President Mitchell, however, in compliance with the rules of the United Mine Workers, announced to the public that the action of the convention was unanimous.

The step taken Thursday by the miners after practically considering the matter for two months, has wiped out the uncertainty of the situation, and it is predicted that the most serious labor struggle in the history of the country, if not the world, is about to begin. This view is taken by nearly every miner. It is not unlikely that the miners' fight will be carried into the bituminous coal regions and into other fields of industry. Mine workers for 18 months have been looking forward to the strike that is now upon them. They have saved their money and are considered to be in better shape to-day for a fight than they were in the great strike of 1900. That struggle ended in the mine owners giving the men a 10 per cent. advance after a six weeks' suspension. The operators are on record as being unalterably opposed to granting the men any concessions and they have personally informed the mine workers' leaders of that fact. The workmen fear that the present fight may mean the destruction of their organization, and that they believe that the mine owners are bent more on wrecking their union than they are in opposing the demands for higher wages and shorter work days.

President Mitchell's advice to the miners was for peace.

TAMMANY HALL.

Lewis Nixon Resigns as Leader of That Organization.

New York, May 15.—Lewis Nixon, leader of Tammany hall for nearly six months, resigned that position Wednesday at a meeting of the district leaders held in Tammany hall. While the resignation was not entirely unexpected, it was not thought that Mr. Nixon would take such positive action until a later date, awaiting the action of the leaders to see if they would give him a vote of confidence. Instead of this, he refused to allow any vote of confidence, and went so far as to say that he could no longer retain his self respect if he remained as leader.

New York, May 16.—It was reported at Tammany hall Thursday morning that Richard Croker will be in New York within a month and will either resume the leadership of the organization which Lewis Nixon laid down Wednesday, or select a successor to Nixon.

INDICTED FOR GAMBLING.

Prominent Missourians Charged With Playing "Penny Ante" Poker.

Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—Harry B. Hawes, president of the St. Louis board of police commissioners, Congressman W. W. Rucker, of this district, Wm. Flynn, of St. Louis, and about thirty other men, including several mayors of small Missouri towns and a judge from the Missouri supreme court, were indicted by the grand jury of Charlton county on a charge of gambling. The specific charge, it is said, is that the defendants played "penny ante" poker. The gambling is alleged to have occurred last summer during a fishing trip in Charlton county. Complaint was made by some farmers, who said they saw the game in progress.

Passed to New Owners.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 16.—It is rumored that control of the Green Consolidated Copper Co. has passed to new owners, said to be the principal owners of the General Electric Co., of New York. E. H. Harriman and several standard oil men are said to be interested. The deal is said to involve a sum in excess of $30,000,000, paid in cash.

Justice A. C. Bradley Dead.

Washington, May 16.—Andrew C. Bradley, one of the justices of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, died here after a short illness from an abcess of the brain following an attack of grip. He was 58 years old and a native of Washington.

North Atlantic Station.

Washington, May 15.—Adm. Coghlan is to be placed on the North Atlantic station as second in command to Adm. Higginson. This station has so increased in magnitude that a second admiral is needed there.

PRESIDENT-ELECT PALMA.

He Displayed Much Courage in Selecting His Cabinet.

Havana, May 17.—President-elect Palma is laboring night and day to conciliate the warring political factions. He has displayed much courage in the selection of his cabinet, which was announced Friday evening as follows:

Diego Tamayo (nationalist), secretary of government, a new portfolio. Senor Tamayo will have charge of the rural guard, sanitation, the administration of the post offices and signal service.

Carlos Zaldo (republican-autonomist), department of state and justice. Senor Zaldo is a well-known business man. He was at one time a supporter of Juan Gualberto Gomez, the "Black Revolutionist."

Emilio Terry (independent), department of agriculture. Senor Terry is a wealthy sugar planter of high character.

Manuel Luciano Diaz, (nationalist), department of public works. Senor Diaz, who had charge of the works at Matanzas during the American occupation, is an engineer of ability.

Eduardo Yero (nationalist), department of instruction. Senor Yero was superintendent of schools during the American occupation.

Garcia Montes (republican), a lawyer of standing. Department of finance.

Senor Palma's selections may leave some bitterness, but the general comment is that the cabinet is a good one and composed of able men of experience and standing.

THE KING OF SPAIN.

Alfonso Invested With a Number of Foreign Decorations.

Madrid, May 17.—King Alfonso was invested with a number of foreign decorations. The ceremony, which was of an imposing nature, took place in the throne room of the palace. The king was surrounded by a brilliant assemblage of high officers of state. Among the orders bestowed upon him was that of the Garter, which he received from the duke of Connaught, as representative of King Edward; the cordon bleu of the order of the Seraphim, from Prince Eugene, of Sweden, representing King Oscar, and the royal order of Siam, from the crown prince of Siam, the special envoy of the king of Siam.

The grand cordon of the order of Carlos III. has been conferred upon all the envoys extraordinary to the coronation. These include Dr. J. L. M. Curry, the American envoy, and insignia was sent to Mr. Curry's residence. The American envoy was given the place of honor at the banquet. The princess of the Austrias sat upon the king's right hand and Mr. Curry sat next to the princess. Inmates of the palace declared that the queen mother has constant fits of crying for fear that she may break down during the trying ordeal.

CONFESSION OF FAITH.

The Special Committee Makes Its Report to the Assembly.

New York, May 17.—The report of the Presbyterian general assembly's special committee on revision of the confession of faith covers two divisions, the work assigned to the commit tee having been so outlined by the assembly. In the first place, the commit tee says it was to prepare "a brief statement of the reformed faith" to be submitted to the assembly "for such disposition as may be judged to be wise."

The following is the section in regard to those who die in infancy:

"With reference to Chapter x., Section 3, of the Confession of Faith, that it is not to be regarded as teaching that any who die in infancy are lost. We beleive that all dying in infancy are included in the election of grace, and are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who works when and where and how He pleases."

MILITARY ACADEMY.

The Appropriation Bill Was Reported to the Senate.

Washington, May 17.—The military academy appropriation bill was reported to the senate by Mr. Warren. The aggregate appropriation remains $2,627,324 as fixed by the house, but there were some important changes (one of these increases the final limit of cost of the proposed new buildings from $5,000,000, as fixed by the house, to $6,000,000. Another amendment provides for the payment of the traveling expenses of candidates for cadetships while proceeding from their homes to West Point.

Another Native Secret Society.

Manila, May 17.—The native constabulary have discovered another native secret society similar to the Katipunen. Little importance is attributed to it, and it is believed to be a scheme to obtain money.

Dixon and Ryan Spar.

Ottawa, Ont., May 17.—George Dixon and Billy Ryan were booked for a prize fight here. The mayor instructed the chief of police to have them arrested if it came off. They gave a good sparring exhibition of 15 rounds. It was declared a draw.

Died After an Operation.

St. Louis, May 17.—W. S. Lincoln, chief engineer of the Wabash road, died here Friday night from the effects of an operation. Mr. Lincoln had seen 15 years of continuous railroad service.

MOUNT SOUFRIERE.

No One Has Been Able to Approach the Crater."

Inhalation of Noxious Vapors Is Increasing the Spread of Sickness —Relief Is on the Way to the Sufferers.

London, May 19.—The St. Thomas corespondent of the Times cabling under date of May 18, says the volcano of Soufriere, St. Vincent, is now quiet, but that the Martinique volcano is still active. The correspondent announces that a new volcano has broken out north of Mont Pelee.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., Tuesday, May 13.—No person has yet been able to approach within eight miles of the new crater of the Soufriere volcano. But, judging from what can be seen from a considerable distance, the old lake at the summit of the mountain has disappeared. The numerous fissures in the mountain side continue to throw out vapor and the subterranean murmurings and trembling indicate continued unrest. During the afternoon of Monday a dense volume of steam and smoke rose from the volcano and the whole island was covered by a peculiar mist. The inhalation of noxous vapors here is increasing the spread of sickness.

An ambulance corps from the island of Barbadoes has arrived here. Starvation threatens the poorer classes of the afflicted district. Nearly every remaining Negro hut in the Carib country contains decayed bodies, and the horrible stench is driving people away. Mutilated bodies are tied with ropes and dragged to the trenches where they are buried. Some times bodies are cremated.

The local government is feeding and sheltering about 3,000 refugees.

Subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers are being raised in all the British West Indies.

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, May 14.—Business here is suspended. The people of the city have assembled in the churches and the cathedral, where special services are being held for the St. Pierre dead, has been thronged since daylight.

The United States government tug Potomac left here Tuesday night for the island of St. Vincent, where conditions are reported to be worse. La Soufriere, on St. Vincent, was in full eruption May 10. A stream of stone and mud half a mile wide was then issuing from the volcano. Stones two inches in diameter fell 12 miles away. At Kingston, the capital of the island, the ashes were two inches deep. Seven hundred dead were reported Sunday, May 11. It is estimated that the total number of deaths on St. Vincent reaches 2,000. Most of the seven estates on the island have been burned to ashes and it is authentically reported that two earthquakes occurred there. It is believed the submarine cables in St. Vincent have been broken by the disturbances. The present volcanic eruption on St. Vincent is the first since 1812.

The northern section of the island is depopulated.

Provisions are needed here immediately for 100,000 people. A shipload of lime is also needed at St. Pierre for sanitary purposes. The stench there from the dead bodies is overpowering. Mont Pelee was still erupting smoke and fire at a late hour Monday night.

In addition to specie already secured, jewels to the value of 1,000,000 francs were rescued from the bank of St. Pierre Monday.

MARTINIQUE AND ST. VINCENT.

Sufficient Supplies For a Month Have Been Forwarded.

Washington, May 16.—It is stated at the war department that the supplies and stores shipped to Martinique and St. Vincent on the cruiser Dixie from New York and on the collier Sterling from San Juan undoubtedly will be sufficient to meet the urgent needs of the suffering people for fully a month to come. The present efforts of the government is a desire to supplement food supplies contributed by the people so as to make them immediately available.

Secretary Root has authorized the officers of the commissary department at New York to purchase any additional supplies that may be necessary to supplement those contributed by private persons for shipment to the scene of the disaster. Consequently private donations of flour will be supplemented by a proper supply of yeast by the government with codfish and other food supplies which require other articles to make them available for food.

The government has already expended a little over $100,000 of the available appropriation of $200,000, and as much of the balance as necessary will be utilized. The administration anticipated the action of congress in providing for the immediate relief of the situation with the result that the Sterling sailed from San Juan within five hours after the appropriation became available, and the Dixie sailed from New York with additional supplies in exactly 29 hours after the president signed the act making the appropriation. These two vessels carry more than 26 days rations for 50,000 people, together with a proportionate of clothing, tentage, etc.

The President's Appeal.

Washington, May 14.—The president Tuesday afternoon issued an appeal to the people of the United States for the sufferers in the West Indies.

A THRILLING STORY.

The Terrible Experience of a Ship's Crew at Martinique.

New York, May 19.—The Norton line steamer Etona arrived here Sunday from the River Platte via St. Lucia, where she called for bunker coal on May 10.

"At St. Lucia on May 11," says Capt. Cantell, "I went on board the British steamer Roddam, which had escaped from the terrible volcanic eruption at Martinique three days before. The state of the ship was enough to show that those on board must have undergone an awful experience. The Roddam was covered with a mass of fine bluish gray dust or ashes of cement-like appearance. In some parts it laid two feet deep on the decks. This matter had fallen in a red hot state all over the steamer setting fire to everything it struck that was burnable and, when it fell on the men on board, burned off limbs and large pieces of flesh. This was shown by finding portions of human remains when the decks were cleared of the debris. The rigging, ropes, tarpaulins, sails, awnings, etc., were charred or burned and most of the upper stanchions and spars had been swept overboard or destroyed by fire. Skylights were smashed and cabins were filled with volcanic dust. The scene of ruin was deplorable.

VOLCANO AREA SPREADING.

Sulphur Pits on Jamaica Beginning to Smoke and Boil.

New York, May 14.—Cable dispatches received Tuesday from widely-separated points in the West Indies show that the area of Volcanic disturbances is spreading rapidly. It is now a thousand miles in circumference, and dozens of islands are threatened. On the British island of Jamaica, 400 miles away, sulphur pits in the mountains have begun to smoke and boil, and the air has grown intensely hot. The natives are reported to be greatly terrified.

PEOPLE PANIC-STRICKEN.

Great Flashes of Bright Light Emitted From Mont Pelee.

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, May 17.—Great flashes of very bright light were emitted from Mont Pelee between 10 and 11 o'clock Thursday night. They were visible from here. Thick, glowing red clouds, interspersed with flashes of light, issued from the volcano Friday morning. Showers of cinders, lasting for 20 minutes, accompanied the activity. The people in the districts of Lorrain, Marigot, Sainte Marie and La Trinite are panic-stricken.

GUATEMALA EARTHQUAKE.

Up to April 29, 1,100 Bodies Had Been Taken Out of the Ruins.

San Francisco, May 15.—The steamer Guatemala brings additional details of the earthquake in Central America last month. The Guatemala left the port of that name April 29. Up to that time 1,100 bodies had been taken out of the ruins at Quezaltenango. Capt. Harris, of the Guatemala, said that it is estimated that 2,000 people were killed. Farms are deserted, and there are fears of a famine in consequence. Many of the wealthy planters have lost their entire fortune.

The First Installment.

St. Paul, Minn., May 15.—Theodore Schuermeier and Kenneth Clark, appointed by President Roosevelt to receive donations for the relief of West Indian sufferers, Wednesday wired $500 to Washington as a first installment. President J. J. Hill, of the Great Northern railway, personally sent $500 to Washington.

Thanks For Assistance.

New York, May 14.—Consul General Bruwaert, of France, whose headquarters are here, speaking at a club dinner at which many well known citizens were present, thanked the citizens of New York and the United States for the help given to his countrymen in the West Indies since the Martinique disaster.

Canada's Subscription.

Paris, May 16.—The Canadian commissioner here, Mr. Faber, called on the minister of the colonies, M. Decrais, and announced that the government of Canada had subscribed $25,000 to the Martinique relief fund, which amount was held at the disposition of M. Decrais.

King Edward's Donation.

London, May 16.—King Edward has donated £400 to the Mansion house fund for the relief of sufferers by the volcano on the island of St. Vincent. Subscriptions have been opened in all parts of England for the relief of the volcano sufferers.

French Gratitude.

Washington, May 16.—M. Jules Cambon, the French ambassador, has transmitted to Secretary Hay a long telegram from his government expressing the gratitude of France for the energetic efforts of this country to relieve the suffering at Martinique.

In Memory of the St. Pierre Dead.

Paris, May 19.—At the close of high mass in all the Roman Catholic churches of Paris, Sunday morning, funeral psalms were chanted and prayers for the dead were said in memory of those who perished in the Martinique disaster.

LARD REFINERY FIRE.

Twenty-Nine Persons Injured, Five of Them Fatally.

The Loss of the Company Is Between $750,000 and $900,000, With All Chances in Favor of the Latter Figure.

Chicago, May 17.—During the progress of a fire which destroyed the lard refinery of Armour & Co., in the Union stockyards, 29 people were injured, five of them in a manner which will probably cause death in a short time. The loss of the company is estimated by its officers at between $750,000 and $900,000, with all the chances in favor of the latter figure.

There was a number of accidents, but by far the larger number of those who were hurt met their injuries by the falling of a hog-runway upon which they were standing to obtain a better view of the fire.

The lard refinery had just been completed and was considered by its owners the most complete establishment of its kind in the United States. It stood at the intersection of 43d street and Center avenue, and was five stories high and 250 by 300 feet. It was filled with new and costly machinery, and during the day 2,000 people worked within its walls. The night shift numbered 700, and all of them were in the building when the fire broke out. It is thought that all escaped in safety, although the time allowed some of them was exceedingly brief.

The fire originated with an explosion of three lard tanks on the fifth floor of the building. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but the three tanks, which were filled with boiling lard, went up with a roar almost in the same second. There was a score of workmen in the immediate vicinity of the tanks and a number of them were burned by the scalding lard, but none was seriously burned. It was not a minute after the explosion before the entire fifth floor was a mass of flames.

All the workmen in the building made a frantic rush for safety and while all reached the open air without trouble some of those on the fifth floor lost their hats and coats. Despite the utmost efforts of the fire department the flames spread through the entire building, and within an hour after the commencement of the fire all of the walls, with the exception of that on the south, were lying on the ground.

The fire was one of the most spectacular that has been seen in Chicago in recent years, and the display attracted an enormous crowd of people, who crowded all the narrow streets in the stock yards and swarmed by thousands upon the viaducts which pass through the yards at a height of 20 feet from the ground. That portion of 44th street viaduct close to the burning building was densely packed and suddenly about 200 feet of a hog-runway, extending from the viaduct north to the plant of Armour & Co., gave way, precipitating fully 1,000 persons to the ground. The firemen instantly abandoned their work on the building and devoted their energies to saving the people. All were taken from the wreckage within a few minutes and placed in an improvised hospital in the plant of the German-American Provision Co., which, itself, was badly damaged by fire the early part of the week. A call was hastily sent for the police ambulance, but the one stationed nearest to the fire was able to respond only after a great delay, caused by the running away of the horses of the ambulance, just as they were about to be hitched. A team was impressed from a passing wagon, but it was 30 minutes after the call before the ambulance arrived at the scene of the accident.

PRINCE HENRY'S VISIT.

Emperor's Gift to the United States to Commemorate It.

Berlin, May 17.—The kaiser has offered President Roosevelt for the people of the United States a statue in bronze of Frederick the Great as a token of the development of German-American regard.

In his message, written in English, he refers to Prince Henry's cordial reception, and says he desires to commemorate his visit by the present. Roosevelt's reply, in German, states that he will bring the matter to the attention of congress, but that he is certain "it will afford our people the greatest pleasure to receive from your hands a statue of the famous ruler and soldier, one of the greatest men of all times."

Business Failures.

New York, May 17.—Business failures for the week number 190, as against 179 last week, 192 in this week last year, 155 in 1900, 168 in 1899 and 211 in 1898. For Canada failures for the week number 22, against 22 last week.

First Secretary of Legation.

Washington, May 17.—Jacob Sleeper, of Massachusetts, who was secretary of legation for the United States at Bogota from 1893 to 1898, has been selected for appointment as first secretary of legation at Havana. He was recommended by Senator Lodge.

More Cases of Leprosy.

Washington, May 17.—More cases of leprosy have been located on the plains of Guam, according to a mail report received by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Darling from Commander Seaton Schroeder, the naval governor.

NEW KING OF SPAIN.

An Anarchist Plot Against Alfonso Discovered.

Madrid, May 19.—King Alfonso attained his majority Saturday and became king in fact as well as in name, having reached the age—16—prescribed by the constitution. He took the oath of office in the throne room.

An anarchist plot against King Alfonso has been discovered and six arrests, including that of Gabriel Lopez, an employe of an insurance company, have been made. Dynamite cartridges were found on the premises where Lopez was arrested. Lopez says he received a package of cartridges from another anarchist with instructions to throw them at the moment of the passage of the royal carriage in Saturday's procession.

The discovery of the plot against the king is confirmed by the newspapers here. It is now said that nine dynamite cartridges were seized. Further arrests have been made, and the prisoners include six medical students, a printer, a carpenter and a mason.

The captured cartridges are being analyzed by military authorities.

Manila, May 19.—The coronation of King Alfonso was celebrated with much ceremony Saturday by the Spanish residents of Manila, and Acting Civil Gov. Wright represented the American government at the principal function.

Madrid, May 19.—According to the newspapers here, the police have had an inkling of an anarchist plot against the king since last March, and in April they discovered an anarchist meeting place in a fashionable quarter of madrid. Three Andalusian anarchists arrived here May 2, and were arrested shortly after their arrival.

RIOT AT ATLANTA, GA.

Eight People Were Killed and Six Wounded By Bullets.

Atlanta, Ga., May 19.—An effort by officers of the law to arrest Negro outlaws who had barricaded themselves in a store resulted in the most fatal riot in the history of the city. Eight men were killed, including three policemen, a white citizen and four Negroes. Six people, black and white, were wounded. The most exciting scenes prevailed at the place of the disturbance and all available police men, with military, called out by the governor, had all they could do to keep down a general riot. An entire block of buildings was burned before the conflict was terminated.

CUBAN CUSTOM RECEIPTS.

The Collections Under the American Regime Closed.

Havana, May 19.—A collection of receipts under the American regime closed Saturday night. Full reports are not in from all parts of the island, but the indications now are that Gov. Gen. Wood will leave in the treasury about $400,000. This is less than the amount it was estimated a few days ago would be turned over to the new government, the shortage being due to the rush in the payment of warrants last week.

THREE CHILDREN DROWNED.

Electric Storm and Cloudburst Near Spring Valley, Minn.

Spring Valley, Minn., May 19.—An electric storm accompanied by a cloud burst passed over Etna and Forestville, two small villages nine miles southeast of this city. Several large barns and other buildings were completely demolished. Herman Wilbright, wife and three children, who were returning home in a buggy, were thrown into a river and the three children were drowned.

STOCK STABLE BURNED.

One Hundred and Two Standard Bred Horses Killed.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 19.—One hundred and two standard bred horses were killed early Sunday morning by the burning of the Andrew Uehlein stock farm near Racine. Mr. Uehlein, who is a Milwaukee brewer, raised fine breeds of horses on his country place. The fire was caused by lightning.

Valuable Pictures Stolen.

Paris, May 19.—The Chateau des Vives, the property of Mr. and Mrs. Humbert, interested in the great Humbert-Crawford lawsuit, was entered by burglars. They broke the seals of the sheriff, which had been affixed to the property, and stole pictures of great value.

CYCLONES IN TEXAS.

Many Persons Were Killed and Injured at Goliad.

Government and Private Property Damaged at Ft. Sam Houston—Several Severely Injured, But No Fatalities.

Houston, Tex., May 19.—A telegram from Superintendent Forbes, of the New York, Texas & Mexican, to General Manager Van Vleck, in this city, says that eight blocks of business houses were blown down at Goliad. Thirty Negroes and 27 white people were killed and 75 or 80 others injured.

Dallas, Tex., May 19.—A special to the News from Houston says that a telephone message received from Goliad late Sunday night reports that 150 or more persons were killed and injured by the tornado which swept over the village Sunday. No verification is obtainable. Among those reported lost are the members of the family of the Goliad telephone manager.

Dallas, Tex., May 19.—At 10 o'clock Sunday night there were two reports current concerning the fate of the historic town of Goliad. Both of them were sufficiently distressing. One was that 50 lives were lost and much of the town destroyed. The other was that not less than two hundred persons were killed and that nearly every structure there was demolished.

So far 90 dead and 120 injured have been reported.

It is impossible to estimate the number of homes destroyed, but it is thought the number will reach 100. Damage done can not be approximated, but is very great.

The path of devastation is strewn with all kinds of debris and dead and wounded animals.

The pitiful cries of the wounded is heard everywhere and at times is heartrending.

San Antonio, Tex., May 19.—At 12:48 o'clock Sunday afternoon a terrible wind and rain storm swept over San Antonio, damaging property not less than $50,000, and it may reach $75,000. The wind reached a velocity of 72 miles an hour and continued at that rate for nearly 20 minutes. It blew from the southeast and then shifted to the southwest, the greatest velocity being from the latter point.

At Ft. Sam Houston government property was damaged to the extent of $20,000, the doors being torn off the officers' quarters and barracks. The West End church was completely destroyed; loss, $5,000. Hartwell's hotel was damaged $3,000. The St. Louis college was damaged $46,000. Academy of the Lady of the Sacred Heart damaged $2,000. Damages to private residences will reach $20,000. Several persons were injured but there were no fatalities.

The storm was a continuation of the one that swept over Goliad with such terrible results.

HOGS AND SHEEP DROWNED.

A Cloudburst Near Sparta, Wis., Did Much Damage.

Sparta, Wis., May 19.—A cloudburst occurred in the eastern part of this county doing much damage to farmers and railroad companies. Three long bridges on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, near Oakdale, were carried away and the track washed out in several places. Over 200 feet of the Chicago & Northwestern road was washed completely away ten miles south of here. Many hogs and sheep were drowned and much damage done to crops, highways and bridges. Numerous small outbuildings were also carried away. Lightning caused considerable damage in Monroe, Juneau and Vernon counties.

A CLOUDBURST.

Two Inches of Rain Fell in An Hour at Dubuque, Ia.

Dubuque, Ia., May 19.—A cloudburst occurred here. Two inches of rain fell in one hour, causing washouts on the Illinois Central between here and Winterloo. No trains arrived from the west until Sunday night. Several miles of track on the Great Western, between here and Oelwein, were washed out and no trains can come in until Monday. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul suffered much near McGregor.

Storm in Iowa.

McGregor, Ia., May 19.—Three brick buildings were wrecked by a terrific electrical storm that swept over McGregor late Saturday night, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain. Lightning struck the three buildings occupied by Freze's jewelry store, the Metropolitan saloon and a billiard hall and all collapsed. Four men were hurt, but not severely. Sewers were washed out by the flood. The property loss is fully $10,000.

London, May 19.—The Liverpool Daily Post asserts that at the meeting of the White Star line held the agreement to transfer the line to the Atlantic shipping combine was unanimously confirmed.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, May 13.—Senate—An important contribution to the discussion of the Philippines government bill was made in the senate Monday by Mr. Foraker (O.). He maintained that the United States could not leave the islands until order had been restored and until a stable government had been established. The senate concurred in the house amendment to the bill making an appropriation of $200,000 for the relief of the people of the French West Indies.

House—The house Monday passed by an overwhelming vote a bill granting $200,000 for the relief of the sufferers in the great calamity in the West Indies. The bill was a substitute for the relief measure passed by the senate and followed the receipt of a message from the president setting forth the magnitude of the calamity and urging an appropriation of $500,000. A special meeting of the appropriation committee was held to facilitate action on the bill, and it was reported to the house within a short time after the receipt of the president's message. Mr. Heminway, the acting chairman of the appropriation committee, explained that the amount was limited to $200,000 owing to the fact that large contributions were being made. The discussion was brief, Mr. Underwood (Ala.) being the only one to speak in opposition. The bill was passed by 196 to 9.

Washington, May 14.—Senate—An additional appropriation of $300,000 was made by the senate Tuesday for the stricken people of the French West Indies in accordance with the recommendation of the president that $300,000 be appropriated. The agricultural appropriation was passed. The bill providing for the construction of a union railway station in Washington was under discussion.

House—The naval appropriation bill, which provides for two new battleships, two armored cruisers and two gunboats and carries a total of $77,650,000, was taken up in the house. Representative Foss (Ill.), chairman of the naval committee, in opening the debate sounded a note of warning against the over-confident belief that our navy is invincible. He declared that our victories at Manila and Santiago were due to the fact that we were contending with an effete and decaying nation, and that our strength far outmatched Spain in those contests. Mr. Rixey (Va.) also spoke for the bill, most of his time being given to argument of government construction of warships. The conference report on the omnibus claims report bill was rejected on the grounds that claims not considered by either branch of congress has been inserted in the bill by the conferees and the measure was returned to conference.

Washington, May 15.—Senate—During the greater part of the senate session Wednesday the fortifications appropriation bill was under consideration. Mr. Proctor (Vt.) offered an amendment providing that no part of the appropriation made should be used for procuring disappearing gun carriages. The amendment precipitated a debate which continued for two hours and had not been concluded when the measure was laid aside for the day. For some time the senate had under consideration the bill providing for the construction of a union railway station in Washington.

House—The naval appropriation bill occupied the attention of the house throughout the day, Mr. Dayton (W. Va.) speaking on the need of strengthening our naval battle line, while Messrs W. W. Kitchen (N. C.), Fitzgerald (N. Y.), Metcalf (Cal.) and Maynard (Va.) strongly advocated the building of warships in government navy yards. The debate took a wide range at times, Mr. Rhea (Va.) speaking in criticism of the administration Philippines policy and Mr. Elliott (S. C.) presented the advantages of the proposed Appalachian forest reserves.

Washington, May 16.—Senate—An extended speech by Mr. McLaurin (Miss.) in opposition to the pending Philippine government bill was a feature of Thursday's session of the senate. The Mississippi senator vigorously assailed the administration's policy in the Philippines. He deprecated the outrages perpetrated in the islands, whether they were committed by the Filipinios or by the Americans. The bill providing for the erection of a union railway station in Washington and the fortifications appropriation bill were passed.

House—The house was plunged into an exciting debate on Philippine affairs. Thus far the subject of alleged atrocities in the islands has engaged the attention of the senate alone and only occasional echoes have been heard in the house. But Thursday the reports of cruelty and outrages were rehearsed in the house with vehemence and bitterness. The naval bill was the order of the day, but it received scant attention after the allegations of Philippine outrages were presented. General debate on the naval bill closed at 4 o'clock and when the house adjourned the measure was being read for amendment.

Washington, May 17.—Senate—An effort was made by Mr. Lodge (Mass.) in the senate to induce the minority to fix a time when a vote might be taken on the Philippine government bill, but Mr. Dubois (Ida.), speaking for the democratic side, did not desire to specify a date for the vote. Assurances were given that the minority was not seeking for delay, but wished simply that discussion should be exhausted before the vote was taken.

House—The house had another lively day of debate, Philippine atrocities and the Schley case coming in for considerable attention after the more exciting themes of debate came up.

Killed By Lightning.

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 16.—Nearly five inches of rain fell in the vicinity of Chandler in three hours, flooding the Deep Fork and its tributaries, drowning stock and destroying crops and fences. J. A. McLain, of Chandler, was killed by lightning.

WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

Gunpowder, La., Oct. 16, 1900.
I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine.
MRS. M. A. YOUNT.

In this issue appears the announcement of Colonel A. S. Berry as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress at the primary election June 28th. Col. Berry is too well known to need any introduction to the people of Kentucky, and should he be nominated and elected the people will find in him the same energetic and efficient representative that he was when in Congress heretofore. The Colonel has always been able to get about everything he asked for for his people, and no representative from this district ever approached his success in that line. He is a strong candidate.

The people in this county through whose farms the route for the traction road lies, will stand very much in their own light if they do not give the right of way. It is claimed by those in position to know, that capitalists are ready to take hold of the enterprise so soon as the right of way is secured, but that they will not enter into any contest to secure the right of way which must be secured for the entire distance before they will put in a cent of money. A land owner cannot justify himself in standing in the way of an enterprise so much desired by his neighbors, and which will prove a great source of development of the entire country traversed.

Some time between 10 and 12 o'clock, last Sunday night, a burglar entered the residence of J. C. Revill, cashier of the Boone County Deposit Bank, by way of a kitchen window and stole a pair of pants, drawers and a coat, and his gold watch. The clothing was on a chair near the bed in which Mr. and Mrs. Revill were sleeping. In the pockets of the pants was about $16 in money. After taking the watch out of the vest pocket, that garment was dropped on the floor. A couple of strangers, one a colored man, was seen about 10 o'clock that night by Eddie McKim, who gave him a drink of water at his home. The same men were seen about 1½ miles out on the Florence pike about midnight by Gordon McKim. Believing these to be the parties, the Cincinnati authorities were telephoned to keep a watch out for the thieves, and Mr. Revill and Elmer Beall started in pursuit. By 10 a. m. the watch was located in a Cincinnati pawnshop, where a burley negro had secured $6 only about 30 minutes before. Mr. Revill paid this amount to the pawnbroker and received his watch. Nothing has been heard of the clothing.

The Atkinson-Chambers Nuptials.

The wedding of Miss Aleen Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chambers, and Rev. Milo Atkinson, of Vanceburg, Ky., was celebrated this, Thursday afternoon, May 15th, at 3 p. m., in the Christian church at Petersburg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. D. Jones, of Erlanger. Miss Herma, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Rev. Mr. Owens, of Lexington, was the groom's best man.

Long before the appointed hour some four hundred friends assembled in the church, filling every available space. They were entertained in the interval before the arrival of the bridal party, with two lovely and appropriate songs by Mrs. Ben Berkshire. The two songs rendered were, "Dear Sweetheart," and "Call Me Thy Own." She sang them artistically and pathetically, bringing out the true sentiment of the composer.

The hymenial altar, before which the marriage was solemnized, was beautifully and appropriately decorated with pot flowers, consisting of palms, the symbol of victory or triumph; roses, the emblem of modesty; lillies, the type of purity, and many other flowers indicating the wish that in their pathway through life sweet scented flowers would spring in their footsteps and smile their praises. A cordage of cedar, interspersed with snow blossoms, supported by the chandeliers, extended from the door to the altar, expressing the wish of friends that the love thus entwining their young hearts would never fade, but would be true, inseparable and faithful to the end.

Promptly at the appointed hour the four ushers, Dr. A. Chambers and brother, Lawrence, and Mr. Grant Mathews and Rev. Walton began the march up either aisle in perfect time to Mendelsshon's wedding march beautifully rendered by Mrs. Harry McWethy at the organ, following, at short intervals, the two beautiful little Misses Norris McWethy and Nellie Orr with baskets of pink and white roses. Next came the bride with her maid of honor on the left and the groom and his best man on the right. Just here all eyes were directed to the lovely bride and her handsome sister as they moved up the left aisle. The bride wore a pure white muslin gown trimmed in valenciennes lace and a tule veil, bearing a shower bouquet of white roses, and her maid of honor was dressed in pink bearing a shower bouquet of pink roses. The groom looked happy and handsome in his black Prince Albert. They were met at the altar by Rev. Edgar D. Jones and he received the vows and tied the gordian knot in this matrimonial rope in a very beautiful, appropriate and impressive manner.

This was a very appropriate marriage. Mr. Atkinson has chosen the Christian ministry as his vocation and has made a wise selection in an assistant in the grand work allotted to him. Miss Aleen is a sincere christian, a zealous worker in the church and Sunday-school and a lady of the purest and highest type of character. With such a wife Mr. Atkinson has the promise of an abundant harvest in the field he has chosen to labor.

A very fitting exhibition was given of the grandure and magnitude of the bride's nobleness of character in the allotment of the best seats in the house to the sixteen little boys and girls who constituted her Sunday-school class and about the same number of young lady associates. They were all dressed in pure white.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom started to Missouri to spend a month in visiting the groom's relatives and friends in his native home. G. C. G.

About this time last spring rain was too abundant, but the drought followed after July 4th, and it may be that matters will be reversed this year, and from and after July 1 there will be plenty of rain.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucus membrane surfaces. INTERESTING STATE NEWS.

THE APPELLATE COURT.

Saturday An Adjournment Was Taken Until the June Session.

Covington, Ky., May 17.—After handing down several decisions Saturday morning the United States circuit court of appeals adjourned until the June session, which will begin on the 3d. The court Friday heard arguments in the interstate commerce case of the Central Stock Yards Co., of Louisville, against the L. & N. Railroad Co. The stock yards company claims that goods which were destined to its yards near Louisville would be delivered to the Bourbon Stock Yards Co. instead, and that the Central would be compelled to have them hauled from there to its own place. It appears that about 12 years ago the L. & N. entered into a contract with the Bourbon company to the effect that it the latter put up and maintained big stock yards the latter would be used by the railroad company as its only depot for cattle. Judge Evans in the court below denied any relief, and the appeal was taken by the Central company to the higher court.

CONTINENTAL TOBACCO CO.

Increase of 10 Per Cent. in Wages of employes Ordered.

Louisville, Ky., May 15.—On account of the increase in the cost of living the Continental Tobacco Co., through its vice president, C. E. Hallewill, of New York, Wednesday ordered an increase of 10 per cent. in the wages of all its Louisville employes under the rank, who will number more than 5,000. The increase will add $7,500 to the weekly pay roll of the company in this city. It is said the order of the company is general, and the 30,000 to 35,000 employes throughout the United States will be benefited equally.

Scarcity of Tobacco Plants.

Petersburg, Ky., May 16.—Tobacco growers of Boone, Gallatin and Carroll counties held a meeting at Burlington in regard to the amount of tobacco that will be set the coming season. According to the best information not more than one-half of the growers in these three counties have plants enough to set their own crops. This, they say, will cause about one-half of the usual crop to be pitched.

The Mixers and Servers.

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—Thursday's session of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and the Bartenders' League of America, Philadelphia was selected over Denver as the place of the next meeting of the organization, and R. A. Callahan, of Boston, was chosen president, former President Joseph Michaels, of Syracuse, declining to be a candidate for re-election.

"He" Was a Woman.

Henderson, Ky., May 15.—A white man named White and a person supposed to be a Negro boy, were arrested Wednesday on larceny charges. When the pair were taken to jail it was found that the Negro was not a boy, but a woman dressed in the garb of a boy. "He" admitted "he" was a woman. Little is known here of the couple.

Secured a Controlling Interest.

Lexington, Ky., May 16.—The Associated Railways and Light Cos. of America, headquarters at Baltimore, purchased the controlling interests in the Lexington Gas Co. by securing 25,000 shares of stock from the Jeffrey heirs. The company already owned the street railway and electric lighting systems here. The gas plant will be enlarged and improvements instituted.

Babe's Body in a Vault.

Covington, Ky., May 17.—A great deal of excitement was caused in Greenwood, a subdivision of Lockland, Friday night by the finding of the body of a well-developed male infant in the closet of the Maple street school. Officers Whitehead and Stewart are working on two or three clews as to the mother of the child, and who threw it where it was found.

LEARNING THE TRUTH.

Facts Regarding War in the Philippines Slowly Being Given to the Public.

Secretary Root as graciously permitted the publication of the dispatch from Gen. Chaffee expressing regret that 35 Moro prisoners, who were disbned, were shot down while attempting to escape.

Gen. Chaffee quotes a dispatch from Gen. Davis stating that 84 Moro prisoners who were sitting on an open hilltop surrounded by a strong guard suddenly sprang up and rushed down the hill, when the guard and one company opened fire without orders and killed 35 of the number. The others, excepting nine who were recaptured, escaped, says the Chicago Chronicle.

The noteworthy thing about this is that Secretary Root has been so good as to give all this to the public without waiting to have it extracted by the main strength of a resolution from one house or the other of congress.

For this burst of confidence in the American people on the part of the despotic secretary of war we have to thank the democratic minority in the senate and a few indignant republicans in both houses.

The administration and its supporters in congress and the republican newspapers with some honorable exceptions have been proceeding on the theory that the American people have no right to know what is being done in their name to the natives of islands some 10,000 miles away and that it is not only impertinent but unpatriotic for them to ask for information.

They have assumed that if wholesale slaughter, cruel torture and many other things contrary to the accepted laws of civilized warfare were perpetrated in their name and in pursuance of orders nobody but the men who gave the orders and executed them have any right to know the facts.

The minority in congress is entitled to credit for insisting on adherence to the time-honored principles and practices of the republic.

It is entitled to credit for dragging to light the secrets of war department despotism.

It is entitled to credit for disclosing the fact that there are secrets in this Philippine businesss not at all creditable to the country.

It is entitled to credit for frightening the administration into a disclosure of some of the ugly facts which prove that an irresponsible despotism is exercised in the name of the American people over millions of human beings by men who prefer to conceal their facts from those in whose name they exercise their despotic power.

How much more remains to be disclosed can only be conjectured. We may infer a good deal from the statement of Senator Lodge, spokesman for the administration, that over 300 officers and men have been tried by court-martial recently for cruelty to the natives of the islands, but the whole truth, which the people have a right to know, will never be brought to light until we have a democratic congress and administration.

TRUST HELPED BY TARIFF.

Republican Congressman Sees Danger for His Party in Existing Monopolies.

Representative Roberts, of Massachusetts, had the beef trust in mind when he presented his free hide amendment to the Cuban bill a few days ago, says the New York Herald, in explaining his attitude on the tariff question, as well as that of many of his younger colleagues, Mr. Roberts said:

"The time has come in the minds of many good republicans, when a revision of the tariff inside of the party is absolutely necessary for self-preservation. I shall begin at once to urge a caucus, and will circulate a petition for its purpose, to appoint a republican tariff revision commission, to sit during the recess of congress and report next December. Unless some intention is shown along this line by the republican party there is the greatest danger of losing the fall elections.

"There were many inequalities in the Dingley law when it was passed, and others have come as a natural consequence of changing conditions. These must be corrected, or the voters of the country will wish to know the reason why.

"One of the outcomes that is becoming very dangerous is the growth of trusts and their harmful effects on the consumer. One of the most rapacious of these trusts is the beef trust. In six or seven different schedules this great trust gets unnecessary protection on live beef, dressed meat, canned meat, hides, bone products, manufactured horn and glue. The result of this over-protection every consumer in the country is now feeling.

"In the matter of hides, for instance, every purchaser of shoes contributes to the 'big six' which go to make up this trust, which is the sponge absorbing the tariff on hides and all others levied on meats in any form. Inequalities like this, out of which have grown other harmful combinations, make a revision of the tariff by the republican party the great political necessity of the hour."

—Grosvenor's heart bleeds for the man who has to wear shoddy clothing, but it doesn't bleed very much for the man who has to cut meat out of his dinner pail because of the tariff-protected trust.—Rochester Herald.

"It is a legitimate function of government to protect the people against conspiracies to exploit them for the pecuniary benefits of a clique in defiance of the "greatest good for the greatest number" principle. And there is reasonable ground for suspicion that certain Chicago persons are involved in just such a conspiracy."—Rochester Democrat (Rep.).

—Gen. Chaffee speaks of the shooting of 39 Moro prisoners as an accident. A case of "didn't know it was loaded," of course.—Chicago Chronicle.

NO DANGER TO TRUSTS.

They Will Not Be Wiped Out as Long as the Protective Tariff Reigns.

Touching on the subject of the trust and the manner of dealing with it, the Springfield Republican, independent, says: "The one practical and effective course to be pursued is to deprive the trusts of their tariff protection, to take away from them their railroad protection, and then to devise some method of enforcing the publicity and an accounting to the public authority. This prosecution of the meat trust is a mere flash in the pan and cannot possibly bring large results unless it is made applicable to the incorporated trusts. Remove the tariff on meat and cattle, and clear the way for free importations from nearby countries."

That there is merit, and likely to be relief, remarks the Binghamton Leader, in the adoption of this suggestion is a reasonable presumption in the light of the fact that it has been recommended by protectionist papers, which have begun to realize, and to admit that they realize, that the tariff is no longer to be held sacred when it can be used, and when it is used, to rob the people. As a matter of fact, of course, robbery of the people by trusts is nothing new; it has been going on for some years; but there is an impression among the protectionists that the beef trust is a pioneer in the hold-up business; that the country has never enjoyed the pleasure of being robbed by the tariff-protected combines until now. As a consequence the sacred tariff has fallen several pegs in the esteem of its worshipers.

Still, there is no prospect that the true remedy will be applied, and nothing is expected to come of the attorney general's proceeding. The president has been given to understand that the trusts don't like this disposition of the government's to interfere with them, and he is quite likely to reconsider his patriotic determination to call the combines to time. A president who is ambitious to be renominated and reelected may have a burning desire to serve his country, but he cannot afford entirely to overlook the interests of number one.

THE BREECH WIDENING.

Republicans Are Breaking Up Over the Live and Important Issue of the Tariff.

Some of our republican contemporaries are so busily engaged in convincing themselves that the democratic party will not be harmonized, that they are neglecting unfinished business in the republican harmony line. The New York Press, which is republican 365 days in the year, Sundays and legal holidays not excepted talks right out in meeting and hits from the shoulder, says the Albany Argus. It calls the republicans in congress who favor the 20 per cent Cuban tariff reduction bill "the dow agers," and discusses the recent vote in the house of representatives in the following breezy style:

"Whether there is any more free trade in the differential amendment than in the rest of the Cuban reduction bill or not, the dowagers voted for the whole thing on its final passage; the protection republicans voted against the whole thing on its final passage. That there was no question in the mind of any one as to who were voting for free trade and who against it was shown by that spavined old hack, Grosvenor, who had still enough wits in his head and agility in his bones to trot off that railroad track at the last second before the free trade express, Payne, engineer, and Henderson, conductor, ran him down. Grosvenor seems to be the only ex-protection dowager of the house who was able to attain to the Devery proficiency standard of not 'getting caught with the goods on him.'"

Whatever else may be said of this deliverance, it does not lack for vigor and hot tobasco sauce. The widening breach in the republican ranks upon the live and important issue of the tariff presents at once a duty, and a first-class opportunity, to the rapidly reuniting democracy.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

—The democratic party has reason to hope that the report that Mr Roosevelt will take the stump next fall is true.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Since the beef trust made its appearance the republican orator is busy explaining to the workingman that it is not wise to allow the dinner pail to get too full.—Albany Argus.

—An esteemed contemporary of Philadelphia criticises the somewhat cumbrous and expensive manner of choosing senators in Illinois. Of course it does look complex to a Pennsylvanian. Over there Mr. Quay simply names the senator and the other proceedings are purely a matter of form.—Chicago Chronicle.

—Ex-Senator Washburn was contending for a protective tariff when Beveridge was in baby clothes, but he has come to the conclusion that the steel industry of this country has passed the period of infancy and is now able to stand alone, as it is controlled by a trust capitalized at a billion dollars, which cleared $118,000,000 last year.—Atlanta Constitution.

—Somebody has taken to commending President Roosevelt for "his Jacksonian democracy." The compliment will be wasted upon the recipient, who considers himself a bigger man than Old Hickory; and as for Jackson, why make him turn over in his grave?—Albany Argus.

—Jumping Jehosaphat! What is the whole Dingley tariff but a conspiracy to exploit the people for the pecuniary benefit of a clique? Has our Rochester contemporary turned free trader? Has the "British gold" of the Cobden club been getting in some more of its nefarious work?—Albany Argus.

THE FARM GRINDSTONE.

Much of Its Usefulness and Availability Depends on the Way in Which It Is Mounted.

The old-fashioned home-mounted grindstone is rapidly going out of use on the modern farm. When a ball-bearing stone, mounted with foot power attachments and furnished with a seat for the operator, can be purchased for less than $3, the farmer who has need of a new grindstone and who has a workshop or other place to keep it, is generally willing to pay a few cents more when purchasing and get one of the ready-mounted conveniences instead of buying a stone and fixtures and doing the mounting himself. For certain kinds of work, however, the stone with a crank for hand-power is sometimes preferable to one operated by foot power. The man holding the tool or object to be ground can give more attention to what he is doing when he does not have to use his feet to keep the stone turning, and can hold the tool more steadily.

To do good and speedy work in most cases the grindstone should revolve as fast as possible, and in Fig. 1 is shown a method of mounting that permits greater speed than the ordinary method. This way of hanging is best adapted to stones of not too great diameter. With too large a stone the increase of speed might be more than counterbalanced by the extra power required to turn the crank. To mount a grindstone in this manner, obtain first a two-inch plank about four feet in length and as wide as possible, say 18 inches. At the center of plank mortise three holes in which to insert solidly three two by three-inch uprights, which serve as bearings for the grindstone and the cog wheels. Two of the uprights are each twenty-four inches long and the other twelve inches. The two long upright pieces may be spaced apart to agree with thickness of the cog wheels and the shorter upright, at side of grindstone (not shown in illustration) may be set about four inches from the one next to it, distance depending on thickness of the stone. Procure two metal cog wheels from some piece of unused machinery, one fifteen inches and the other three inches in diameter. Have the large wheel turn on an axle with a crank, in bearings on top of long upright pieces, and engage in the teeth of the small wheel. The small cog wheel is put on end of the grindstone shaft, which extends between the long uprights and size of cog wheels may, of course, be adapted to the size of stone or kind of wheels found available. Put a water box or trough under the stone in position indicated by dotted lines. Put on legs and braces as indicated.

Fig. 2 shows a quick and satisfactory method of mounting which may be made use of for large and heavy stones as well as for those of small diameter. Secure the fork of a tree that has not too much spread, and after squaring it somewhat with an ax, put legs in each fork and at the butt end. Fasten the bearing on top so as to allow the stone to revolve between the forks. It is not necessary, except perhaps for appearance, that the forked frame be sawed perfectly square as in the illustration.

MOUNTING FOR HEAVY STONE.

A water trough may be hung under the stone or a drip-can supported over it on a bent rod, as desired.

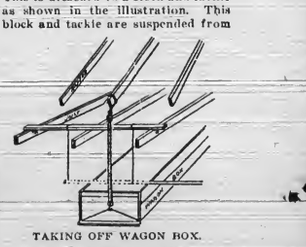
When a water trough is used on a grindstone, care must be taken to empty the trough when through using the stone; and if the stone is allowed to remain outside, some kind of a cover must be employed. The farmer must take good care of his grindstone, if he expects it to do satisfactory work. Wear it out by use rather than by exposure and carelessness.—J. G. Alldouse, in Ohio Farmer.

Drilling and Check-Rowing.

Generally, we think drilling preferable to check-rowing, and for the one reason that corn being scattered more by drilling, has a better opportunity to successfully develop. Rows being, say three and two-thirds feet each way, it is customary in hill corn to secure as nearly as possible an average of two and one-half stalks to the hill, or two and one-half stalks every three and two-thirds feet. If these stalks were distributed along the row as they are when drilled, they would stand about 18 inches apart. Now it is quite reasonable that since drilling makes a more even distribution, there will be a better growth.—Ohio Farmer.

An Indirect fertilizer does not contain plant food, but is used upon the soil to liberate plant foods already contained there. Well-known examples of indirect fertilizer are common lime and common salt.

POTATO EXPERIENCE.



How One Farmer Found Out That it Takes Good Soil to Secure a Rich Harvest.

When I first began tilling the soil I was told that ground that was not good enough for other crops was good enough for potatoes and that they would grow whether the ground was cultivated or not. As I had about an acre of just such ground and plenty of good seed I planted it. This was about the middle of June. It took nine bushels of seed to plant that piece of ground and when I dug my potatoes I had just eight bushels—a good yield, wasn't it? It was hard work planting, hard work tending and still harder work digging them, and then to have nothing but small potatoes for my pains was very discouraging. Still that small crop of potatoes did me a world of good, for I have found that the best soil is none too good for the potato. In the first place I secure the best seed I can find. These I plant on the best piece of land on the farm, onto which has previously been hauled a lot of well-rotted manure and spread nicely and disked both ways with a disk pulverizer, thus thoroughly mixing the top soil and the dressing. I like the manure from the hog yard with plenty of cobs in it, but if I cannot have that I use that from the barnyard. I use my riding plow as a substitute for a potato planter. I set the beam over so as to cut 13 inches and drop the seed in every third furrow. This puts the potato down into moist ground, and it will stand drought better than if planted shallow. After they begin to peep through the ground I take the disk and go crosswise of the ground. Leave the ground a little rough and the weeds will not be so troublesome. If the weather is dry, in about a week I give them another disking and then drag them. After they have begun to grow and if the ground is right, that is, mellow down deep, I use a surface cultivator and stir them every few days till the first of July, after which time they will take care of themselves. I find it a better plan to cultivate in the afternoon as they do not seem to do so well when the dew is on the plant and the dust accumulates. Potatoes should be kept clean and free from weeds. Do not plant onions or horseradish too near or their eyes will water and they cannot see to grow.—Prairie Farmer.

HOISTING A WAGON BOX.

A Simple Device Which Saves Lots of Hard Labor and Considerable Annoyance.

The device shown in the accompanying illustration makes it possible to easily take off the wagon box or hayrack and suspend it out of the way. A loop of wire is placed over the ends of the crosspiece at the back of the box. This is attached to a block and tackle as shown in the illustration. This block and tackle are suspended from the rafter of the shed or barn. The box is lifted to the desired height, then a crosspiece is passed through the rings suspended from the joists. The block and tackle are then removed and used for hoisting the other end of the box. The same procedure makes it easily possible to remove the haprack. If desired, a block and tackle can be used for each end.—Orange Judd Farmer.

FACTS FOR FARMER.

Farmers should have a certain time to begin and to stop work.

Nothing is lost that goes to make a home beautiful or pleasant.

Good fertilizers are no important factor in modern farming, and the time for applying them is at hand.

Proper pride in the good appearance and condition of one's surroundings and the locality in which he lives, should result in securing good roads.

A direct fertilizer is one which is used for the plant food it contains. Fertilizers that contain nitrogen, phosphoric acid or potash, are direct fertilizers.

If you can show your boy that a better opportunity lies before him in his fathers' work than in the great city, he will stay on the farm. You won't have to "keep" him.

Bare school yards, bare house yards, and bare public squares would not long be common in the country if children were taught the beauties and comforts of shade—not only taught it, but shown it in a personal, practical way. —Farmers' Voice.

Fertilising Value of Soot.

Soot is composed of small unburned particles of fuel which float up with the smoke and are deposited upon the chimney or flues. It is largely carbon with small quantities of nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid. The fertilizing value of soot is hardly worth considering, yet it often gives results, especially on light or cold soils. It gives a good mechanical effect, and darkens the color of the soil, thus warming it by increasing its capacity for retaining heat. On light soil we should expect some benefit from its use.—Rural New Yorker.

SOUL'S MOVING DAY.

"Man Goeth to His Long Home, and the Spirit Returneth to God."

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher in Which Forcible Lessons Are Drawn from Common Experience.

(Copyright, 1902, by A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.)

Chicago, May 18.

Text: "Man goeth to his long home . . . and the spirit shall return unto God Who gave it." Parts of Ecclesiastes 12:5, 7.

The period around the first of May has come to be recognized as general moving time, especially so in many of the larger cities of the country, and an event which so immediately affects so many lives ought not to pass without its spiritual lessons being pointed out. Scarcely does the man or woman or child exist who has not at some period in his or her life known what it was to move from one home to another, from one state to another, from one country to another. The medium through which we reach and understand the unseen and spiritual is that of the natural world and the every-day life experiences. Drummond's "Natural Law in the Spiritual World" opens the mind to the thought of the way in which God's spiritual forces operate, and human experiences have their resemblances in the spiritual realm, and bring their message to the human heart in endeavor to point to God.

Moving day has inseparably associated with it certain relative facts which are immediately connected with it in our thoughts, such as leaving the old home, the new home, the furnishing of the new home, new neighbors and friends, the new landlord, etc. Reverently and prayerfully we approach the suggested thought in our text, and shall seek to point out to the soul the wonderful truth of God as revealed in His Word. We shall endeavor to avoid unwarranted speculation as to unseen things, and draw parallels between the spiritual life and human experiences only where God's Word gives us authority so to do.

The Soul's Moving Day.: Our text at once introduces us to the certainty of this experience in every human life. No argument is needed to enforce this point. Man knoweth that his life endureth but for a season and like the grass of the field he soon passeth away, and yet oftentimes he puts off the thought of the soul's moving day for a more convenient season (which, but for the patience and grace of God, would never come, if it ever does come, and goes on living during time as though he had an eternity at his command.

Two beautiful thoughts flash out of our text to which we wish to refer at once, that the infinite love and care of God may overshadow our souls as we proceed. The words "Home" and "Returneth" gently lead the soul into the presence of death and give the brighter side to a dark picture. The dearest experiences in life are associated with the thoughts of home. The tenderest chords of the human heart vibrate at the sound of the word "home," so that even the man who never knew a home could sing "Home, Sweet Home." To the soul willing to hear God's voice He always speaks of "Home" as the blessed dwelling place of the redeemed, and death is robbed of its sting as we triumph in Christ Jesus over it. But to the soul given up to its own devices, that will not hear the voice of God, He speaks in thunder tones of the judgment seat and eternal darkness and death. The soul may deaden its spiritual ear to the sound and only hear the alluring music of the mermaids of worldly pleasure and ambition which lead onto the rocks of destruction, but when man goeth to his long—I cannot say home—goeth to his long eternity, he will not be able to shut out the sound thereof, and he will understand then what God now in His love and mercy is yearning to have him realize.

The other beautiful thought in our text is that of the soul returning to the God Who gave it. How natural that it should do so. How unnatural that man by his own wilful self-seeking should turn it in any other direction. The carrier pigeon taken to a distant point when given its liberty returneth straight as an arrow to the point from whence it came. How natural, how beautiful. How sadly pathetic, when, deflected from its course, the pigeon perishes by the wayside, and lifting its ruffled body and powerless wings from the ground we realize that it was not intended thus to be, but its destiny lay at the point from which it had been taken. The pigeon may not have been responsible for perishing by the wayside, but the spirit given by God which findeth not its way back to Him perisheth even while God is pleading with it to turn its will and purpose towards Him. The soul has a capacity for God and can only find perfect satisfaction in Him. In recognition of the soul's right relationship to God our text speaks of the soul as returning to the God Who gave. The soul belongs to God. By priority right of ownership, then, it is but natural and reasonable to think of the soul as finding its eternal abiding place in the presence of its Author. The soul, if it goeth the way God would have it, "shall return to the God Who gave it."

Leaving the Old Home. Moving day has come and the old home is to be left behind. While there are pangs of regret at leaving its familiar shelter, still the fascination of the new home to which we are going, with its larger accommodations and better surroundings, make us forget the old in the happy thoughts of the new. It is no hardship to leave the old if we know that at the other end of the line a new and better home awaits our occupation.

Two important facts confront us in connection with this leaving of the old home. First, we have taken due thought of moving day and planned accordingly, and secondly, we have engaged another home to which to go when the old is left behind. The man who did not give due heed to these two matters we would judge guilty of the greatest folly. Yet how exactly similar is the position of the soul which recognizes the certainty of moving day, and nevertheless gives no thought to moving day nor to the making sure of another home. What folly. How suicidal, as we hear some one say: "I'll take my chances." To such the author of the book from which our text is taken says: "Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes; but know, thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment." The rich fool has his followers in the world to-day, and they are carelessly and heedlessly plunging forward to that fatal night when their souls shall be required of them, and all unprepared they will be ushered into the presence of their Maker. The words of our Lord plead with every soul: "Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness" that is, first make your preparations for the moving day of the soul, secure your lease, signed with the precious blood of Jesus Christ, for a mansion in Heaven, and then you are ready to live in this world; "and all these things will be added to you" which are now taking first place in your life and heart. Never were truer words spoken than that one is not prepared to live until he is prepared to die.

In what a minor strain of disappointing failure and solemn, measured tread the preacher in Ecclesiastes ushers in the death scene in the twelfth chapter. Life has been experienced in all its varying phazes as the soul has endeavored to find enjoyment and satisfaction in the things under the sun, and not in God. Everything is tried and the cry each time, as the utter emptiness of this world's seeking is realized, is "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity." In the presence of death man realizes his utter weakness and impotency. As the friends and loved ones gather around the bier of the dear departed one and realize that the soul which had occupied that lifeless clay as a home while in this world has gone into eternity and is face to face with its realities, how the conversation loves to linger over the preparedness of that soul to meet its God and find an entrance into Heaven. How we recall words and deeds to reassure our hearts. We love to think of the loved one as in Heaven.

The New Home. Our text calls it "Mnn's long home," that is, his enduring or perpetual home. Bunyan's Christian, whom we have all followed in his pilgrimage with such intense interest and blessed comfort, was ever journeying towards the home in the Celestial Kingdom, and all other places in life through which he passed were but temporary havens of rest and refreshment. The reality of the eternal home could not be obscured by the glitter of gold, the pleasures of the world nor the sophistry and arguments of his friends, "for he endured as seeing Him who is invisible." Abraham was but a sojourner in this world, "for he looked for a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God," and "for such God hath prepared a city." Into that city finally returned the Lord Jesus Himself after the plan of salvation had been wrought out by His vicarious death, and amidst the welcoming chorus of the cherubim and seraphim, and the legions of angels, and the hosts of the redeemed, He set about fulfilling His promise, left as a beacon light in the world, that in His Father's House where were many mansions, He went to prepare a place for those who accepted Him as their Saviour.

The Furnishing of the New Home. Did you ever catch the full significance of Christ's comforting words just quoted? The mansions He refers to as being already in God's Heaven. He says: "I go to prepare a place for you." As I watched a heavily-loaded moving van pass the other day, I noted that it was laden with furniture old and new, but all of it with marks of service in the old home from which it had been taken. The old furniture was to be used in fitting out the new home. Ah, how differently has God planned for you and me. Jesus Christ, who is watching us day by day, is preparing our mansions with just the things we need most and like best. As beautifully expressed in a poem entitled "My Home," by Rev. Frances E. Townsley:

"He knows what things I love the best.
What tokens of His grace I long to share;
He knows my weakness and my need of rest,
And how to answer each unspoken prayer.

"His Home and mine! I can afford to wait,
And waiting, smile; for One who needs me sore is fitting up my Mansion. At its gate
He waits to open unto me the door.

"He wooed me with Love's pleading, yearning breath.
He asked for me in dark Gethsemane;
He trod for me the sepulcher of death,
And lives, to claim my love eternally!

"And without me His joy is incomplete;
One place is empty until I shall come;
And when I fall before His blessed feet,
He'll lift me to His Heart, in my own Home."

No need to take the old things of this world with us, for God has something transcendently better in store for us there. A little farther along I saw a small single wagon laden with all the worldly possessions of some workman. The furniture was poor and common and not much of it. The wagon turned off into a by-street to find the new home in a poorer section of the city, while the heavily-loaded van with its profusion of useful and ornamental furniture drove into the avenue. Here was contrast. How striking. Yet God, blessed be His mercy and love, is providing alike for all who accept His Christ. I turned to the roughly-dressed artisan sitting at my side in the car and remarked, pleasantly: "Going home?" "Yes, but I have a better home to go to, some day." The reply, so unexpected, struck me forcibly, and, as I thought of the two loads of furniture which had just gone by, I thought: "How wonderful. Here is a brother in an entirely different walk of life, with humble home in a poorer section of the city than that to which I was going, and yet he was looking forward to a mansion in the skies the same as I, and the same Saviour was lovingly and carefully fitting out his home even as he was mine." We shook hands at parting, drawn together by a wonderful tie, the blood of Christ. We both said: "We will meet again." Yes, thank God! Perhaps never again in this world, but in the next world surely, for we were both trusting in the same Saviour and the same promises. Perhaps God gave me on that evening ride homeward just an earthly glimpse of one who is to be my neighbor in Heaven.

New Neighbors and Friends. Mr. Moody tells of once being very closely questioned by a woman who was a member of a church, but whose Christianity was of a very doubtful quality, as to whether her servant girl, who claimed to be a Christian, would occupy the same portion of Heaven as herself. She was not just sure that she wanted to go there if social distinctions were to be done away with in Christ Jesus.

Have you, in any degree, the thought and spirit of this shallow-hearted, pigmy-souled woman? How about the thief on the cross whom Jesus took into Paradise with Him on the day of His crucifixion! How about the sinful woman, and the man of Gadara, out of whom Christ cast a legion of devils! How about the multitudes of publicans and sinners who followed Jesus and drank of the same water of life as the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well! They are all there. Thousands have followed since then from every walk of life, from every nation and clime. All are dressed in the same robes of spotless white, and all are singing the same song of praise to their Redeemer. New neighbors and friends in the new home location. Don't you want to meet them? I do. And do you know, dear friend, we will not have any time to talk party, or dress, or politics, or gossip, or church bazars, or anything else, but our theme will be of the One who has purchased with His own precious blood our mansions in the skies.

And now may I reverently speak of the soul's new Landlord, if one may be permitted so to use the term in carrying out our parallel between terrestrial and celestial things. The new landlord is always a source of serious concern to the tenant. Will he be fair in his dealings? Will he supply the reasonable demands of the tenant? Will he be kindly considerate and agreeable in his relations to his new tenant? We ask these questions with the thought of God as our Landlord, to set you to thinking. The world so little understands what a God we have, and how wonderfully He has provided for everyone. Is He fair in His dealings? Listen: "Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea, come buy wine and milk without money and without price." He that cometh unto Me will in no wise cast out." Where is the earthly landlord that would dare make such an offer? Will He supply our reasonable demands? Listen: "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father Which is in Heaven give good things to them that ask Him." Will He be kind? Listen: "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." "Come unto Me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest." Oh, friend, if you doubt the love and care of God, take your Bible and trace their golden threads running through from Genesis to Revelation.

I recall one moving senson several years ago, when in my neighborhood, through some mistake and misunderstanding, a house had been rented to two parties, and the second one to arrive found no home in which to place his goods, which were piled high upon the wagons waiting at the door of the already occupied house. No House Ready. What distress and trouble it caused the homeless family. But how infinitely worse must be the state of that soul which, arriving at the gates of Heaven, finds no mansion ready and hears the "depart from Me, I never knew you."

The family which found no home ready for it was able to correct the mistake and find a home later. Not so the soul which puts off its preparations until after God has given His last call to repentance and salvation, and the soul has been ushered into the presence of the Judge. No longer the voice of pleading. "Turn ye, turn ye, from your evil ways, for why will ye die?" But the stern sentence of banishment into outer darkness. Which do you chose? Knowing that the moving day of the soul is certain, why will you delay longer the securing of a lease for eternity from Jesus Christ for a new home in Heaven? This is the question which God asks of your heart. "To-day, if ye will hear His voice, harden not your hearts."

DOMESTIC ABILITY.

The Girl from Finland Had a Unique Specialty in the Line of Housework.

An aristocratic East Superior street woman, who has had the usual number of failures in the way of domestics, having tried nearly every nationality, heard the other day that a number of girls had come here from Finland to seek employment as servants and that they were highly recommended as strong, intelligent, capable and generally excellent help, relates the Duluth News-Tribune.

With high hope the housekeeper hied her to the office where these paragons were on exhibition, and was soon brought face to face with a brawny specimen, who could not speak a word of English. With the aid of an interpreter the following conversation took place:

"Can you cook?"

"Oh, no."

"Can you wash and iron?"

"No."

"Can you sweep and dust or clean house?"

"I have never done anything like that."

"For goodness sake," exclaimed the astonished matron to the interpreter, "ask her what she can do."

With calmness and complacency the reply came back: "I can milk reindeers!"

HE LOOKED DIFFERENT.

The Barber Had Shaved Him Before, But Failed to Recognize His Healed Face.

A Ninth street barber owns up that the following experience was his own less than a month ago. An actor from a neighboring theater dropped in one afternoon to be shaved, and seemed disinclined to talk. The barber, says the Philadelphia Times, is a believer in the theory of his tribe that conversation makes the process of shaving easier for the shavee—that the time seems to pass more quickly if the customer can be interested in this or that topic for the few necessary minutes. He tried the actor on the weather, the beef trust, the asphalt scandal and the new filtration plant without success. Then, just to keep things going, he asked:

"You have never been shaved in here before, have you, sir?"

"Oh, yes," replied the actor. "I was in here once when we played across the street about 18 months ago—in the beginning of last season, it was."

"Strange that I don't remember your face" commented the barber.

"Well, you see," came from his victim, "my face has healed up since then."

HEADACHE, BACKACHE, DIZZINESS

(PE-RU-NA CURES PELVIC CATARRH.)

"I am perfectly well," says Mrs. Martin, of Brooklyn. "Pe-ru-na cured me."

MRS ANNA MARTIN.

Mrs. Anna Martin, 47 Hoyt street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Peruna did so much for me that I feel it my duty to recommend it to others who may be similarly afflicted. About a year ago my health was completely broken down, had backache, dizziness and irregularities, and life seemed dark indeed. We had used Peruna in our home as a tonic and for colds and catarrh and I decided to try it for my trouble. In less than three months I became regular, my pains had entirely disappeared, and I am now perfectly well."—Mrs. Anna Martin.

Miss Marie Johnson, 11 Columbia, East, Detroit, Mich., is Worthy Vice Templar in Hope Lodge No. 6, Independent Order Good Templars. Miss Johnson, as so many other women also have done, found in Peruna a specific for a severe case of female weakness. She writes:

"I want to do what I can to let the whole world know what a grand medicine Peruna is. For eleven years I suffered with female troubles and complications arising therefrom. Doctors failed to cure me, and I despaired of being helped. Peruna cured me in three short months. I can hardly believe it myself, but it is a blessed fact. I am perfectly well now, and have not had an ache or pain for months. I want my suffering sisters to know what Peruna has done for me."—Miss Marie Johnson.

Miss Ruth Emerson, 72 Sycamore st., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for two years with irregular and painful menstruation, and Peruna cured me within six weeks. I cannot tell you how grateful I feel. Any agency which brings health and strength to the afflicted is always a welcome friend, and to-day the market is so filled with useless and injurious medicines that it is a pleasure to know of so reliable a remedy as you place before the public."—Miss Ruth Emerson.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the past year.

Peruna is the acknowledged catarrh remedy of the age. Dr. Hartman, the compounder of Peruna, has written a book on the phases of catarrh peculiar to women, entitled, "Health and Beauty." It will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,

The Harness and Saddle Stallion,

DANDY CRISTO,

Will make the season of 1902, at my stable near Big Bone church, Boone county, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1100 lbs. Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; sire and dam by Mambrino Time; 4th dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark; he by Black Denmark; he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4-mile race horse; he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's first dam by Black William; she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whip's thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry, gr-dam by Black Squirrel; great-grand dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done as cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

—DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS

THE COMBINED STALLION.

MAX LEDGER,

will make the season of 1902, through the month of April, at O. P. Conner's farm, 4 miles south of Burlington, Ky., near the East Bend road. Beginning the first Monday and Tuesday in May, he will be found at Burlington; Wednesday at Union, and the remainder of the time at home.

Terms—$10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with.

Description and Pedigree:

Max Ledger is a fine black, 16 hands high, is a fine show horse, having taken 47 premiums at 14 fairs, and is the sire of the best lot of colts in Northern Kentucky. His colts are large, active and stylish. He is very fine in form and finish, and for style, we challenge competition. For saddle and harness he is unsurpassed by any horse in Boone Co.

This high bred young horse is from Ledger No. 12358, Vol 9, (sire of Belle K. 2:28½ fourth heat with but six weeks handling.) Ledger E. pacer 2:24 at 3 yr-old, Kentucky Prince, 2:15; he by Crown Chief No. 4039, sire of Roland, 2:28, by Milford Mambrino; he by Mambrino Chief II, sire of Lady Thorne, 2:18¼, Woodford Mambrino, 2:21½ and many others. Max Ledger's dam, Kate Livingston by Forest Temple 136, by Edwin Forest; 2nd dam Madam Temple, dam of Flora Temple, 2:17½; 3rd dam by Tom Crowder; 4th dam by Bellfounder; 5th dam by Passenger.

Pasture $1.50 per month for mares from a distance. L. A. CONNER.

THE PREMIUM STALLION,

DEXTER.

will make the present season at my stable on Gunpowder creek, near Hathaway, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Dexter is a bay, 16¼ hands high, and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has made 5 races and won 4.

He was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Priam, sired by Bob Bendlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Cassina M. Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred.

Dexter's colts beat all competitors at the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, the Butler county, Ohio, and the Boone county, Kentucky, fairs, and the Boone county Harvest Home. Last year he took the premium at the Boone fair as the best brood stallion with 5 or more colts.

He will be in Burlington every county court day, and at Geo. Moore's stable at Beaver every Friday.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may occur.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 28, 1902. NO. 32.

WALTON, May 26.—The construction of the unfinished graded school house, was let to Edward Stamler, and the building will go on with dispatch.

Miss Pauline Curley is enjoying a visit among relatives in Covington.

Mrs. O. W. Rouse, in improved health, has returned to her home in Covington.

The killing of but one spreading adder to report this week. Jno. Palmer killed one with a rifle that measured 4 feet, 10 inches.

After being the recipient of many pleasant attentions as the guest of Miss Edna Ransier, Miss Mabel Hartley left on Saturday last for Lexington to attend the commencement exercises of Hamilton College, of which she is a graduate. Before leaving for her home in Illinois, she will gladden her friends here with another brief visit.

A seining party had some success in the mill pond, last week. Sleet Yarnell got a six pound carp, and he pronounced it superior to a catfish for table use. John Pohlson came in for a turtle as big around as a flour barrel. It contained 24 eggs. In the culvert run occasioned by the recent heavy rainfall Pholson was also lucky enough to capture an 11 pound carp. There are reports of good catches at other ponds. The muddy water caused the fish to come to the shore and they were easily captured.

The lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Clements, near Kensington, was the scene of a very pretty and quiet wedding, Wednesday afternoon, May 14. Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, of Williamstown and Miss Nora E. Kenslaer, of Bowling Green, Mo., formerly of Dry Ridge, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Rev. George A. Miller, pastor of Third Street Christian church, of Covington, officiated in a beautiful and impressive manner. Rev. Buchanan is the able and efficient young minister of the Christian churches at Dry Ridge and Williamstown. He is a man of sterling character and strong personality. Earnest and sincere in his life's work—the Master's service—he is a blessing to his community. Mrs. Buchanan is an admirable young lady, but the essence of her charms is the sweet, Christian spirit with which she is graced, and which will enable her to fill with dignity the position she has assumed. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for Lebanon, Indiana, for a short visit with relatives. They will then be at home to their many friends at Williamstown.

RICHWOOD.—Walter Wolf is kept busy at his new shop.

John R. Carpenter has purchased a new Deering binder.

M. Grubbs spent Sunday with M. L. Tanner, of Bankrick.

A morning train killed a valuable cow for O. F. Glacken, last Saturday.

Miss Ida Grubbs returned from Nashville, Tenn., last Saturday at noon.

Walter Grubbs and Albert Tanner visited Golden Grange, last Saturday.

John R. Carpenter had considerable fence washed away by the recent rain.

John C. Bedinger had the misfortune to lose his mammouth jack, Nutwood, last week.

Miss Clara Tanner spent a few days last week, with her sister, Mrs. Ella Rector, of Crescent.

Edward Newman and wife, of Indiana, were visiting Thomas Marshall, last Saturday and Sunday.

Gaines Robinson and John R. Carpenter and families, were guests at Bud Carpenter's, Sunday.

With regret the many friends of Rev. and Mrs. Brodnax received that pastor's resignation of this charge.

Misses Jennie and Armintа Woodward, were pleasant guests at John Tanner's, Saturday and Sunday.

The heavy rains have washed our land considerably, and water-gaps and fences disappeared down stream.

Our overseers have begun working their roads, but the wet weather has interfered with them considerably.

The continual hum-drum of the 17 year locusts, or cicada, has become an ear sore, for a person can not escape their continual noise.

On and after July 1st, we will go back to the good, old fashioned way and when in the city will eat cow butter—not Oleo, as hithertofore.

Excelsior Grange held a called meeting, Saturday evening, and completed arrangements for their festival on Decoration day from 3 to 9 p. m.

A great many fish were caught at the Kensington lake and Carpenter's pond, last week, as a result these two bodies of water filling above their drain pipes.

Robert Snow had the misfortune to overturn a load of Mrs. Maude Cunningham's furniture on the hill below John Tanner's, last week, and smashed it up considerably.

Patrons are requested not to forget the strawberry festival to be given by Excelsior Grange on Decoration Day, May 30th, beginning at 3 p. m. Come and tell your friends about it.

BUFFALO.—Farmers are busy setting out tobacco since the glorious rain fell.

The cutworms have destroyed a fine piece of clover for James Sebree.

The locusts are holding daily concerts with not a very appreciative audience.

H. C. Presser, of Latonia, was visiting relatives here last Saturday and Sunday week.

Several of the boys have been putting in their time squirrel hunting, the last few days.

Pete Adams and family, of Covington, were calling on Robert Woods and family, several days last week.

T. J. Stephens and wife and James Riley and wife, were calling on L. W. Stephens and wife, Sunday week.

Miss Anna Carlyle and Charlie Chance, of Bank Lick, were visiting friends here last Saturday and Sunday week.

Clark Rouse had several of the hands out on the road here last week, and did some work that has been badly needed for some time.

COMMISSARY.—Pode Snelling visited relatives on South Hogan, Ind., Saturday week.

Mrs. Eliza Walton spent Thursday evening with Mrs. Scott.

Geo. Thomas, of the Commissary, spent Sunday with friends in McVille.

Mrs. Budd Goodridge spent Sunday week with her sister, Mrs. Laura Marshall near here.

Rolen Rouse and wife visited the latter's grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, last Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Johnson, sister to J. J. Lillard, and her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Murray, of Mo., are visiting J. J. Lillard and family, and other relatives here.

Dan Lawell, Tom Goodridge, Ed and John Berkshire, W. I. Rouse, T. J. Walton, William Ryle, and Xen Scott delivered their wool at Bellevue to Utz & Arnold.

Tommy Roberts and his best girl, Miss Sadie Marshall, visited relatives in Indiana, Sunday week, returning Mouday. Each wore a pleasant smile as long as your arm.

William Goodridge sold two cows with young calves to Mr. North, living back of Aurora. Price paid, $92.90. Mr. North is a neighbor to our old friend, John Popham.

Mrs. Wilson, of Indiana, cousin to James Moreland, is visiting Mr. More land and other relatives here. Mrs. Wilson is a very pleasant and entertaining conversationalist.

Thanks, Bellevue, for your encouragement. If at any time, you see cause to accuse us of eating and drinking with publicans and sinners, we will not take it as an intended insult.

John Ed Louden, of McVille, visited his sister, Mrs. Fred McAtee on North Hogan, Indiana seems to be very attractive to some of our Kentucky boys, the attraction being on South and North Hogan.

Mrs. James Beard, while taking a drink of water to her husband in a field near by, caught her foot on a corn stalk which threw her forward to the ground. She was carrying her 8 months old baby, and when she fell, she struck the ground with such force that it broke her baby's leg between the knee and hip. Drs. Smith and Williamson set the broken limb.

Not being able to attend the last meeting of G. J. C. we would be pleased to have Bro. Crisler inform us whether minutes of previous meeting were approved as read. Bro. Crisler, numerous recent developments past and present, show there is no necessity for any one living in the vicinity of the Commissary using your prescription, although there are those whom it might have benefitted in times past, but they have passed so many milestones on the journey of life, that no remedy would benefit them. Thanks, all the same.

Boys, get your tin pans ready for no distant future.

T. J. Walton has flattering prospects for a fine crop.

The ladies of this neighborhood are about done cleaning house.

Mrs. Henry Parsons is the possessor of a handsome new buggy.

Miss Maud Arnold spent Wednesday with Miss Artie and Stella Ryle.

Wm. Walton has not planted his corn yet, and it is believed that he did the proper thing.

Eugene Kelly and wife and Bernard Rogers and wife, were guests at W. T. Ryle's last Sunday.

Several from here contemplate a trip up the Kentucky river to Frankfort, next Saturday.

The abundance of rain increased the number of cutworms and locusts in this locality, besides tearing down water gates and injuring the growing crops considerably.

FLICKERTOWN.—All those who had plants set their tobacco last week.

Woolper was higher last Friday than it has been for nearly a year.

Botts & Setters moved their saw mill from Bellevue to the Voshell lot here.

We had more rain last week than we have had since last June, nearly a year.

A. Mr. Ulric, of Cincinnati, was looking at John Deck's willows one day last week, but did not buy.

Henry Jarrell, who lives on the breezy heights, of Woolper, near Burlington, will soon become a resident of this place.

Botts & Setters have bought all of G. C. Voshell's timber near here. They will have their saw mill ready for operation in a few days.

The heavy thunder, last Friday, shook the top from an old stone chimney at your correspondent's house. Luckily no one was in reach of the falling stones.

Mrs. Carrie Hensley, of this place, and Mrs. Lou Hoffman, of Indianapolis, spent last Wednesday with Jim Burns and family in the Gasburg neighborhood.

One day last week as Mrs. Jno. Conrad and little son, accompanied by Samuel Conrad, were returning from the latter's house below Limaburg, they missed the road and got into water about 5 feet deep. The creek was very swift and it was with difficulty they got out alive. The horse had to be unhitched from the wagon in mid stream. The wagon was upset and a lot of eggs was lost.

Sciatica Rheumatism Cured After Fourteen Years of Suffering.

"I have been afflicted with sciatic rheumatism for fourteen years," says John Edgar, of Germantown, Cal. "I was able to be around but constantly suffered. I tried everything I could hear of and at last was told to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I did and was immediately relieved and in a short time cured, and I am happy to say it has not since returned." Why not use this liniment and get well? It is for sale by all Druggists.

CLIFFORD E. NADAUD,

Candidate for the Democratic Nomination for Congress in the Sixth District—Colonel on Governor Beckham's Staff.

In another column will be found the announcement of Clifford E. Nadaud, of Covington, for the Democratic nomination for Congress. This sterling young Democrat, of Kenton county, is now making the most active canvass of the three aspirants—Gooch, Nadaud and Berry. Of the large number of young Democrats of Kentucky, who have sprung energetically to the front in State politics, since the memorable campaign of the late lamented Governor Goebel, none has made more rapid, or more deserving strides, than Cliff Nadaud.

Though only 31 years of age, he puts forth the honest endeavor and loyal activity of far greater maturity. A hustler in the ranks of the Jefferson Club in Covington, and the Duckworth Club in Cincinnati, he has been enabled to do valuable service for Democracy the last two years. His voice, his purse, and his pen has been ever busy in the service. As the friend of the late Governor Goebel, no man was more devotedly loved by that leader of men, than young Nadaud. They were associates of long standing.

Born in Kenton county, Cliff Nadaud grew up as a boy to be admired by all, for his manly qualities. After completing his school term he gave up a season to amateur athletics and Y. M. C. A. work. In 1898 he was champion cycle road racer of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. He was popular with old and young alike.

January 31, 1898, Cliff Nadaud was banqueted at the Gibson House by 50 warm personal friends, and the next day he left for the gold fields to Kloudyke. He put in two years there, and in the mean time he sent out of the world truths of actual conditions, when the truth was very much needed. He brought back home valuable experience and gold nuggets, and at once entered the flour brokerage business. He has had continuous business dealings with nearly 200 merchants in the Sixth District, all of whom are actively hustling for him for Congress. This speaks well for him from a commercial point of view, and proves him to be honest and trustworthy in every respect.

Ambitious to shine in the political world and be able to do something for the people, Cliff Nadaud has adopted an active course in life. He is a Democrat because he believes in Democratic principles as enunciated in the party platforms. No man is more willing to go to the front for a political associate than he. To send for him to speak in behalf of Democracy's cause is always rewarded with a prompt and generous response. The last two years he has made many speeches in Kentucky, and particularly the Sixth District, for Democratic candidates. At the Lexington convention, when Governor Beckham was nominated, Nadaud's speech was one of the pleasing features. He has ever since been a warm supporter and friend of Governor Beckam.

For Nadaud's superior campaign work Governor Beckham appointed him Colonel on the Governor's staff. The honor is borne with appreciative modesty. To the Recorder Mr. Nadaud writes that he seeks the Democratic nomination for Congress because he feels that as an ambitious young man he is in position to efficiently serve the people of the Sixth District. He pledges his every effort in support of those questions indorsed by the Democratic platforms, which platforms are always in the best interests of the whole people. "If elected to Congress I shall give my entire time and energies to the measures that are for the benefit of my constituents, "he said. "I have no axes to grind, and no bosses to serve, save my party and constituents as a whole. I shall be found fighting for laws of equal benefit to the agricultural classes, as well as the manufacturing classes. I shall lend every personal endeavor to break down the bossism of Mark Hanna, and to restore Congress to Democracy and the people." Mr. Nadaud is reading law, which knowledge would stand'm in good part as a member of Congress.

GUNPOWDER, May 26.—J. H. Tanner and family were guests of J. C. Hankins, last Sunday.

Children's day exercises at Hopeful the second Sunday in June at 10:30 a. m.

Perry Carpenter and family, of Florence, were guests at J. H. Aylor's, last Sunday.

A large congregation attended the funeral services of A. J. Utz at Hopeful, last Sunday.

Ed Snyder, who is always on top in the line of farming, set his entire crop of tobacco last week.

The wheat crop is looking well, and with favorable seasons in the future it will yield a good harvest.

W. N. Surface and wife made a flying trip to Okauna, Ohio, last Saturday. They were most royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Black, of that place.

Some very heavy rains fell here last week and did considerable damage to cornfields, but were a great benefit to the pastures, meadows, &c., as pastures were getting very short.

John Emerson, of Chicago, is visiting relatives in this neighborhood. He has been employed at the shops of the Deering Harvesting Machine Co. for several years, but he retired, recently, and will locate at Hamilton, Ohio.

There will be tobacco plants enough here to set all of the land that has been prepared for the weed. While some have failed others have plenty and will divide with those that have none, and about the usual acreage will be set this year.

Mrs. Ada Surface, one of our most successful poultry raisers, tried an experiment with some broken turkey eggs. She sealed them with sealing wax and set them and succeeded in hatching one turkey, while the other died in the shell.

HATHAWAY, May 26.—Peas and fried chicken are on the bill of fare.

Mrs. Jane Clements spent last week with Mrs. Essie Conley.

Miss Alma Ryle was the guest of Miss Pearl White, Sunday.

Claud Ryle and family, of Buffalo, spent Sunday with F. J. Rue.

R. H. Stephens and wife spent Sunday with E. C. Franks and wife.

James Riley and wife were guests of Joseph Riddell and wife, recently.

R. L. Huey and Sam Hick's received wool at Mr. Huey's barn, last Tuesday.

G. L. Smith shipped his clip of wool to J. Schofield & Son, at Madison, Indiana.

Several of the farmers that had tobacco plants set some of the weed last week.

Elmore Ryle and wife entertained, Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Riddell.

Houston & Weaver have a new department in their store. The lemonade counter.

Miss Sou McWethy, of Petersburg, was visiting in Big Bone neighborhood, last week.

Messrs. G. N. Smith and C. C. Utz were in the city, saturday week, getting their new spring suits.

Misses Sallie Ryle and Edna McAtee were pleasant guests of Miss Fannie Smith Saturday night and Sunday.

A genuine, soaking rain fell here last week, improving the crops and vegetation which were needing it badly.

R. B. Huey and Leonard Kite passed through here Tuesday week to deliver their wool to Huey and Hick's at 18½ cents.

Miss Nannie Burkett, of Union, makes regular trips to this place every Thursday, to show her line of Millinery. Trimming especially.

Elzy Garrison, accompanied by Joe Green, made a trip to Indiana to Neal Green's to purchase some stock for Mr. Garrison, one day recently.

On the 17th day of May in their 17th year, there begin to come from old mother earth, seventeen million, seventeen thousand and seventeen hundred and seventeen, wearisome locusts.

BEAVER, May 26.—"Uncle John" Snow, one of our best tobacco growers, succeeded in getting out 8 acres of the weed during the damp spell of last week.

The lightning killed 4 fine hams for J. O. Griffith.

James Smith and family spent last Sunday with Kite Glore and wife.

Miss Amie West, of Walton, was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Will Wilson, last week.

B. B. Hume, wife and daughter, were visiting Hays Miller and wife at the Springs, last week.

Many of our farmers are using fertilizer in enormous quantities this year, quite an inovation here in agricultural pursuits.

A. A. Roter is building a nice 2 room addition to his pretty home in Beaver. Judge Roter, his father, is architect and builder.

The Locust Opera Co. opened the season in the Forest Opera House here last Thursday. Their rendition of the Tribe of Pharoahs is extensely horrible.

Quite a large congregation was in attendance at Hughes Chapel, last Sunday morning, and was treated to an interesting sermon by Rev. Mills, the regular pastor.

The Walton baker has established a branch route in Beaver, much to the gratification of the housewives who are loth to do their baking in the long, hot summer days.

Farmers in this vicinity report plowed ground washed terribly, necessitating the replowing of some of it, which consists in rocks and clay, all the soil having disappeared.

Dr. Shaw, of Cincinnati, was visiting relatives and friends here the past week, and while here looked at several fine horses, buying a good one from Mike Knaley, of Union for $135.

F. D. Grubbs, who has the contract for building the parsonage at Hughes Chapel, is getting along nicely with the work. It will be a pretty structure when completed, and an ornament to the entire community.

Ricketts Johnson and wife, of Covington, are spending this week at the home of W. C. Johnson, at Midway, where he is using Big Bone water for his health, having been prostrated at his home with a severe spell of sickness recently.

A goodly number of our young people went to Verona, last Thursday evening, to attend the commencement exercises at the League Institute, but owing to the inclement weather, were somewhat disappointed. However, they enjoyed the trip and visit greatly.

The most important event that can be described from this place is the remarkable rain which fell here last Thursday and Friday. Some are disposed to denominate it a veritable cloud-burst, and from the damage and destruction wrought it must have been. Every citizen in and around Beaver is a victim of the water's fury. Those having gardens along the Beaver branch suffered most. Al Underhill, Beaver's expert statistician, after collecting all the data possibly obtainable, roughly estimates the damages in round numbers at $5,000,000. While this may not be the actual loss, it is probably not far short of it. Owing to the torn up condition of the two pikes coming into Beaver from Berkshire and Big Bone, the collection of toll was temporarily suspended.

BULLITTSVILLE.—Rev. Milo Atkinson, of Vanceburg, Ky., will occupy the pulpit of the Bullitsville Christian church the second Lord's day in June, and on the following Monday eveuing will preach in the Christian church at Petersburg. Rev. Atkinson is a consecrated and talented minister and will, no doubt, be greeted at these services by large audiences.

Wonder if the locusts brought their overcoats with them.

All the old shot guns and pistols about town have been cleaned, oiled and put in working order in the last few days.

The flying squadron went to Bellevue again yesterday afternoon to capture four suspicious men said to be in hiding near that town. A close search of the surrounding neighborhood was made, but no suspected strangers could be located. It was late when the boys reached home, last night, pretty nearly worn out.

Miss Mattie Winston and her aunt, of Covington, were guests of Mrs. Geo. Gaines, of Bullittsville, Saturday.

Mrs. F. P. Walton was a most welcome visitor to her many friends here, last week. She will move to Covington, soon.

Thomas Whitaker and wife were visiting the Big Bone neighborhood a few days ago. They traveled in antebellum style.

Mr. Editor, why is it that Col. Graddy will leave his own church on Sunday to spend the day in Burlington?—[We believe we could answer that, but deem it prudent to keep the secret in our own breast.—ED.]

Two of the Idlewild boys have returned from the far West, whither they but recently journeyed, contemplating making their future homes in that section. They are Elmo Gaines, who went to Oklahoma, and Malcolm Chambers, who went to Arizona.

Holds Up A Congressman.

"At the end of the campaign," writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speaking I had about utterly collapsed. It seemed that all the organs in my body were out of order, but three bottles of Electric Bitters made me all right. It's the best all-round medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter." Over worked, run-down men and weak sickly women gain splendid health and vitality from Electric Bitters. Try them. Only 50c. Guaranteed by W. F. McKim Burlington, Union Drug Store Union, J. G. Oelsner Florence, H. L. Eskew Walton, O. N. Grant Grant.

Jas. Waller, of Verona, was in town yesterday.

C. C. Hume, of Mudlick, was in Burlington, yesterday.

Mrs. Helen Carlisle, of Warsaw, is a guest at Sheriff Allphin's.

Bruce Roberts, of Walton, was in town a day or two this week.

Miss Jonette Revill united with the Baptist church, Sunday night.

Chas. H. Tanner, of Florence, was in town Monday. He is the administrator of his father's estate.

The wind blew a door shut the other day, catching Master Edwin Duncan's wrist, hurting it considerbly, but broke no bones, fortunately.

The little two year old child of Mrs. Hattie Tanner, of Union, fell off of the porch into a 6 gallon jar of water, and was drowned last Sunday at 2 p. m. The child was playing on the porch.

James Strouse and Miss Cora, daughter of Robert Wilson, all of this place, tied themselves to Elder Ed Stephens', at Erlanger, yesterday and were united in matrimony. Here is to you Mr. and Mrs. Strouse.

Early risers saw some frost this morning.

Whooping Cough.

A woman who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkley Hall, Springville, Ala. This Remedy is for sale by all Druggists.

SERMONS OF THE DAY

Preachers Draw Helpful Lessons from the Martinique Horror.

Business and Religion—Rev. G. Campbell Morgan on Personal Consciousness of God—The Power of the Cross.

"The universal sympathy of the world is one of the most hopeful signs of the coming of the kingdom of Heaven on earth," declares Rev. Dr. Joseph K. Mason, of Chicago. "When this same compassion toward the unfortunate is called forth, not by the unusual, as in this sad event, but by the poor, who are always with us, it will be a happy day for humanity. Such calamities are not the evidence of Divine wrath, as some are saying, but the token rather of an impartial benevolence and wisdom. The calamity of the comparatively few, dreadful as it is, is the salvation of the many, for volcanoes are nature's safety valves.

"We shall learn some day not to defy the laws of God in nature and in morals. 'All things are ours' if we are on God's side, but if we build our cities on the sides of volcanoes or our nations on corrupt and selfish principles which disregard the rights of the people, or our personal characters on defiance of conscience, which is the voice of God within the soul of man, we must expect calamity and suffering."

In conclusion, the preacher spoke of the tender sympathy all men must feel for the sufferers in such a calamity as that of Martinique, and of the depressed sense of responsibility coming to those who dwell in lands where such visitations of nature are unknown.

Man's True Greatness.

"The recent horror in Martinique," says Rev. L. A. Crandall, D. D., "compels a pause and serious thinking about man's boasted greatness. With the coming of a new century we have been busy recounting man's victories over the forces of nature; now nature wipes out of existence 30,000 people in 30 seconds of time, as if to compel recognition of her supremacy. Man builds wonderful bridges, rears magnificent cities, binds steam, chains electricity, but when nature puts forth her useful forces the works of men go down in utter ruin. Man's greatness cannot safely be built upon the place which he occupies in the universe. This world, which is his home, is but an insignificant speck among the countless worlds which hang in space. Man himself is but for a little hour and then goes down to decay and dust. No wonder that the psalmist, looking upon the wonders of the star-sown sky, cried out: "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" Man's true greatness lies in the fact that the Infinite is mindful of him."

"The volcano is now a pheaomena," according to Rev. Johnston Myers. "Earthquakes have rocked the world again and again. The cyclones have desolated the dwellings of men. The floods have swept away cities and towns. The burning sun has made a desert of the gardens. The cold has frozen the harvests. God has not given us a secure place in this world. He has declared that "we have here no continuing city." We act, however, as though we were to remain where we now live. This life is only the fragment of life. We treat it as though it were all. We build and plan as the children in the sand upon the sea shore, only to have the next wave destroy our toys. In view of death coming to us suddenly and in some unexpected way we would keep in close relation to the Christ who conquered death."

Business Religion.

"Can a business man succeed in business if he conducts his business on Christian principles?" asks Dr. C. M. Coburn, a Chicago pastor. In reply to his own question he declared: "He can succeed in no other way. Can every business man succeed, then, in getting $10,000,000 who conducts his business on Christian principles? No, but most men will get as near to it as if they conducted their business on different principles. It is not absolutely necessary to be honest in order to keep poor. The deacon who said in meeting: 'Brethren, I've been a tryin' for 40 years to serve the Lord and get rich both to once, and I tell you, it's mighty hard sleddin',' would probably have been on the county if he hadn't tried to serve the Lord.

"I never knew a man to fail simply because of his honesty and integrity. The Bible agrees with common experience in the teaching that the chances of success in business are not decreased, but largely increased, if a man carries his religion into his business. And his accumulations are likely to stay in the family longer.

"Integrity has a commercial value. A man who has a reputation of being an honest man and a true Christian has a better chance of getting on his feet again when he fails down. He will not commit suicide; he will say his prayers and with a brave heart try it again. A man in such a condition does not suffer so much from his liabilities as from his unreliabilities.

"The man who lives according to Bible rules will be temperate, frugal, prompt, energetic, 'diligent in business.' He will not speculate with other people's money or use his own in gambling or dissipation. He will be free from the 'moral cracks' through which so many fortunes leak away. He will be courteous and considerate of those whom he employs and will attend to his employer's interests as if they were his own. In every time of strain he will have the quietude and strength and hopefulness that a man always has who believes his steps are 'ordered of the Lord,' and this is a great reserve force to push one to success.

"The fact is, as somebody has said, 'God Almighty has fixed things in this world so that it pays to do right.' Righteousness has the promise of the life that now is as well as that which is to come. Men with a genius for business can succeed financially on unChristian principles, but the same man could probably have made as great or greater success if he had been Christian in his dealings. And it must not be forgotten that even financial success cannot be fully measured until we take into account what becomes of the money and what effect it has had upon the children and family of the man called successful."

Consciousness of God.

"With the incoming of the Christ life, the fact of God is brought from the realm of the speculative into that of personal consciousness," is a thought brought out by Rev. G. Campbell Morgan. "The one overwhelming truth is God, and all other experiences are judged and placed by their relation thereto. The fact of God may not always be the uppermost in the mind of the Christian. He will not necessarily always be mentally repeating his belief, nor will he be constantly reminding himself of that belief. These exercises prove weakness rather than strength of conviction. There will be a constant consciousness of God which will flash out into restrictive and expansive application through all the various circumstances of the ever-changing days.

"How wonderfully this was true in the life of Jesus may be discovered by rending through the Gospels, especially those of Matthew and John, and tabulating His references to His Father. It will be discovered that He lived a life conscious of the presence of His Father, submissive to the authority of His Father, and confident in the wisdom and power of His Father. All the circumstances of the days, and all the values of words and deeds, and all the issues of life were tested and tried in that consciousness. To all those in whom Christ lives there comes the same consciousness, and it produces like effects.

"The life thus homed in God enters upon new views and new feelings. The first and basal change is intellectual. The God consciousness proves much. Remembering that the God of whom the Christian is conscious is God revealed in Christ, it will at once be seen how the enlightened intelligence rests in the fact of his perfect justice. Mists and mysteries may still enshroud the appearance of the hour, but the Christian knows that eternal justice holds unceasing vigil and metes out unswerving truth. Though the method may seem strange, the issue is assured. 'The Judge of all the earth will do right.' Yet this is not all. Christ has spoken to men from 'the bosom of the Father,' and the heart of the Christian knows that mercy is as truly the way of God as is justice; knows, moreover, that in the great mystery of the cross these have met, so that now justice operates in mercy and mercy delivers in justice. This issues in the assurance that in spite of all the appearances of the 'things that are near' God's victory is assured, and so there is ever in the heart of the Christian the triumph song of the day that is coming, and through all the conflict of to-day he endures as 'seeing him who is invisible.' The result of this is a new moral consciousness. All life being set in this new relation to God, then man becomes 'keen of scent' in his fear. The beauty of holiness and the deformity of sin are clearly seen. Righteousness is now seen in its larger issue in the victory of God, and sin in its deeper doom as defeated by God. Then all conduct is measured, not by the satisfaction of the sensuous moment, but by its relation to the eternal verities. Now the things that appeared only harmless and of little account to near-sightedness are seen to be of mighty moment when seen in the perspective and proportion of the eternities."

Eternal Punishment.

Rev. W. K. Newell, of the Chicago Moody Bible Institute, spoke on "Eternal Punishment," but his sermon for the most part took a brighter turn. Among other things, he said:

"The book of John was written for the purpose of leading people the way of salvation.

"Because you belong to a religious family, go to church, and give money to the poor, does not mean that you are saved. You must be born again.

"Let me say to the unsaved that when you get in the Christian spirit, Christ increases and you decrease.

"Salvation is so simple that folks miss it.

"You can't find fault with God for punishing sinners. You would find fault with the mayor and police of Chicago if they did not punish the lawbreakers.

"It's an ugly stubbornness in the human heart that causes unbelief. If there is an honest soul to-day that wants light God's going to give it to him.

"When I find a man who says he has never done anything wrong I stamp him as absolutely ignorant or viciously a hypocrite.

"If you won't have eternal life you will have the alternative—the wrath of God."

The Power of the Cross.

Text—For I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and Him crucified.—1 Corinthians, 2:2.

"It was a luxardous thing for the apostle to announce this to the Corinthians," declares Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, D. D., in a sermon written for the New York Witness. "They were a people who rejoiced in a variety of gifts and were eager to express themselves in manifold ways. Breadth of view and inclusive sympathy seemed to be necessary in order to succeed among them. They were prone to turn away from the Christian system and were especially sensitive to 'the offense of the Cross.'

"St. Paul made this bold assertion of the compelling theme of his ministry among them, because he perfectly understood them, and was determined to bring their acts and habits and aspirations beneath the unifying power of a great principle, which was the moral and spiritual dynamic of the universe, the solution of all mystery, and the clarifying of all aim. People who turn away from systematized religion to-day are the intellectual children of these proud Corinthians, inheriting their weakness as well as their strength. Men and women are found everywhere who possess capacity for the right and its doing, and indignation against any form of wrong. In their various walks of life they follow after an ideal; they know the nobility of self-repression and of labor for the social estate; they are kindly, honest and gracious, but they tell us that the evangelical faith has poverty-stricken asbeets and neglects some things which are all important to them, because apart from them they could not live their lives."

Dr. Cadman claims that there are several predominating features in this announcement of St. Paul which will help us to understand each other better. For most of the differences which vex our progress are due to the dimness of our earthly vision, and St. Paul urges upon us his voluntary dedication of all knowledge beneath the superior knowledge of the power of the Cross, because—

First, he says, nothing is discarded which is legitimate, minor themes are not lost but they are absorbed in the major one. A second point he makes is that "the power of the cross is the power of a fact." The explanation of that fact we may only attempt, but the fact itself shines steadily on, unhindered by warring statements.

"But, further, the power of the cross is happily expressed in the text, in the combination of the person of Jesus with the principle of sacrifice.

"And lastly, the power of the cross, as we survey the future, is a multiplying power. There are two classes of religious forces, those which absorb and those which are absorbed by them, and the cross is the supreme absorbent, whose vitality, always recurring, can never be impaired. Rest assured, you cannot exaggerate this statement and there is no need to qualify it. It is the legitimate generalization of Christian manhood, Christian thought and Christina effort. While dialectics change and literary fashions decay, the pledge of the permanence of the cross is in the person who died thereon and in the need of man for the benefits of that passion and death.

Let us dismiss our fears and weep not for the Cross Bearer, but for ourselves and for our unfaithfulness and [illegible] did all tongues fail and all prophecies cease, the holy hill of Golgotha would send out afresh new light and truth. There shall we keen our tryst with men and with the Father of men, and if we fail, God will raise up ministers and peoples which appear dumb as the stones of the streets, and they that are far off He will bring nigh, until the work has been completed, which is pledged by the very manner of its beginning to completion. Then shall the High Priest of our profession proffer unto God the Father Himself the Kingdom thus recreated, and having delivered it up, God shall be all and in all."

Gist of Many Sermons.

Consider the standards and tests of manhood. Many men misjudge themselves, because they use false tests. The warning is, let no man think of himself more highly than he ought to think. This does not mean that men are to depreciate themselves. Humility is one thing; self-depreciation is another. Power begins with self-reliance; conscience is one of God's under agents, and an honest, just pride is another. In measuring our manhood we must balance the evil over against the good. We are what we are on the average; if we are God's children we shall be what we are at our best, only more.—Rev. Dr. Hillis.

If there were men who had never been awake during the day and had never once seen the sun or felt its warmth, and if these men had come to doubt even the existence of the sun, their doubt and every trace of their agnosticism would be instantly removed were they to come out but once under the sky in which the sun was shining. In like manner all doubt and agnosticism with reference to God is instantly removed by coming into God's light.—Rev. W. S. Fulton.

A brilliant agnostic has said: "We are known by the things at which we laugh." And we all laugh at divorce. The time has come when the press and the pulpit must join with all of our ablest sociologists in pointing out with ex-President Woolsey: "Whether we are to be a thoroughly Christian nation or to decay and lose our present political forms depends on our ability to keep family life pure and simple."—Rev. Frederick E. Hopkins, D. D.

No man can win a worthy prize without a tremendous effort. The prize is the reward of victory. Moral likeness to Christ ought to be the aim of all Christian efforts. To dream of the glory and felicity of heaven is our privilege.—Rev. G. B. Voshurgh.

Every truth at the foundation of Christina faith is reasonable. Not all can be discovered by reason, but when once discovered they are compatible.—Rev. S. C. Leavell.

Sometimes, to have been born poor and to have to struggle with difficulties, makes you the better man.—Rev. Dr. Hyde.

If we would know Christ better we must make Him better known to the world without.—Rev. Dr. Shaw.

In the divine sight unselfish existence is life; selfish existence is death.—Rev. J. K. Smyth.

THE VITAL ISSUE IS TRUSTISM

Public Sentiment Is Being Awakened by Such Things as the Beef Monopoly.

Senator-elect Gorman, of Maryland, stands with the majority of the American people in his belief that the beef trust has made trustism the issue of the congressional campaigns by arousing this country to a full realization of the necessity for restricting the evil power of the trusts.

Every American family, rich and poor alike, has been brought face to face with a situation ominously illustrating the malignant working of the trust idea. For no reason, save that the big packing houses constituting the beef trust determined to suddenly take full advantage of their absolute control of markets, the price of meats has been advanced to an unwarranted point. In thousands of instances this advance has caused suffering and deprivation, says the St. Louis Republic. Even to the rich, who were not compelled to deprive themselves of meat because of these high prices, a lesson has been taught that has logically and rightly created the deepest resentment against the monopoly combines.

The developments following investigation of the beef trust's method of business constitute the most formidable indictment of the trust evil. They show that the cattlemen who sell to the beef trust, the retail butchers and meat dealers, are utterly, one and all, at the mercy of the beef trust. Cattlemen can sell only to the beef trust, competition being absolutely destroyed. Retail butchers and meat dealers can buy only from the beef trust, competition being absolutely destroyed. The consuming public can buy only from the retail butcher and meat dealers, paying the exorbitant prices made necessary by the greed of the beef trust. There is no appeal from the prices set by the beef trust, owing to its unbroken monopoly in the buying and selling of meats.

This teaching of the inevitable operation of the trust idea, conveyed to the American people by the action of a combine controlling the most important of food materials, has sunk deeply into American minds. Every household in this country is aroused to protest against the rapacity of the beef trust. Public sentiment is awakened as never before to the necessity of trust restriction. The reports of the situation published in the daily press are in themselves an overwhelming indictment of the trust system. The truth of the situation is a campaign document of incalculable value as tending to bring correction of the trust evil. The democratic party is the political organization to which the people turn for aggressive action against the trusts. The plainest duty now confronting the democratic party is to make the beef trust the vital issue of the congressional campaigns of 1902 and to lead the people to a victory which will mean rescue from the oppressive tyranny of the monopoly trusts.

—The democratic party will go on, conquering and to conquer. The truth as to what has been done in the Philippines will make us free. The issue cannot be dodged. The responsibility cannot be shirked, nor the reckoning averted. The democratic party, like the Apostle Paul, has a thorn in the flesh; but its work for truth and right, must and will be prosecuted!—Albany Argus.

—If the time ever comes that United States soldiers are compelled to submit to all sorts of brutality, treachery and torture without being permitted to use harsh measures in return against enemies of the government, the army will be hopelessly demoralized and recruiting in time of war will stop.—Indianapolis Journal (Rep.).

THE IMPORTUNATE CREDITOR.

THE EFFRONTERY OF LODGE.

Virtual Confession of Atrocities of American Soldiers in the Philippines.

Senator Lodge's defense of the atrocities perpetrated in the Philippine Islands is notable indeed for its evasive hypocrisy. The atrocities themselves he dares not defend, but he abuses the people who have exposed them and insisted on their repression, says the Indianapolis Sentinel. With calm effrontery Mr. Lodge said:

"It is a source of bitter regret to me that any American officer or enlisted man should have tortured any Filipino, or that any order was issued that on its face seemed revolting. But there must be some reason for these alleged cruelties."

Here is an admission of the fact of torture and of revolting orders. He regrets them. So does every American. He says there was "reason" for them. Every American knows that. We went out to fight a people not fully civilized and who have for years been engaged in a bitter and cruel warfare. They know no other kind. We knew what to expect of them. But we profess to be civilized and we are under the obligation of civilization to abjure barbarism, especially in an effort to force civilization and liberty on an unwilling people. The report continues:

"Within a few days orders have gone from the white house for the investigation of alleged cruelties and to punish any found guilty of atrocities. Mr. Lodge made a warm defense of the secretary of war, asserting that in the long list of distinguished men who had occupied that office there never had been an abler, more public-spirited or more patriotic man than Secretary Root."

Yet it is but a few weeks since Secretary Root denied absolutely that there had been any "cruelties" and publicly rebuked Gen. Miles for stating in an official communication that the war had "been conducted with marked severity." But for the efforts of the men whom Senator Lodge abuses to get at the facts, all knowledge of them would have been suppressed except what came from unofficial sources. The report further gives Senator Lodge's statement:

"All of us," he said, 'want to see justice done—we want to see those guilty of atrocities and torture punished. We do not approve of injustices and atrocities committed upon prisoners or upon helpless men. And orders have gone out from the white house and the war department to prevent such atrocities.'"

That is all anybody wants, and all anybody has asked, yet to read the senator's conclusions one would imagine that somebody had been asking for the punishment of perfectly innocent men who had committed no offense whatever. Senator Lodge in reality confesses all that has been charged, and, it may be added, all that has been proven—and no more.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

—When the republican politician is driven into an attitude of defense you can safely depend on his taking refuge behind the soldier. If there is anything the republican party does pride itself on it is the possession of all the patriotism of the country.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

—There is good reason to believe that the evil of trustism is to bring its own cure in the near future. The beef trust is doing more to crush the monopoly combines of which it is a typical example than any other influence. Public sentiment has reached a point of hostility to the trusts that makes extremely doubtful a long continuance in power of the political party which created and fostered and now protects the trusts.—St. Louis Republic.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

The general population of Canada increased 83 per cent. in the last ten years, the membership of the churches 168 per cent.

It has been estimated that the average schoolboy loses 273 whole school days during the years of his education by the clumsiness of our present system of weights and measures.

Religious tolerance has always been somewhat restricted in Denmark, but the legislature has just passed a bill granting to nonconformists the right to use churches of the establishment at certain times to be decided by popularly elected parish vestries.

Christian education is making rapid progress in South India, and, as usual, it uplifts women. Of each 10,000 women who in religion are Hindus, only 70 can read and write; of Mohammedans, 86, of Christians, 913. Twenty-six out of every thousand inhabitants of Madras Presidency are Christians.

Organized Christian work in the colleges of today is in a very hopeful condition. A committee of Hartford seminary has inquired into the religious condition of 68 colleges. They find that there are 2,317 seniors, of whom 1,675, or about 74 per cent., are professing Christians, and 294 are candidates for the ministry.

Philadelphia makes the claim of having the largest city and country club in the union. It is the Young Men's Christian association, and has 7,000 members. The association not only posseses several buildings, which are teeming with men having an attendance of nearly 2,000 per day, but has a farm of 457 acres near the city, which is the headquarters for young men during the summer months.

A large wholesale and retail drapery establishment in England has a recognized chaplain, and family prayers are held every morning from 7:30 to 7:55, at which all members of the establishment are expected to attend. This is placed first on the list of "Bedroom and House Rules," a copy of which is presented to every newly engaged assistant. Rule No. 2 says: "That all the assistants be expected to attend a place of worship on the Lord's Day."

QUESTION OF SUGGESTION.

There Is a Wide Difference as to Judgment of Weights by Different Persons.

The judicial minds of the members of the judiciary committee had a little wrestle with the question of "suggestion" on a recent afternoon, which caused no little merriment and more surprise. Dr. Macdonald, says the Washington Star, an expert criminologist, was being heard, and in demonstrating one of his experiments he passed to the members two black weights, both round, and one several times larger than the other.

"Tell me," he said, as he handed the weights to Judge Clayton, of Alabama, "how many times the small weight is heavier than the large one." Judge Clayton hefted the two weights, one in each hand, as instructed, and as he passed them to Judge Ray, chairman of the committee, for his judgment he remarked: "The small weight is twice as heavy as the large one." Judge Ray "sat" on the question for some minutes. He hefted each weight with one hand and then the other, and then with both together, then thought carefully for some time before delivering the verdict, which was that the small weight was three times heavier. The weight went on down the committee with judgments varying from one and a half to three times until it reached Representative Smith, of Kentucky, the last man. Mr. Smith received some jocular jolts from members of the committee while he was hefting the weights, and when he pronounced them the same weight he was greeted with a roar of laughter from his colleagues.

"Mr. Smith has guessed right," said Mr. MacDonald, "the weights are the same weight."

He then had to explain to the thunderstruck members that it was most natural to judge regarding the weight of two things of the same color and of different size that the larger one would be heavier. In this case, he said, simply because he had suggested that the small one was heavier, the mind immediately took the suggestion that it must be loaded, and the judgment was occupied with the question of how much heavier the smaller one was.

Burmese Ambition.

The highest ambition of a Burman's life is to build a pagoda, by which he wins the title of Kyaung Tagn during this incarnation and secures a mortgage on Nirvana. A Burman does not become a Christian easily, but when he does he brings with him the conviction he had as a Buddhist, that to build a place of worship is the most meritorious act of a man's life. This accounts for the present Cathedral of Mandalay, built at a cost of 60,000 rupees by Kyaung Taga Paul Ohon, a Burmese ruby merchant of that city. The old Church of Amarapura was built by an Armenian, and the two churches of the Tennessarim coast by a gentleman named De Castro. Many of the 700 and more chapels and churches throughout Burma are built of jungle wood, which is destroyed in a few years by the white ants. To replace them by teak or pyingkado, not to speak of modest structures, is a matter of hope with every priest, but, in very straightened finances, they do the best they can, and pray for Kyaung tagas to come along.—Donahoe's Magazine.

British Commercial Cities.

NOBODY'S TIM.

By Elizabeth Stuart Phelps.

It was one of those crossings such as you see anywhere in well-settled parts of New England, with gates like long, white arms, which swing up and down to warn the public of danger. The railroad was a suburban route, a short, busy, bustling line that sent out 40 trains a day over a circuit of 16 miles. It ran by a dozen little stations, each representing a pretty suburb with homes as happy as can be found in the country. The suburb of which we speak bore the beautiful name of Sunshine.

The arms of the gates were raised high in the air, pointing steadily, straight to the skies. No train was expected for 13 minutes. The gate tender had gone into the gate house and sat down alone; he was not allowed to entertain company in the gate house. [illegible] looked enviously across the track at some men who were hanging about the grocery; he would have liked to hear the story they were laughing at, but a gate tender cannot be frivolous.

These men were leaning against the wall—two customers and the depot cab driver. One of the customers was hugging an impressive order of salt pork and sugar and kerosene to his breast. The other was affectionately cherishing a paper package of butter.

One man was lounging on the steps. He sprawled at full length. He had his hat over his eyes for the May sun was hot. He was smoking. He usually was. It could not be said that he was usually doing anything else, unless, perhaps, he were occupied in getting drunk. He was a marked man in Sunshine—an idle fellow in a busy place, a scapegrace in a decorous community.

"What did those plaguy railroad commissioners do about grade crossings?"

One of the customers (the butter customer) put this question in a heavily injured tone.

"They recommended 'em," replied the sugar and salt pork customer, soothingly.

"They'd better!" snarled the butter customer.

"We've only killed 11 folks come next July," urged the cab driver, cheerfully.

"Fourteen," said the man on the step. He did not remove his pipe from his mouth, and his tone was muffled accordingly.

"Well," said the first customer, "Tim knows. He picked up the pieces of most of 'em. My butter's busted," added the speaker, gloomily. "It's runnin' up my sleeve. I give 25 cents a pound for it, too!"

Tim laughed. He was always ready to laugh. He had the merry, cordial nature common to some children and many drunkards, and the curly hair that often goes with it.

Nobody's Tim was one of the ruins of the great civil war; the remains of what had once been a brave and splendid fellow. He was one of the men who had done fine deeds in war, that flashed out the best of his character, and then had been beaten in peace by the worst. There was, indeed, a story about a wound at Gettysburg, and Tim used to say that something was wrong with his heart when he tried to work. But few believed it and no one cared for Tim's aches and ails.

"There's the colonel," said the cab driver, suddenly, "comin' down the boulevard with his auto-go-but-don't. I can't say when I've seen the colonel come home so early. Say, Tim, there's your colonel. Do set up, can't ye?"

But Nobody's Tim was already on his feet. He had seen the colonel before any one else had. Who knew what Nobody's Tim did not see under shelter of that old brown felt hat? Tim stood silently. He followed the automobile with his sad and sunken eyes. The colonel's wife was riding with him—a young wife. He had not been married many years.

The automobile dashed up and rushed by. Tim stood at attention. He straightened his shoulders. Drink and poverty and misery and sickness and advancing age had never quite taken the military look out of Tim's figure. He jammed the old brown felt hat into position on his head. All that was soldierly in the loafer awakened at sight of his colonel. As the carriage puffed by, Nobody's Tim saluted respectfully.

The colonel, glancing under his wife's lace sunshade, saluted the drunkard gravely in return. Afterward he was glad to remember that he had done this.

Nobody's Tim flushed with joy at the recognition, but he did not speak. If any one had noticed, there was a quiver in the man's lips. As he stood smoking he began to hum below his breath:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord!"

A little girl tried to stand still while the nurse was getting her white arms into pink sleeves. This was a difficult procedure—no one could understand how difficult, unless one were a baby girl of three, and in a hurry to go out to walk. She was all pink and white, this dainty little lady—white dress, rose ribbons, little pink broadcloth coat, and a hat of silk mull with rosebuds. Her long stockings were of dark, dull green, with tiny boots to match. Her father said she looked like a rose with two stems. Her name was Rosamond as a matter of course. Everybody knew how her father felt about that baby—the child of his middle life and early age—his only one. He came to bid her good-by that day before he went out on the automobile with her mother. He folded the little girl's arms about his neck and laid his dark cheek to hers, and kissed her more softly than her mother did, and not so many times but each kiss seemed to count for more, for some reason.

"Rose shall ride with papa next time," he said, to comfort her. "And Jane will be careful—very careful, Jane," added the colonel, with his military manner. "Remember all that we have told you about the lake, and the cars, and the crossings—"

"And big dogs," interrupted the child's mother.

"And the electric cars," added the father.

"And cows," suggested the mother.

"And if you should meet a fire engine—" finished the father.

They did not meet a fire engine. Jane held the child's hand tight as they passed the lake. They made the crossings without any trouble. There were no cows. And the only big dog they met was a particular friend and neighbor of Rose's, who offered to escort her and take care of her. But Jane told him it was against her orders; so he turned away and stayed at home.

In the square—so fate had willed it—they met the only danger against which the nurse had not been warned. This was the grocer's boy. He was Jane's very particular grocer boy, and she stopped to speak to him.

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord."

Nobody's Tim was still singing in his wasted tenor, muffled and interrupted by the pipe, which had not left his lips, except for a moment when the colonel passed.

NOBODY'S TIM SALUTED RESPECTFULLY.

But fully 60 seconds before any other man saw anything, Tim had seen everything. It was then that the pipe came out of his mouth. It covered the sidewalk with splinters.

"God A'mighty!" groaned Tim. "The colonel's baby!"

The long, lean arms of the gates had dropped, and stretched themselves mightily across the street. A grown person could not pass their strong barricade unless by deliberately stooping under, and so evading it; but to the baby girl there was no barricade at all. The arms of the gate escaped the topmost rosebud on her rose-white, rose-pink hat by several inches. And the child—something scornful of the nurse, something disdainful of the grocer's boy—had continued her walk in a pretty, solitary dignity which comes at times on little maids like her.

When Tim's pipe came out of his mouth the colonel's Rose had stepped under the arms of the railway gate.

And the train—

Afterward, the gate tender swore that the train was 40 feet away. But what are 40 feet? And the baby girl, suddenly seeing the monster, bewildered by the roar and smoke and steam, confused by the horror that she could not understand, put up her lips and began to cry, and stood still upon the track.

It was then that a man leaped the gate and dashed into the throat of death with a cry whose joyousness rings to this day in the ears of every soul who heard it. As he hurled himself upon the child, his old, faded felt hat fell off, and the May sunlight brought out the gold in the brown of his curly hair.

He flung the baby girl high into the air. A dozen arms were outstretched to catch her. She came down against somebody's neck without a bruise. Nobody's Tim—how, will never be known—whether he caught his foot, or whether there was anything in that story about his heart and the wound at Gettysburg—however it happened. Nobody's Tim fell. He did not rise.

They gathered his poor body tenderly, remembering, when they did so, how he had himself performed this pitiful service for so many other poor bodies on the railroad which waited for the commissioners to vote about grade crossings—and somebody picked up the old brown felt hat, and somebody else asked:

"What shall we do with him?" For Nobody's Tim, you remember, had neither wife nor child, neither "own folks" nor home.

Then, out of the silent crowd which had thickened in the square, sudden voices rose:

"I'll take him to my house."

"And I—"

"I will—"

"No! We will—"

"No, let us—"

And the voices strove with one another, till it seemed as if all Sunshine were competing to be "own folks" to Tim.

For, in the flashing of a noble deed, Nobody's Tim had become Everybody's Tim, and the whole town pressed to do him honor.

Now, at this moment, the silver trail of a distant steam carriage could be seen melting along the smooth road.

"Hold on!" said the cab driver. "That's the colonel. He's got something to say about this."

Memorial day dawned clear, hot and shining, as it almost always is. No one in Sunshine went to the baseball games or cared for the bicycle races on the [illegible]ional festival of that year; but all Sunshine followed the pathetic remnant of the Grand Army when the gray-haired group formed to escort their homeless, dead comrade from the colonel's home.

No one remembered on that morning that Tim used to drink; that he did not work; that he had neither place nor name, nor character among his neighbors. Everyone remembered rather how kind he was, and how generous of impulse, what good company he was, and what a pleasant smile he had—this hero who had lived among them in disguise, unregarded and neglected for so long.

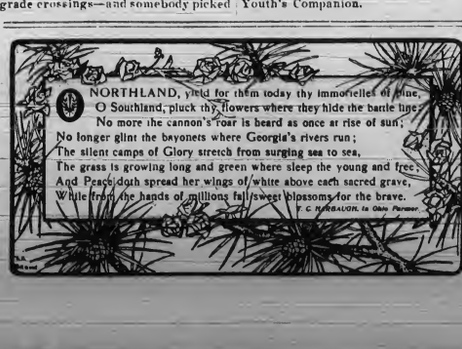
As they bore him down the colonel's granite steps and out into the street, the Grand Army veterans sang in their broken voices:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord."

A chorus of trained singers had started the battle hymn, as the colonel asked; but when the veterans took it up every other voice was hushed—nobody else could sing—and the veterans finished the hymn alone.

Then the heating, breaking heart of the military music throbbed in and claimed its own.

Nobody's Tim was buried as if he had been the general. Blotted out in flowers, he seemed to have no grave. The chaplain read the service as if the Christian faith wished she could have owned the hero. The flag folded him as if it were proud of him. But the colonel, with bared head, stood a little apart. Lifting his eyes, as if he perceived what no other did, the commanding officer of the old regiment saluted the unseen spirit of the dead private, as a soldier salutes his superior. Then the drum of the veterans sounded taps for Tim, and three volleys rang across his grave.



Now, after taps, an unexpected thing occurred. Some one led up the little girl, all in white, and her arms were heaped with pink roses. These she put delicately, one by one, upon the pyre of blossoms under which Everybody's Tim was laid away. Rosamond kissed the roses before she put them down—it was her own idea. No one spoke or stirred while she did this, and afterward no one added a flower.

Then the child (this, too, was her own idea) quite naturally knelt down upon the flowers and shut her eyes and said aloud and distinctly, so that all the people heard her:

"Now I lay me down to sleep.
I pray ye Lord my soul to keep.
If I should die before I wake up—Amen."

"Well," said one of the Grand Army men, with the back of his hand at his eyes, "I guess she's wuth it."

But the colonel, her father, caught her to his heart and hid his face upon her soft hair. He did not speak. The veterans saluted and turned away.—Youth's Companion.

HEALTH AND ALL ITS BLESSINGS

Health will come with all its blessings to those who know the way, and it is mainly a question of right-living, with all the term implies, but the efforts which strengthen the system, the games which refresh and the foods which nourish are important, each in a way, while it is also advantageous to have knowledge of the best methods of promoting freedom from unsanitary conditions. To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value, and the one remedy which acts most beneficially and pleasantly, as a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

With a proper understanding of the fact that many physical ills are of a transient character and yield promptly to the gentle action of Syrup of Figs, gladness and comfort come to the heart, and if one would remove the torpor and strain and congestion attendant upon a constipated condition of the system, take Syrup of Figs and enjoy freedom from the aches and pains, the colds and headaches and the depression due to inactivity of the bowels. In case of any organic trouble it is well to consult a competent physician, but when a laxative is required remember that the most permanently gratifying results will follow personal cooperation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs. It is for sale by all reliable druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

The excellence of Syrup of Figs comes from the beneficial effects of the plants used in the combination and also from the method of manufacture which ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product essential in a perfect family laxative. All the members of the family from the youngest to the most advanced in years may use it whenever a laxative is needed and share alike in its beneficial effects. We do not claim that Syrup of Figs is the only remedy of known value, but it possesses this great advantage over all other laxatives that it acts gently and pleasantly without disturbing natural functions, in any way, as it is free from every objectionable quality or substance. To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine and the full name of the Co.—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package.

Westbay & Hogan bought of Tony Bentler his coming crop of wheat, to be taken at the machine, at 63 cents a bushel. He has about 65 acres of nice wheat.

The family of F. L. Gordon, deceased, take this means of thanking their neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown them in their late bereavement.

In another column will be found the advertisement of T. B. Castleman, dentist. He is doing considerable work in Burlington where he can be found every Saturday.

Nothing has been heard of the thieves who got Cashier Revill's money and other property, and there is no probability that they will ever be apprehended for that job.

The rain, on Tuesday of last week, was the heaviest that has fallen in the north end of this county in many years. In many instances plowed land was washed badly.

W. E. Vest was very busy, last week, building fence on his recent purchase of real estate just south of town. Billie is a hummer when he sheds his linen and tackles agricultural pursuits.

G. H. and J. C. Gordon were appointed administrators of the estate of the late F. L. Gordon, last Saturday. John Stephens, J. L. Riley and Henry McGlasson were appointed appraisers.

Helps for 20th Century Housewives, compiled by the Ladies Society of the Presbyterian Church, Union, Ky., is now on sale. Every good cook ought to buy one of these handy little volumes.

The rains the past few days will about make the oats and hay crops in this part of the country, while the young grass will be given a splendid start. The good crop of early potatoes is now a certainty.

The colored people have begun work on their church building at this place again. They suspended operation last fall on account of a want of funds. When completed it will be quite a good, commodious building.

The Williamstown Courier says the Congressional race is warming up and looks like a horse race from start to finish. People in this county are beginning to discuss the race, and it is beginning to develop considerable interest.

The wind Friday afternoon blew a limb off of a large tree near R. S. Cowen's residence, and drove it through the end of the building. Mrs. Cowen was the only member of the family at home at the time, and she was not aware of what had happened until after the rain ceased.

Supt. Snyder has not determined on the dates upon which to hold the Teacher's Institute this year, but he has begun looking after the special features that will both entertain and instruct, and the people of Burlington will surely assist him in his efforts to make the meeting of the teachers pleasant and profitable.

The rain, last Thursday evening, kept many persons from turning out to hear Mr. Nadaud's speech, delivered at the court house, consequently his audience was very small. He made a good speech notwithstanding the limited number of hearers. Mr. Nadaud is a young man with commendable ambition.

Of the 14 applicants for certificates to teach in the public schools of this county, at the last examination for white teachers, the following were successful: Eunice Johnson, Hubert Northcutt, Lillian Corbin, Bessie VanNess, Frank McMullin, Sadie Crisler, Virginia Blyth, Mabel Vest, Lizzie Rogers, Lolla Ward, Grace Russell. Miss Eunice Johnson, a pupil of Miss Nannie Hamilton, was at the head of the class.

No Loss of Time.

I have sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for years, and would rather be out of coffee and sugar than it. I sold five bottles of it yesterday to threshers that could go no farther, and they are at work again this morning.—H. R. PHELPS, Plymouth, Oklahoma. As will be seen by the above the threshers were able to keep on with their work without losing a single day's time. You should keep a bottle of this Remedy in your home. For sale by all Druggists.

Last Sunday the officers went to the Bellevue neighborhood in pursuit of a negro who was suspected of being concerned in the Revill robery in Burlington a week before, but when they arrived at the locality where he was seen that morning he had disappeared, it being learned that he had gone to Rising Sun. The negro made several statements in the Bellevue neighborhood that almost connected him with the Burlington job. He is known in Rising Sun as "Ponto," and is an all-around bad man, having been in the penitentiary three times.

Last Friday about 12:30 lighting struck a horse belonging to Asa Cason, and which was in possession of Jeff Eddins, who had been riding it for a few weeks collecting taxes. The electric current struck the horse in the top of the head, where it singed the hair considerably, and crazed the animal so that it ran through a strong wire fence that surrounded the lot, when it fell in a ravine that crosses the public road, and was not able to get up until it was assisted. The horse is yet alive with good prospects for recovery, although it has not not been able to eat any since the accident, on account of its tongue being paralyzed. That member is improving, and the eyesight has returned. The treatment was ice bound to the animal's head. It was Dr. Crisler's first case of that kind, and he handled it very cleverly.

A few days since a stranger came to the home of William Bondurant, who lives down on Gunpowder, and took board for a short time, claiming that he was a detective, trying to locate a criminal who was lurking about Big Bone Springs. After a few days' sojourn with Mr. B., the stranger represented that he was a pension agent, also, securing testimony by which to obtain an increase of pensions for the old soldiers. He employed Mr. Bondurant to take him to the homes of several of the old soldiers in this county, whose affidavits he would take, in every instance having Mr. Bondurant sign the writing as a witness. Having obtained the affidavits of several old soldiers, the pretended agent had Mr. B. to take him to Erlanger to see a pensioner. Having transacted the business at that place the detective-agent, said it was very necessary that he confer with Col. A. S. Berry, who had rendered him valuable assistance while he (the Colonel) was in Congress. When they reached Covington Bondurant was told to remain at the hotel until the agent returned from Colonel Berry's. Having waited considerably over the appointed time it dawned upon Bondurant that he was being duped, and he proceeded to Col. Berry's home in Newport, where he was informed by the Colonel that he had not seen, nor did he know of, any such man. Mr. Bondurant returned home very much worried over the developments, and is uneasy for fear the papers he signed, without reading, will finally involve him in trouble.

When the stranger came to Mr. Bondurant's he gave Charles F. Maynard, as his name, and Dayton, Ohio, as his home.

Miss Virgie Snyder, of Bellevue, who had been visiting her sister, Mrs. Nattie Carpenter near town for several days, returned home last Saturday.

Clifford Shinkle, of Covington, passed through Burlington in his automobile Sunday afternoon. The appearance of the vehicle makes old family horses become unruly colts in a very few seconds.

Mrs. R. B. Johnson, of Holden, Mo., and her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Murray, of Warrensburg, Mo., are visiting their relatives in this county. Mrs. Johnson is a sister of Mr. J. J. Lillard. They came in last week.

J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore, and his brother, Ernest, of Bellevue neighborhood, were transacting business here Monday. Frank is growing heavier and handsomer every day, and is losing none of his good nature.

M. T. Garnett arrived home from Florida, Saturday evening, where he had sojourned since the first of last December. He likes Florida as a winter home, and was delighted with the people he met there. On his return he came by Jacksonville, where he saw the Foster boys, who he says are doing well.

Henry Terrill, who went to Southern California several months ago, returned on Monday of last week, his wife and daughter remaining. He will return to California again this fall. Mr. Terrill is pleased with the climate, but a country where corn and other farm products are not produced, has very little attraction for him.

Ex-Mayor Roberts, of Lawrenceburg, was in town last Wednesday afternoon. He is attorney for the Big Four railroad, and was seeking to adjust Mrs. Henry Terrill's claim for $900 for injuries received several months ago in a collision of a freight with a passenger train between Lawrenceburg and Lawrenceburg Junction, on the Big Four. The claim is in the hands of Attorney Tolin.

No kicking because of the abundance of the rain. Remember how glad you wanted to see the wet period, and how inconvenient the continued dry weather was last year.

BURNED AT THE STAKE

Negro Lynched by a Texas Mob For Assault.

The Victim, Writhing and Groaning With Agony, Begged Piteously to Be Shot—The Crowd Carried Away Gruesome Relics.

Longview, Tex., May 23.—A man hunt which had been in progress since last Saturday ended Thursday in the burning at the stake of Dudley Morgan, colored, who assaulted Mrs. McKee, wife of a Texas & Pacific section foreman, at Lansing, Tex. When it was learned that the Negro had been captured and was being taken to Lansing for identification, the excitement of the people knew no bounds. By 11 o'clock Thursday morning great throngs had gathered at the Lansing Switch, and arrangements were made to burn the Negro. Just before 11 o'clock the train bearing the prisoner and his captors arrived in Marshall and was met by a great crowd of people. Many more boarded the train at Hallville, and when it arrived at Lansing every available place on it was occupied. Waiting at Lansing was another large crowd from Longview and the surrounding country.

The Negro was not taken from the train on the side where the crowd was, and when the engineer started to pull out several Winchesters were leveled at him and others of the train crew. They were told if they moved the train an inch they would all be killed. The prisoner was identified by Mrs. McKee, and several Negroes who worked on the section with Morgan. Mrs. McKee said they had the right man and the Negro was escorted by about 200 men, armed with Winchesters, to the place of execution. As he was chained to the stake he made a statement in which he implicated another Negro named Franklin Heard, saying Heard was to get part of the money which was to be stolen.

Morgan confessed to having committed the crime, and after he had been securely chained to the stake, or rail, with his hands and legs free, the members of the mob began to take railroad ties from a fire already started and burned out his eyes. They then held the red hot and burning timbers to his neck, and after burning his clothes off, they then applied it to other parts of his body. The Negro screamed in agony. He was tortured in a slow and painful manner, and the Negro, writhing and groaning, begged piteously to be shot. Mrs. McKee was brought to the scene in a carriage, accompanied by four other women, and an effort was made to get the carriage close enough for her to see the Negro. The crowd was so dense, however, that this was impossible.

Persons held each other on their shoulders, taking turn about looking at the awful sight. The Negro's head finally dropped and the ties were piled around and over him. In half an hour only the trunk of his body remained. As soon as the heat would permit, the crowd, with long sticks, began to search for relics. Parts of his skull and body were gathered up by some and carried away. As the fire died down the crowd took the two men who first caught the Negro and held them over their heads, while they held their Winchesters in their hands and were photographed.

FIRE IN A TRANSFER HOUSE.

Many Cars With Valuable Merchandise Destroyed.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 23.—Fire that started about midnight destroyed the transfer house of the New York Central at the East Buffalo stock yards. The flames spread to the hundreds of cars surrounding the building and a number of them were destroyed. Some of the cars were empty, but the most of them contained valuable merchandise. William Tester, a switchman, was struck by falling timbers from a partially burned car and sustained injuries that resulted in his death before the arrival of the ambulance.

A message received from East Buffalo at 2:30 a. m. says the fire is under control. The car shops were saved. Nearly six hundred cars were destroyed.

The loss is roughly estimated at $600,000.

To Remove the Battleship Maine.

Washington, May 23.—A bill was introduced by Senator Lodge providing for the removal of the battleship Maine from the harbor of Havana and the recovery of the bodies of the American sailors who sank with the vessel. The bill appropriates $1,000,000 for the purpose.

London, May 23.—Miss Josephine Holman, of Indianapolis, the former fiance of Signor Marconi, the wireless telegraphy inventor, was married at Kensington Thursday, to Eugene von Boross, of Budapest, Hungary.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, May 23.—Thursday's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $187,358,149; gold, $95,918,652.

Transferred to the Cubans.

Washington, May 23.—Gen. Greely Thursday stated that the signal corps telegraph lines in Cuba a few days ago were transferred intact to the representatives of the government of Cuba.

MINE EXPLOSION.

Many Men Killed in a Coal Shaft Near Fernie, B. C.

Vancouver, B. C., May 24.—A special from Fernie, B. C., says: In the terrible explosion in No. 2 shaft of the Crows Nest Pass Coal Co.'s mine, near Fernie, which also extended to No. 3 shaft, only 24 of the 133 men working in the mine at the time are known to have escaped. Nine dead bodies had been taken out up to noon Friday." Of the men entombed it is feared the great majority are dead. The scenes at the mines and in the village of Fernie are heart-rending. Hardly a house has escaped affliction. The work of rescue is being hurried and perfect order prevails, assistance coming from every available source. The presence of coal damp is adding to the danger of rescue work. A fear has become general that the mines may catch fire at any time and survivors are being besought by their relatives not to venture into the shafts, even for rescue work.

Latest advices are that the mine at Fernie is found not to be on fire and that the ventilation is being restored as quickly as possible. All the bodies will soon be recovered.

DUTIES OF SECRETARY OF WAR.

The President Revoked the Old Executive Order of August 9, 1901.

Washington, May 24.—The president has revoked the old executive order of August 9, 1901, by which the lieutenant general commanding the army (Gen. Miles) and the adjutant general (Gen. Corbin in turn are to assume the duties of the secretary of war in the absence of the secretary and the assistant secretary.

The president's order of revocation leaves the department without a head in the event of the absence of the secretary and assistant secretary, unless such head is specifically designated in each occasions. Both the secretary and assistant secretary were absent Friday, but Secretary Root, before he left Friday morning, issued a special order designating his chief clerk, John C. Scofield, to "sign requisitions upon the treasury and other papers requiring my signature, during my temporary absence from Washington on the 25d of May, 1902, and until my return, or until the return of the assistant secretary of war."

It is presumed that similar special orders will be made designating Mr. Scofield to perform these duties when the secretary and assistant secretary are absent in the future.

THE EMPEROR'S GIFT.

Resolution Introduced Rejecting the Tender of Frederick Monument.

Washington, May 24.—Representative Stephens, of Texas, introduced a resolution that is directly aimed at the tender of a monument of Frederick the Great to the United States.

It sets forth that the United States should not accept from any foreign nation or erect in any public place any statue of any king, emperor, prince of potentate who has ruled or is now ruling any nation by the supposed divine rights of kings. The resolution further sets forth that the acceptance of such a statue by this government would be a repudiation of the basic principles as enunciated in the bill of rights and constitution, an insult to the memories of our revolutionary fathers—an admission that one man may govern a nation without the consent of the governed—and after his death have his statue erected in our republic and the blessings of the divine right of kings to rule thereby approved.

FAST AND FURIOUS FIGHT.

Young Corbett Gained the Decision Over "Kid" Broad.

Denver, Col., May 24.—William H. Rothwell, better known to the sporting world as "Young Corbett," gained the decision over "Kid" Broad, of Cleveland, O., at the end of a fast and furious fight. Broad put up a very good fight and in the ninth round had Corbett groggy, but the Denver lad came back strong and finished the round fresh. At no time was there any time lost, both men being willing to lead and force the fighting whenever necessary. This fight Friday night is the third time this pair have met. The contest was for half the gross receipts, 75 per cent of which went to the winner and 25 to the loser, and the featherweight championship of the world. The first fight between these men was on March 22, 1901, when Broad scored a clean knockout in the fourth round. On July 26, 1901, Corbett gained the decision over Broad in a ten-round fight.

Military Surgeons to Meet.

Washington, May 24.—The 11th annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States will be held here July 5, 6 and 7. Gen. Miles, Adm. Dewey and representatives of both houses of congress will attend the session.

Movement of War Vessels.

Washington, May 24.—Telegrams were received at the navy department Friday morning announcing the departure of the Cincinnati, the Dixie and the Potomac from Fort de France, Martinique, for Kingston, Island of St. Vincent.

Reception Given H. Clay Evans.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 24.—The citizens of Chattanooga tendered a public reception to Hon. H. Clay Evans at the Read house. The affair was non-partisan, leading democrats taking the initiative.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

War Between the British and Boers Thought to Be Over.

A Member of the House of Commons Says He Believes Everything Is Settled and the British Terms Are Liberal.

London, May 24.—Peace in South Africa is practically secured. How soon it will be announced depends, apparently, more upon the convenience of the Boer leaders than upon the inclination of the British government. The private and official advices received in London from South Africa all point to the same conclusion. The delay is technical, and to end the long war seems to be the desire of both British and Boer leaders. The latter, however, are unable to convince all their followers of the wisdom of acquiescing to the terms of peace.

Information as to what transpired at the meeting of the cabinet is closely guarded, but it is not likely that the cabinet transactions were of vital import. The surmise of one well informed persons places the sum total of the deliberations of the cabinet ministers at a decision regarding points of the peace agreement of entirely minor importance. Another surmise is that the cabinet has already sent a rather mock ultimatum to South Africa which can be used by the Boer leaders in explanation to their forces. Both these surmises probably contain an element of truth, but neither can in any way affect the widespread belief in the best informed quarters that the end of the war has come. In fact, those persons who are best acquainted with the actual details of the present negotiations only qualify this optimistic expression of opinion by guarded reservations on ascertaining the extent of the personal control of the Boer leaders over their commands. Were the Boers a thoroughly disciplined force, dependent upon the action of their general officers, peace would probably be proclaimed at once; but both DeWet and the other generals seem themselves unable to positively guarantee the degree to which their example will be followed.

The delegates at Vreeningen, according to information in possession of the war office, are fairly evenly divided. Consequently extreme precautions are exercised both in London and Pretoria to prevent any premature action or report that might adversely influence the burghers.

The most pessimistic forecast heard Friday night only admits that a few isolated bands of irreconcilables may be left in the field.

A member of the house of commons, who is in close touch with the government, said to a press representative that he believed everything was settled and that the British terms had been found unexpectedly liberal.

Berlin, May 24.—The foreign office here has been advised from Pretoria that peace in South Africa is practically concluded. The articles of surrender are ready to be signed, with the exception that the approval of the British cabinet of the wording of the secondary provision is awaited. The suspension of hostilities may be announced at any hour. This intelligence, it is understood, reached Baron von Richtehefen, the foreign secretary, through a privileged cipher cablegram from the German consul at Pretoria.

THE COLORED PEOPLE.

Bill to Inquire Into Their Condition Favorably Reported.

Washington, May 24.—Representative Warner, of Ohio, from the House committee on labor, reported favorably the bill creating a commission of five persons at an annual salary of $3,500 each, to inquire into the condition of the colored people of the United States. The aim of the bill, according to the representative, is to acquaint the colored people with their true condition in this country, and to furnish information for the study of their sociological condition.

DEPENDS ON PLACE OF BIRTH.

Just Because One Has Seen Snow One May Not Know All About Everything.

When the young man from Florida came to live in New York he woke up one morning last winter and, going to the window, he looked out on what was to him a novel scene. It was a snowstorm, the first he had ever seen.

Jumping into his clothes, he ran into the street. He stooped and gathered handfuls of snow and threw them in the air; he jumped into a drift and sent it flying with his feet; he finally lay down and rolled in it—all this time shouting and laughing at the top of his voice.

One of the crowd which had gathered to watch his antics went up to him and told him how his mother used to cure his and volunteered to try it on him.

"I haven't any," the young man said.

"What's the matter with you, then?"

"Why, don't you see the snow?"

"Yes, I see it. What of it? I have seen it before."

"Well, I haven't," said the Florida young man.

"What! You never saw snow before?" asked the astonished questioner.

"Never. Seems strange to you, don't it?"

"It beats any sample of verdancy I ever ran across."

"Oh, I don't know," mused the Florida cracker, according to the New York Mail and Express. "Did you ever see an alligator eating a black hog? No? Well, you are not so many, after all. I have seen it many times." And, throwing a handful of snow down his shirt collar, he pursued his joyous gambols.

MILWAUKEE PEOPLE

Could Hardly Believe It. A Prominent Woman Saved From Death by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suppose a large number of people who read of my remarkable cure will hardly believe it; had I not experienced it myself, I know that I should not.

MRS. SADIE E. KOCH.

"I suffered for months with troubles peculiar to women which gradually broke down my health and my very life. I was nearly insane with pain at times, and no human skill I consulted in Milwaukee could bring me relief.

"My attention was called to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; the first bottle brought relief, and the second bottle an absolute cure. I could not believe it myself, and felt sure it was only temporary, but blessed fact, I have now been well for a year, enjoy the best of health, and cannot in words express my gratitude. Sincerely yours, SADIE E. KOCH, 124 10th St., Milwaukee, Wis."—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

SUFFERED 25 YEARS

With Catarrh of the Stomach—Pe-ru-na Cured.

Congressman Botkin, of Winfield, Kan.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman Congressman Botkin says:

"My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure."—J. D. Botkin.

Mr. L. F. Verdery, a prominent real estate agent, of Augusta, Ga., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from catarrhal dyspepsia. I tried many physicians, visited a good many springs, but I believe Peruna has done more for me than all of the above put together. I feel like a new person."—L. F. Verdery.

The most common form of summer catarrh is catarrh of the stomach. This is generally known as dyspepsia. Peruna cures these cases like magic.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SWEPT BY A TORNADO.

Six Persons Killed and Others Injured at Union, S. C.

A Knitting Mill, School House and Two Residences Caught the Full Force and Were Converted Into Kindling Wood.

Union, S. C., May 26.—Six people were killed and several injured by a tornado which swept over this section of the state at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The main storm came from the north. It seems there was also one from the southwest and that both met in this vicinity. The storm from the north was preceded by a heavy rain and what appeared to be a dark mass of clouds about 100 yards wide which traveled with great speed. One wing of the storm passed along Main street and blew in several store fronts, doing much damage to stocks.

Knitting Mill hill, south of town, caught the full force of the tornado, which blew down the school house and two residences there, converting them literally into kindling wood. The occupants ran from one of the houses when it went to pieces and took refuge in another nearby, but this house was also crushed to splinters. In this house Misses Sallie Hart and Annie Lawson was instantly killed. Mrs. Maxey Sims died in an hour and her little daughter, Vera, died about 9 o'clock. Maxey Sims escaped with broken fingers. Lee Sims received several cuts on the head from falling timbers and was internally injured. Mr. Mabrey sustained a fractured shoulder and his leg was badly burned by a stove falling on him. He was also internally injured and may die. Mrs. Lee Sims received a bad, but not fatal, cut on the head. Mrs. Mabrey and her two other children escaped with slight injuries.

It took some time to get the victims from the debris. Every physician in town was called and were assisted by the citizens in relieving the sufferers as much as possible. Everything that the families had was destroyed.

Jonesville reports that the storm was fearful at that place, and that a member of the family of Miss Lawson, who was killed there, was one of the victims.

The property damage here will aggregate $50,000, divided among a number of stores and cotton mills.

Parcelet also reports one killed and several injured.

MURDER IN CHURCH.

Near Atlanta Millard Lee Shot and Killed Miss Lilla Suttle.

Atlanta, Ga., May 26.—Five or six hundred men divided into a half dozen posses were Sunday night searching the country adjacent to this city for Millard Lee, 20 years of age, the son of a well to do farmer, who Sunday shot and killed Miss Lilla Suttle, a young woman of 19, at Wesley Chapel, Mt. Gilead camp grounds, nine miles from Atlanta.

Just as the minister had finished the benediction and before any of the worshipers left the church, Lee, who was sitting behind Miss Suttle, leaned forward and fired at her. The first ball entered her back, but no vital part was reached and an instant later Lee fired again, killing the girl instantly. While the churchgoers stood astounded Lee backed out of the door and started for the woods. On the way he met a man named Childress, to whom he confessed the murder and asked Childress to take the revolver and kill him. Childress paid no attention to the young man and passed on.

Miss Suttle, who was a beautiful young woman, had refused Lee's attentions, it is said, because she considered herself above him socially.

WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN.

The Cycling Event of the Season at Berlin Won By Robl.

Berlin, May 26.—The cycling event of the season, the contest of the "Golden Wheel of Friedenau," resulted Sunday in the breaking of the world's record for 100 kilometres. Robl, of Munich, won the event and covered the distance in 98 minutes 18 seconds. Dickentmann, of Amsterdam, was second and Tom Linton, the English bicyclist, was third. Bouhours, of Paris, fell in the race, but got up and resumed riding.

Eugene C. Spalding Dead.

Atlanta, Ga., May 26.—Eugene C. Spalding, vice president of the Atlanta, Knoxville & Northern railway, died at his home here Sunday of hemorrhage of the lungs.

LORD PAUNCEFOTE DEAD.

The Distinguished British Diplomat Passer Away In Washington.

Washington, May 25.—Lord Pauncefote, British ambassador to the United States, died at the embassy, this city, Saturday morning, after an illness of several days.

At the bedside when the distinguished diplomat passed away were Mrs. Pauncefote, the Honorable Maude Pauncefote, Miss Sybil and Miss Audrey, Dr. T. F. Young and Mr. Radford, one of the clerks attached to the embassy.

As soon as it became generally known that Lord Pauncefote was dead, flags were halfmasted over the different embassies and legations. At the Arlington hotel, where the visiting Frenchmen who had come to witness the Rochambeau statue unveiling are stopping, the French flag was placed at half mast.

Immediately upon being notified of the death of Lord Pauncefote, Secretary Hay went to the white house, and, after a short conference with the president, proceeded directly to the British Embassy, where he made a formal call of condolence as the personal representative of the president, preliminary to the call which the president was himself to make later in the day. Then returning to the state department Secretary Hay dispatched the following cablegram:

"Department of state, May 24, 1902.

"The Marquis of Lansdowne, London: Permit me to express my deep sympathy and sorrow at the death of Lord Pauncefote. His Majesty's Government has lost a most able and faithful servant and his country a valued friend. John Hay."

Washington, May 26.—With the exception of a few details the arrangements for the funeral services over the remains of Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, who died Saturday morning, are now complete.

Lady Pauncefote Sunday signified her approval of the arrangements tentatively made Saturday, by which services are to be held Wednesday at noon in St. John's Episcopal church, after which the body is to be temporarily deposited in a receiving vault at Rock Creek cemetery. A military escort will be provided by the war department to attend the funeral, which will be of a state character. A large number of messages of condolence from all over the world were received at the embassy Sunday, but they were not made public.

EXPOSED TO VIEW.

The Statue to Gen. Count De Rochambeau Unveiled.

Washington, May 26.—Amid the enthusiastic demonstrations of a great concourse of people the superb bronze statue of Gen. Count de Rochambeau, who brought the forces of France across the sea at the hours of greatest peril in the American revolution, was unveiled Saturday. Seldom has an event presented so many brilliant features of pageantry and at the same time given occasion for the manifestation of the strong bonds of friendship existing between the French republic and the United States.

The members of the French mission which came to Washington to attend the ceremonies incident to the unveiling of the Rochambeau statue, finished their visit here Sunday and Sunday night left the city for Niagara Falls on their week's tour of the east before sailing for home. There were no formal functions on the programme for the day, but the visitors found every minute of their time occupied in attending divine service, returning numerous calls, official and otherwise and in drives about the city and suburbs.

Annapolis, Md., May 26.—The American escort to the French battleship Gaulois, which arrived in the Annapolis roads last Wednesday, weighed anchor early Sunday morning and proceeded down the bay to the Virginia capes, where they will await the arrival of the visiting man-of-war. The Gaulois did not leave her anchorage until several hours after the departure of the American ships. Adm. Higginson's squadron, the Olympia, Kearsarge and Alabama, will escort the Gaulois to New York and Boston and remain in attendance upon the visiting battleship until the Rochambeau commission takes its departure for home.

WILL NOT STRIKE.

The Colliery Engineers and Pumpmen Refuse to Go Out.

Shamokin, Pa., May 26.—By a vote of 43 to 15 the colliery engineers and pumpmen, at a mass meeting here Sunday evening, resolved not to go on strike June 2, even if the operators refused to grant an eight-hour work day at the present wage scale. Secretary George Hartlein, or the Ninth district executive board, United Mine Workers, addressed the meeting and urged his hearers to join in the general strike if the coal operators refused to grant the eight-hour work day.

Shot Them Both.

Popular Bluffs, Mo., May 26.—While Mrs. Mary Harris and her brother, James Brasher, were returning home from a dance, an unknown man sprang from the bushes along a lonely road in the west part of the county and shot them both. Mrs. Harris will die.

Killed His Wife and Himself.

Ogden, Utah, May 26.—Lorenzo Faulkner, aged 30 years, a railroad man, shot and killed his wife Sunday and killed himself. Faulkner's wife left him some months ago and returned to the home of her parents.

MORE ERUPTIONS.

Consternation at Chateau, Belair, Island of St. Vincent.

Kingstown, Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., Saturday, May 24.—Another eruption the night of Sunday, May 18, caused a greater fall of ashes and stones and more consternation at Chateau Belair, Island of St. Vincent, than resulted from the eruption of May 7.

Shortly after the appearance of a cloud May 18, which was belched from the mountain, Egyptian darkness enveloped the village of Chateau Belair. The inhabitants rent the air with shrieks and groped against the banks of the road leading to Cumbertland in their efforts to flee from the threatened danger. Many persons had limbs broken. The darkness lasted one hour, but the exodus from Chateau Belair continued all night.

Detonations and smoke and lava from the volcano continued the next day, May 19, and the people still tried to leave Chateau Belair for Kingstown and other towns. A heavy rainfall occurred at Chateau Belair the 19th, the first in the district for two month, and the streets, huts and shops were flooded.

As the volcanic eruptions diminished after the 19th some 30 of the inhabitants returned to Chateau Belair. But they are still apprehensive. Kingstown is longing for rain. The heat and dryness here is unprecedented. There is no hope for the resuscitation of the Carib country for years to come. The canal that supplied water to that country for domestic or manufacturing purposes has dried up, and the districts desolated. The government is treating for the purchase of an estate upon which to settle the refugees and carpenters who are engaged in erecting huts, on safe locations, to relieve the congestion in Kingstown.

The cloud that issued from the crater Sunday night was visible to the inhabitants of the neighboring island of St. Lucia, and inspired them with awe. Vivid flashes of lightning were seen on the morning of the 19th, and these were accompanied by slight volcanic rumblings.

The number of new craters in the district can not be ascertained, as ascent of the mountain is impossible, but there are apparently four active craters there. Rumbling sounds are heard and vapor is still issuing from different portions of the mountain, and the lava is flowing. Mt. Enham shows no distinct signs of activity. The United States Dixie arrived here yesterday with 900,000 rations and clothing, medicine and supplies.

The interruption of the cable between here and the Island of St. Lucia has caused delay in the transmission of messages.

Paris, May 26.—In his official report to the French government on the entire Martinique disaster Gov. l'Huerre, of Martinique, estimates the dead there at 30,000.

CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT.

Kansas Wheat Elevators and Flouring Mills to Combine.

Kansas City, Mo., May 26.—Walter Vrooman, of the western co-operative movement, has closed contracts for the purchase of six of the largest wheat elevators in the Kansas wheat belt and two of the largest flouring mills. The price paid is said to have been $750,000, and Mr. Vrooman, who has left for New York to complete the financial end of the plan, says the present purchase is but the beginning of a movement to center the farmers of Kansas in a co-operative branch of the Vrooman Co-Operative Co. The concern will be known as the Wheat and Flour Western Co-Operative Co. The farmers are to be taken into the scheme upon the payment of $100 each for which they are to receive the market value of their wheat sold to the company and in addition will receive one-half of the profit derived, the other half going to co-operative stores through which the wheat and flour will be handled.

"The plan," said Mr. Vrooman, "is to eliminate wheat speculators and the middlemen. The farmers are in earnest sympathy with the movement. It is the only way to head off the talked of flour trust that is forming in New York."

It is intended to ship to Great Britain, to be sold among the co-operative members there, the surplus product not disposed of in Kansas and Missouri.

Recommends Pneumatic Tubes.

Washington, May 26.—The commission which has been investigating the question of pneumatic tube mail service submitted its report to the postmaster general. It renews its former recommendations for the operation of the pneumatic service in large cities.

Rhodesia Gold Output.

Cape Town, May 26.—The gold output from Rhodesia for the year 1901 amounted to 108,888 ounces, an increase of 69,385 ounces over the total output of 1900.

Had a Masonic Record.

Lebanon, N. H., May 26.—Norman C. Hewes died at his home here Sunday, aged 74 years. He had a masonic record said to be unparalleled. February 14 last he was installed tyler in Franklin lodge F. and A. M. for the 46th consecutive time.

The Charleston Exposition.

Charleston, S. C., May 26.—Saturday, May 31, closing day of the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian exposition, will be celebrated as "Charleston Day." Great preparations are being made for its observance.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, May 20.—Senate—Only a brief time was devoted by the senate Monday to consideration of the Philippine government bill. Mr. Dolliver (Ia.) supported the bill, which he said was one of the most important pieces of constructive legislation presented since the civil war. He insisted that the Philippine insurrection, as a military proposition, was a thing of the past, and declared that in no circumstances would the United States relinquish the Philippines.

House—Before adjournment Monday the house passed the naval appropriation bill. The feature of the debate was on the amendment offered by Mr. Roberts (Mass.) providing that three of the ships provided for in the bill, a battleship, cruiser and a gunboat, shall be built in government yards. Mr. Adams (Pa.) made a point of order against the amendment, which Mr. Sherman sustained, but on an appeal by Mr. Roberts the chair was overruled and the amendment was agreed to. Under a suspension of the rules the bill for eight hour work on all government contracts was passed, also a bill authorizing the construction of a national sanitarium for disabled soldiers at Hot Springs, S. D.

Washington, May 21.—Senate—The subject of the concentration of the inhabitants in the Philippines into camps was a leading topic of the discussion of the Philippine bill in the senate Tuesday.

House—For a third time within a week the house has instructed its conferees on matters of dispute between the senate and house Tuesday. The instructions were given on amendments in the army appropriation bill before the conferees had even considered the matters in controversy. The motion to instruct was made by Mr. Cannon (Ill.), chairman of the appropriations committee. It was resisted by Mr. Hull, chairman of the committee on military affairs, and the somewhat spirited debate which followed developed antagonism between the committees. The amendment at which Mr. Cannon aimed was that which increased the appropriation for military posts from three to four million dollars. A resolution offered by Mr. Hitt, chairman of the foreign affairs committee felicitating Cuba on her independence was passed unanimously. A bill amending the passport law was passed. The remainder of the day was devoted to private claims bills.

Washington, May 22.—Senate—Before the senate resumed consideration of the Philippine bill it adopted a resolution congratulating the republic of Cuba upon its entry into the family of independent nations, and the secretary of state was directed to transmit the resolution to the president of the republic. The senate also ordered the Associated Press account of the ceremonies of the transfer from the United States to the Cuban authorities printed in the Congressional Record, and as a public document.

House—The house began consideration of the immigration bill Wednesday. The principal speech was made by Mr. Shattuc (O.), chairman of the committee on immigration. He was especially severe in his condemnation of the manner in which immigrants are introduced through Canada and by Canadian railway and steamship companies. Mr. Underwood (Ala.) gave notice of an amendment to provide an educational test and much of the discussion during the day was upon this subject. The house earlier in the day settled three contested election cases in favor of sitting members and passed a number of bills of minor importance.

Washington, May 23.—Senate—A notable contribution to the discussion of the Philippine question was made in the senate Thursday by Mr. Hoar (Mass.). His views on the subject are well understood, and by the expression of them Thursday was profoundly interesting and even impressive. When the venerable senator began to speak every senator at the capitol was in his seat, and for the two hours and a half his address consumed he was accorded the most careful attention, not only by his colleagues on the floor, but also by the people in the thronged galleries.

House—The house resumed discussion of the immigration bill. Almost the entire day was taken up with the amendment offered by Mr. Underwood (Ala.) requiring an educational test for immigrants to this country. It was adopted. The house disagreed to the amendments of the senate to the omnibus public building bill and it was sent to conference. An amendment to the rules was adopted requiring that conference reports should be printed in the Congressional Record before being presented to the house.

Washington, May 24.—Senate—A temperate and carefully prepared speech was delivered in the senate Friday on the Philippine bill by Mr. Dubois (Ida.). He confined himself almost entirely to a discussion of the commercial and industrial aspects of the Philippine question, his purpose being to show that it would be a disadvantage to the people of this country to retain the islands.

House—The house devoted the day to private pension bills and to a few other minor matters. Mr. Loud (Cal.) criticised the special pension legislation as a disgrace and drew emphatic responses from Messrs. Sulloway (N. H.), Sulzer (N. Y.) and Miers (Ind.). In all 105 private pension bills were passed. The house adjourned until Monday in order to participate in the Rochambeau ceremonies Saturday.

The Week's Failures.

New York, May 24.—Failures for the week numbered 192 in the United States against 180 last year and 12 in Canada against 22 last year.

An Adverse Report.

Washington, May 24.—The committee of postal and treasury experts that has been considering the pending "post check" bill for the establishment of a postal currency, has submitted an adverse report to the postmaster general.

General Amnesty Granted Americans.

Havana, May 24.—The bill before the house granting pardon to all Americans for acts committed during the American intervention was amended and passed to grant these prisoners a general amnesty instead of pardons.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

PLUCKY WOMAN.

She Helped Whip the Man Who Had Insulted Her.

Paris, Ky., May 24.—A street encounter took place in front of the East Tennessee Telephone Co.'s office. The principals involved were Foster Berry, head operator, and Ollie Steele, brother of Brice and Wallace Steele, the well-known horsemen. Steele called up Miss Margery Merritt, night operator, and in course of the conversation made some remarks of a rather insulting nature.

Miss Merritt called Mr. Berry's attention to the nature of the remarks. Berry informed Steele that such conduct toward the lady operators would not be tolerated, and cut him off the line. Steele angrily threatened to do up Berry. Shortly after this Berry left the exchange and went up to Mitchell's grocery. On his return Steele came from across the street, and, meeting Berry at the entrance, struck him in the face with a heavy stick. Berry defended himself as best he could. Miss Merritt, hearing the struggle, seized a heavy monkey wrench and went to Berry's assistance.

In the melee she struck Steele a heavy blow in the face, crying out: "Kill the brute!" The screams of the operators and the noise of the fracas attracted an immense crowd. The parties were separated and went to drug stores for repairs.

LONG-MISSING MAN RETURNS.

He's Satisfied if They Are, and There'll Be No Enoch Arden Tale.

Paducah, Ky., May 22.—Thirty-two years ago Joe Robertson, of Calloway county, left his wife and family to go to the mill. He has now returned, and without his grist. His wife not hearing from him after a number of years married a good citizen of the neighborhood, and they have raised a family. They are now old people, and presumably somewhat disturbed over the appearance of one they thought dead years ago. Robertson is old and feeble, and is stopping with relatives in the southern part of the county. It is said that the returned prodigal has given no explanation of his long absence, and is inclined to accept things as they are.

Kentucky I. O. O. F.

Carrollton, Ky., May 22.—The grand encampment of the I. O. O. F. met here Wednesday. Wednesday evening there was a social meeting in which the citizenship took part. The encampment is said to be the most successful in the state's history.

Carrollton, Ky., May 23.—The grand encampment, I. O. O. F., elected the following officers at its annual meeting: G. C. P., J. Brussel, Marysville; G. H. P., William Todd, Middlesboro; G. S. W., C. P. Scott, Olney; G. J. W., Enos Bayce, Louisville; G. S., R. G. Elliott, Lexington; G. T., George W. Morris, Louisville; G. R., John S. Gaunt, Carrollton; G. M., J. P. Wheeler, Prestonville; G. I. S., W. J. Conover Henderson; G. O. S., C. S. Graves, Lexington.

Murdered By Unknown Persons.

Glasgow, Ky., May 22.—W. H. Wrenn, a wealthy bachelor, was murdered by unknown persons at his home near Edmonton, in Metcalfe county, Ky. He was found lying in his yard, 40 yards from the house, by a neighbor who went to his house on business. More than a hundred shots were found in his body. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive for the murder. There is no clue.

Proved Self-Defense.

Russellville, Ky., May 23.—The grand jury Thursday investigated the case of Henry Pritchett and Henry Maxwell, charged with murdering one Schermanhorn Wednesday night, but failed to find a true bill against them. A case of self-defense was proved. Jim Clark, Schermanhorn's ally, was indicted on a charge of conspiracy to rob.

Killed a Mad Dog.

Constance, Ky., May 22.—A mad dog ran amuck in a little place near here called Taylorsport, and bit several dogs. Men with guns killed him in the neighborhood of Jacob Fox's house. Fox's wife is very low with brain fever, and the shock of the firing threw her into a case of nervous prostration from which the doctors think she may not recover.

Paris (Ky.) Grocer Disappears.

Paris, Ky., May 23.—Fred McDermott, a grocery merchant, has disappeared. His stock of goods was attached Thursday by the sheriff in favor of the Power Grocery Co. and Geo. Alexander & Co., bankers. No cause is given for his leaving. His liabilities were only about $1,300.

Sale of Yearlings.

Lexington, Ky., May 24.—Milton Young, of McGrathiana, has sold at private sale to Capt. S. S. Brown, of Pittsburg, for head of thoroughbred yearlings for $18,000, an average of $1,600, which is about the best sale of the year.

Henderson, Ky., May 24.—Charles Stoermer, a well-known contractor of this city, committed suicide at Delmar, Ill., by cutting his throat with a razor. Business troubles are said to be the cause.

AT CHURCHILL DOWNS.

Oconee and Chorus Boy Were the Winning Favorites.

Louisville, Ky., May 24.—Oconee and Chorus Boy, the latter in the Gentlemen's cup, were the only winning favorites at Churchill Downs Friday afternoon. The rain was falling in torrents and the track was a sea of mud when the seven gentlemen riders started on their mile journey. Mr. Arnold, of Cincinnati, who had the mount on Chorus Boy, the best of the lot, won in a drive with Mr. Fetter, who was on Masterful. Chorus Boy was an odds favorite in the betting and the prices on the others ranged from 6 to 50 to 1. Outside of the cup race interest centered on the second race on the card between Harry New and Hunter Raine and The Rival. The latter was favorite, and after showing the way into the stretch was beaten by a length by Hunter Raine in a drive.

INTERSTATE ORATORY.

Paul B. Kern, Vanderbilt University, Won the Contest.

Lexington, Ky., May 22.—Paul B. Kern, representing Vanderbilt university, of Nashville, Tenn., won the 12th annual contest of the Southern Interstate Oratorical association here Wednesday night. William Clarke, representing Kentucky university, of Lexington, was second. The subject of the winning oration was "The Heart of the Republic." Other contestants were W. P. Allen, University of Texas; O. Simkins, University of the South; Julian B. Salley, of the South Carolina college.

TOOK MONEY HOME.

Louisville Engineer's Wife Throws His Month's Wages Into Fire.

Louisville, Ky., May 23.—Louis Cofer, a railroad engineer, went home with $110 with which to surprise his wife. To make the surprise more complete he bought some fish and wrapped the money in the brown paper which went around it. Mrs. Cofer took out the fish and threw the brown paper with the money into the fire. When she did not show surprise Cofer asked about it, and almost fainted when he learned the truth.

Kentucky May Quarantine.

Louisville, Ky., May 24.—The Kentucky state board of health will on Wednesday next declare a quarantine against the state of Indiana on account of smallpox, unless the governor of Indiana, in the meantime, takes action that will satisfy the Kentucky board that such a radical step is not necessary.

Ohio Brass Company Incorporated.

Trenton, N. J., May 23.—The Ohio Brass Co., was incorporated Thursday, with a capital of $1,000,000, to manufacture and deal in brass goods. Incorporators of record are: Frank B. Black, Reid Carpenter, Charles N. King, Harry F. Black, Geo. F. Lucas and E. T. Cook, all of Mansfield, O.

Paducah City Railway.

Paducah, Ky., May 22.—The Paducah city railway is a new company that filed articles of incorporation with the county clerk Wednesday. It is capitalized at $300,000. There are 6,000 shares.

Big Plant Burned.

Ironton, O., May 23.—A disastrous fire occurred here Thursday morning. The large plant of the J. F. Kester Carriage Co. was destroyed. Loss $30,000. Insurance $10,000. Adjacent buildings were damaged.

The Harness and Saddle Stallion,

DANDY CRISTO,

Will make the season of 1902, at my stable near Big Bone church, Boone county, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1100 lbs. Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; second dam by Mambrino Time; 4th dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark; he by Black Denmark; he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4-mile race horse; he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's first dam by Black William; she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whip's thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry, gr-dam by Black Squirrel; great-grand-dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS

THE PREMIUM STALLION,

DEXTER.

will make the present season at my stable on Gunpowder creek, near Hathaway, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Dexter is a bay, 16¼ hands high, and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has made 5 races and won 4.

He was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Prism, sired by Bob Deadlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Cassius M. Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred.

Dexter's colts beat all competitors at the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, the Butler county, Ohio, and the Boone county, Kentucky, fairs, and the Boone county Harvest Home. Last year he took the premium at the Boone fair as the best brood stallion with 5 or more colts.

He will be in Burlington every countycourt day, and at Geo. Moore's stable at Beaver every Friday.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may occur.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1902. NO. 33.

COMMISSARY, May 30.—T. J. and Master Joe Walton went to Erlanger and Cincinnati, on business last Thursday.

Cecil Snelling, sold 2,000 sweet potato plants last week.

Jake Kraig is down from Addyston, Ohio, nursing a sore hand.

For correct forecasts of the weather, apply to William Slayback near here.

James Fleek, of Indianapolis, formerly of this place, is circulating among relatives and friends here.

J. J. Lillards sister, Mrs. Johnson and her daughter, Mrs. Murray, started for their home in Missouri today.

Elbert Kelly, Flavius and Jesse Louden, and family, spent Sunday afternoon with Richard Louden and family.

Mrs. Wilson, of Indiana, of whom mention was made last week, is at the present time visiting Glenn Crisler and family.

J. J. Lillard had the largest yield of wool to the fleece of any farmer in this vicinity. T. J. Walton next, with W. B. Walton and W. I. Rouse close after them.

T. J. Walton, one of our most enterprising farmers, has built 200 rods of wire fence this spring. He has used 2,000 lbs. of wire in fencing within the last two years.

Elijah Holton, living near Petersburg, was in this vicinity last Tuesday, looking for a family horse. He selected one from the herd of Mr. J. J. Lillard. Price paid, $125.

Herman Springmyer, Mack and Fred Beisinger, of Dent Ohio, were here on Saturday of last week, buying horses. One was bought of Harry Acra, of Middle creek. Price $100.

Petersburg, you may have the most beautiful girls of any town of equal size in the county, but we will put the neighborhood of the Commissary against any town, or neighborhood in Kentucky for beauty intelligence, bright eyes, rosy cheeks, elastic steps, plump form and good appetite, of its ladies.

If everything and everybody in this world were of uniform size and temperament, there would not be variety enough to make life possible, to say nothing of making it tolerable. It would be monotonous and weary to meet people all of one caste and temperament. There are some people who would make life as solemn as a funeral for us, if we had to live with them for a year, and then there are others who would drive us crazy with frivolity and foolishness. Some are quick, nervous and excitable; quick to decide and act, while others are as slow as the seven-year-itch or molasses on ice, so slow that nothing will move them but a wasp, bumblebee or hornet. But when these people are mixed up together, a layer of solemnity on top of a strata of frivolty and foolishness, then a coating of medium temperament, topped off with the joy of child life, the mixture can be swallowed down pretty easily, leaving a pleasant taste in the mouth. There is a great variety of tastes and temperaments, and as well mixed among the people in the vicinity of the Commissary as can be found anywhere. We think the pencil shovers of this paper should give a variety of news. All visit, visit, becomes monotonous.

Albert Snyder was down from the city a couple of days last week, visiting his parents.

Mrs. Anna Clore keeps a supply of fresh baker's bread on hand at all times after hours.

Master Leslie Acra, of Middle creek, was visiting his uncle and aunt, here last Saturday.

Those who had their crops overflowed in the Middle creek bottoms have got them about straightened up again.

Those attending the Sunday School convention held here last Saturday, report a pleasant and instructive convention.

Crops, gardens, wheat, oats and grass are showing the effects of the recent rains. Tobacco that was set the last time, which the cutworms left standing is looking well.

Sheriff Allphin and deputies succeeded in routing "Ponts" and his gang. They have moved to other quarters. Many thanks to the Sheriff and his assistants.

Elder Noe will preach in the Christian church Saturday evening the 14, at 7 o'clock p. m. Baptizing at 2 o'clock p. m. Sunday school at half past 2 o'clock p. m. and preaching at 3 o'clock p. m. on Sunday the 15 inst. One and all are cordially invited to attend.

Death invaded our community again last Saturday night and took our friend Mrs. Ellen Adams, relict of the late W. B. Adams and sister of Uncle Alfred Cason. She was truly a Christian lady, and a kind and pleasant neighbor. Her husband departed this life January 14, 1898, and her remains were laid to rest by the side of his in the I. O. O. F. cemetery, at Burlington, Sunday afternoon. She left no children.

James Sebree delivered his crop of tobacco to Ira Adams, of Rising Sun last Wednesday, at 5 1-4 cents a pound.

Mr. Editor, the Locusts hung their overcoats on the first bush or tree that they came to, after coming out of the ground.

It is reported in the Big Bone neighborhood that the cut worms have cleaved up the corn and tobacco patches and weed fields in that section, and have crawled up the telephone poles to ask for the next place to go for something to eat.

ROBERT WOOD.

The above cut is a good picture of Gallatin County's candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney of this the Fifteenth Judicial District. And why should not this nomination be given to Gallatin county; provided she offers to the people for this place as goodn man, in all respects, as any of the adjoining counties? Never in the history of our county was she ever known to even ask for the position of Circuit Judge or Commonwealth's Attorney, although her bar has always had its due share of able lawyers. Being a small county we have recognized how uneven the contest would be were we brought to contend with the larger counties in the effort to secure the nomination for either of these honorable positions. Such conditions as these, possibly, have deterred able and deserving lawyers of our county in the past from entering such an unequal struggle. But knowing there is a sense of justice prevailing in almost every true Kentuckian, and that the average man is disposed to give his fellow fair play, Robert Wood, with the unanimous endorsement of all the voters of his county, submits the claims of Little Gallatin, together with his own, to the Democrats of the District, with an abiding faith that whatever the Democrats do with his candidacy they will do right. Mr. Wood was born in Owen county; October 11th, 1869, where he lived and labored on a farm until October, 1889, when he came to Gallatin. Here he followed different pursuits under great difficulties, he being very poor, having the ambition to become a lawyer in all that word means. He entered the law office of R. B. Brown in Warsaw in June, 1891, where he applied himself with such assiduity that, in September, 1892, when he was admitted to the bar, it was said of him by those who examined him for admission to the bar, that few, if any, old lawyers in the District could have passed such an examination. In November, 1894, he was elected County Attorney, and so faithful and able have been his efforts in this position that he has been three times elected to it. Having known Mr. Wood so intimately during his career as an official, and knowing the honorable struggle he has made for a standing in his profession, without any purpose to disparage any other candidate, we speak what we confidently feel to be true, when we say the District in no man, has a more upright, capable and deserving aspirant. And farther, if work for his party counts for anything, there is not a gentleman mentioned in connection with the attorneyship who did anything like the work he did in the campaigns of 1899 and 1900. In 1900 he did splendid service for his party in every county of his district, and by special invitation made many speeches in Indiana, and wherever he went he will be remembered for the efficient service he did. It will also be remembered that when the call to arms was made for volunteers in the late Spanish War, such was his patriotism that he left his all behind and volunteered as a private to do soldier duty for his country—something no other lawyer in his district did. And now that Gallatin does present one so peculiarly suited for the place, will not the Democratic voters of the District be just to her and endorse her choice?—Warsaw Independent.

CONSTANCE, June 2.—There was preaching at the Mission Sunday.

John Freirs and family have moved here from Ludlow.

Mrs. L. Anderson has gone to Cincinnati to visit her daughter.

Mrs. A. L Loder and children have returned from a visit to Petersburg.

Alt Smith and wife, of Anderson Ferry, were visiting Mr. Stahl, Sunday.

S. A. Tanner has opened an ice cream parlor and also a general stock of candies, &c.

Mrs. Slayback died from consumption, last week, and was buried in the Constance cemetery.

Master John Anderson is home on a visit from California, where he went about two years ago.

The Junior base ball team went to Bromley Sunday and defeated the club at that place by a score of 13 to 0.

Mrs. C. Armstrong went to Hebron to preach at the Mission, Saturday night. She reports a fine and attentive audience.

Capts. H. and L. Kottmyer have painted there ferry boat red and blue. She presents a fine appearance with the National colors.

Arie Pence's youngest child died one day last week with uremic poison. The funeral was preached in the Dunkards' church in Stringtown by Rev. Mall. It was buried in Jargen's grave yard.

The Cecilian Fihing Club of Cincinnati, have purchased six acres of the Constance Building and Loan Association, upon which they will go into camp next week. They expect to build fine buildings on it.

GUNPOWDER, June 2.—William Kirkpatrick with his crew of hands did some good work on our roads last week.

J. C. Hankins and family broke bread with the writer, last Sunday.

The frost last week nipped the corn and did considerable damage to some of the gardens.

On Tuesday of last week J. H. Corbin began bleeding at the nose about 5 a. m., and the flow of blood continued until the family became alarmed and called Dr. Lassing, who succeeded in stopping it about 1 p. m. The loss of blood weakened him considerably, but he is improving, and unless he has another hemorrhage he will regain his strength in a few days.

B. C. Surface received his purchase of wool on Tuesday of last week. It amounted to nearly 9,000 lbs. While the price was low, he surprised some of his patrons by giving them more per pound than he had promised them and I will say, to his credit, that every one was well pleased with the manner in which the business was conducted. Mr. Sahle of Louisville gets the entire purchase.

After an illness of about 6 years, Moses M. Tanner passed peacefully away yesterday at the age of 42 years, 2 months and 12 days. During all of his illness he was never heard to murmur. He said to the writer a few days before his death, "I am very sick, but it is all right. I don't complain very much." He united with Ebenezer Lutheran church early in life, and was an active and useful member of that body until death, having filled some of the most important offices of the church. As an appreciation of his work the members of his church elected him chorister, recently, knowing at the time he was not able to execute the work the office required, but as a matter of courtesy to him, which he justly deserved. His wife and one son survive him, and have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement. The wife has lost an affectionate companion, the community one of its best citizens. The funeral services will be conducted by pastor Slater at Hopeful church tomorrow, after which the remains will be interred in the cemetery at that place in the presence of a host of friends and relatives.

UNION.—Wallace Stevens and wife, of London, Ohio, were calling on friends and relatives here Saturday.

Mrs. John Hogan is much improved after a severe illness.

Miss Lena Hedges is visiting her aunt, Miss Mary Hedges, this week.

A. H. Norman had to kill his fine dogs last week. They had hydrophobia.

Mrs. Emma Presser returned to her home in Walton, after a pleasant visit with relatives here.

Mrs. S. S. Smith spent Friday with her grandmother, Mrs. Childress, who has been quite sick again.

Mrs. Joe Combs and friend, Mrs. Bernhardt, of Covington, spent a few days with Mrs. N. S. Bristow.

Robert Norman and family, of Covington, spent several days last week with his father, B. F. Norman.

Mr. L. H. Voshell went to Independence, Friday, to the burial of Mr. Male Stevens, once a citizen of this place.

A number from here attended the festival at Excelsior Grange Friday afternoon, and report a fine time and the refreshments delicious.

Misses Lillian Corbin and Nannie Bristow spent a very pleasant day in Hebron, Saturday. Pomona Grange was entertained there that day.

BEAVER LICK, June 2.—"Judge" Roter hoarded the little Str. Swan, last Saturday, and made a business trip to Rising Sun, Ind.

Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume and W. W. Wilson visited Burlington, Monday, on official business.

Miss Mattie Denigen, of Morningview, Kenton county, with her gallant young lover, visited friends near here, last Sunday.

Mrs. Harry Roter, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, after spending a couple of weeks with her son, A. A. Roter and family, left for home last week.

Nace Conley, who is employed with the Bell Telephone, in Cincinnati, came home Memorial day to visit his wife. He speaks well of his job.

Quite a number of young folks met at the home of Ed Moore, last Saturday night, and passed the evening in sweet songs and social conversation.

Rev. Earle preached four interesting sermons at the Baptist church, Saturday and Sunday. He resides at Latonia, and, accompanied by his wife visited several of his flock on this occasion.

Albert Sheets, who was nearly washed out of house and home on Buzzard branch, has arranged with W. C. Johnson to build him a neat cottage on his farm near the Beaver and Bigbone pike.

Col. Robt. Stone, successor to Will Hume, is catering to the wants of the patrons of the Hamilton and Walton mail route. Bob is a clever, good fellow and we wish him success in his new enterprise.

Miss Kate Green, our graceful and efficient hello girl, who presides at the telephone exchange parlor, spent some days, the past week, with her parents at their pretty Verde Mont home near Big Bone Springs.

Harry Jones, one of our most gallant young gentlemen, visited Covington, last Saturday and Sunday. It is confidently believed by his friends that one of Covington's fairest young ladies is the occasion of his trips to the city.

"Uncle John" Snow, our industrious tobacco grower, finished transplanting his crop of 13 acres, last Friday. He says if the number of acres and the day he finished, don't Jonah him, his prospects for a good crop are pretty good.

Last Saturday evening the belles and beaux, of Big Bone, Beaver, Verona and Walton gathered at the hospitable residence of Richard Hood, near here, as previously arranged, and to the sprightly music of the Beaver string band, tripped the light fantastic toe till late 12 o'clock. Critics of social functions of this character present, pronounced it the prettiest dance that has been "pulled off" in Beaver for lo! these many years.

HEBRON, June 2.—Some of our local gallants spent Sunday away from home.

Clyde Rafer was at home from Covington, Thursday night.

The farmers are very busy now, as the soil is just right to work.

Mr. Bulfock, our popular tailor, has a large amount of work on hand.

Edward Aylor and wife came out from the city Decoration day.

Mr. Newman, of Henry county, was the guest of friends here, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Crutcher visited Mr. and Mrs. John Masters, of Ludlow, Sunday.

Our old friend, Mike Clore, was calling in this neighborhood, the first few days of this week.

Several from this place will attend the Sunday School Convention at Bullittsburg next week.

Mrs. Robt. McGlasson and children, spent last Tuesday in Ludlow, guests of her sister, Mrs. Clore.

The local strawberry crop is not very much this year. The weather the past week has damaged them also.

Sunday was the semi-monthly meeting of the Endeavor Society. The topic and discussions were practical ones.

Misses Daisy Harding and Grace Bullock have closed very successful spring schools at Limaburg and the Riley school house.

The monthly C. E. Social will be held next Saturday evening, (for which the usual program is being prepared,) at Miss Ora Rouse's.

A number of the younger set of this place went on a fishing excursion to Gunpowder, Saturday. As to how the day ended, ask Mike Clore and Allie Walton.

The box party given at the pleasant home of Miss Clara Hossman was well attended, and a collection of about $3 was made from the sale of the lunch boxes. The money will be turned over to the C. E. Treasury.

CRESCENT, June 2.—Born, to Cove Carpenter and wife, on May 27, a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rector spent Friday at Independence.

Robt. Norman, and wife, of Covington, are guests of relatives at this place.

Mrs. Ellen Richards, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is convalescing.

Mrs. Robt. Northcutt and Mrs. Laura Williams spent Friday at Independence.

W. P. Barker, of Covington, spent several days, last week, with relatives at this place.

Miss Clara Tanner, of Richwood, after spending several days with friends at this place, returned home Friday.

Bert Worthington attended a graphophone entertainment, one evening recently, and there being present quite a number of young ladies who are recognized as the exponents of beauty and conversation, he was justly accused of rivaling the loquaciousness of the Edisonian invention that was supposed to be the "main mogul" of the entertainment. Bert pleads guilty of the charge; but will meet his accuser "with the unrepentant grin of the self complacent sinner, who rejoices in his sin," for he deems life too transitory to spend in listening to the mechanical productions of a cylinder and amplifier, when better company is present.

The rain Monday night was not general throughout the county,

WALTON, May 31.—Miss Edna Ransler is visiting relatives in Hamilton, Ohio.

Miss Pauline Curley is protracting her visit with Covington relatives.

Sheriff Allphin and county attorney Castleman were in town last week.

John Watson had a Jersey cow to die from the effects of an over dose of clover.

Mrs. Dr. Bagby has returned from a visit to her brother, Geo. O'Neal, of New Richmond, Ohio.

Mrs. Fannie Stephens and Gladys Wilson, her granddaughter, are visiting Mrs. Frank Bird near Nicholson.

Our new mail carrier to Hamilton, Robert Stone, deprives us of seeing Willie Hume's pleasant vissage as we go up town.

Miss Gertrude Schneider went to the city, last week, on a shopping tour. She thinks it more laborious than waiting on customers.

Dr. S. M. Adams has been very sick with old fashioned nataria fever. He was able to sit up a little on Saturday. Mrs. Adams is also sick.

The dedication of the Odd-Fellows' building will not take place on the 13th of June. Due notice will be given at what time the event will occur.

To the many inquiries made as to the health of Charles H. Lermond, it may be stated that he wrote his mother, last week, that he is some little better, but the swelling in his limbs has not been reduced.

Parker Lathrope, son of a pioneer R. R. operator in Walton, gladdened the hearts of his mother and family by a brief visit last week. He has been 2 years railroading in Mexico.

The sidewalks in front of Esq. Curley's store and the Phoenix Hotel are completed. And here let it be said that the cement sidewalks have improved the appearance of the town 100 per cent. The first one I said was in front of Mr. Kipp's residence, and the severe cold of last winter did not injure it in the least.

Willie Florence, who has been away from home for 10 years, came back last week, and started out to see his father, who had just started for Walton. He met his father, Henry Florence, in the road, and he did not know Willie, who let him go by a short distance, and then exclaimed, "Hello, pa! don't you know your son?" Henry turned and gave his wandering boy the heartiest of parental greetings. He is off again, however, and may not show up again for another decade.

Leslie Wilson, son of Walter Wilson, of Nicholson, is in from Hamilton, Ohio, where he has secured a good position on a railroad.—Chas. H. Lermond writes from Vale, Ind., to his mother's family that he gets more home news in one copy of the Recorder than in all the letters sent him from Walton in a month.—A very charming lady thanked your correspondent, recently, for saving her the necessity of writing letters by sending a copy of the Recorder, and said it was highly appreciated.

The Fellows' building is completed, except a little painting here and there. The grand finishing touch was given it by John R. Craven's masterly hand in laying the cement sidewalks and shaping the massive steps on the main front, to which the most unartistic eyes give tone and expression to the whole structure and cause the surroundings to appear sightly and symphonious with an edifice that is really "a thing of beauty," as its classic walls rise from the ground. The postoffice is moved into the building one door south, and is the neatest and most spacious office your Uncle Sam has ever had in the town or anywhere in the county.

Decoration Day, May 30, 1902, will live among memory lasts with A. M. Edwards, the noted liveryman of this place. His pair of handsome black horses, equipped in elegant harness, with white bridles and robes, were hitched to his really stylish drag, in which were, besides himself, his wife and child and two little girls. As "Dolph," (by which name he is more widely known) drove through the thronged streets of the county's metropolis, a feeling of exultation throbbed his swelling bosom and irradiated his glowing countenance. He looked happier than any big sun flower flaunting its golden gleams over the other residents of the garden. Perhaps his feelings can be better expressed in words of the old Third Reader verse:

"Oh, were you ne'er a school boy,
And did you never train,
And feel that swelling of the heart
You ne'er may feel again?"

The magnificent turnout was a subject of comment by all who had an opportunity of seeing it. The proud owner of the showy vehicle, fully conscious of the sensation he was producing, reveled in visions of future triumphs of display, when he should split the highway with a four-in-hand tallyho. Everything went as well as his heart could wish until the team had gone beyond the second toll gate north of here, when a couple of huckster wagons were met. Dolph pulled out to let them pass, and did not observe that they were followed by an automobile, and reined for his position on the road, when he was confronted with the auto, which the "chaffeur" brought to a sudden stop. The steam escaping from the machine frightened the horses, causing them to wheel suddenly. Mrs. Edwards, with the child in her arms, and all, with the exception of Dolph, jumped safely to the ground. Like the good horseman he is, Dolph kept his seat, and soon quieted his team, the damage being only a broken pole.

My little son had an attack of whooping cough and was threatened with pneumonia, but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. Strickfaden, editor of Wold-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale by All Druggists.

The Harness and Saddle Stallion,

DANDY CRISTO,

Will make the season of 1902, at my stable near Big Bone church, Boone county, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1100 lbs. Daudy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; second dam by Mambrino Time; 4th dam by Blue Bull.

Monto Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark; he by Black Denmark; he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4-mile race horse; he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's first dam by Black William; she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whip's thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry, gr-dam by Black Squirrel; great-grand-dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be doue so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose rig at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS

THE COMBINED STALLION.

MAX LEDGER,

will make the season of 1902, through the month of April, at O. P. Conner's farm, 4 miles south of Burlington, Ky., near the East Bend road. Beginning the first Monday and Tuesday in May, he will be found at Burlington; Wednesday at Union, and the remainder of the time at home.

Terms—$10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with.

Description and Pedigree:

Max Ledger is a fine black, 16 hands high, is a fine show horse, having taken 47 premiums at 14 fairs, and is the sire of the best lot of colts in Northern Kentucky. His colts are large, active and stylish. He is very fine in form and finish, and for style, we challenge competition. For saddle and harness he is unsurpassed by any horse in Boone Co.

This high bred young horse is from Ledger No. 12358, Vol. 9, (sire of Belle K. 2:28½ fourth heat with but six weeks handling,) Ledger E. pacer 2:24 at 3-yr-old, Kentucky Prince, 2:15; he by Crown Chief No. 4080, sire of Roland, 2:28, by Milford Mambrino; he by Mambrino Chief 11, sire of Lady Thorne, 2:18½, Woodford Mambrino, 2:21½ and many others. Max Ledger's dam, Kate Livingston by Forest Temple 186, by Edwin Forest; 2nd dam Madam Temple, dam of Flora Temple, 2:17½; 3rd dam by Tom Crowder; 4th dam by Bellfounder; 5th dam by Passenger.

Pasture $1.50 per month for mares from a distance. L. A. CONNER.

THE PREMIUM STALLION,

DEXTER.

will make the present season at my stable on Gunpowder creek, near Hathaway, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Dexter is a bay, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has made 5 races and won 4.

He was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Priam, sired by Bob Deadlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Cassius M. Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred.

Dexter's colts beat all competitors at the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, the Butler county, Ohio, and the Boone county, Kentucky, fairs, and the Boone county Harvest Home. Last year he took the premium at the Boone fair as the best brood stallion with 5 or more colts.

He will be in Burlington every county-court day, and at Geo. Moore's stable at Beaver every Friday.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may occur.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4, 1902. NO. 33.

COMMISSARY, May 30.—T. J. and Master Joe Walton went to Erlauger and Cincinnati, on business last Thursday.

Cecil Snelling, sold 2,000 sweet potato plants last week.

Jake Kraig is down from Addyston, Ohio, nursing a sore hand.

For correct forecasts of the weather, apply to William Slayback near here.

James Fleek, of Indianapolis, formerly of this place, is circulating among relatives and friends here.

J. J. Lillards sister, Mrs. Johnson and her daughter, Mrs. Murray, started for their home in Missouri today.

Elbert Kelly, Flavius and Jesse Louden, and family, spent Sunday afternoon with Richard Louden and family.

Mrs. Wilson, of Indiana, of whom mention was made last week, is at the present time visiting Glenn Crisler and family.

J. J. Lillard had the largest yield of wool to the fleece of any farmer in this vicinity. T. J. Walton next, with W. B. Walton and W. I. Rouse close after them.

T. J. Walton, one of our most enterprising farmers, has built 200 rods of wire fence this spring. He has used 2,000 lbs. of wire in fencing within the last two years.

Elijah Holton, living near Petersburg, was in this vicinity last Tuesday, looking for a family horse. He selected one from the herd of Mr. J. J. Lillard. Price paid, $125.

Herman Springmyer, Mack and Fred Belsinger, of Dent Ohio, were here on Saturday of last week, buying horses. One was bought of Harry Aers, of Middle creek. Price $100.

Petersburg, you may have the most beautiful girls of any town of equal size in the county, but we will put the neighborhood of the Commissary against any town, or neighborhood in Kentucky for beauty intelligence, bright eyes, rosy cheeks, elastic steps, plump form and good appetite, of its ladies.

If everything and everybody in this world were of uniform size and temperament, there would not be variety enough to make life possible, to say nothing of making it tolerable. It would be monotonous and weary to meet people all of one taste and temperament. There are some people who would make life as solemn as a funeral for us, if we had to live with them for a year, and then there are others who would drive us crazy with frivolity and foolishness. Some are quick, nervous and excitable; quick to decide and act, while others are as slow as the seven-year-itch or molasses on ice, so slow that nothing will move them but a wasp, bumblebee or hornet. But when these people are mixed up together, a layer of solemnity on top of a strata of frivolty and foolishness, then a coating of medium temperament, topped off with the joy of child life, the mixture can be swallowed down pretty easily, leaving a pleasant taste in the mouth. There is a great variety of tastes and tempement, and as well mixed among the people in the vicinity of the Commissary as can be found anywhere. We think the pencil shovers of this paper should give a variety of news. All visit, visit, becomes monotonous.

PETERSBURG, May 31.—Mr. H. P. Crisler leaves to-night for Mexico, Missouri.

Miss Julia Dinsmore, of Bellevue, was the guest of Mrs. E. L. Grant, one day this week.

Dr. H. H. Grant, of Louisville, was the guest of his brother, Dr. J. M. Grant, one day last week.

Miss Lucy Alma Cook, daughter of Rev. T. B. Cook, is attending school at St. Paul, Minnesota.

Miss Leola Mathews has returned home from Millersburg where she has been attending school.

Dr. W. E. Grant, Dean of the Louisville Dental College, was visiting his father here, one day last week.

David Davless, Assistant Cashier of the Newport German National Bank, was the guest of Dr. E. L. Grant, last Friday.

M. F. Wingate has bought 17,000 lbs. of wool at 17c; 2,000 lambs at $3.50 to $4 per head, and 25 fat cattle from Rice Bros. to be delivered in July, at 5c.

Two games of ball were played here Decoration Day. The first game was between Pete and Aurora—score, 14–7 in favor of the former; second game between Pete and Lawrenceburg, score 17–5 in favor of Pete.

The officers of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church are as follows: Mrs. T. B. Cook, Pres.; Mrs. J. P. Olds, Vice-Pres.; Mrs. Agnes Grant, Cor. Secretary; Mrs. Susan Wingate, Agt. Women's Missionary Advocate.

June 3—A maddog was at N. S. Walton's, the other day, and bit his hounds. It was a black shepherd.—Dr. Vessenmeir was trying to unload a cartridge, which exploded and burnt his mustache and eyebrows off.—There are no 17 year locusts in the bottoms.—Geo. Davis caught 182 cut worms in one potato hill.—Capt. Billie Hartman is going to Oklahoma.—25 Aurora couples attended the ball Friday night.—F. E. Krutz and mother will attend the Devins-Robbins wedding at Paris on the 10th inst.—Wm. Crisler, driver for the G. C. T. Co., fell down stairs in Ludlow, the other day and injured himself considerably.—Pinkeye is epidemic here.—Jno. Klopp has typhoid fever.—Harry Lyons, Bob Cox, and Doc Rice each has a new girl at his home.

How to Avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over, and if procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful medicine in use for bowel complaints, both for children and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale by all druggists.

FLICKERTOWN, May 31.—Plowing corn is the order of the day.

The frost, last Wednesday morning, damaged the corn in the low bottoms.

J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore, was visiting relatives here last week.

Albert Snyder was down from the city a couple of days last week, visiting his parents.

Mrs. Anna Clore keeps a supply of fresh baker's bread on hand at all times at her home.

Master Leslie Acra, of Middle creek, was visiting his uncle and aunt, here last Saturday.

Those who had their crops overflowed in the Middle creek bottoms have got them about straightened up again.

Those attending the Sunday School convention held here last Saturday, report a pleasant and instructive convention.

Crops, gardens, wheat, oats and grass are showing the effects of the recent rains. Tobacco that was set the last rain, which the cutworms left standing looking well.

Sheriff Allphin and deputies succeeded in routing "Ponts" and his gang. They have moved to other quarters. Many thanks to the Sheriff and his assistants.

Elder Moore will preach in the Christian church Saturday evening the 14, at 7 o'clock p. m. Baptizing at 2 o'clock p. m. Sunday school at half past 2 o'clock p.m. and preaching at 3 o'clock p. m. on Sunday the 15 inst. One and all are cordially invited to attend.

Death invaded our community again last Saturday night and took our friend Mrs. Ellen Adams, relict of the late W. B. Adams and sister of Uncle Alfred Cason. She was truly a Christian lady, and a kind and pleasant neighbor. Her husband departed this life January 14, 1898, and her remains were laid to rest by the side of his in the I. O. O. F. cemetery, at Burlington, Sunday afternoon. She left no children.

Ask Henry Conner and Sim House, of Union, when they will haul the next load away from Hathaway.

James Sebree delivered his crop of tobacco to Ira Adams, of Rising Sun last Wednesday, at 5 1-4 cents a pound.

Mr. Editor, the Locusts hung their overcoats on the first bush or tree that they came to, after coming out of the ground.

It is reported in the Big Bone neighborhood that the cut worms have cleaved up the corn and tobacco patches and weed fields in that section, and have crawled up the telephone poles to ask for the next place to go for something to eat.

ROBERT WOOD.

The above cut is a good picture of Gallatin County's candidate for the Democratic nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney of this the Fifteenth Judicial District. And why should not this nomination be given to Gallatin county; provided she offers to the people for this place as goodn man, in all respects, as any of the adjoining counties? Never in the history of our county was she ever known to even ask for the position of Circuit Judge or Commonwealth's Attorney, although her bar has always had its due share of able lawyers. Being a small county we have recognized how uneven the contest would be were we brought to contend with the larger counties in the effort to secure the nomination for either of these honorable positions. Such conditions as these, possibly, have deterred able and deserving lawyers of our county in the past from entering such an unequal struggle. But knowing there is a sense of justice prevailing in almost every true Kentuckian, and that the average man is disposed to give his fellow fair play, Robert Wood, with the unanimous endorsement of all the voters of his county, submits the claims of Little Gallatin, together with his own, to the Democrats of the District, with an abiding faith that whatever the Democrats do with his candidacy they will do right. Mr. Wood was born in Owen county; October 11th, 1869, where he lived and labored on a farm until October, 1889, when he came to Gallatin. Here he followed different pursuits under great difficulties, he being very poor, having the ambition to become a lawyer in all that word means. He entered the law office of R. B. Brown in Warsaw in June, 1891, where he applied himself with such assidnity that, in September, 1892, when he was admitted to the bar, it was said of him by those who examined him for admission to the bar, that few, if any, old lawyers in the District could have passed such an examination. In November, 1894, he was elected County Attorney, and so faithful and able have been his efforts in this position that he has been three times elected to it. Having known Mr. Wood so intimately during his career as an official, and knowing the honorable struggle he has made for a standing in his profession, without any purpose to disparage any other candidate, we speak what we confidently feel to be true, when we say the District in no man, has a more upright, capable and deserving aspirant. And farther, if work for his party counts for anything, there is not a gentleman mentioned in connection with the attorneyship who did anything like the work he did in the campaigns of 1899 and 1900. In 1900 he did splendid service for his party in every county of his district, and by special invitation made many speeches in Indiana, and wherever he went he will be remembered for the efficient service he did. It will also be remembered that when the call to arms was made for volunteers in the late Spanish War, such was his patriotism that he left his all behind and volunteered as a private to do soldier duty for his country—something no other lawyer in his district did. And now that Gallatin does present to you a peculiarly suited for the place, will not the Democratic voters of the District be just to her and endorse her choice?—Warsaw Independent.

The frost last week nipped the corn and did considerable damage to some of the gardens.

On Tuesday of last week J. H. Corbin began bleeding at the nose about 5 a. m., and the flow of blood continued until the family became alarmed, and called Dr. Lassing, who succeeded in stopping it about 1 p. m. The loss of blood weakened him considerably, but he is improving, and unless he has another hemorrhage he will regain his strength in a few days.

B. C. Surface received his purchase of wool on Tuesday of last week. It amounted to nearly 9,000 lbs. While the price was low, he surprised some of his patrons by giving them more per pound than he had promised them and I will say, to his credit, that every one was well pleased with the manner in which the business was conducted.

Mr. Sable of Louisville gets the entire purchase.

After an illness of about 6 years, Moses M. Tanner passed peacefully away yesterday at the age of 42 years, 2 months and 12 days. During all of his illness he was never heard to murmur. He said to the writer a few days before his death, "I am very sick, but it is all right. I don't complain very much." He united with Ebenezer Lutheran church early in life, and was an active and useful member of that body until death, having filled some of the most important offices of the church. As an appreciation of his work the members of his church elected him chorister, recently, knowing at the time he was not able to execute the work the office required, but as a matter of courtesy to him, which he justly deserved. His wife and one son survive him, and have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement. The wife has lost an effectionate companion, the community one of its best citizens. The funeral services will be conducted by pastor Slater at Hopeful church tomorrow, after which the remains will be interred in the cemetery at that place in the presence of a host of friends and relatives.

UNION.—Wallace Stevens and wife, of London, Ohio, were calling on friends and relatives here Saturday.

Mrs. John Hogan is much improved after a severe illness.

Miss Lena Hedges is visiting her aunt, Miss Mary Hedges, this week.

A. H. Norman had to kill his fine dogs last week. They had hydrophobia.

Mrs. Emma Presser returned to her home in Walton, after a pleasant visit with relatives here.

Mrs. S. S. Smith spent Friday with her grandmother, Mrs. Childress, who has been quite sick again.

Mrs. Joe Combs and friend, Mrs. Bernhardt, of Covington, spent a few days with Mrs. N. S. Bristow.

Robert Norman and family, of Covington, spent several days last week with his father, B. F. Norman.

Mr. L. H. Voshell went to Independence, Friday, to the burial of Mr. Male Stevens, once a citizen of this place.

A number from here attended the festival at Excelsior Grange Friday afternoon, and report a fine time and the refreshments delicious.

Misses Lillian Corbin and Nannie Bristow spent a very pleasant day in Hebron, Saturday. Pomona Grange was entertained there that day.

BEAVER LICK, June 2.—"Judge" Roter boarded the little Str. Swan, last Saturday, and made a business trip to Rising Sun, Ind.

Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume and W. W. Wilson visited Burlington, Monday, on official business.

Miss Mattie Desligen, of Morningview, Kenton county, with her gallant young lover, visited friends near here, last Sunday.

Mrs. Harry Roter, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, after spending a couple of weeks with her son, A. A. Roter and family, left for home last week.

Nace Conley, who is employed with the Bell Telephone, in Cincinnati, came home Memorial day to visit his wife. He speaks well of his job.

Quite a number of young folks met at the home of Ed Moore, last Saturday night, and passed the evening in sweet songs and social conversation.

Rev. Earle preached four interesting sermons at the Baptist church, Saturday and Sunday. He resides at Latonia, and, accompanied by his wife visited several of his flock on this occasion.

Albert Sheets, who was nearly washed out of house and home on Buzzard branch, has arranged with W. C. Johnson to build him a neat cottage on his farm near the Beaver and Bigbone pike.

Col. Robt. Stone, successor to Will Hume, is catering to the wants of the patrons of the Hamilton and Walton mail route. Bob is a clever, good fellow and we wish him success in his new enterprise.

Miss Kate Green, our graceful and efficient hello girl, who presides at the telephone exchange parlor, spent some days, the past week, with her parents at their pretty Verde Mont home near Big Bone Springs.

Harry Jones, one of our most gallant young gentlemen, visited Covington, last Saturday and Sunday. It is confidently believed by his friends that one of Covington's fairest young ladies is the occasion of his trips to the city.

"Uncle John" Snow, our industrious tobacco grower, finished transplanting his crop of 13 acres, last Friday. He says if the number of acres and the day he finished, don't Jonah him, his prospects for a good crop are pretty good.

Last Saturday evening the belles and beaux, of Big Bone, Beaver, Verona and Walton gathered at the hospitable residence of Richard Hood, near here, as previously arranged, and to the sprightly music of the Beaver string band, tripped the light fantastic toe till late 12 o'clock. Critics of social functions of this character present, pronounced it the prettiest dance that has been "pulled off" in Beaver for lo! these many years.

HEBRON, June 2.—Some of our local gallants spent Sunday away from home.

Clyde Hafer was at home from Covington, Thursday night.

The farmers are very busy now, as the soil is just right to work.

Mr. Bullock, our popular tailor, has a large amount of work on hand.

Edward Aylor and wife came out from the city Decoration day.

Mr. Newton, of Henry county, was the guest of friends here, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Crutcher visited Mr. and Mrs. John Masters, of Ludlow, Sunday.

Our old friend, Mike Clore, was calling in this neighborhood, the first few days of this week.

Several from this place will attend the Sunday School Convention at Bullittsburg next week.

Mrs. Robt. McGlasson and children, spent last Tuesday in Ludlow, guests of her sister, Mrs. Clore.

The local strawberry crop is not very much this year. The weather the past week has damaged them also.

Sunday was the semi-monthly meeting of the Endeavor Society. The topic and discussions were practical ones.

Misses Daisy Harding and Grace Bullock have closed very successful spring schools at Limaburg and the Riley school house.

The monthly C. E. Social will be held next Saturday evening, (for which the usual program is being prepared,) at Miss Ora Rouse's.

A number of the younger set of this place went on a fishing excursion to Gunpowder, Saturday. As to how the day ended, ask Mike Clore and Allie Walton.

The box party given at the pleasant home of Miss Clara Hossman was well attended, and a collection of about $3 was made from the sale of the lunch boxes. The money will be turned over to the C. E. Treasury.

CRESCENT, June 2.—Born, to Cove Carpenter and wife, on May 27, a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rector spent Friday at Independence.

Robt. Norman, and wife, of Covington, are guests of relatives at this place.

Mrs. Ellen Richards, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is convalescing.

Mrs. Robt. Northcutt and Mrs. Laura Williams spent Friday at Independence.

W. P. Barker, of Covington, spent several days, last week, with relatives at this place.

Miss Clara Tanner, of Richwood, after spending several days with friends at this place, returned home Friday.

Bert Worthington attended a graphophone entertainment, one evening recently, and there being present quite a number of young ladies who are recognized as the exponents of beauty and conversation, he was justly accused of rivaling the loquaciousness of the Edisonian invention that was supposed to be the "main mogul" of the entertainment. Bert pleads guilty of the charge; but will meet his accuser "with the unrepentant grin of the self complacent sinner, who rejoices in his sin," for he deems life too transitory to spend in listening to the mechanical productions of a cylinder and amplifier, when better company is present.

The rain Monday night was not general throughout the county.

WALTON, May 31.—Miss Edna Ransler is visiting relatives in Hamilton, Ohio.

Miss Pauline Curley is protracting her visit with Covington relatives.

Sheriff Allphin and county attorney Castleman were in town last week.

John Watson had a Jersey cow to die from the effects of an over dose of clover.

Mrs. Dr. Bagby has returned from a visit to her brother, Geo. O'Neal, of New Richmond, Ohio.

Mrs. Fannie Stephens and Gladys Wilson, her graddaughter, are visiting Mrs. Frank Bird near Nicholson.

Our new mail carrier to Hamilton, Robert Stone, deprives us of seeing Willie Hume's pleasant visage as we go up town.

Miss Gertrude Schneider went to the city, last week, on a shopping tour. She thinks it more laborious than waiting on customers.

Dr. S. M. Adams has been very sick with old fashioned malarial fever. He was able to sit up a little on Saturday. Mrs. Adams is also sick.

The dedication of the Odd-Fellows' building will not take place on the 13th of June. Due notice will be given at what time the event will occur.

To the many inquiries made as to the health of Charles H. Lermond, it may be stated that he wrote his mother, last week, that he is some little better, but the swelling in his limbs has not been reduced.

Parker Lathrope, son of a pioneer R. R. operator in Walton, gladdened the hearts of his mother and family by a brief visit last week. He has been 2 years railroading in Mexico.

The sidewalks in front of Esq. Curley's store and the Phoenix Hotel are completed. And here let it be said that the cement sidewalks have improved the appearance of the town 100 per cent. The first one laid was in front of Mr. Kipp's residence, and the severe cold of last winter did not injure it in the least.

Willie Florence, who has been away from home for 10 years, came back last week, and started out to see his father, who had just started for Walton. He met his father, Henry Florence, in the road, and he did not know Willie, so let him go by a short distance, and then exclaimed, "Hello, pa! don't you know your son?" Henry turned and gave his wandering boy the heartiest of parental greetings. He is off again, however, and may not show up again for another decade.

Leslie Wilson, son of Walter Wilson, of Nicholson, is in from Hamilton, Ohio, where he has secured a good position on a railroad.—Chas. H. Lermond writes from Dale, Ind., to his mother's family that he gets more home news in one copy of the Recorder than in all the letters sent him from Walton in a month.—A very charming lady thanked your correspondent, recently, for saving her the necessity of writing letters by sending a copy of the Recorder, and said it was highly appreciated.

The Odd-Fellows' building is completed, except a little painting here and there. The grand finishing touch was given it by John R. Craven's masterly hand in laying the cement sidewalks and shaping the massive steps on the main front, to which the most unartistic eyes give tone and expression to the whole structure and causes the surroundings to appear slightly and symphonious with an edifice that is really "a thing of beauty," as its classic walls rise from the ground. The postoffice is moved into the building one door south, and is the neatest and most spacious office your Uncle Sam has ever had in the town or anywhere in the county.

Decoration Day, May 30, 1902, will live as long as memory lasts with A. M. Edwards, the noted liveryman of this place. His pair of handsome black horses, equipped in elegant harness, with white bridles and reins, were hitched to his really stylish rig, in which were, besides himself, his wife and child and two little girls. As "Dolph," (by which name he is more widely known) drove through the thronged streets of the county's metropolis, a fever heat of exultation throbbed in his swelling bosom and irradiated his glowing countenance. He looked happier than any big sun flower flaunting its golden gleams over the other residents of the garden. Perhaps his feelings can be better expressed in words of the old Third Reader verse:

"Oh, were you ne'er a school boy,
And did you never train,
And feel that swelling of the heart
You ne'er may feel again?"

The magnificent turnout was a subject of comment by all who had an opportunity of seeing it. The proud owner of the showy vehicle, fully conscious of the sensation he was producing, reveled in visions of future triumphs of display, when he should split the highway with a four-in-hand tallyho. Everything went as well as his heart could wish until the team had gone beyond the second toll gate north of here, when a couple of huckster wagons were met. Dolph pulled out to let them pass, and did not observe that they were followed by an automobile, and reined for his position on the road, when he was confronted with the auto, which the "chafeur" brought to a sudden stop. The steam escaping from the machine frightened the horses, causing them to wheel suddenly. Mrs. Edwards, with the child in her arms, and all, with the exception of Dolph, jumped safely to the ground. Like the good horseman he is, Dolph kept his seat, and soon quieted his team, the damage being only a broken pole.

My little son had an attack of whooping cough and was threatened with pneumonia, but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. Strickfaden, editor of Wold-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale by All Druggists.

FOR PHILIPPINES.

Senator Hoar Arraigns Administration's Policy as Wicked.

Declares War Was Forced on Peaceable Islanders—Contrasts Treatment of Cuba with That of Luzon—Censures Funston.

In a strong speech in the senate on Wednesday, May 22, Senator George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, sharply arraigned the administration's policy in the Philippines, denouncing it as the most foolish and wicked of chapters in American history. Addressing the president pro tem. of the senate, Senator Hoar said:

"Mr. President: I have something to say, which I will say as briefly and as compactly as I may, upon the pending bill. We have to deal with a territory 1,000 miles away, 1,200 miles in extent, containing 10,000,000 people. A majority of the senate think that people are under the American flag and lawfully subject to our authority. We are not at war with them or with anybody. The country is in a condition of profound peace as well as of unexampled prosperity.

"The Filipinos have a right to call it war. They claim to be a people and to be fighting for their rights as a people. The senator from Ohio (Mr. Foraker) admits that there is a people there, although he says they are not one people, but there are several. But we cannot be at war under the constitution without an act of congress.

"We are not at war. We made peace with Spain on the 11th day of February, 1899. Congress has never declared war with the people of the Philippine islands. The president has never asserted nor usurped the power to do it. We are only doing on a large scale exactly what we have done at home within a few years past, when the military forces of the United States have been called out to suppress riot and tumult or a lawless assembly, too strong for the local authorities. You have the same right to administer the water torture or to hang men by the thumbs to extort confession in one case as in the other. You have the same right to do it in Cleveland or Pittsburg or at Colorado Springs as you have to do it within the Philippine islands.

"The senator from Ohio, in his very brilliant and forcible speech, which I heard with delight and instruction, said that we were bound to restore order in the Philippine Island, and we cannot leave them till that should be done. He said we were bound to keep the faith we pledged to Spain in the treaty, and that we were bound, before we left, to see that secured. He said we were bound, especially, to look out for the safety of the Filipinos who had been our friends, and that we could not, in honor, depart until that should be made secure.

War Is for Sovereignty.

"All that, Mr. President, is true. So far as I know no man has doubted it. But these things are not what we are fighting for; not one of them. There never was a time when, if we had declared that we only were there to keep faith with Spain, and that we only were there to restore order, that we were only there to see that no friend of ours should suffer at the hands of any enemy of ours, that the war would not have ended in that moment.

"You are fighting for sovereignty. You are fighting for the principle of eternal dominion over that people, and that is the only question in issue in the conflict. We said in the case of Cuba that she had a right to be free and independent. So we only demanded in the treaty that Spain should hereafter let her alone. If you had done to Cuba as you have done to the Philippine islands, which had exactly the same right, you would be at this moment in Cuba just where Spain was when Malolos had, threated it as a declaration of war. So your generals reported, and so Aguinaldo expressly declared. So you deliberately made up the issue for a fight for dominion on one side and a fight for liberty on the other.

"Then when you had ratified the treaty you voted down the resolution in the senate, known as the Bacon resolution, declaring the right of that people to independence, and you passed the McEnery resolution, which declared that you meant to dispose of those islands as should be for the interest of the United States. That was the origin of the war, if it be war. That is what the war is all about, if it be war.

Fixes Responsibility.

"Now, Mr. President, when you determined to resort to force for the purpose you took upon yourself every natural consequence of that condition. The natural result of a conflict of arms between a people comin to out of subjection and a highly civilized people—one weak and the other strong, with all the powers and resources of civilization—is inevitably, as everybody knows, that there will be great waste of life and retaliation by cruelty on the other. You knew it even before it happened, as well as you know it now that it has happened, and the responsibility is yours.

"We cannot get rid of this one fact, we cannot escape it, and we cannot flinch from it. You chose war instead of peace. You chose force instead of conciliation, with full notice that everything that has happened since would happen as a consequence of your decision. Had you made a declaration to Aguinaldo that you intended to respect his title to independence, and that all you declared was to fulfill the treaty and protect your friends, you would have disarmed that people in a moment. I believe there never has been a time since when a like declaration made by this chamber alone, but certainly made by this chamber and the other house, with the approval of the president, would not have ended this conflict and prevented all these horrors.

"Instead of that, gentlemen talked of the wealth of the Philippine islands, and of the advantage to our trade. They sought to dazzle our eyes with nuggets of other men's gold. Senators declared in the senate chamber and on the hustings that the flag never shall be hauled down in the Philippine islands, and those of you who think otherwise keep silent and enter no disclaimer. The senator from Ohio says our policy has not been in the dark, but it has been a policy published to the world. Has it? Has it? I want to ask, what was it which created the whole trouble? Who took it up and whetted and keeps up the hatred and will make war break out again and again for centuries to come unless human nature be changed or the difference in the breasts from what it is in ours? It is because you keep a padlock on your lips.

"We are not flourishing nuggets of gold in the senate chamber. The doctrine of imperialism is not promising us all the kingdoms of this world and the glory thereof, if we will fall down and worship him. You have just hauled down the American flag in China where it once floated, and you have just hauled it down in Cuba, where it has floated for three years.

Beneficiaries of Policy.

"For the words 'interests of the United States,' which the McEnery resolution declared were to determine our actions in governing these islands, you substitute in this bill the declaration THAT the rights acquired in the Philippine islands under the treaty with Spain are to be administered for the benefit of the inhabitants of those islands.

"The share which you propose to admit these people in your scheme of government is an admission that a large number of them are fit for self-government.

"What you have been fighting for all this time as your right, if you expect to enact this bill into law and to carry it out in practice, is to substitute a constitution of your making for one of their making; to have a dependency, which is what you want, instead of a republic, which is what they want; to have fitness for the elective franchise determined by an authority which has its source 10,000 miles away, instead of with the people at home; and to deny them independence, even if they are fit for it, so long as you please, without any regard to their desire.

"Gen. Taft, if I understood him, concedes that nothing so far indicates that the existing policy has been good for the United States. It is only the benefit of the people of the Philippine islands in saving them from anarchy or from foreign nations, in establishing schools for them, that vindicates what you have done so far. What you have done so far has been to get some 600 thousand children actually at school in the whole Philippine dominion. To get this result you have certainly slain many times that number of parents.

"John Quincy Adams, as everybody knows, was the father of what we call the Monroe doctrine. He secured its adoption through the weight of his great authority by a hesitating president and a reluctant cabinet. It is not so well known that he placed the Monroe doctrine solely upon the doctrine that just government must rest upon the consent of the governed. That he declared to be its only foundation, and that so founded it rested upon the eternal principle of righteousness and justice.

Moral Equivalent of Policy.

"Mr. President, if you have your own way and keep on in the path you are treading you have not only repealed the declaration of independence, but you have left for the Monroe doctrine only the principle of brutal selfishness. You have taken from that doctrine, which is the chief glory of this country, from the time of the treaty of peace in 1783 till the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln in 1861, its foundation in righteousness and freedom, and you found it only upon selfishness.

"When we ratified the treaty of Paris we committed ourselves to one experiment in Cuba, and another in the Philippine islands. We had said already that Cuba of right ought to be free and independent. So when by the treaty Spain abandoned her sovereignty the title of Cuba became at once complete. We were only to stay there to keep order until we could hand over Cuba to a government her people had chosen and established.

"By the same treaty we bought the Philippine islands for $20,000,000 and declared and agreed that congress shall dispose of them. So, according to those who hold that treaty valid, it became the duty of the president to reduce them to submission and of congress to govern them.

"Here the two doctrines are brought into sharp antagonism.

"In Cuba, of right, just government, according to you, must rest on the consent of the governed. Her people are to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.

"In the Philippine islands a government is to be instituted by a power 10,000 miles away, to be in the beginning a despotism, established by military power, and to be such, to use the language of the McEnery resolution, as shall seem 'for the interest of the United States.'

"You have given both doctrines a three years' trial. Three years is sometimes a very long time and sometimes a very short time in human affairs. I believe the whole life of the Saviour after He first made His divine mission known lasted but three years. Three years has wrought a mighty change in Cuba, and it has wrought a mighty change in the Philippine islands. We have had plenty of time to try both experiments.

Real Cost of War.

"Now, what has each cost you and what has each profited you?

"I should naturally begin where our fathers used to begin. But somehow the things get so inextricably blended that we cannot keep them separate. This world is so made that you cannot keep honesty and sound policy, and freedom, and material property, and good government, and the consent of the governed apart. Men who undertake to make them so by divorcements but for it by failure in business. If you try to keep order by military despotism you suffer from it by revolution and by barbarity in war. If a strong people try to govern a weak one against it will the home government will get despotic too. You cannot maintain despotism in Asia and a republic in America. If you try to deprive even a savage of the rights of your own men when they landed on those islands with benediction and gratitude, into exiles and irreconcilable enemies, possessed of a hatred which centuries cannot eradicate.

"The practical statesmanship of the declaration of independence and the golden rule would have found a path for a few kind words. They would have bought for you the great title of liberator which your fathers won for your country in the South American states and Greece and Italy, and which you have won in Cuba. They would have bought for you the undying gratitude of a great and free people and the undying glory which belongs to the name of liberator. That people would have felt for you as Japan felt for you when she declared last summer that she owed everything to the United States of America.

Contrast of Ideals.

"What have your ideals cost you, and what have they bought for you?

"1. For the Philippine islands you have had to repeal the declaration of independence.

"For Cuba you have had to reaffirm it and give it new luster.

"2. For the Philippine islands you have had to convert the Monroe doctrine into a doctrine of mere selfishness.

"For Cuba you have acted on it and vindicated it.

"3. In Cuba you have got the eternal gratitude of a free people.

"In the Philippine islands you have got the hatred and sullen submission of a subjugated people.

"4. From Cuba you have brought home nothing but glory.

"From the Philippines you have brought home nothing of glory.

"5. In Cuba no man thinks of counting the cost. The few soldiers who came home from Cuba wounded or dying, or with their wounds and their pale faces as they wore medals of honor. What soldier glories in a wounded or an empty sleeve which he got in the Philippines?

"6. The conflict in the Philippines has cost you $600,000,000, thousands of American soldiers—the flower of your youth—the health and sanity of thousands more and hundreds of thousands of Filipinos slain.

"Another price we have paid as the result of your practical statesmanship. We have sold out the right, the old American right, to speak out the sympathy which is in our hearts for people who are desolate and oppressed everywhere on the face of the earth.

"I read the other day in a Nebraska paper a terrible story of the passage through Omaha of a car load of muskets from the Philippine islands. That load of young soldiers passed through that city, as other like cargoes have passed through before, maniacs and broken in mental health as the result of service in the Philippine islands.

"Mr. President, every one of these maniacs, every one of the many like freights of horror that come back to us from the Philippine islands was once an American boy, the delight of some American home, fairer and nobler in his young promise, as we like to think, than any other the round world over. Ah, Mr. President, it was not $20,000,000 that we paid as the price of those boys of ours that entered into the cost.

Censure for Funston.

"I do not wish to dwell at length on the circumstances which attended the capture of Aguinaldo. But as they have been elaborately defended in this body, and it is said that his character will be written, a forged letter to Aguinaldo, purporting to come from one of his officers, stating that he was about to bring him some prisoners he had captured, and thus procured his admission to Aguinaldo's headquarters. As he approached he sent a message to Aguinaldo that he and his friends were hungry; accepted the food at his table; and in the presence thereof put down and seized him; shot some of the soldiers who were about Aguinaldo and brought him back a prisoner into our lines. That is the statement which is so highly applauded in imperialistic quarters.

"I do not believe that the senate knew what it was doing when it consented to Gen. Funston's promotion.

"Mr. President, we have two guides for the conduct of military officers in such circumstances. They apply not only to the act of Funston, but they apply to most of the conduct of our military officers of which complaint has been made. One of these is instructions which the government of the United States in the field, prepared by Dr. Francis Lieber and promulgated by order of Abraham Lincoln.

"The other is a convention at The Hague, agreed upon by the representatives of this government with the others on the 29th day of July, 1899, and ratified by the senate on the 14th of March, 1902.

Illegality of Funston's Act.

"So, Mr. President, the act of Gen. Funston—not Gen. Funston himself if he acted under orders of his superior—but the act of Gen. Funston is stamped with indelible infamy by Abraham Lincoln's articles of war, to which the secretary of war appeals, and the concurrent action of 24 nations and the unanimous action of the senate this winter.

"Mr. President, in this attempt to force your sovereignty by this process of benevolent assimilation we have been brought to the unexampled dishonor of disregarding our own rules for the conduct of armies in the field and to disregard the rules to which our national faith has just been pledged to substantially all the civilized powers of the earth.

"But this act of Gen. Funston's, approved by his superior officer, was in violation not only of the laws of war, but of that law which governs alike every where the civilized Christian or pagan wherever the light of chivalry has penetrated. He went to Aguinaldo under the pretense that he was a friend, and Aguinaldo fed him. Was not that an act of perfidy? It violated the holy rite of hospitality, which even the oriental nations hold sacred.

The Water Cure.

"Mr. President, the story of what has been called the water torture has been, in part, told by other senators. I have no inclination to repeat the story. I cannot help believing that not a twentieth part of it has yet been told. I get letters in large numbers from officers, of the friends of officers, who repeat what they tell me, all testifying to these cruelties. And you will find in the officer's friends or kindred, who send these letters to me send them under a strict injunction of secrecy. Other senators tell me they have a like experience. These brave officers, who would go to the cannon's mouth for honor, who never flinch in battle, flinch before what they deem the certain ruin of their prospects for life if they give the evidence which they think would be distasteful to their superiors. I do not undertake to judge of this matter. Other senators can judge as well as I can. The American people can do it better.

"Mr. President, it is said that these horrors, which never would have come to the public knowledge but for the senate ordered this investigation, were unknown to our authorities at home. I hope and believe they were unknown to the war department. I believe they were unknown to President Roosevelt, and I know they were unknown to President McKinley. But I cannot think that the recent declaration of that honorable gentleman, the secretary of war, made on a memorable occasion, that the war on our part been conducted with unexampled humanity, will be accepted by his countrymen.

"Let us not be diverted from the true issue. We are not talking of retaliation. We are not talking of the ordinary brutalities of war. We are not talking about or inquiring into acts of vengeance committed in the heat of battle. We are talking about torture, torture—cold-blooded, deliberate, premeditated torture; torture to extort information.

"Is it denied that these things have been done? Is it denied that although you are still on the theater of this inquiry and have only call-d such witnesses as you happen to find 10,000 miles away from the scene, that these things have been proved to the satisfaction of the majority of the committee, and that no man has yet been punished, although they were going on considerably more than a year ago?

Choice of the Hour.

"I have sometimes fancied that we might erect here, in the midst of the country's column to American liberty which alone might rival in height the beautiful and simple shaft which we have erected to the fame of Washington, a column typical of our fancy each generation bringing its inscription, which should recite its own contribution to the great structure of which the column should be the symbol.

"And what have we to say? Are we to have a place in that honorable company? Must we engrave on that column: 'We repealed the declaration of independence. We changed the Monroe doctrine from a doctrine of eternal righteousness and justice, resting on the consent of the governed, to a doctrine of brutal selfishness, or looking only to our own advantage. We crushed the only republic in Asia. We made war on the only Christian people in the east. We conquered a people who trusted in our name. We vulgarized the American flag. We introduced perfidy into the practice of war. We inflicted torture on unarmed men to extort confession. We put children to death. We established reconcentrado camps. We devastated provinces. We baffled the aspirations of a people for liberty.

"No, Mr. President. Never! Never! Never! Other and better counsels will yet prevail. The hours are long in the life of a great people. The irrevocable step is not yet taken.

"Let us at least have this to say. We, too, have kept the faith of the fathers. We took Cuba by the hand. We delivered her from her age-long bondage. We welcomed her to the family of nations. We set mankind an example never beheld before of moderation in victory. We led the way and halting Europe to the deliverance of their beleaguered ambassadors in China. We marched through a hostile country—a country without allies—without danger or reserve. We returned benefit for injury and pity for cruelty. We made the name of America beloved in the east as in the west. We kept faith with the Philippine people. We kept faith with our own history. We kept our national honor unsullied. The flag which we received without a rent we handed down without a stain."

THE SHIP SUBSIDY GAME.

Republicans See the Mistake of Forcing the Job Upon the Reluctant Country.

When the Morgan steamship trust was formed, it was expected that the great railroad companies carrying freights to and from the Atlantic seaboard were behind the arrangement. It is this colossal combination of railroad and steamship lines that will dictate rates of freight not merely from the seaboard, but from the wheat and corn fields of the far west. It was the fear that they would be cut out of their share of ocean carriage or driven to a disastrous warfare of competition that compelled the Hamburg-American and Bremen steamship companies to sacrifice their independence and enter the combination. It is now announced from London that the railroad and steamship alliance is approaching consummation.

Yet in the midst of these arrangements, says the Philadelphia Record, the advocates of steamship subsidy are still insisting on the passage of the Hanna-Frye bill, and the house committee on merchant marine is holding daily sessions to consider the propriety of favorably reporting the bill. The incredulous farmers of the west are still told that subsidy is necessary in order to enable American shipowners to compete with European, and thus lessen the cost of freights for American exports. This is said while American ship companies have entered into an alliance with the same Europeans, under the leadership of an American financier, to prevent ocean competition. Every new oceangoing ship launched on the Atlantic seaboard would receive its subsidy as soon as built and be absorbed in the combination at the expense of the American people. Without whipping the devil around the stump, the subsidy might as well be given to the railroad trunk lines at once.

AN IMMOVABLE OBSTACLE IN THE WAY.

Does the Big Man Know That He Is Hindering the Launching Exercises?

The senate is by no means so quick to respond to public sentiment as the house, whose members must confront their constituencies every two years. But no less than seven republican senators opposed the subsidy bill, although it was recommended by successive republican national conventions and pushed by Chairman Hanna as a party measure entitled to the loyal support of all republicans. In vain Senator Frye and Senator Depew pleaded with unction that republican principles demanded the protection of all American industries, whether by duties or by subsidies, and that the American shipping industry should not be excluded from this protection. The party whip could not lash the republican senators of Wisconsin, Iowa and New Hampshire into support of a scheme that is daily becoming by force of events more repulsive to the people.

In the house opposition to subsidy has been growing among the republicans since the beginning of the session, while the democrats are unanimously against the scheme. This change among the republicans is due, not so much to a wholesome sentiment against such legislative favoritism as to a lively sense of the political consequences of forcing this subsidy job upon a reluctant country. The prospect of the republican control of the next house is precarious enough, and it is feared, with just reason, that subsidy is too heavy a burden to be borne. Hence the subsidy bill will not be passed in this session of congress, and in the march of events the pleas in its favor will be still weaker before the next session. But the country will not readily forget that the republican leaders have done their utmost in behalf of a dangerous scheme to throw millions of public money into the lap of great steamship companies, under the pretense of serving the American merchant marine—in face of all the evidence of the useless extravagance of the policy.

The apparent effort to quiet the Philippine outrage question leads to a singular logical contradiction. Although Gen. Smith has been acquitted by the court-martial—which, with the antecedent avowals of his counsel, can only mean that his order is justified — Gen. Chaffee has ordered the stoppage of the water-curing and has rescinded the order of concentration camps in Laguna and Batanga provinces. If it be true as argued that water-curing and killing are absolutely essential to the process of benevolent assimilation, then the order to stop such things must be wrong. If the order is right, then the finding of the court-martial must be a defiance.—N. Y. World.

ROOSEVELT'S MILITARY STYLE

Qualities of Dictator Have Been Developed by the Strenuous President.

There is a manifest disposition among the republicans at the national capital to rebel against the leadership of Mr. Roosevelt, who, under our political system, is ex-officio leader of the party to which he is indebted for his election.

In the matter of Cuban reciprocity, as to which he was especially emphatic and peremptory, his party in the house accepted his leadership only with the greatest reluctance, and then with such reservations as to make it little better than no leadership at all, says the Chicago Chronicle.

In the senate, where the republicans are in a great hurry to get home before more exposures of the necessary effects of the "imperial" policy make their party prospects more dismal, it appears to be the case that in selecting the measures which must be put through in order to save the credit of the party the Cuban bill has been left out.

This is the more significant, because the strenuous leader in the white house has proclaimed his purpose to reconvene congress immediately in extra session in case it shall be so contumacious as to adjourn without a satisfactory Cuban bill.

Whatever the sentiment may be as to the merits of Cuban reciprocity and as to the duty of the United States in the matter, and whatever may be the influence of the beet sugar trust, it is evident enough that there is a prevailing disposition among the republicans of both houses to let the president know that they are not disposed to take orders from him as to legislative policy.

No doubt he is a less bigoted protectionist than the most of them, and they may be actuated largely by a desire to punish him for his more liberal leanings.

But there is reason to believe they are actuated in a much greater degree by resentment aroused by his military style of laying his commands on the legislative branch of the government and his threats of punishment in case of disobedience of orders.

Mr. Roosevelt has developed the qualities of a military dictator rather than those of a political leader under a republican government, and a pretty strong expression of resentment is no more than natural, and is likely to produce a rather wholesome effect.

AMONG MEN OF MEANS.

J. P. Morgan, George Gould and Cornelius Vanderbilt have been elected members of a society of numismatists. They are understood to have mastered another form of coin collecting.

In the brief period when he is not engaged in fixing up billion-dollar combines Pierpont Morgan occasionally cracks a joke. He was showing some friends through his kennels, and one of them expressed great admiration for an imported setter. "Yes, he's a fine dog. His name is Russell Sage." "How did you come to give him that name?" "Well, he never loses a scent."

Justice William L. Putnam, of the United States circuit court of appeals, in Portland, Ore., recently fell into conversation with a young man of the nouveaux riches who expressed astonishment that the judge could get along on his salary of $6,000 a year. "Why," said the purse-proud youth, "it easily costs me twice that amount to live a year." The judge answered, gravely: "It isn't worth it, George; it isn't worth it."

Young Cornelius Vanderbilt is becoming quite a favorite with other workmen in the Mott Haven shops, of the New York Central railroad. It is not uncommon to see him lying on his back among coal dust and cinders inspecting the construction of a locomotive fire box. Grimy-faced engineers and firemen like to chat with the young millionaire, not so much because he is his father's son, but because he is a good mechanic and understands the topics they like to discuss.

Among the stories being told of the late Cecil Rhodes is this: When taking leave of the German emperor after several interviews in relation to Africa, his majesty said: "I wish you were a German, Mr. Rhodes, for then I would ask you to become my minister of foreign affairs." The kaiser was somewhat startled at this characteristically blunt reply: "If your majesty were only an Englishman, I would have suggested that you come to South Africa with me and become my business manager."

CHAT OF THE STUDIOS.

A colossal statue in bronze, representing the late Cecil Rhodes, is in the studio of John Tweed at Chelsea, London. It is designed for the market place at Buluwayo.

Carolus Duran notes the presence in the New Salon this year of paintings of steam engines and automobiles, and remarks that next year will doubtless bring us pictures of airships.

No need to go abroad to secure art in ceramics. Many of the recently produced American art pottery pieces are artistic in the extreme, possessing body colorings of exquisite beauty and blending.

The Greek archaeological committee has decided to restore the Erechtheion. The greater part of the famous ruin on the Acropolis is still standing, and the fragments necessary for its complete reconstruction are all lying around.

Prof. Halsey C. Ives has secured promises of the loan of paintings, particularly miniatures made many years ago, some in the early history of Louisiana, from wealthy planters of St. Louis, to be exhibited at the St. Louis exposition.

Mr. Macbeth, one of the most prominent art dealers in the country, says that well-selected American pictures have been profitable investment, while, on the other hand, the average foreign picture, as a dividend earner, has proved a snare and a delusion. Outside the work of the Barbizon school, he says, it is hard to think of any modern artists whose pictures are not, commercially, worth much less than ten years ago.

A DOUBLE BLESSING.

Forgiveness of Sins and Bestowal of Temporal Blessings.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher on the Cleansing and Healing of the Man Sick with the Palsy.

[Copyright, 1902, by A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.]

Chicago, June 1.

Text: "Whether is easier, to say: 'Thy sins be forgiven thee,' or to say: 'Rise up and walk?' But that ye may know that the Son of Man hath power upon earth to forgive sins (He said unto the sick of the palsy), I say unto thee: 'Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house.' And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God."—Luke 5:23-25.

Take your Bible and read the beautiful and stirring story of the healing of the man sick with the palsy, as recorded by Luke, in the fifth chapter of his gospel, from the seventeenth to the twenty-sixth verse. Jesus has returned to Capernaum, the center of some of His mightiest works. Immediately the news of His coming is noised abroad. The sixteenth verse tells us that just previous to this He had withdrawn himself to the wilderness, there to commune in secret with the Father and obtain from Him the strength and refreshing that was necessary to the carrying out of His great mission. He has been missed. On a previous Sabbath day He had cast out the devil from a man in the synagogue, had healed Peter's wife's mother, and had spent the closing hours of the busy day in laying His hand on all who were brought to Him sick with divers diseases and healing them.

And now, on His return, those in need flock to this great Healer and Teacher and later go away and say: "We have seen strange things today." Blessedly strange because He gave no differently from the way in which the world gave, and spake as never man spake before. And it is ever thus. Where Jesus is in manifest power there are strange things wrought, and souls are blest. But the critics of our Lord were there, Pharisees and doctors of the law. You will always find them where the Lord is at work. There, to hinder and not to help. There, not to glorify God for His mighty works, but to criticise the manner in which the work is done. The Lord's methods did not quite fit into the cold formulism, and ritualism, and traditionalism of the leaders of the Jews. Nor can church, or denomination, or creed, or ritualism, or fanaticism, or conservatism dictate to-day the times and seasons of God's visitation, or monopolize the ways and channels through which the Holy Spirit shall operate.

The power of the Lord was present to heal them, and they came. From all over that thriving, bustling city of Capernaum the people gathered until the court of the house where the Lord was became crowded, and the street without was filled with the eager throng. Behind the rest, because hindered by the burden they were carrying, came the men bearing the bedridden paralytic. Could we have been there, we might have overheard him wearily protesting to those who were bearing him that the crowd was blocking the way, and he would never be able to see Jesus, and so they had better carry him back home. But no, they knew that hope lay ahead, and that faith would find a way. Ah, loyal, persistent friends, what an example they have been throughout the centuries to those who are laboring to bring some friend to Christ. There is always some way of getting them into the presence of Jesus, even if all formality has to be cast to the winds and the frown of the modern Pharisees and doctors of the law has to be faced. To the roof they go with their helpless burden, and their eager hands soon have the tilings thrown to one side and a way made to the presence of Jesus.

It is always possible to get into the presence of Jesus, but it is not always easy. Sometimes the people are between you and Jesus. You know you ought to come. The convicting power of God has wrought in your heart and convinced you that you need to see Jesus, but you hesitate. The people are between you and Jesus. You have not the courage of your convictions to pass them. You cannot endure their gaze, and their sneer, perhaps, or their chaffing. The crowd got between Jesus and Zacheus, but he needs must see Jesus, and he climbed up into the sycamine tree and that day became the butt for all the rude jokes of the passing, motley throng, but he saw Jesus, and the Lord went and took dinner with him, and declared before He left that salvation had come to Zacheus' house. That was blessed reward for all the humiliation of the sycamine tree. Yours may be a like experience if you will put aside pride and endure the trial of the effort to see Jesus. You may have to climb to the roof and become a gazing stock for the world, you may have to tear away the tiles of prejudice and preconceived notions, but you can see Jesus if you only will.

As the swinging couch was lowered into the midst of that astonished and dignified company, Jesus looked up and, instead of a rebuke which the Jewish teachers would have had Him deliver, His encouraging smile greets the men standing upon the roof, and Scripture declares that He saw their faith. How quick He is to catch the faintest heart throb of faith towards Him. The tip of the woman's finger on the hem of His garment as He passed along the highway was enough to obtain from Him the blessing sought.

And seeing their faith He turned His gaze upon the poor paralytic now lying before Him, thanks to their faithfulness, and said unto him, "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee." Ah, how these words of Jesus throw new light into the picture of this man's need, and we realize that He sees not as man seeth. The straining eyes of the pressing throng in the courtyard and the doorway see only a poor paralytic needing healing. Jesus looks deeper and searching the depths of the human heart sees sin there and need of cleansing. The man is conscious of but one need. He desires above everything else strength in his wasted limbs and new vigor in his nerve centers. His thought is centered in this life and all hope is bound up in the sum of the years he may live this side the grave. But the words of Jesus awaken within him a new sense of need, and the way is paved for a double blessing.

This double blessing is that to which Jesus referred when He said: "Seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." The paralytic as he is being borne to the presence of Jesus realizes but one need and has but one supreme desire, that of physical and temporary blessing, but when face to face with Jesus he becomes conscious of a greater need, that of cleansing from sin.

Face to face with Jesus. It is a heart-searching position to be in. No trying to make the dark places in the hidden recesses of the heart look clean and presentable. Then is borne in upon the soul that declaration of God's Word that the "Heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked, who can know it." Yea, who can know it but God? Who can fathom its depths of iniquity but the searching eye of the omnipotent God? When Peter came face to face with Jesus on that morning after the weary night of toil with his partners and had taken nothing, and launched out into the deep at the bidding of Jesus and let down the net, and the miraculous draught of fishes almost brake the nets, the first thing he became conscious of, as he realized he was in the presence of the Son of God, was that he was a sinful man. In the agony of his lost condition, he cries out: "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord." And when a soul gets into that broken condition, then is when Jesus does not depart, but comes very near and with the loving touch of His nail-pierced hands covers the sin spots and wipes them out forever.

Jacob, the usurper, with the black stain of the lie still fresh upon his lips, comes to Bethel, as he flees from the murderous wrath of his brother. When he wakes in the morning after the visit of God to him in that wonderful vision he exclaims: "How dreadful is this place!" Yes, it is a dreadful place to come into the presence of God. There is where the hidden sins of the heart begin to parade themselves. Ah, what an array of them there are. Sins unknown to our best friends, and which we have hidden away from mortal eyes; but the penetrating eye of the all-seeing God searches them out. He knows they are there. You cannot escape Him.

As John the Baptist prepared the way for the coming of Jesus what was the burden of his message? "Repent ye." The Jewish nation was watching for and expecting a king, but it first needed a Saviour from sin. They are going to have a King some day, blessed be the faithfulness of God, and He will be "this same Jesus which is taken up from you into Heaven." But like multitudes in the world to-day, they were seeking "all these things" instead of the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and lost everything. Jesus began His ministry with the same message: "Repent ye." And "Repent ye" is the message that is needed in the world to-day. Face to face with Jesus brings agony of soul, but it leaves behind the blessing which sends one forth, like the paralytic, glorifying and praising the Lord.

Friend, have you been face to face with Jesus?

The man of our text was brought to Jesus seeking deliverance from palsy of the body. Jesus gave him first deliverance from palsy of the soul. Notice the implication in the words of the text: "Whether is easier to say: 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say: 'Rise up and walk?'" A question of the greater power required in forgiveness of sin or in the healing of the body. One held up against the other in contrast. "But that ye may know that the Son of Man hath power upon earth to forgive sins (He said unto the sick of the palsy), I say unto thee, 'arise.'" How patient the Lord is with us in our unbelief. He leads us step by step from the seen to the unseen, from the material to the spiritual, not willing that one should perish, but that all should come unto the knowledge of the truth. "And immediately he rose up." And as the gathered multitude opens up a passageway to the street and sees the man go back to his home glorifying God, it knows a mighty miracle has been wrought, and yet a mightier and more glorious miracle had been enacted but a moment before, which was just as immediate in its accomplishment. The instant the heart of that sin-scarred man reached out after Jesus and the Lord spoke the words: "Man, thy sins are forgiven thee," that soul had passed from death unto life. A transformation scene had taken place in the presence of the Father, the God of the universe, and the man's record in the judgment book of Heaven was blotted out for ever, a clean page was turned for him, and at its head was written the name of Jesus, and with that name written on the fleshy tables of his heart, that man had an open sesame to Heaven and its glories. A captive was delivered from the prison house of sin and the power of Satan.

The crowd that day saw and realized only the healing, and since that day the majority of those who have read the record of this wonderful incident have marveled at the raising to his feet of the paralytic, and have passed lightly over the cleansing from sin of this man, and thus they have lost the very heart of the matter and its deepest lesson. It has come to be known as the healing of the man sick with the palsy, when it ought to be entitled, The miracle of the cleansing from sin of the man sick of the palsy.

A palsied soul is a more awful and deadly condition than a palsied body. The sum of the years of this life are soon passed, and the palsied body is left behind, but the palsied soul, insensate from sin and selfishness, passes on beyond the grave, into the presence of the One who could have given life, but where the potency of the cross to that soul is then lost forever, for "he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God."

You may not realize your condition. Only God can show it to you. He will if you will but let His Spirit have entrance to your heart, where hidden sins lie, for "When He the Spirit is come He will convince the world of sin, and of righteousness and of judgment." David, with his kingly robes about him and the elegance and ease of his magnificent palace, with his votaries about him to please and flatter him, and lull his conscience to sleep, almost forgot the awful sins that lay hidden in the depths of his heart. But when Nathan, the prophet, came, and by his little parable resurrected all the awful record and exclaimed: "Thou art the man," David began to realize the exceeding sinfulness of sin. But instead of trying to excuse himself, or instead of becoming angry and turning from God's messenger, we find David crushed to the ground before the Lord with the consciousness of his guilt. His cry is now: "Against Thee, Thee only, have I sinned and done this evil in Thy sight." In the fifty-first Psalm David has recorded his heart-searching experience before the Lord, and has shown guilty sinners the way to forgiveness and salvation.

And what more wonderful miracle can you find anywhere recorded in God's word than here in the case of David, who comes a murderer, an adulterer, a thief, and throwing himself at the feet of his Savior as a penitent, he is raised up, a redeemed soul cleansed whiter than snow.

Yes, when we get over on the other side and mingle with the hosts of the redeemed and meet the paralytic and the lepers, and the multitudes of others who felt the healing touch of the Savior's hands, we will not marvel so much at the healing of the body as the saving of the soul. And I do not believe we will hear them going about telling of their wonderful cures, but they will have their whole thought centered in the Christ, and will sing a new song, saying: "Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation."

The greatest miracle, the greatest blessing that came to the paralytic of our text was his cleansing from sin. The secondary blessing was the supplying of his bodily needs. This is the way God always works. As he left the presence of Jesus and passed along the street with springing step and joyful tongue, the sky seemed bluer, the birds sang sweeter, the very air vibrated with the blessed presence of God. See him as he enters his home. The astounded wife and wondering children gather about him and hear his wonderful story. While he is yet talking a strange sadness flits over her face and a dread strikes into her heart. Will he go back to his old life of sin? Will the blessing be but fleeting? She recalls the successive steps by which he had been reduced to the helpless condition in which Jesus found him. She realizes that he has been restored to health by the merciful hand of God, but will it only be for a season? And while she is pondering these things in her heart, he begins to tell her of the greater blessing which has come to him. As he realizes the sinfulness of his life, with the tears streaming down his face, he tells her that the Lord has forgiven him his sins and will she, too, forgive him for the grief he has caused her. Then the joy of the new-found hope begins to creep into her heart, her face begins to lighten up and she knows that her husband is a changed man inside and out, and that the old sinful life that had filled his body with the deadly palsy has no longer power over him. Delivered! Delivered from the power of Satan. Oh, what joy in that home that day. Oh, what joy comes into every home when Jesus gets into the hearts of those who dwell there. Everything runs smoother, work becomes a pleasure and weariness makes the heart rejoice that it belongs to the Saviour, who said: "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls." A double blessing. Yea, verily, with the cleansing from sin, comes not another blessing, but a perfect stream of blessings which in ever-broadening measure flow through this life to the very gate of Heaven.

LOST JURISDICTION.

The Fence Broke Down Under Judicial Weight and Changed the Law's Mandate.

Some of the supreme court justices have an inexhaustible fund of humor, and they frequently intersperse funny anecdotes with their solemn deliberations, once they are inside the sacred domain of their private session chambers, affirms the Washington Star. Justice Brewer is one of the most inimitable story tellers among them, and he told one the other day that amused his colleagues immensely. Out in Indiana, he said, there was a justice of the peace who owned a farm. One line of his fence formed the boundary of the states of Indiana and Ohio. Like others in rural districts who hold that office he had an abnormal appreciation of the responsibility of the office, and never lost an opportunity to exercise his prerogative of demanding that the peace be preserved. One day his son and his hired man got to fighting on a stretch of the farm near the boundary line fence, and the justice of the peace rushed out and mounted the fence. Then, with head cocked high and the air of one who has but to command, he shouted: "In the name of the state of Indiana, I demand the preservation of the peace!" Just then the fence gave way under his weight, and as he went down with the fence topping over to the Ohio side he shouted to his son: "Give him the mischief, Jim; I've lost my jurisdiction!"

I became weak and dizzy but kept on my feet, dragging through my work without life or pleasure. A neighbor who had been helped by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound insisted that I take at least one bottle. I did so and felt so much better that I kept on the treatment. For seven months I used the Compound faithfully and gladly do I say it, health and strength are mine once more. I know how to value it now when it was so nearly lost, and I appreciate how great a debt I owe you. The few dollars I spent for the medicine cannot begin to pay what it was worth to me. Yours very truly, MRS. ANNA MCKAY, Chaplain Sons of Temperance."

Bolte-Geiger Nuptials.

Wednesday, May 28th, 1902, a bright, sunny morning, was the happy day when Mr. Bernard Bolte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bolte, of Erlanger, led to the altars of the New St. Henry Church, Miss Mamie Geiger, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Geiger, of Erlanger, to be united in solemn wedlock by Rev. B. J. Kolb, pastor, according to the rites of the Catholic Church. Punctually at 9 a. m., the bells of the church announced the arrival of the bridal party and attendants, who quickly formed in line of procession, and while the little organ pealed out a solemn wedding march, advanced slowly to the handsomely decorated altars, where the vested priest and altar boys were in waiting to begin the solemn ceremonies. First in procession came the six attendants as follows: Mr. Frank Bolte with Miss Josephine Bokelo; Mr. Charles Geiger with Miss Gertrude Bolte, then Mr. Geo. Bolte with Miss Edna Geiger, who acted as best man and maid of honor. Finally came the bride and groom. She was a handsome figure dressed in white silk with long, flowing trail, holding in her hand a bouquet of the purest lillies. The groom wore a neat black dress suit. After the ceremonies and the High Mass were over the bridal party and attendants were taken in carriages to the beautiful home of the bride's parents, where a most hospitable breakfast was served to the many invited guests. Reception was held at 5 p. m. There was music and dancing and general happy entertainment of friends after 8 p. m.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents which for the want of space mention has to be omitted.

Regular services at the Baptist church in Burlington next Sunday morning and evening.

Remember the Boone County Sunday School Convention meets with the Bullittsburg church, Thursday, June the 12th.

Rev. J. L. Sproles has succeeded in buying and paying for organs for the Missions at Petersburg, Woolper Creek and Gunpowder.

Revival services will commence at Gunpowder church next Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. S. M. Adams and J. L. Sproles.

Baptismal services at Forks of Gunpowder next Sunday promptly at 3 p. m., sun time. After baptism Sunday school and preaching at Gunpowder church.

On the night preceding the meeting of the Boone county Sunday School Convention at Bullittsburg, Rev. C. A. Earl, of Latonia Baptist church, will preach at 7:30 o'clock. On the night of the convention Rev. Miller, of Covington will preach.

The District Convention of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions will be held at Bullittsville church, Saturday, June 14th, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m.,—all day session, basket dinner. Every one invited, especially those interested in missionary work.

Rev. J. F. Carney will preach his farewell sermon at Burlington Universalist church on the 1st Sunday in July. There will be a basket meeting at the church after the morning sermon, and preaching again at 2 p. m. The pastor hopes to meet his many Boone county friends at these services.

All members of Bullittsburg church, including Missions at Petersburg and Woolper Creek, are requested to help entertain the Boone Co. S. S. Convention, June 12th. Any families in the neighborhood, not members of this church, desiring to help are assured that their assistance will be appreciated.

Master Commissioner Duncan sold lands Monday in the following cases: Kate B. Rice vs John R. Johnson, 92 acres to defendant, $1,640; Hattie Wohlgemuth, &c., on petition, lot in Walton, to Mrs. DeJarnette, $710; S. W. Tolin vs Wade H. Tolin, 10 acres to A. B. Rouse, $430; Freiburg & Workum vs John J. Smith, &c., lot in Petersburg, to plaintiff, $330 20; Erastus Stephens vs B. F. Adams, 40 acres to D. E. Castleman, $1,165; Walton B'd'g Association vs Kate M. Noell, 2 acres, E. S. West, $780.

The first meeting of the Sunday School Convention of the North Bend Association, met last Friday with the Bellevue Baptist church. The following Sunday Schools were represented: Burlington, Bullittsburg, Bellevue, Big Bone, Beaver Lick, Bank Lick, Erlanger, East Bend, Florence, Fairview, Gunpowder, Ludlow, Latonia, Madison Avenue (Covington), Sand Run, Union, Visalia, Woolper and Walton, with 1,220 pupils enrolled. Pupils converted and brought into the church, 44. At the roll call of delegates, 25 responded to their names. The following, on the program, delivered speeches: Rev. C. A. Earl, T. Z. Roberts, Revs. E. A. Burks, A. Logan Vickers, W. S. Taylor, Hon. N. S. Walton. Many visitors were present. The speeches were fine, the entertainment was royal—in true Kentucky style of hospitality. The next session of the convention will be held with the Beaver Lick Baptist church, Friday, Aug. 5th. The convention adopted the following:

The Sunday School Convention of the North Bend Association, assembled in Bellevue Baptist church, May 30th, desire to express their sorrow at the loss of Rev. C. G. Jones from our number and the work. We miss his presence, counsel and wisdom in our meetings. Who will the Lord give us to take his place?

John Furlong, of Covington, was the guest of his sisters, Sunday.

H. D. Arnold, of Bellevue and John Weindel, of Petersburg, were in town Saturday.

Miss Edna Riley, of Bullittsville, visited Miss Mabel Kirtley a few days last week.

Misses Nannie Bristow and Lillian Corbin, of Union, were in town Monday and sold several cook books.

Wm. Gibson, of Rising Sun; R. P. Rice and Ben Snyder, of Florence; and Eston Snyder, of Bullittsville, harvesting machine men, were busy selling binders, Monday.

Robert Wood, of Gallatin county, candidate for Commonwealth's attorney, was mixing with the voters here Monday, making new acquaintances and political friends.

C. C. Hume, of Mudlick had three nice hogs to die a few nights since. He thinks they were killed by some unprincipled person, and he has a good idea as to the guilty party. The hogs were in good health.

Special Commissioner Keefer of Covington made a $1,700 sale of real estate at the court house door, Monday.

R. Y. Randall and grandchildren take this means of thanking their neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown them in their late bereavement.

Business of importance will be before Burlington Lodge K. of P. No. 109, Thursday, June 5th, 1902. All members are requested to be present.

A. BENTLER, C. C.

Asa McMullen and wife entertained a large crowd of young people most handsomely last Saturday night, at their home near Gunpowder. It was about midnight when the young people bid their host and hostess adieu, hoping to spend another evening with them in the near future.

Happy Time in Old Town.

"We felt very happy," writes R. N. Revill, Old Town, Va., "when Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured our daughter of a bad case of scald head." It delights all who use it for Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Boils, Ulcers, Eruptions. Infallible for piles. Only 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

Our friend, C. C. Coleman, native of Burlington, has been pulling down more political honors in Kansas, now being the Republican nominee for Attorney General of that State. The Topeka Daily Capital of the 30th ult. says: "C. C. Coleman, of Clay Center, is a Kentuckian by birth, but a Kansan through early choice and adoption. He received a thorough education in the former state and is naturally a student of the best kind. He was admitted to the bar twenty-two years ago and finally took a commanding position before all the courts of the Fifth Congressional district. As a counsellor he is deliberate, discreet and sure. As a trial lawyer he is bold, aggressive and full of resources. As an advocate he is clear, logical and convincing. Juries believe him, courts rely upon him, and clients are always sure he has done his best. He is a church man of exemplary habits."

Sheriff Allphin was around, last Saturday morning, calling on those who subscribed money to have the traction route surveyed through this county. He stated that condemnation proceedings would be instituted at an early date against the land owners over whose land the route as surveyed passes, and who refuse to give the right of way. He is confident that work on the road will begin in a very few months, and that the traction cars will be running from Milton to Covington in a surprisingly short time.

Last Wednesday evening J. C. Revill found in his lot, about 50 yards from his residence, his coat, pants and undergarment which the burglars carried off upon the recent visit they paid him. The papers, letters and the like, that were in his pockets, were scattered near the clothing, but the pocket knife and keys were not found. In one leg of the pants a hole had been burnt evidently by a match which the thieves used in their investigation of the papers. Among the keys taken is one that belonged to the front door of the bank building.

Saved from An Awful Fate.

"Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

The people of the neighborhoods bordering on both sides of the river from the mouth of Woolper creek down to the mouth of Big Bone, are considerably worked up on account of a band of hard looking characters that appear at short intervals in these neighborhoods, presumably for the purpose of committing robbery and other depredations, and the vigilance on the part of the people along the river has, so far, prevented the members of this band of suspects from putting into execution any of their evil designs. It is said that the strangers will congregate at a point, and as soon as they discover that their presence is known, the crowd will disband, each member traveling alone to the next point selected for a rendezvous. It is very plain from the action of this band, which is composed of white, and black men, that its presence in a community bodes no good, and if it can be dispursed no other way, the citizens ought to organize and take their shot guns and hunt down these strangers like they would objectionable wild animals.

Of Prof. Chas. Gardner's Musical Recital, on Wednesday night of last week, the Aurora Oracle says: "The honors were pretty generally distributed. The voice numbers were shared by Miss Gaines, of Burlington, Ky., and Miss Cobb, of this city, both possessing rare voices which showed evidences of careful cultivation. The instrumental selections were warmly encored and certainly reflected great credit on the performers and their instructor. Miss Ferris, a dainty little Miss of Cincinnati, was repeatedly encored, as was also Miss Eirich and Miss Held, of this city and Miss Riddell, of Burlington, Ky."

Virulent Cancer Cured.

Startling proof of a wonderful advance in medicine is given by druggists G. W. Roberts of Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there had long suffered with what good doctors pronounced incurable cancer. They believed his case hopeless till he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which treatment completely cured him. When Electric Bitters are used to expel bilious kidney and microbe poisons at the same time this salve exerts its matchless healing power, blood diseases, skin eruptions, ulcers and sores vanish. Bitters 50c, Salve 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

A great many Boone county Democrats remember Ollie M. James, the bald headed orator of great physical dimensions, who made a speech at several places in the county during the last gubernatorial campaign. He made a race for the Democratic nomination for Congress in his district, and at the primary election held a few days ago of about 1,500 votes polled in his county he got all but eight, a wonderful endorsement on the part of his people. He made a great race throughout the entire district. When people among whom a man was raised give him that kind of an endorsement, that he must be worthy of the honor there can be no question.

There has been almost a reign of terror in the Union neighborhood for the week last past on account of the prevalence of the hydrophobia among the canine inhabitants. A month or more since a dog belonging to Henry Ross, who lives on Gunpowder, developed hydrophobia, and it turns out it bit several dogs in the neighborhood, and last week several showed unmistakable signs of hydrophobia. One of Esq. M. C. Norman's boys had a pack of 4 handsome hounds, which he valued very highly, and one of them went mad, and chewed up the other three, and young Norman killed the entire pack. It is feared that many dogs and considerable stock has been bitten, and the instant a dog in that neighborhood behaves the least out of the usual it is killed, which is a very safe plan.

The private school which Mrs. F. E. Kirtley opened in this place last September, closed on the 23rd. ult., having had an enrolment of about 40 pupils. Mrs. Kirtley tells us that her pupils did better and more thorough work during this year than in any previous year of her work in this place. One evidence of the fact is, that four of the older pupils, Virginia Blyth, Sadie Crisler, Mabel Vest, and Frank McMullen, successfully passed the teacher's examination held last month, two younger than these, Estella Huey and Erma Gaines, having triumphantly passed the common school Graduate examination. (These two young ladies were by mistake, last week reported as belonging to districts No. 4 and 6 instead of No. 1.)

Last year Mrs. Kirtley had the honor of sending forth more common school graduates than any other teacher in the county, and so far has a greater number than any other teacher for the present year. Mrs. Kirtley informs us, however, that the honor for thorough successful work does not belong alone to the older pupils, for many of the younger children worked as zealously and deserve as much credit in perseverance and diligence as do the older pupils.

IS AGAIN IN ERUPTION.

Black Smoke Pouring Forth From Mont Pelee.

Great Quantities of Volcanic Dust Fell on the British Steamer Savan While Passing Martinique Island.

Roseau, Island of Dominica, May 29.—The British steamer Savan, from London for Barbadoes and West Indian ports, has arrived here. She passed Mont Pelee, Island of Martinique, at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, when a thick, black smoke was arising from the volcano and the officers of the Savan believed from the great quantity of dust which fell on the steamer that another eruption had occurred.

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, May 29.—A tremendous explosion of very black smoke from Mont Pelee at a quarter before 9 o'clock Wednesday morning accentuated the fear entertained for the safety of Geo. Kennan, the American author, who, with a land party, has been examining the northern part of the island. The governor of Martinique, M. L'Huerre, was at once seen with the object of arranging a rescue party to proceed by land in connection with the voyage along the coast of the United States cruiser Cincinnati, should such steps appear necessary.

At about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning Fernand Clero, a wealthy land proprietor of Martinique, arrived here and announced that Mr. Kennan and his party were safe on a plantation at the north of the island.

Prof. Robert T. Hill, United States government geologist and head of the expedition sent to Martinique by the Nation Geographical society, who left Fort De France Monday on horseback for the volcano, returned here Wednesday morning. He was completely worn out by the trip.

RABBI HIRSCH'S SPEECH.

It is Condemned By An Organization of Hebrews.

New York, May 29.—The association for the stricter observance of the Sabbath, an organization of Hebrews, held a meeting Wednesday night and discussed the observance of the Hebrew Sabbath. Among the speakers were Benjamin Blumenthal, of the board of education; Dr. Rudolph Grossman, Congressman Goldfogle, Mr. Bernard Brachman and Albert Lucas.

The association passed a resolution condemning a recent speech of Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch, of Chicago, in which he said he believed the time had come for the Hebrew Sabbath to be transferred to the Christian Sunday.

STILL FIGHTING.

Commandant Malon Mortally Wounded on the Repon Road.

Middleburg, Transvaal, May 29.—Maj. Collett, with a detachment of the mounted troops of this district, encountered a force of Boers on the Repon road May 27. The engagement which followed lasted for a long time; the enemy finally drawing off, leaving behind them on the field Commandant Malon, who was said to be mortally wounded.

An armored train engaged the same party of Boers the evening of May 27, but no details of the latter engagement are at hand.

Rev. Dr. B. M. Palmer Dead.

New Orleans, May 29.—Rev. Dr. B. M. Palmer, the noted Presbyterian minister, died here Wednesday afternoon from the effects of injuries received by being struck by a street car in this city on May 5. He was 84 years old and on account of his advanced age was not able to recover after the severe shock of the accident.

London, May 29.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail says that at the consistory to be held June 9 the pope will nominate Archbishop Keane, of Dubuque, Ia., to succeed the late Archbishop Corrigan, of New York.

GEN. WOOD AND STAFF.

They Paid Their Respects to Secretary Root and Other Officials.

Washington, May 30.—Gen. Wood and his entire staff and Col. S. M. Whiteside, 10th cavalry, and his staff, all of whom have just returned from Cuba, paid their respects to Secretary Root and other officials at the war department Thursday. A question that confronts the war department is what provision, if any, shall be made for the force of Americans employed in Cuba, in civilian capacities during the military occupation of the island. Those are including whose services practically ended with the withdrawal of the American forces. There were about 600 of these employes, about half of whom were clerks, customs inspectors, etc., the other half being employed in a more subordinate capacity, such as teamsters, etc. It is probable that the services of about 30 clerks will be needed by Gen. Wood in winding up the affairs of his administration. What shall be done for the remainder has not yet been determined.

ARMY IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The Effective Strength Will Be Reduced to Less Than 25,000.

Washington, May 30.—It is said at the war department that the departure of the Hancock and Sherman from Manila with the 9th and 19th regiments of infantry, reduces the army in the Philippines to less than 28,000 men, and that within the next few months the strength of the effective military force in the archipelago will be still further reduced to less than 25,000 by the withdrawal of the 13th, 16th, 24th and 25th regiments of infantry and part of the 3d regiment of cavalry, under orders to return to the United States. Special interest attaches to the return home of the "Fighting 9th" because of the fine achievements of that regiment in China and the Philippines, in both of which countries it saw the hottest kind of active service on the firing line.

BORACIC ACID.

Oranges, Lemons and Other Tropical Fruits Full of It.

Berlin, May 30.—Prof. Edmund Von Lipmann, in the Chemiker Zeitung, Thursday gives the results of his analyals of oranges, lemons and other tropical fruits, showing that they all contain surprising quantities of boracic acid. The Chemiker Zeitung adds:

Experts are asking with astonishment how it is possible that the universal consumption of these fruits, containing such quantities of boracic acid, could be regarded by everybody, without exception, as highly beneficial to health, if in reality, boracic acid is necessarily injurious, as the imperial health office persuaded the bundesrath.

RUBBER BALLOONS.

They Are Used For Recording Phenomena In the Highest Altitudes.

Berlin, May 30.—One of the most interesting demonstrations of the international aeronaut commission, in session here last week, was that of Prof. Assman's rubber ballons, with automatic registers, for recording phenomena in the highest altitudes, where they finally explode through gas pressure. After the explosion a parachute safely lands the apparatus. The professor sent up three balloons May 22, in the presence of the commission, the apparatus of two of which was found. One of the balloons registered an altitude of 20,000 metres, the highest attained by a balloon. The temperature was 80 degrees Fahrenheit, below zero.

SNOWFALL IN THE EAST.

The Fruit and Early Vegetables Damaged By the Cold Weather.

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., May 30.—After a rainfall lasting 48 consecutive hours in this vicinity the weather turned very cold. Thursday it was learned that there was a snowfall during the night in West Hoosick and the surrounding country and the adjacent mountains were covered with snow. Lower Vermont and Western Massachusetts were visited by snow, causing damage to fruit and early vegetation.

CARRIED A CONFEDERATE FLAG.

G. A. R. Men Drop Out of a Parade in Honor of Fitzhugh Lee.

Birmingham, Ala., May 30.—The members of the local post, Grand Army of the Republic, dropped out of the parade in honor of Gen. Fitzhugh Lee Thursday because a confederate flag was being carried by one of the color bearers. There were probably 35 union veterans in the parade and these in a body left the ranks, giving as their reason that the ritual of the G. A. R. states that no representative of the G. A. R. shall march in a procession or parade in which there is a confederate flag unfurled.

Sixteen Buildings Burned.

Williamsport, Pa., May 30.—A conflagration which raged for two hours Thursday afternoon in the town of Jersey Shore, destroyed 16 buildings in the business portion of the town and caused a loss of $30,000 before it was brought under control.

One Killed and Others Injured.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 30.—In a collision Thursday at Alma, Wis., between two gravel trains on the Burlington road, one man was killed, one was fatally injured and three others received serious injuries.

BLUE AND GRAY ALIKE.

The Graves of Veterans in Arlington Decorated.

A Memorial Bust of the Late President William McKinley Was Unveiled With Appropriate Ceremonies in Philadelphia.

Washington, May 31.—Decoration day was observed here perhaps more generally than ever before. The announcement that President Roosevelt would deliver an oration at Arlington brought to that historic city of the dead a vast concourse of people, among whom were numbered thousands of veterans who journeyed to the cemetery to honor the memory of their comrades who had died in their country's cause, or who, having survived the struggles of 1861 and 1898, had passed since into the great unknown. The local arrangements were in charge of the department of the Potomac, and included a parade of all the G. A. R. and other patriotic organizations, the decoration of monuments and graves, and addresses by men prominent in the affairs of the government. At Arlington, where the principal exercises were held, a national salute was fired at 12 o'clock by the 4th battery, United States field artillery. Music was rendered by the marine band and by the memorial choir. Upon arriving at Arlington, the procession marched to the tomb of the unknown. During the decoration of the tomb, by the special committee chosen from the different G. A. R. organizations and auxillary societies, the marine band played an appropriate selection. A touching feature of the work of decoration was the strewing of flowers over the graves of the confederate dead who lie buried in a section of the cemetery. In the meantime a vast crowd had assembled at the amphitheater, where the services were conducted. Immediately after the memorial exercises at the amphitheater the monument erected to the memory of Col. Edgar O'Connor, of the 2d Wisconsin regiment, was unveiled in the presence of a number of his comrades. The address of the occasion was delivered by Representative John J. Jenkins, of Wisconsin.

Philadelphia, May 31.—The feature of the Decoration day exercises in this city was the unveiling of the memorial bronze bust and pedestal erected to the memory of President McKinley by the Philadelphia letter carriers and post office employes.

AT GETTYSBURG.

Unusual Throng of People Engaged in Memorial Exercises.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 31.—Delightful weather brought an unusal throng of people to Gettysburg to participate in the memorial day exercises. At 2 o'clock the parade under Hon. Theo. M. McAllister as marshal moved to the National cemetery. The children of the public schools headed the line and the grand army veterans brought up the rear. At the National cemetery the usual ceremonies of the Grand Army of the Republic were observed, after which the graves were strewn with flowers by the children and the veterans. At the rostrum Rev. D. W. Woods, of Gettysburg, opened the exercises with prayer, an original poem was read by J. Grimn Hall, of Baltimore, and the oration was delivered by Hon. W. D. Foulke, of Washington, D. C. The ceremonies concluded with a benediction by Rev. M. Coover, of Gettysburg.

WRECK OF THE MAINE.

Decorated With Flowers and Flags By the Cubans.

Havana, May 31.—When the people of Havana awoke Friday morning they saw on the wreck of the Maine the evidence of thoughtfulness and appreciation on the part of President Palma, who ordered that the wreck, which stands as a monument for more than 200 brave Americans, be appropriately decorated to commemorate the day. American and Cuban flags, garlands of roses, and wreaths constituted the decorations, and memorial services were held in several of the American churches.

AT GRANT'S TOMB.

Memorial Services Were Held in the Presence of 5,000 People.

New York, May 31.—Memorial services were held in the afternoon at Grant's tomb in the presence of 5,000 people. The exercises were conducted by United shrdlu Stagin un ited by U. S. Grant post of Brooklyn, "America" was sung and Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read. Judge Thomas M. Jones, of the United States district court of Alabama, then was introduced and delivered the oration.

President Roosevelt sent a wreath of roses, and the Chinese minister, Wu Ting Fang, a bed of roses.

Surpassed His Own Record.

New York, May 31.—At the games of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association at Celtic park, M. J. Sheridan, of the Pastime Athletic club, of New York, surpassed his own world's record with a throw of the discus of 125 feet 3 inches.

Ambassador Pauncefote's Successor.

London, May 31.—Hon. Michael Henry Herbert, who is nominally secretary of the British embassy at Paris, will probably be the next British ambassador to the United States, in succession to the late Lord Pauncefote.

QUARANTINE POSTPONED.

It Will Not Become Effective For Several Days.

Louisville, Ky., May 31.—As the result of a conference between the Indiana and Kentucky state boards of health the Kentucky board agreed to postpone the quarantine order, which was to become effective June 1 for ten days from Friday.

A formal statement suspending the quarantine declares that Gov. Durbin will provide funds to enable the Indiana health authorities to stamp out the disease.

Vice President W. N. Wishard and Secretary J. N. Hurty, of the Indiana board, assured the Kentucky board that prompt action would be taken.

JUNIOR VARSITY BOAT RACE.

University of Pennsylvania Defeated Columbia and Cornell.

Philadelphia, May 31.—The University of Pennsylvania won the junior varsity boat race from Columbia and Cornell on the national course on the Schuylkill river in Fairmount park. Columbia was two lengths behind Pennsylvania at the finish and Cornell was five lengths to the rear of Columbia. The course was one and a half miles straight away and Pennsylvania's time was 8:42. Considering the conditions the race was a good one. A strong wind blew directly up the course, which made the water choppy. Large crowds lined both shores and there was much enthusiasm over the home crew carrying its colors to victory.

THE GOLIAD TORNADO.

The List of Dead Now Numbers 141, and Others Will Die.

San Antonio, Tex., May 31.—The death list at Goliad as a result of the tornado on May 18 continues to grow. Two more leading citizens succumbed to their injuries Friday. W. H. Maddox and David Mathis, both prominent in business circles, are dead, making a total of 141 dead up to this time. Maddox's three children were killed on the night of the storm and his wife died several days ago. Miss Rubens Mathis is reported dying. It is believed that the death list will reach 150, as there are a number whose condition is almost beyond hope.

FIRE ON A RACE TRACK.

One Man Killed and Several Others Severely Injured.

Chicago, May 31.—The paddock and betting ring at the Hawthorne race track was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $100,000.

One man was killed during the fire and several men badly, though not fatally, injured. The man who was killed was a hanger-on at the track and was known as "Chicken Peto" Rush. He, with some others, was watching the fire from the roof of the engine house which, unknown to them, was on fire. The roof suddenly caved in and Rush was burned to death. The other men saved themselves by jumping.

AERONAUT KILLED.

Lost His Hold on the Parachute and Fell About 800 Feet.

Kingston, N. Y., May 31.—Harry Hicks, an aeronaut, was killed at Kingston Point, a summer resort. He had been engaged to make daily balloon ascensions, and the ship was hooked for his first exhibition. When the balloon had reached an altitude of about 2,000 feet, Hicks commenced the descent by means of a parachute, going slowly to about 800 feet above the Hudson river. For some reason he lost his hold and fell, striking head-first on a sandbar in the river. Hicks was a nephew of Charles Kabrick, well known as a balloonist.

MONT TRABOCHETTE.

Continual Slight Tremors of the Earth Are Felt.

London, May 31.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Milan, Italy, reports that the cattle have ceased to graze on the slopes of Mont Trabochette, between Nice and Genoa, owing to the sulphurous exhalations from the mountain. Continual slight tremors of the earth are felt and these are supposed to be connected with the recent volcanic eruptions in the Antilles.

Statue of McKinley Unveiled.

Muskegon, Mich., May 31.—The unveiling of the heroic bronze statue of the late President McKinley was the feature of Muskegon's memorial day exercises. The massive granite monument, together with the large bronze figure of the martyred president, was given to the public schools of Muskegon by Charles H. Hackley, a millionaire lumberman of this city. It cost $30,000.

Chicago Job Printers to Strike.

Chicago, May 31.—Typographical Union No. 60, of Chicago, was given permission by the International Typographical council to order a strike in all job offices of that city unless a settlement over the apprenticeship question is effected.

Favor Independent Political Action.

Denver, Col., May 31.—The annual convention of the United Association of Hotel and Restaurant employes Friday adopted resolutions favoring independent political action by labor organizations.

HOSPITAL SECRETS.

A Nurse Says: "Pe-ru-na is a Tonic of Efficiency."

MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

Mrs. Kate Taylor, a graduated nurse of prominence, gives her experience with Peruna in an open letter. Her position in society and professional standing combine to give special prominence to her utterances.

CHICAGO, ILL., 427 Monroe St.—"As far as I have observed Peruna is the finest tonic any man or woman can use who is weak from the after effects of any serious illness.

"I have seen it used in a number of convalescent cases, and have seen several other tonics used, but I found that those who used Peruna had the quickest relief.

"Peruna seems to restore vitality, increase bodily vigor and renew health and strength in a wonderfully short time."—MRS. KATE TAYLOR.

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned specialist on female catarrhal diseases, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months, without charge. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Prayers of Thanksgiving Was Offered and Special Hymns Were Sung—Interest on the Transvaal Republic Bonds.

London, June 2.—An official cablegram from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Saturday, May 31, 11:15 p. m., says:

"A document containing terms of surrender was signed here this evening at half past ten o'clock by all the Boer representatives as well as by Lord Milner, the British high commissioner in South Africa, and myself."

The news of peace in South Africa contained in the foregoing dispatch from Lord Kitchener was not expected in London Sunday. Soon after the receipt of the dispatch, however, the news spread to the clubs and hotels and was received with much enthusiasm. The church bells were rung to acclaim the good news. A crowd gathered at the Mansion house and the lord mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, announced from the balcony that terms of surrender had been signed in South Africa.

Lord Kitchener's definite announcement of peace was received at the war office at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and was communicated to King Edward and all the members of the cabinet before it was given to the public. Sunday night the Sunday evening calm of the London streets was broken by enthusiastic singing, shouting and horn blowing.

The hotels, the clubs, the public houses and the streets were not the only places where the people were actively demonstrating their joy. The peace news was announced in the churches Sunday, and by some congregations it was received with applause. In all the church of London prayers of thanksgiving were offered and special hymns were sung.

Pretoria, June 2.—A proclamation which was issued Sunday in connection with the signing of the peace terms Sunday night decisres that notwithstanding the proclamations of Mr. Kruger that interest on the bonds of the Transvaal Republic would be suspended as long as the war lasted, such interest shall begin to accrue June 1.

June 26 and June 27 the days of King Edward's coronation, have been proclaimed public holidays here.

Ottawa, Ont., June 2.—The peace news from South Africa was greeted here by demonstrations of joy. The bell in the city hall was rang for ten minutes. The mayor has arranged for a demonstration Monday to celebrate the ending of the war. Flags will be hoisted on public and private buildings; a royal salute will be fired at noon and the school children will be given a half holiday. At night there will be a display of fireworks and a military parade.

Montreal, Que., June 2.—The dispatch conveying the welcome news of the end of the South African war was sent to all the churches in the city and it was read at the evening service. The congregations sang "God Save the King" and the national anthem was also played on the chimes for several churches.

Washington, June 2.—The officials of the British embassy here share the jubilant feeling existing in London over the termination of the war in South Africa. They view with much satisfaction the close of the long struggle. Official notice of the signing of the terms of surrender came to Mr. Raikes, the British charge here, in a cablegram from the foreign office. It was very brief and was in accord with the statements contained in the press dispatches.

TO M'KINLEY'S MEMORY.

A Chime of Ten Bells Dedicated at Lincoln, Neb.

Lincoln, Neb., June 2.—A chime of ten bells was dedicated to the memory of William McKinley in this city Sunday night. They are placed in the dome of the largest church in the city, St. Paul's Methodist. They were dedicated with impressive services after a sacred concert from the bells, lasting an hour. McKinley's favorite hymns, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee" were played during the concert.

The Strike is Over.

Fargo, N. D., June 2.—The building trades strike, which has been in progress here for three weeks, is over. The contractors will pay the wages demanded by the men, but refuse to recognize their union.

Banks Consolidate.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 2.—Capt. C. A. Lyerly and associates, representing the Chattanooga national bank, have purchased a controlling interest in the Third national bank, and the two institutions will be consolidated.

Knox Getting Batter.

Washington, June 2.—Attorney General Knox is slowly recovering from the cold he contracted on his recent trip from Pittsburg. He had a comfortable night and, although he is still quite weak, his condition is reported to be distinctly improved.

Transport Meade Arrives.

San Francisco, June 2.—The transport Meade arrived from Manila Sunday night too late to pass quarantine. On board, besides the passengers, are 28 officers and 854 men of the 21st infantry.

TROUBLE IS EXPECTED.

Entire Anthracite Region Is Apprehensive.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 2.—The eve of what is looked upon as a most important week in the progress of the anthracite coal miners' strike, finds the entire region in an apprehensive mood.

At 7 o'clock Monday morning the order of the United Mine Workers of America calling out all the stationary engineers, firemen and pumpmen unless the companies grant them an eight-hour work day at present wages, went into effect and no one can foretell the outcome of the new move. Victory for either side will be of immense advantage and both parties to the controversy are striving with all the power at their command to win. If the union succeeds in shutting down the pumps the mine properties will suffer damage that may reach into millions of dollars, and if the employers should be able to keep the water out of their workings without the aid of organized labor it means that the power of the union in the anthracite region has reached its limit and that all help in the effort to force the mine owners to grant the demands of the great army of 147,000 men must come from some outside source. The mine workers say they will preserve the property of the companies if the engineers, pumpmen and firemen are given what they ask for, and the companies say they will permit no outsiders to fix the hours and wages of their men. Neither side Sunday night showed the slightest disposition to yield and in the words of one mining superintendent, "it's a fight to a finish."

There is a fear throughout the coal belt that the coming week will witness more or less serious disturbances. Monday is looked upon by well informed persons as a critical day, but it is not believed that any very serious trouble will occur. It is a fact that the labor leaders have counseled the strikers to remain quiet and commit no violation of the law. It is claimed by the union that nearly all of the pumpmen and firemen will quit work and that about three-fourths of the engineers will also refuse to continue work. This claim was privately admitted Sunday by a company official familiar with the situation. While the plans of the union have not been made public, it is known that a thorough system has been mapped out with a view of getting out those men who will refuse to quit Monday. A house to house canvass will be started.

Hazleton, Pa., June 2.—The scene that occurred here Saturday night upon the arrival of a deputation of special officers was repeated at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night when about 20 officers, in charge of a coal company's agent, boarded a trolley car at the Hazleton house for Freeland. The streets of the city were crowded and when the officers came into sight about 500 men rushed at them hissing and yelling. It was feared that the crowd would attack the officers and trouble would undoubtedly have occurred had not Chief of Police Ferry and four of his men held the excited strike sympathizers back until the car left. As the car started the yelling and hissing was resumed. Two of the imported men remained in the city and as they proceeded through the crowd under police protection to their hotel, they were also hooted.

The ten servant girls at the Hazleton house, where some of the officers are quartered, were prevailed upon immediately after this episode to quit, and when they left their posts with declarations that they would not wait upon the imported men, they were loudly cheered.

COLOMBIAN REVOLUTION.

There Was Heavy Fighting at Bocas Del Toro Last Week.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 2.—The British steamer Atrato, Capt. Stranger, arrived here Sunday from Colon, Colombia. She reports that there was heavy fighting at Bocas del Toro last week. The revolutionists are said to have mined the town of Bocas. While the government troops were marching into Bocas to recapture it, the mines were exploded and almost all the government soldiers were killed. The revolutionists still remain in possession of Bocas.

Colon and Panama are the only towns on the isthmus now in the control of the government and troops are being poured into these two ports with the hope of stemming the revolutionary advance.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 31.—By a rear-end collision on the New Paltz trolley road, about three miles west of Poughkeepsie, seven persons were injured, none, it is believed, very seriously.

HE SAW THE CRATER.

Prof. Heilprin Reached the Summit of Mont Pelee.

Violent Explosions of Steam and Cinder-Ladan Vapor Took Place and Again and Again His Life Was in Danger.

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, June 1.—6 p. m.—The National Geographical society has scored a great triumph through its representative here, Prof. Angelo Heilprin, who, Saturday morning, with three guides, ascended to the top of the crater on the summit of Mont Pelee. Prof. Heilprin is also president of the Philadelphia Geographical society.

Prof. Heilprin had gone to the plantation Vive, which is near the crater, in company with Ferdinand Clerc and Mr. Reid, landed proprietors of Martinique. This expedition had been especially organized by United States Consul Ayme and Prof. Heilprin, and was led by the latter.

The expedition left Fort De France last Thursday, May 29, at noon. Friday was spent in studying the newly founded craters on the north flank of the mountain. Saturday morning Prof. Heilprin determined to attempt the ascent to the top of the crater, and with this purpose in view he set out at 6 o'clock.

The volcano was very active, but, amid a thousand dangers, Prof. Heilprin reached the summit and looked down into the huge crater. He saw a huge cinder cone in the center of the crater. The opening of the crater itself is a vast crevice 500 feet long and 150 feet wide.

While Prof. Heilprin was on the summit of the volcano several violent explosions of steam and cinder-laden vapor took place, and again and again his life was in danger. Ashes fell about him in such quantities at times as to completely obscure his vision.

One particularly violent explosion of mud covered the professor from head to foot with the hideous, viscid and semi-solid matter. He still persisted in his study, however, and twice more was showered with mud. He learned, as had been suspected, that there were three separate vents through which steam issued.

Full details of the professor's observations can not be had until he returns to Fort De France.

Prof. Heilprin's journey down the side of the mountain was fully as perilous as the ascent. Mont Pelee seemed to resent the intrusion of a puny human being into her most awful precincts, and belched out huge volumes of steam, ashes and boiling hot mud. Heilprin remained at the summit crater over two hours.

The professor made the important discovery that the crater at the head of the River Fallaise has synchronous eruptions with the crater at the summit of the volcano, and that it ejects precisely the same matter at such times. The river Fallaise crater and the crater at the summit showed during Prof. Heilprin's visit new phenomena. Mud was thrown up in high columns. Heretofore the mud has bubbled and boiled out and flowed downward in huge streams. In the course of one eruption of the river Fallaise crater an enormous mass of intensely hot mud was ejected. This flow reached the rum distillery on the Vive plantation and extinguished all the fires there. This torrent of mud may invade the entire plantation, and, as Vive is the center of one of the richest districts of the island, it is feared the damage may be great.

LA SOUFRIERE STILL ACTIVE.

Another Eruption Took Place Last Friday Morning.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., Friday, May 30.—La Soufriere volcano is still active. Another eruption occurred at 3 o'clock this morning. It was accompanied by a tremendous noise and a shock of earthquake while volumes of dense vapor ascended to such a thick height that they were visible from Kingston. The vapor formed a thick cloud over the crater of the volcano, and this cloud was illumed as if by fire. In the crater itself the lightning was more vivid than upon any previous occasion. No damage was done and the eruption ceased at the end of an hour.

Mt. Redoubt Active.

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—Mt. Redoubt, on Cook's inlet, in Alaska, is in active eruption. There is a great flow of lava, and native villages for many miles are covered with ashes. There is great alarm throughout the section.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, May 27.—Senate—Mr. Patterson (Col.), one of the minority members of the Philippines committee of the senate occupied the floor most of the day in a discussion of the Philippine question. Mr. Foraker and Mr. Hoar had a brief debate over President McKinley's proclamation to the Filipinos. Sixty-two private pension bills were passed.

House—The house of representatives devoted Monday to business connected with the District of Columbia and took a recess until 11 a. m in order to complete the bill amending the District code.

Washington, May 28.—Senate—A fruitless effort was made just before the adjournment of the senate Tuesday to secure an agreement on a time for vote on the Philippines bill. The discussion indicated that some day next week eventually would be agreed upon, but no time was fixed. During the discussion a proposition was made that a time be fixed on alternate Tuesdays, beginning next week, for a vote on the Philippines bill, the Nicaragua canal bill and the Cuban reciprocity bill, and that a final adjournment be agreed on for the fourth Tuesday, but it was too startling to be taken seriously, although some senators regarded it favorably. Early in the session a committee was appointed by the senate to confer with a like committee of the house about the disagreement which has arisen between the two houses as to the army appropriation bill.

House—The house passed the Shattuc immigration bill. The feature of the day was a lively debate on the question of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors at immigrant stations. It was precipitated by an amendment offered by Mr. Bowersock (Kan.) to prohibit such sale, which was carried, 83 to 18. Mr. Landis (Ind.) followed this victory with an amendment to prohibit the sale of intoxicants in the capital and it prevailed by a still larger majority—93 to 19. The bill brings together into one act all the scattered legislation heretofore enacted in regard to the immigration of aliens into the United States, arranges it in sequence, etc., eliminates what has become obsolete by reason of subsequent legislation, amends some of the administrative features and also adds some provisions to the general laws and others made necessary by the extension of the territorial limits of the United States. Among the more important changes are those increasing the head tax on aliens coming into the United States by land transportation from $1 to $1.50; adding to the excluded classes epileptics, persons who have been insane within five years, anarchists, or persons who advocate the overthrow of government by force, prostitutes and procurers (whose importation is now a felony, but whose entry is not prohibited); broadening the word "contract" in the contract labor law to include "offer, solicitation or promise," providing for the fine of steamship companies which receive at the ports of departure aliens afflicted with loathsome or contagious disease instead of providing as now for their deportation on arrival here; extending the time within which an alien who becomes a public charge may be deported from one to two years and providing that immigrants over 15 years old should be able to read in some language.

Washington, May 29.—Senate—An agreement was reached in the senate Wednesday by which a final vote on the pending Philippine government bill and all amendments will be taken next Tuesday at 4 p. m. Pending the vote, the senate will meet at 11 o'clock each day except Friday when the senate will not sit, it being memorial day. On Monday and Tuesday the debate will be under the 15 minute rule.

House—The house spent the day debating the bill to increase the subsidiary coinage by coining the silver bullion in the treasury and to recoin standard silver dollars as the public necessities may require. The limit of subsidiary coinage is now $100,000,000. The bill increases this to an indefinite amount in the discretion of the secretary of the treasury. Mr. Newlands (Nev.) finally offered an amendment to make subsidiary silver a legal tender and this amendment was pending when the house adjourned.

Washington, May 30.—Senate—Interest in the Philippines debate is increasing as the discussion draws to a close. Thursday the senate galleries were thronged with auditors and the attendance on the floor was larger than it has been for some time, including many members of the house of representatives. Mr. Lodge (Mass.) in charge of the bill, offered on behalf of the committee several amendments to the measure, the most important being one extending to the Philippines the provision of the bill of rights of the constitution of the United States, excepting only the right to bear arms and the right to a trial by jury. All of the amendments were agreed to.

House—The house passed the bill to increase the subsidiary silver coinage. The democrats directed their fight chiefly against the provision to recoin the standard silver dollars into subsidiary coin as public necessities might require. A half dozen roll calls were forced. Some of the New York democrats voted for the previous question but voted with their colleagues on a motion to recommit with instructions to strike out the provision relative to the recoinage of silver dollars. The conference reports on the omnibus public building and fortifications appropriation bills were adopted and the house adjourned until Monday.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

PIERCED HIS HEART.

A Disorderly Man Shot and Killed at Camp Nelson Cemetary.

Nicholasville, Ky., May 31.—Five hundred frenzied Negroes surrounding the body of Rice Jennings and vowing vengeance on Lieut. Moss was the closing scene of the memorial day services at the National cemetery in Camp Nelson Friday. Lieut. Moss had just arrested a white man of the name of Pollard, when Capt. May, the keeper of the cemetery, sent a messenger to Moss, asking the arrest of Jennings, who was drunk and firing his pistol. Just as the word reached Moss the Negro passed, and Moss ordered one of the deputies to arrest him. The deputy attempted to do so, but Jennings drew his revolver and defied him.

Moss then turned his prisoner over to the deputy, and started toward the Negro, who leveled his pistol and snapped it at Moss. Moss drew his revolver and fired at Jennings. The first shot struck Jennings in the left hand and ranged up the arm. The second shot from Moss' pistol struck Jennings in the arm, and the third pierced the heart.

Lieut. Moss immediately surrendered to County Attorney Mitchell, and was placed under guard. Jennings' home is in Lancaster.

CLAIM THE RECORD.

Grandparents of Tender Age Are Now Busily Seeking Honors.

Louisville, Ky., May 31.—A few days ago an item from Louisville stated that Edgar Williams claimed to be the youngest grandpa in the state, his age being under 35 years. Next comes Kokomo, Ind., H. N. Gallimore, alleging that at the age of 34 he was a grandparent, his daughter, born when he was 15, giving birth to a son when 19 years of age. Now Val Zeigler and his wife, of Louisville, claim the record. They were married when 16 years old and a year later a daughter was born. She was married at the age of 16 to Kid St. Clair, the pugilist, and a year afterward a child was born, so that the grandparents are now but 34 years old.

Mrs. Lula Glen Roose, of New Albany, is a grandmother at the age of 36.

THE JUDGE OBEYED.

The Prisoner Objected to Being Locked Up and Is Accommodated.

Prestonburg, Ky., May 29.—Tom Little, for whom a warrant was issued as an accomplice in the killing of Sol Osborn and Bud Little, was arrested and brought into court by Sheriff John M. Weddington. The commonwealth's witnesses failing to answer the case was continued until next Wednesday. Little was placed under guard, having requested the judge not to place him in jail. Tom Little is one of the posse summoned by Constable Reedy to arrest Osborn, and it is claimed by Osborn's friends that it was a plan to kill him and not to arrest him. This is the place where the Tait Hall-Clabe Jones feud was carried on, and more trouble is expected.

THINK ABOUT IT.

A good looking horse and poor looking harness is the worst kind of a combination.

Is it not wiser to get a Buggy made by hand with Wrought Forgings and Oak Tanned Leather in top and good, solid work all the way through, when they can be gotten as low as $75 from your Home Factory?

Than to buy this cheap, shoddy work with iron work cast, and made of cheapest material throughout the vehicle?

Also remember, we Repaint and Repair Work as cheap as you can get the same grade of work anywhere.

COME AND INVESTIGATE.

This is headquarters for Rubber Tire Wheels—new Rubber put on old wheels on short notice.

Give Your Horse a Chance!

The Fine Stallion,

JOE J.,

Will make the present season at my stable, ¼ mile north of Bullittsville, Boone county, Ky., at $10 to insure a living colt. Care will be taken to prevent accident, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOE J is a beautiful red sorrel, 16¼ hands high, well proportioned, fine style and action, and has proven to be a good breeder, as he has taken the premium wherever shown with his colts as a family.

JOE J was sired by Jenkins' Almont; 1st dam, Bostic Almont; 2d dam, Lecompton, thoroughbred; 3d dam, Tom Hal, pacer.

J. WASH WATTS.

FINE JACK.

I have a fine 3 y-o Jack that will make the season at my stable 2 miles from Florence, on Burlington pike, at $5 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Persons desiring to breed will do well to call and see him before breeding.

COL. CHIEF

Will make the season of 1902 at the two following places: First three days of the week at Verona, Ky., last three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at my place, Florence, Ky., on Burlington pike.

Mares served at $10 to insure a living colt, money due when mare is parted with.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Description and Pedigree.

Col. Chief is a chestnut sorrel, 16 hands high, and is a fine harness horse, foaled May 12, 1898.

Col. Chief's sire Col. Kip 15877 (2.20½) bay horse 16¼ hands high, weighs 1260 lbs., sire of the champion yearling of '02 Pawling 2:21 (2-yr-o) 2:29½, (3 yr-old) 2:21¼.

Col. Kip was sired by Kenwood 15876 son of Harry Clay 45, sire of Clayton 2:19, Sunshine, 2:26 and the dam of St. Julien, 2:11½, etc. First dam, Agnes by Hamlet 160, by Volunteer 55; second dam,—a daughter of Broken Legged Hunter, son of Kentucky Hunter, grand sire Flora Temple, 2:19½; dam, Oak Leaf, was sired by Geo. Willis; he by Belmont, dam by Geo. Wilkes; 1st dam by J. Stevens by Bostic's Almont; 2d dam by C. M. Clay; 3d dam by Tom Crowder; 4th dam by Blacknose.

James P. Tanner,
Box 78, Florence, Ky.

THE COMBINED STALLION.

MAX LEDGER,

will make the season of 1902, through the month of April, at O. P. Conner's farm, 4 miles south of Burlington, Ky., near the East Bend road. Beginning the first Monday and Tuesday in May, he will be found at Burlington; Wednesday at Union, and the remainder of the time at home.

Terms—$10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with.

Description and Pedigree:

Max Ledger is a fine black, 16 hands high, is a fine show horse, having taken 47 premiums at 14 fairs, and is the sire of the best lot of colts in Northern Kentucky. His colts are large, active and stylish. He is very fine in form and finish, and for style, we challenge competition. For saddle and harness he is unsurpassed by any horse in Boone Co.

This high bred young horse is from Ledger No. 12358, Vol. 9, (sire of Belle K, 2:28¼ fourth heat with but six weeks handling.) Ledger E. pacer 2:24 at 9-yr-old, Kentucky Prince, 2:15; he by Crown Chief No. 4089, sire of Roland, 2:28, by Milford Mambrino; he by Mambrino Chief 11, sire of Lady Thorne, 2:18¼, Woodford Mambrino, 2:21¼ and many others. Max Ledger's dam, Kate Livingston by Forest Temple 136, by Edwin Forest; 2nd dam Madam Temple, dam of Flora Temple, 2:17½; 3rd dam by Tom Crowder; 4th dam by Bellfounder; 5th dam by Passenger.

Pasture $1.50 per month for mares from a distance. L. A. CONNER.

THE PREMIUM STALLION,

DEXTER.

will make the present season at my stable on Gunpowder creek, near Hathaway, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Dexter is a bay, 16¼ hands high, and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has made 5 races and won 4.

He was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Priam, sired by Bob Deadlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Cassius M. Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred.

Dexter's colts beat all competitors at the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, the Butler county, Ohio, and the Boone county, Kentucky, fairs, and the Boone county Harvest Home. Last year he took the premium at the Boone fair as the best brood stallion with 5 or more colts.

He will be in Burlington every countycourt day, and at Geo. Moore's stable at Beaver every Friday.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may occur.

JAS. H. AYLOR.

The Harness and Saddle Stallion,

DANDY CRISTO,

Will make the season of 1902, at my stable near Big Bone church, Boone county, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs-old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1100 lbs. Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; second dam by Mambrino Time; 4th dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark; he by Black Denmark; he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4-mile race horse; he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's first dam by Black William; she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whip's thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark'a Cren Berry, gr-dam by Black Squirrel; great-grand-dam, Highlander and Sladen' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS.

Crescent Hill Stock Farm.

SEASON 1902.

Timothy Boy 27854

TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854, bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son. Sired by Wilkes, 2:24, 1st dam Alga by Artillery, 2:21. 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:28½; 3d dam, Emma Arterburn, (dam of St. Armould, 2:29 and gr-d of 2 in :30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58, 4th dam, Jenny Johnson (gr-d of 3 in :30 list.

TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in Kentucky. He is 16¾ hands high and weighs 1300 lbs. in ordinary condition; a horse of great power, fine style and action. He is a pure gaited trotter, a very fine breeder. His colts are large with good style and action, and are good sellers.

Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.

Also two Mammoth Jacks,

NUTWOOD and MIKE, Jr.,

will make the season at the same time and place. Nutwood is a dark brown (little gray,) 16 hands high—the premium jack of Northern Kentucky, never been beaten in a show ring, and one of the best breeders in Boone county.

Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.

Mike, Jr., 14½ hands high, will be 3-years-old the 1st of next Oct.; was bred at Crescent Hill Stock Farm and was sired by Mike, (Riddell & Boddle's 16 hand jack; dam by Bourbon Chief, 16 hands high.

Terms—$7.00 to insure a live colt.—Limited to 25 mares.

Pasture and attention furnished mares from a distance at $1.50 per month. Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur. Parties disposing of mares forfeits all insurance and money is due at once.

Crescent Hill Stock Farm is 8 miles West of Richwood on the Richwood and Beaver pike. J. C. BEDINGER,

Richwood, Ky.

Imported French Coach Stallion,

LANTIER 1148,

Will make the present season at Thos. E. Randall's stable on the Burlington & Petersburg pike, 1 mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., the first four days in each week, and at the stable of J. I. McWethy, one mile below Petersburg, the remainder of the time, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Money due when mare is parted with.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Lantier is black, star in forehead, both hind feet white, foaled June 5, '88; bred by Madam Bourdin of St. Martin, Department of Calvados, France; sired by Government Stallion Colporteur, dam Raghel by Tortoelle out of a daughter of Legopede.

J. I. MCWETHY,
THOS. E. RANDALL.

Take the Recorder.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1902. NO. 34.

RABBIT HASH.—A. G. McConnell and wife celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding a few days since.

Esq. Moses Scott held the inquest on the floater landed at McVille, a few Sundays since.

Clift Nadaud, candidate for Congress, was here a few days ago. I think he is a coming man for the future.

Congressman Gooch's friends are very busy looking after his political interests, and think he is a sure winner.

Ernest Ryle, who was employed at Niles Tools Works, Hamilton Ohio., will return soon as his mother gets up again.

Col. Berry, let me know when you are coming down so I can catch a big fish for dinner. If you don't know who I am, just ask the editor.

Mrs. J. F. Ryle received a letter from her nephew, Richard I Bruce, son of Silas Bruce, of Liberty, Mo. He is a teller in a bank at Lake City, Ark.

Hon. A. S. Berry will make many votes if he will come to Rabbit Hash and make an old time Democratic speech. He has many friends here who would be glad to meet him.

The K. P. lodge elected the following officers. Dr. Frank Hopkins, C. C; Arthur Holman, V. C.; J. F. Ryle, S. C. Wilson, M. at A.; C. G. Riddell, M. of W.; G. H. Wilson and C. G. Riddell, Representatives.

COMMISSARY, June 7.—T. J. Walton went to Rising Sun Wednesday on business.

Thanks, Bro. Riddell. The papers were appreciated.

William Slayback and Dan McCarty are done setting tobacco.

James Fleek returned to his home in Indianapolis Wednesday.

John Cloud went to Milan, Ind., today visiting his uncle Geo. White.

Ed Burris and wife, visited the latter's father and mother last Sunday.

W. T. Ryle has the nicest field of corn we have noticed in this vicinity.

Ed Cloud and George Thomas were at Aurora Monday transacting business.

Sylvester Gaines, of Rising Sun, was here Thursday buying, or trying to buy, beef cattle.

William Gibson, of Rising Sun, made his regular monthly trip to Burlington, Monday.

Bros. Atwood and Tommy Roberts took dinner with sister Sadie Marshall and mother, last Sunday.

Rocksprings road, so badly torn up by the recent heavy rains, has been worked and can now be traveled with a buggy.

We move that the correspondents, and readers of the Recorder hold an all day picnic in the near future. Who will second the motion?

The Commissary has always been noted for the quantity and quality of its blackberries. This year she will fall far below her usual crop.

Cassius Sullivan, better known as Cad, and Miss Virgie Sullivan were married in Aurora last Sunday. We wish them prosperity and happiness.

John Calvert, of Rabbit Hash, is seen quite frequently on Middle creek. Some people wonder what is the attraction—others which is the attraction.

H. P. Parsons and larger half and Mrs. Bert Parsons and daughter, went to Aurora Decoration day, and report having a nice time, and hearing a nice speech in the Riverside cemetery. The speeches, parade and music were appropriate, grand and beautiful.

Within the last three or four weeks we have had an opportunity to examine and read about twenty different county papers, and after a careful examination we pronounce the Recorder the best of all. The people of Boone county, who take and read the Recorder, are more intelligent, prosperous and healthy than those that do not. Read the Recorder and be healthy, wealthy and wise.

There is a certain amount of vital force about every living thing, both vegetable and animal. When old brindle passes across the pasture field, leisurely switching the flies and nipping the grass, the little individual atoms of vital force rush to the spot, and heals the wound and the grass continues to grow, and when old brindle passes along again she finds a more tender and sweeter mouthful. If we cut our finger the atoms of vital force within it rush to the wound and repair the damage. Too frequent calls on the vitality within us weaken it, and if the strain is too great death is the result. We was shoeing all day Thursday and at night the vitality within us was at a very low ebb.

UNION, June 8.—J. R. Thompson was in town Saturday.

H. A. Hicks, who was quite sick, last week, is much improved.

Miss Alva Williams is visiting Mrs. Dudley, of near Crittenden.

Wm. Smith and J. W. Williams both lost valuable cows, last week.

J. W. Tallaferro, of Corinth, was here Sunday, spending the day.

Miss Daisy Rouse, of Independence, is the guest of Miss Lizzie Rouse.

Joe Collins, wife and son, of Crittenden, are guests of Dr. Lassing and wife.

Mrs. J. W. Kennedy entertained last Thursday in honor of Mrs. Eliza Garrison.

Mrs. J. J. Garrison spent a few days, last week, at her old home near Napclean.

Miss Annie Rice was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. W. Conner, Saturday and Sunday.

Lee Huey and family passed through here Saturday enroute to Burlington to visit Bert Gaines and wife.

Sara Madge Tallaferro, of Corinth, is the guest of her friends, Sara and Rachel Conner and Nannie Huey.

Miss Nellie Gedge, of Covington, and Hugh Smith, of Newport, were the delightful guests of Miss Eva Smith, last week.

Misses Nannie Bristow and May Norman attended the Confederate Decoration at Linden Grove cemetery, Covington, Tuesday.

CRESCENT, June 9.—Frank Williams is confined to his room with a badly sprained ankle.

John Cahill is confined to his room with sciatic rheumatism.

Mrs. Hattie Groger was visiting Mrs. Robt. Northcutt, Monday.

Dr. Kirby Tanner, of Erlanger passed through our town, Wednesday.

Miss Mabel Huron entertained several friends, on the evening of the 1st inst.

Miss Ollie Fleming, of Independence, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Laura Williams.

Miss Blanche Hogan, of Wood Lawn, Ohio, is the guest of relatives at this place.

George Sloane, of Covington, spent last week at the home of Clarence Rector.

J. R. Rector, of Morganaville, was calling on relatives, at this place, Thursday.

Miss Mabel Huron is spending several days with friends and relatives near Hebron.

R. P. Northcutt was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Eddie Brown, of Cincinnati, Tuesday.

Mrs. Veranda Goodridge and children, Howard and Helen, visited the Zoo, last Tuesday.

Jeff Carpenter is having the roof of his barn painted. Contractor Markaberry is doing the work.

Your correspondent was calling on Messrs. Harmon Herne and Jno. Dennedy, of Richwood, Monday.

Several of our farmers have finished transplanting tobacco. There is a great deal of complaint about the scarcity of plants.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Margaret Cecilia Scott to Mr. Bartholemew Stuntebeck, on Wednesday evening, June the 11th, at 8:30 o'clock, at St. Paul's church, Florence.

J. B. Dixon has sold a large number of copies of "The History of the Boone County Charge." The work seems to be very popular and in the last few days John has had numerous calls for it.

Died,—On Friday, the 6th inst., the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walker B'Hymer. Funeral services were conducted hv Rev. Slater, Saturday, at 1 p. m., after which the remains were interred at Highland.

Wm. Rouse was badly bitten by a vicious horse, one day last week. The animal attacked him while he was in its stall, and if it had not been for timely assistance, he would probably have been fatally injured. As it was, he has only a badly lacerated arm.

Letters from J. W. Dixon, now at Cocoa, Florida, state that he is contemplating making Florida his home. Jerry has been in the land of Ponce de Leon since last winter and writes that he likes the country, and thinks that he will make it his permanent residence. We have an idea though, that the special attraction is some dark eyed beauty and not the sainbrity of the climate.

WALTON, June 8.—Miss Edna Bannister, after a pleasant stay of several days with relatives at Hamilton, Ohio, has returned home to the pleasures of Walton life.

Gladys had a great time up at her aunt Mary Bird's near Nicholson.

Miss Pauline Curley will remain with her aunt, Mrs. W. O. Rouse until the latters health is reestablished.

Mrs. Lora Wills, of Lndlow, is enjoying country life with her mother and sister, Mrs. H. C. and Clara Diers.

Rev. Dr. S. M. Adams has recovered so as to be around. He was on the street Friday, looking for Dr. J. L. Adams, the dentist, to examine his teeth and ascertain what damage had been done to them by the chattering when the chills were jollying him during his recent attack of malarial fever.

Saturday morning Mr. Berry Hume, living on Dr. Bagby's place, discovered that one of his cows had died during the night from hydrophobia and another was down with it. He had a shepherd dog to go made not long ago and killed it. He was in the habit of driving the cows with the dog and thinks it might have been nipped them. The other cow died since writing the foregoing.

The officers of the Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. and several distinguished speakers will be present at the Dedication of the Odd Fellows' Hall, corner of Main and High streets, on Saturday, June 21st at 2 p. m. The festival will commence in the store room under the hall at 6 p. m. The candidates for Congress will address the people at 8 p.m., in the Opera House and the town will put on a holiday appearance. The Walton brass band will make its first appearance and will generally surprise the people with the manner in which it will develop. There will be delegates in attendance from all parts of the country.

The political situation is very quiet, and there is little talk about the candidates. The people realize the fact that the next Congress will be an extraordinary one and that the best material must be selected to make the race and the man having the most ability and experience should make the race. There is quite a feeling manifested to give smoolon the side track and go for the man who can accomplish the most. On this account there has been a great change in favor of one of the candidates in the past two years. The people have settled the matter among themselves and are determined to quietly give minor considerations a back seat, so to speak. The effective man can count on 50 or 60 votes that have hitherto been arrayed against him.

A destructive storm passed over this place Saturday night, doing considerable damage and frightened the people almost out of their senses. The wind blew a hurricane, particularly in South Walton. Two trees were blown over in Sinclair Osborn's yard and a large thorn tree across the road from his house; eight fruit trees were downed on the premises of E. P. Holder adjoining Mr. Osborn's and thrown all about the house which rocked and threatened to be blown from its foundation every second. The occupants were dazed by the suddeuness and violence of the storm, but like the good people they are, were thankful to the Great Power above that it was no worse. Mr. Holder has not been in good health for some time and his wife's health is also very delicate, and some time after the storm Mr. H. had a sense of prostration from the shock that was quite serious. His friends, and he has hosts of them, were not aware of the tronble until late this evening, and they are glad to learn that he is better.

HATHAWAY, June 9.—Mrs. Caroline Ryle is no better.

Mrs. May Hubbard spent last week in Covington.

Mrs. Sarah White was calling on Mrs. Caroline Ryle, last Friday evening.

Mrs. Etta Clements spent Thursday with her mother who is very poorly.

Joseph Riddell and Jas. K. Sebree were in Burlington on business, one day last week.

Mrs. Lucinda Weaver and son, Perry of Long Branch were callers in our burg last Thursday.

Mrs. Fannie Sullivan and Mrs. Lourina Smith spent last Friday with Mrs. Cynthia White.

Mrs. Harry Stephens went to Grant county, last Friday, to spend several days with her parents.

Jeff Williamson, the road supervisor, was doing some work on the road along Gunpowder, Thursday.

Miss Pearl White was visiting her brother of near Burlington, last Wednesday night and Thursday.

Miss Nettie Hensley, of Locust Grove neighborhood, was the guest of Miss Grace Houston, last Thursday.

Miss Mary Hedges, of Union, and sister of Walton, were here last Thursday with Miss Burkett's Millinery.

Mrs. Lina McMullen and Mrs. Viola Ryle, of Beech Grove, were visiting friends on Gunpowder, last week.

Robert Adams, of Grant county, was the guest of his son, H. O. Adam's of Riddell's Run, a couple of days last week.

George Horton and wife, of near Big Bone church, were guests of W. B. Horton, of the Beech Grove neighborhood, last Friday.

J. M. Rice killed 7 foxes and 5 squirrels and a coon last week. What country can beat this for plenty of game to shoot at?

R. Lee Huey says he had cutworms to cut off a cabbage stalk as large as his wrist in his garden; and when it fell it killed about a dozen other cut worms.

S. H. Marshall and wife, Robert Clements and wife, and Mrs. Jane Clements spent Sunday week with Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Smith and Cynthia Mason.

Mrs. Sallie Huey, of Carrollton, accompanied her grandaughter, Miss Jessie Huey home and spent several day's in the Big Bone neighborhood, last week.

Ben Rue and family, of Cleves, Ohio, arrived in this neighborhood last Thursday, and spent the rest of the week with F. J. Rue, J. T. Davis and Jas. K. Sebree and some of his old neighbors. It seems that Ohio is agreeing with him very well, but we think that he was glad to get back to old Ky. again.

FRANCESVILLE, June 8. — The farmers can finish setting tobacco now, if the cutworms have left enough plants.

Stanley Graves has purchased a new buggy.

W. B. Graves is painting Robt. McGlasson's house.

Tom Bafer, our popular V. S. has been kept quite busy lately.

Brothers Sproles and Taylor will exchange pulpits next Sunday the 15th.

Miss Emma Gary, of Indiana, is the pleasant guest of Miss Amanda Koons.

Miss Jessie Conner is entertaining her sister and friend, of Hamilton, O.

Mrs. Kittie Crib, of Brownstown, Indiana, will spend this week with relatives and friends here.

Remember that H. Goodridge is agent in this part of the county for the Huschart Monument Co.

Omer Henry, who came home from the Louisville Medical College quite sick, is able to ride out again.

Robt. Hayes, Indianapolis, was circulating among his friends here a few days ago. Bob is a good business man and seems to enjoy life.

Mrs. Knoike and daughter and Mrs. Kittren, relatives of the Bealls, were visiting Charles and wife, and Mr. Holland Goodridge and wife on Saturday.

Miss Dink Scothorn's school closed last Friday week. Mary McFee and Henry Seekman captured the prize in spelling. The children enjoyed the treat at the close of the exercises.

IDLEWILD.—Lee Gaines and family, of Richwood, are visiting at his father's near here, this week.

Mrs. Bruce Henry is very ill.

Joseph, son of Owen Allen, is quite sick.

Felix Gaines was mingling with his many friends at church, Sunday.

Winston and Bernard, sons of W. A. Gaines, are at home from school.

G. W. Merkerlery, of Florence, is painting tin roofs in this neighborhood

The Misses Kirtley, of Erlanger, will visit their sister, Mrs. H. C. Duncan, in a few days.

Mr. Editor, we would be pleased to have you and your wife attend the convention, Thursday.

A neighbor has a turkey gobbler that never goes to roost until he sees that all the chicks have been safely housed for the night.

The ladies of Bullittsburg church have put their house of worship in nice order for the use of the Sunday School Convention, Thursday.

Sunday was a lovely day, and a large crowd complimented Rev. Atwood with their presence at church, and in return heard an excellent sermon.

We are sorry to lose our good friends Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Davis, of Hebron, who will locate in Ludlow, this summer, yet our best wishes will accompany them.

GUNPOWDER, June 8.—B. C. Surface and wife entertained a number of their friends, Sunday.

E. O. Ronse and wife were guests of J. C. Hankins and wife, Sunday.

Hello! Commissary, glad to hear from you after so long a silence. Your items are read with much interest by the Recorder's humble servant here.

The people from the hill country were surely fish hungry, last Saturday as our local fisherman, Solon Ryle, could hardly supply those who called for fish.

The wrecking boat is raising the railroad iron which was sunk here last spring below the bar. The Al Martin arrived yesterday with a sand pump as it will be necessary to remove the sand which covers the rails before they can proceed with the work.

Happy Time in Old Town.

"We felt very happy," writes R. N. Revill, Old Town, Va., "when Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured our daughter of a bad case of scald head." It delights all who use it for Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Boils, Ulcers, Eruptions. Infallible for piles. Only 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

Leslie Hord, who passed for about as sharp a colored young man as lives in our town, had a keener edge put on his faculties in a small transaction, than they have hitherto worn. A band of gypsies were encamped in North Walton, having, among them, a noted fortune teller. Now Leslie was very tired of the dull monotony of life in this place and concluded to risk a part of his wealth in consultation with the celebrated seer. He had just 60 cents and concluded to invest 10 cents of it in learning what the fates had in store for him. She told his fortune, showing what a brilliant future was in store for him; and she must have inspired him with unbounded confidence in herself for he left the other 50 cents with her to make her predictions good. Leslie went on his way rejoicing, but by and by his reflections, as in a dream, entered on his late venture, and a doubt arose in his mind as to the wisdom of the 50 cents deposit. He concluded to withdraw it and made for the encampment. When he got there the camp was bare, and the gipsies nowhere to be seen.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

A number of worthy gentlemen in different parts of the county have been mentioned for Circuit Clerk, but none are more worthy and deserving than our friend and citizen, James Buchanan Tolin, who has ever been a life long Democrat and a tireless worker for the cause of democracy. He has never asked the Democrats of the grand old county of Boone for an office, although his friends have repeatedly urged him to do so. He is a newspaper man of great ability, representing the dailies of Cincinnati and Louisville, besides he has contributed to the Recorder now and after week ever since it began. He is the finest penman it has ever been our pleasure to meet, and is in every way qualified for the office. He is a poor man, and has been a creature of unfortunate circumstances. We do not know whether Mr. Tolin desires to make the race, but want to say to the Democrats of Boone, when you are casting about for material for a competent clerk, don't forget Tolin, for I am positive he believes in the office seeking the man.

A NEIGHBOR.

IOWA TOWNS SUFFER.

Several Thousand Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed By Floods.

Clarinda, Ia., June 7.—Seven inches of rain fell here between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock. Thousands of dollars' worth of property was destroyed here in the city and the damage to crops in the vicinity of the town is inestimable.

Marshalltown, Ia., June 7.—A terrific cloudburst occurred at Glembrook, washing out several miles of railroad track on both the Chicago & Northwestern and the Chicago Great Western. Many bridges are gone and all trains on both roads are delayed many hours. Heavy damage is also reported on other roads. Stock is being rescued by boats. Boniford Langdon, a 7-year-old boy, fell from a tree top while trying to cross a creek and was drowned.

Clinton, Ia., June 7.—Rock river is now on a rampage and has overflowed thousands of acres of the best farming lands. Growing crops have been destroyed, highways have been ruined and bridges washed out. The damage is this conection alone will amount to thousands of dollars. In some places the river is five miles wide.

AN ANTI-TRUST BILL.

It Aims to Amend the Present Sherman Act.

Washington, June 7.—Representative Richardson, of Tennessee, the democratic floor leader, introduced the bill reviving the trust bill which passed the house in the 56th Congress and failed in the senate. It amends the Sherman act by making more stringent restrictions against contracts and combinations in restraint of trade, gives civil right of action to any one injured in business by such a combination, forbids the use of the mails in furtherance of the business of a combine, and provides for prosecuting those who ship trust-made goods from state to state. It is understood that the reintroduction of this bill is in pursuance of the recent action of the democratic congressional committee in naming a special committee of seven members to devise means for making the trust question one of the foremost issues in the coming campaign.

AMERICANS TAKEN PRISONERS.

Two Corporals, a Sergeant and Four Privates Were Caught.

Manila, June 7.—A sergeant, two corporals and four privates of the 5th United States cavalry were decorating the graves of American soldiers at Binangonan, in Rizal province, Luzon, last Friday, when a large number of Ladrones attacked the town and captured the men of the 5th cavalry, as well as the president of Binangonan, his secretary, a doctor and other prominent Filipinos. The prisoners were hurried northward through the mountains. Later two soldiers and four Filipinos managed to escape from the Ladrones and made their way to the town of Morang. Troops and constabulary were at once sent out in pursuit of the bandits. The Ladrones who attacked Binangonan have also captured a large quantity of dynamite which was stored at some quarries.

STILL IN ERUPTION.

Mont Pelee Threw Out An Enormous Cloud of Smoke.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, B. W. I., June 7.—The royal mail steamer Eden, Capt. Down, arrived here Friday. Capt. Down reports that while leaving Fort De France at 10:15 o'clock Friday morning Mont Pelee erupted and threw out an enormous cloud of smoke which passed to the eastward. The passengers on Eden were much alarmed. At half past 11 o'clock almost darkness prevailed, while three miles distant from the shore of the island of St. Lucia clouds of volcanic dust obscured the coast. At 2 o'clock Friday afternoon the darkness was intense over St. Lucia.

FOOT OF WATER FELL.

A Cloudburst Does Much Damage in Iowa.

The Flood Reached Beatrice and Practically Cut Off the City From Communication By Railway—Tracks Under Water.

Beatrice, Neb., June 7.—Reports received here from Cortland, the scene of cloudburst, indicate a more serious condition than at first reported. A foot of water fell in three hours. The rain fell in blinding sheets, and for two hours it was impossible to see objects 50 feet away. The streets in the towns of Cortland, Princeton and Pickrell were unable to carry away the immense volume of water, and basements of dwellings and stores were flooded, doing a great amount of damage. Crops in a great many places are a total loss, being entirely washed away. Creeks and other streams became raging torrents, and a number of people of lowlands were compelled to remove to places of safety.

The flood caused by the Cortland cloudburst reached this city during the forenoon and has practically cut off the city from outside communication by railway. All the bottom lands and residences along the creek are under water. There is eight feet of water in the Union Pacific roundhouse. Nearly all of the Union Pacific tracks between this city and Pickerell are under water and trains are unable to proceed either way.

The main line of the Burlington is badly washed out and trains had to be sent through this city Friday. A passenger train on the U. P., with 20 passengers, is laid up at Pickerell and is unable to move either way. Families in the lowlands of this city were warned several hours before the flood reached here and were able to get to places of safety, but did not have time to remove their belongings. No casualties have yet been reported, but it is feared there has been loss of life. The water in Indian creek was still rising at noon. A great number of cattle, holdings and other animals were caught in the flood and carried away.

VISITED BY A TORNADO.

Nearly All the Buildings on a Stock Farm Reduced to Kindling.

Mt. Carroll, Ill., June 7.—Carroll county was visited by a tornado, the second within three years. It passed directly over the village of Thornton without doing any damage, but when a short distance west of that place descended upon the stock farm of Geo. N. Molondy, one of the finest farms in Illinois, and reduced nearly all of his buildings to kindling wood. The family escaped by going to the cellar. It blew down several other barns in the neighborhood and destroyed the Baptist church. It is estimated that the total damage done by the storm will amount to $25,000. No lives were lost, but much stock was reported killed.

THUNDER STORM IN CHICAGO.

Several Buildings Were Struck and Two Persons Killed.

Chicago, June 7.—A heavy thunderstorm passed over this city and much damage by lightning is reported from the suburbs. Several buildings were struck, and at Wheaton, Wilbur Chase, the 17-year-old son of Rev. M. W. Chase, pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, was instantly killed by an electric bolt. In the city an unknown woman was killed by a street car, at a crossing, with an umbrella held closely in front of her. Many basements were flooded and scores of shade trees in the parks were blown down.

FLOOD IN NEBRASKA.

The Town of Dannebrag, Near St. Paul, Is Inundated.

St. Paul, Neb., June 7.—A rainfall of between three and four inches within four hours has caused a flood in this part of central Nebraska. The town of Dannebrag, nine miles from here, was inundated by a rise in Oak creek, which runs through the town. Friday night the water stands three feet deep in the streets and is rising. Much stock has been drowned.

THE KANSAS FLOOD.

The Loss Will Amount to Several Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Emporia, Kan., June 7.—The loss to property by the overflow of the Neosho and Cottonwood rivers amounts to several hundred thousand dollars. There has been no loss of life and both rivers are falling. East of here farms for miles around are completely submerged in from one to six feet of water. In some of the homes near the river bottoms families have been rescued in boats.

New Constitution Adopted.

Richmond, Va., June 7.—The constitutional convention Friday adopted the new constitution by a recorded vote of 90 to 10. Two republicans and eight democratic members voted aye, the remaining republicans voting in the negative.

Preparing For the Roosevelts.

Oyster Bay, L. I., June 7.—Housekeepers and gardeners are putting the finishing touches to President Roosevelt's home near here in anticipation of the arrival of Mrs. Roosevelt and here children.

GOV. WILLIAM TAFT.

Has a Talk With the Pope on the Philippine Question.

Rome, June 6.—Gov. Wm. Taft, of the Philippines, had an audience with the pope Thursday.

While talking with the pope, Gov. Taft reviewed, in a summary way, the questions in the Philippines which require settlement. He pointed out to his holiness that the readjustment of the relations of the church and state in the islands was not an indication of hostility of the United States to the Catholic church, but declared that such readjustment was merely a necessity under the American constitution. Gov. Taft referred to the prosperity and the freedom of the Roman Catholic church in the United States, and cited these conditions as an assurance that the vatican had nothing to fear from the extension of the authority of the United States over the Philippine islands.

Replying to Judge Taft, the pontiff expressed the greatest pride in the Roman Catholic church in the United States and intense interest in the great republic. He said he earnestly desired to help the American administration of the Philippines in every possible way and he assured Gov. Taft that the vatican would approach all questions raised in the broadest and most conciliatory spirit. The pope said also that matters of detail in connection with the questions to be decided would be referred to a committee of cardinals, whereby would be considered at length, and that all the issues would be treated with the sole aim of reaching a settlement satisfactory to all parties concerned.

The pope appeared to be in excellent health during his interview with Gov. Taft and was of vivacious humor. He referred pleasantly to Archbishop Ireland in what he had to say concerning the Roman Catholic church in the United States.

PISTOLS AND SHOTGUNS.

Battle Between Three Citizens and About Thirty Italians.

St. Paul, Minn., June 9.—A battle was fought with pistols and shotguns late Sunday between three citizens and about 30 Italians employed in a camp on the Chicago Great Western road at the end of the Concord street car line, resulting in the serious injury of four men, one of whom will die. A. Roberge is shot in the abdomen and face and will die. N. Marcotte, of Minneapolis, is shot in the hands and chest. His injuries are not serious. Fred Wayman is wounded in the abdomen but is expected to recover. Joseph St. Dore, an Italian laborer, has several wounds on his face, and it is thought that he will lose his eyesight. The battle is said to have resulted from insults offered Mrs. Marcotte and Mrs. Roherge, who were passing the camp of the laborers.

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS.

Resolution Introduced Naming June 28 as the Time.

Washington, June 6.—Representative Ruppert, one of the democratic members from New York, Thursday introduced a resolution authorizing the adjournment of congress at 3 p. m. June 28. The resolution was sent to the ways and means committee. Chairman Payne and other republican leaders of the house have not yet taken action as to the time of adjournment owing to the indefinite situation as regards several of the most important pending measures of legislation.

Seven Prisoners Escaped.

Council Bluffs, Ia., June 6.—Seven prisoners in the jail here overpowered Jailer Martin as he entered the cell room to give them their supper and, after locking the jailer and his wife in a cell, made their escape. When the men attacked the jailer his wife came to his assistace with a pistol, but she was overpowered and the weapon taken away from her before she could reach her husband.

THE BOERS DISARMING.

It is Proceeding Satisfactorily and in Good Spirit.

The Boers Are Generally Dressed in Dilapidated Clothing, But They All Have a Smart and Soldierly Bearing.

London, June 9.—The war office has received the following message from Lord Kitchener under Sunday's date:

"The disarmament of the Boers is proceeding satisfactorily, and good spirit is displayed everywhere. Yesterday 4,342 rifles had been surrendered up to date."

Dispatches received from Pretoria confirm the statements made in Lord Kitchener's communication to the war office, and say that the whole staff of the late Transvaal government, with a body guard of 50 men, surrendered last Saturday.

The following formalities are observed when Gen. Botha, Gen. DeWet or any of the Boer commandants accompany the British officer who has been detailed to receive surrenders:

The Boer leader goes out to meet a commando and returns at its head. The Boers who come in are generally dressed in dilapidated clothing but have a smart and soldierly bearing. Those who are to surrender are assembled and the Boer leader delivers an address to his men urging them to listen to the British officer who has been detailed on this work. The British officer then makes a speech to the men of the commando, in which he informs them of the admiration of King Edward and the British nation for the gallant struggle and the bravery of their people and promises that the British authorities will do their utmost to help them re-settle on their farms.

A meal is then provided for the Boers, after which the formal surrenders occur. In many such instances the Boers have cheered King Edward and they have sometimes expressed surprise that no army was sent out to receive their surrenders. The Boers are allowed to retain their horses and saddles. The majority of them appear to be glad that the war is at an end and that they will now be able to join their families.

Among the men who surrendered to the British authorities at Balmoral, Cape Colony, were four Americans, who will be granted free passage to Delagoa bay.

A striking sign of the altered conditions in South Africa is that Lord Milner, the British high commissioner, rode from Pretoria to Johannesburg last Saturday accompanied only by two staff officers.

A few of the Boer women still inveigh against surrender, but the general feeling among them is in favor of making the best of the situation.

Throughout the dominions of the British empire and especially in all the principal towns of South Africa, thanksgiving services for the return of peace were held Sunday. Lord Kitchener attended a thanksgiving service at Pretoria at which 6,000 British troops were present.

Berlin, June 9.—The thanksgiving services for the conclusion of peace in South Africa, held in the English church here Sunday, was attended by the members of the British embassy at Berlin, Andrew D. White, the United States ambassador, and John B. Jackson, secretary of embassy.

A NEW DISCOVERY.

Utilization of Atmospheric Electricity Without Chemicals or Dynamos.

London, June 9.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, says that a prominent engineer of that town named Figueras claims to have discovered a method of utilizing atmospheric electricity without chemicals or dynamos, and that he is able to make practical application of his method without employing any motive force. Senor Figueras expects that his invention will bring about a tremendous industrial revolution.

UNIQUE BULL FIGHT.

A Mexican Wrestler Succeeded in Throwing a Wild Bull.

Laredo, Tex., June 9.—A bull fight was given in the Plaza de Toros of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, Sunday, the unique feature of which was the successful performance of Romulus, the famous Mexican wrestler, who succeeded in throwing a wild bull from the San Luis Potosi ranch, Romulus grappled and threw him at the first attempt. One bull was killed, but no horses hurt in this fight.

BRIEF BUT KILLING.

A Horse Remedy That Was Not Recommended, But Was Very Effective in Its Way.

A recent West Philadelphia political meeting was marked by the telling of the following story as illustrative of the evil of being too laconic in everyday speech. Brevity was the distinguishing characteristic of the village wherein lived Jim and Zach, farmers, and each the owner of a horse. They met one day and spoke as follows, relates the Philadelphia Times:

"Mornin', Jim!"
"Mornin', Zach!"
"What did you give your horse for the botts?"
"Turpentine."
"Good mornin'!"
"Good mornin'!"

They again encountered each other a few days later, with this result:

"Mornin', Jim!"
"Mornin', Zach!"
"What did you say you gave your horse for the botts?"
"Turpentine."
"Killed mine."
"Mine, too."
"Good mornin'!"
"Good mornin'!"

SOFT COAL MINERS.

Strike in the West Virginia and Virginia District On.

There Are 29,000 Miners in the Field, and It Was Expected That 18,000 Will Be Out in the Course of a Few Days.

Diggess, W. Va., June 7.—Seven hundred miners at the Pearl Mining Co.'s mines went out on strike here at noon Friday.

Montgomery, W. Va., June 7.—One thousand United Mine Workers in the Kanawha field signify their intention of joining the strike. A few hundred quit work here Friday afternoon and practically all miners in the New river district will also strike Saturday. The Cabin Creek miners, 800 in number, stated Friday night that they will not join in the strike.

Elkhorn, W. Va., June 7.—The great coal strike in West Virginia is now on in the Flat Top, Elkhorn, Tug River and Dingess fields. Friday evening probably 10,000 miners, all members of the United Mine Workers of America, came from the mines with picks on shoulders and declared their intention to remain out until the operators make them the concessions demanded at the Huntington meeting a few weeks ago. From present indications not more than a dozen collieries in the region along the N. & W. will be at work. The miners in this field are made up of Huns, Poles, Negroes and whites, but all belong alike to the United Mine Workers' organization, and all seem determined to wage their fight to the bitter end.

Wilkesharre, Pa., June 7.—President Mitchell said Friday that the strike of the engineers and pumpmen is practically complete. The mining superintendents say that as far as they are concerned there has been no change in the general situation.

Hazleton, Pa., June 9.—At their meeting at Freeland Sunday afternoon the employes of the Delaware, Susquehanna & Schuylkill railroad unanimously refused to handle any trains carrying special officers, deputies or non-unionists. The following resolution, addressed to Luther C. Smith, superintendent of the road, was adopted:

Resolved, That owing to the strike of the anthracite miners we, the employes of the Delaware, Susquehanna & Schuylkill, will refuse to handle any trains carrying deputies, coal and iron police or non-unionists during the continuance of the present trouble.

It is understood the company will not ask the men to continue doing this work, but will depend on the Lehigh Valley railroad in the future to take these special trains from one colliery to the other. Some of the Lehigh valley trainmen declined during the past two days to handle these trains and crews were recruited with some difficulty.

The Lehigh Valley trainmen held a secret meeting here Sunday afternoon and decided that they will not handle any coal mined at the collieries or any soft coal sent over the Hazleton division to displace anthracite during the continuation of the miners' strike. They will continue manning trains, carrying officers and deputies, and men recruited in the big cities as they are not imported in such large numbers as to enable the companies to resume the mining of coal with non-union forces.

Northfork, W. Va., June 9.—The coal operators here have given notice that all the strikers must vacate company houses Monday. Several hundred non-union men were at work here Saturday. The strikers met Sunday, and it is believed violence will be resorted to if non-union men attempt to enter mines again Monday. The operators say they will protect all the non-union men who desire to work.

Davy, W. Va., June 9.—There has been no serious trouble here yet, but the operators announced Sunday that Monday morning they will operate their mines with non-union labor. The strikers say that no non-union men shall enter the mines. The operators are putting guards armed with Winchesters about their property and serious results are expected.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 9.—The miners' strike was unchanged Sunday. Several small secret meetings were held by the strikers, but nothing was given out. The operators say most of the men will be working Monday.

President Not to Interfere in Strike.

Washington, June 7.—After a conference with the members of his cabinet Friday, President Roosevelt decided that there is no legal ground for interference by him in the settlement of the dispute between the coal operators and the striking miners.

No Oath For Kruger.

Birmingham, Eng., June7.—The Post says that on account of former President Kruger's advanced age and infirmities, the government has waived the claim for his acknowledgment of British sovereignty.

Portland, Ore., June 7.—The national convention of Travelers' Protective association selected Indianapolis as their place of meeting in 1903, and elected Howard W. Peak, of Texas, president by acclamation.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

One Killed, Nearly 50 Injured, Three Probably Fatally.

Alpena, Mich., June 9.—An excursion train on the Detroit & Mackinaw railroad, which left here Sunday morning for Saginaw, consisting of an engine and 12 coaches, carrying over 500 people, was wrecked at Black river while running 40 miles an hour. One man was instantly killed, three were probably fatally injured and nearly 50 others received injuries of various degrees of severity, ranging from bruises and cuts to broken limbs.

The excursion was under the auspices of the German Aid society of Alpena. When the train reached Black river the tender jumped the track. Engineer Hopper instantly set the air brakes and reversed his engine. The sudden stop threw the first three coaches of the train off the track and into the ditch. The first car was thrown half around and the next two coaches plowed through it and cut it in two. August Grosinski, the only person killed, was seated in this coach with 40 other excursionists. His body was terribly crushed and death was instantaneous.

The escape of the others in the car was well night miraculous. Grosinski's little son occupied the same seat with him but the lad was uninjured.

WIND AND THUNDER STORM.

Two People Killed and a Third Perhaps Fatally Injured.

Columbus, Ga., June 9.—A heavy wind and thunder storm which passed over this city Sunday afternoon caused the death of two people, perhaps fatally injured a third and did considerable damage to property. The dead: J. J. Wilds, a carpenter; Louis McClain. The injured: M. C. Cochran. Willis was killed by lightning while standing near a large oak tree on upper First avenue. He was conversing with Cochran, who was also struck at the same time. Louis McClain was standing in his back yard in Phoenix City, just across the river from where Willis was killed. The lightning struck a clothes wire he was holding. Cochran's condition is reported as serious. Several dwellings in the residence portion of the city were struck by lightning and unroofed by the storm.

A HAZING BEE.

An Affair That Began in Fun Came Near Ending Disastrously.

Madison, Wis., June 9.—A hazing bee which started in a spirit of fun came near ending disastrously. After Harry F. Herrmann, of New London, had been ducked in the lake he went home and procured a revolver, in order, as he maintains, to defend himself. Later he appeared on the street and was "rushed" by the crowd, and in the melee the revolver was discharged, the bullet lodging in the leg of Philip C. Kopplin, of Laveil. This enraged the students, who captured Herrmann and gave him a second ducking. Several other shots were fired, but failed to take effect. Kopplin's injuries are said to be slight.

A FAMOUS CASE.

Four White Men, Imprisoned For Lynching a Negro, Pardoned.

Montgomery, Ala., June 9.—Gov. Jelks Sunday pardoned Geo. Howard, Martin Fuller and John Strength, three of the four white men convicted in Elmore county of lynching the Negro Robin White, and sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary.

The case is famous as the only instance in Alabama where a white man has been convicted of lynching a Negro.

The men had served one year.

CLAIMS SELF-DEFENSE.

Prominent Merchant Confessed to Killing a Journeyman Painter.

Pine Bluff, Ark., June 9.—B. F. Newton, a prominent merchant of Montrose, has been arrested and has confessed to the killing of a journeyman painter. Persons near Montrose discovered a newly-made grave in the woods and an investigation showed that the remains of the painter were buried within. Officers took the case up and arrested Newton, who claims he killed the man in self-defense.

Death of Prof. Bocher.

Cambridge, Mass., June 9.—Ferdinand Bocher, A. M., professor of modern language at Harvard university since 1870, is dead. He was born in New York city in 1832 of French parentage, passed his childhood in Normandy, and as a young man taught French in St. Louis.

UNIQUE INSTITUTION.

A Farming School to Be Established in New York State.

Original Committee of Promotion is Abram S. Hewitt, R. Fulton Cutting, John G. Carlisle, Mrs. Seth Low and Others.

New York, June 9.—The signing of contracts within a few days for the purchase of the School of Practical Agriculture of 415 acres of land near Poughkeepsie marks the beginning of a movement for the permanent establishment near New York of what the promoters call one of the most unique educational institutions in the country. Less than two years ago a number of citizens prominent in political and social life, met at the residences of Abram S. Hewitt and R. Fulton Cutting and formed them[illegible] into an organization, establishing, experimentally, a school where the practice as well as the theory of farming could be taught. Prof. George T. Powell, a recognized authority on scientific agriculture, undertook the organization of the school, and a number of ladies and gentlemen agreed to finance the project in its experimental stages. The original committee of promotion, of which Mr. Hewitt was chairman, included R. Fulton Cutting, Jacob H. Schiff, John G. Carlisle, Mrs. Seth Low, Mrs. Josephine Shaw Lowell, Walter W. Law and William E. Dodge. The original school establishment was at Briar Cliff manor, provided by the generosity of Mr. Law, who also furnished a building to accommodate 35 students and the necssary staff.

The success of the school was immediately, and the originators then concluded to extend the facilities. The board of trustees was then organized with the following officers:

Theodore L. Van Horden, president; Abram S. Hewitt and Wm. E. Dodge, vice presidents; E. Fulton Cutting, treasurer, and Thacher L. P. Luquer, secretary.

In speaking of the school President Van Norden said Sunday:

"Aside from my official connection with the school I have taken a deep interest in its progress. We have demonstrated, I think, beyond a doubt that there is need and opportunity for a practical farming school in this country on the plan carried out by our director, Mr. Powell. Our need now is money resources for the equipment of the foundation of the school at Poughkeepsie, and when this equipment is completed we will need contributions to a fund for the endowment of the school."

Mr. Hewitt said: "If those who are friends of practical education and of general social betterment could realize as we do the great needs and greater opportunities of this school. I believe that we would have little difficulty in obtaining that generous financial support that at this time seems necessary to insure the establishment of this institution upon a basis commensurate with the extent and importance of the work it has to do."

Mr. Wm. E. Dodge said:

"Any American who has traveled in France and has witnesses the thrift and order of those smaller communities where agriculture is profitably practiced must welcome the application to our soil of those methods which have made the successful farmer abroad."

WANTED FOR BURGLARY.

Harry Kelly, Who Escaped From Officers, Warns the Detectives.

Carbondale, Ill., June 9.—Harry Kelly, wanted in five state for burglaries, who was, about a week ago, captured after a seven months chase at Brazil, Ind., and who, while in charge of Sheriff Atwood, of Ballard county, Ky., jumped from one of the fast Illinois Central passenger trains about 12 miles north of this city while heavily handcuffed and shackled, and made good his escape, has visited Brazil. He left the sheriff's irons, accompanied with a warning note to the detectives who captured him. Several rewards have been offered for his capture.

SLIGHTLY WOUNDED.

Duel Between Minister of Foreign Affairs and a Member of the Chamber.

Rome, June 9.—The duel between Signor Prinetti, the minister of foreign affairs, who was challenged to fight by Signor Franchetti, a member of the chamber, as a result of a heated discussion last Friday in the chamber of deputies on the subject of the erythrean (Italian East Africa) budget, occurred Sunday evening at the villa of the Marquis Medieis. Signor Franchetti was slightly wounded in the ear. After the encounter Signor Prinetti and Signor Franchetti became reconciled.

Prof. Pirth's New Position.

Berlin, June 9.—Prof. Friederich Pirth, holder of the chair of Chinese philology at the University of Munich, has accepted the offer of the Chinese chair at Columbia university, New York, and will begin his lectures there next Octoher.

Extend the Treaty's Time.

Washington, June 8.—Secretary Hay and Mr. Bruns, the Danish minister, have signed a protocol extending for 12 months the time allowed for the exchange of ratifications of the Danish West Indian territory.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, June 4.—Senate—Tuesday afternoon the senate passed the Lodge Philippines government bill by a vote of 48 to 30. Three republicans, Messrs. Hoar (Mass.), Mason (Ill.) and Wellington (Md.), voted against the measure, and one democrat, Mr. McLaurin (S. C.), voted for it. All amendments offered by the minority were rejected. The bill as passed approves the action of the president in creating the Philippine commission and the offices of civil governor and vice governor of the islands, and authorizes the governor and vice governor to exercise the powers of government as directed by executive order. Future appointments of the governor or vice governor shall be made by the president with the advice and consent of the senate. "The bill of rights" of the United States constitution are applied to the Philippine islands with the exception of the right to bear arms and the right to a trial by jury. The supreme court and other courts of the islands shall exercise jurisdiction as heretofore provided by the Philippine commission, and the justices of the supreme court shall be appointed by the president and the senate; the others by the civil government and the commission. The action of the president of the United States in levying and collecting taxes is approved. All the inhabitants of the Philippine islands are deemed to be citizens of the Philippine islands and entitled to the protection of the United States. When the insurrection in the islands shall have been subdued a careful census of the islands shall be taken, and after such census the governor of the island shall make a full report to the president and make recommendations as to future government. Meantime the Philippine commission is authorized to establish municipal and provincial governments with popular representative government, as far and as fast as the communities are capable and fit for the same. The president is authorized to regulate the commercial intercourse with the archipelago in the interest of the general welfare. The government of the Philippines is authorized to provide for the needs of commerce by improving harbors and navigable waters, providing warehouses, lighthouses, signal stations, etc. The Philippine commission is authorized to acquire the Friar lands and is empowered to issue bonds to pay for them. These lands once acquired, shall be a part of the domain of the United States and may be disposed of as such.

House—The house began consideration of the anti-anarchy bill. The house committee reported a substitute for the senate measure. Mr. Ray (N. Y.), chairman of the judiciary committee, who was in charge of the bill, argued that the senate bill was unconstitutional.

Washington, June 5.—Senate—Discussion of the project of constructing an isthmian canal was begun by the senate Wednesday. Mr. Morgan (Ala.), chairman of the committee on interoceanic canals, opened the debate, speaking nearly three hours. A considerable portion of his speech was devoted to an examination of the recently suggested danger to the Nicaraguan canal route of seismic disturbances.

House—The debate on the anti-anarchy bill continued all day. It was without sensational features, being confined almost entirely to the legal and constitutional phases of the question. Mr. Jenkins (Wis.) and Mr Parker (N. J.) contended that the bill did not go far enough; that the killing of the President should be made punishable by death without any limitation whatsoever.

Washington, June 6.—Senate—In further consideration of the isthmian canal project, the senate heard Thursday two speeches, neither of which was complete. Mr. Hanna (O.) spoke in favor of the Spooner amendment, conferring on the president authority to purchase the rights of the Panama Canal Co. if a valid title could be obtained, otherwise he shall decide upon the Nicaragua route. Mr. Mitchell supported the Hepburn bill for the construction of the canal by the Nicaragua route. The senate passed the military academy appropriation bill providing for extensive improvements at West Point.

House—The general debate on the anti-anarchy bill was ended except for two speeches which will be made Friday. Mr. Littlefield (Me.) will make the closing argument in support of the measure. The debate Thursday, like that of Wednesday, was devoted to legal arguments.

Washington, June 7.—After transacting some routine business Friday the senate resumed consideration of the isthmian canal bill, Mr. Hanna (O.) continuing his argument in support of the Panama canal. The Ohio senator declared that no political considerations were involved in the canal problem.

House—General debate on the anti-anarchy bill closed. The section of the senate bill providing a body guard for the president was stricken from the senate bill as a precaution in case the house substitute failed. An effort was made to strike from the first section of the substitute the words limiting the crime of killing the president to the president in his official capacity, but the motion was lost, 63 to 89. Only one section had been disposed of when the house adjourned.

Fortune For Prince Henry's Children.

Berlin, June 7.—The children of Prince Henry of Prussia have inherited the larger part of revenues, amounting to 2,000,000 marks, from the estate of the late prince in Berlin, which is situated on Wilhelmstrasse. The palace of the late prince in Berlin reverts to the crown.

"Sis Hopkins" Divorced.

Cincinnati, June 6.—It leaked out Thursday that Rose Melville ("Sis Hopkins") was granted a divrce Tuesday by Judge S. W. Smith. The case appeared on the docket as Rose Hardy against Harry Hardy. Neglect was the plea.

The Protected Cruiser Denver.

Washington, June 6.—The protected cruiser Denver will be launched on June 21. The Denver is the second of the six 17-knot cruisers of her class to be launched, the Cleveland already having been floated.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

A Murder of Long Ago Caused Joe Lambert to Lose His Mind.

Louisville, Ky., June 6.—Joe Lambert, who smashed a $150 plate glass in the Pennsylvania railroad office Saturday, was Thursday adjudged insane.

His insanity is attributed to brooding over a murder committed years ago. Lambert in 1887 was implicated in the murder of Joe Walker. On the stand Thursday morning he detailed the unfortunate occurrence. He said he and Walker had some words, when he drew his pistol and shot him three times. When two other men were wrongly accused he surrendered and confessed, but as there was no evidence save his own statement he went free.

Lambert said he smashed the glass because the Pennsylvania railroad had defrauded him out of $40,000. When asked to detail how this was done he said there was a conspiracy, and named three of the jurors who were trying him as being in it. He was speedily found insane and ordered committed.

MOSEBY'S TRIAL BEGUN.

Charged With Complicity in the Hawkins Murder at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., June 5.—Will Moseby, colored, is on trial here charged with complicty in the murder of J. N. Hawkins, here, before Christmas. Hawkins, who was a merchant and church man, was found dying in the dark shadows of Second street, about 3 o'clock in the morning. The officers, answering a call from Hawkins' wife, began a search. He was found to be terribly bruised and shot in the head. A revolver was found at his feet, and the suicide theory spread.

A Pinkerton detective was put on the case, and secured a confession from Moseby, who declared Bert Axline and Jim Ratcliffe killed Hawkins and robbed him, while he stood watch in Broadway. The revolver was owned by Mosehy. Axline and Ratcliffe are also to be tried.

HEROIC TREATMENT.

Jailer Doran Used a Lock to Prevent An Escape.

Greenup, Ky., June 5.—Wm. Fyffe, charged with robbery, made a desperate attempt to escape from jail. When Jailer Nicholas Doran brought him his supper he threw a hed quilt over Doran's head and knocked him down. But Doran struck out with the jail lock and hurt Fyffe so badly that he was soon overcome. A Negro confederate was so badly scared at the jailer's vigorous resistance that he stood a trembling witness without offering any assistance to his pal. Fyffe will be under the care of a physician for some time.

McCain Law Valid.

Frankfort, Ky., June 7.—In the case of Pannell va. Louisville Tobacco Wareshouse Co. the court decided that the famous McCain tobacco law was constitutional. The recent legislature repealed the McCain law, but the Pannell suit was instituted before the repeal, and it is likely several warehouses will have to pay penalties for violation of the old law.

A Well of Air.

Owensboro, Ky., June 7.—John J. Blocher, in driving a well, struck a flow of air at a depth of 42 feet strong enough to blow a man's hat ten feet high. A sound like a moving train comes out of the well and Mr. Blocher believes that he will soon strike a flow of gas.

Elk's Ruler to Wed.

Louisville, Ky., June 5.—Charles E. Pickett, of Waterioo, Ia., the grand exalted ruler of the elks, and Miss India Ryan, of Louisville, will be married here June 17. They will take a bridal trip to the Pacific coast, returning in time for the elks' reunion at Salt Lake City in August.

Trustees Can Sell.

Frankfort, Ky., June 7.—The court of appeals decided that Transylvania university, of Lexington, which was years ago consolidated with the Kentucky university, might have trustees appointed to sell and convey a lot on which to build the Carnegie free library.

Suffocated by Foul Gas.

Leitchfield, Ky., June 7.—Charles White, son of Josh White, four miles west of Leitchfield, was suffocated by foul gas in a well. Rev. H. B. White tied a rope around his waist and was lowered into the well. He brought the body to the surface, but could not revive him.

Protest Against Parole.

Lexington, Ky., June 5.—The mother, sisters and two brothers of Will Mahoney went to Frankfort to protest against a pardon or parole for the slayer of their brother, Richard Nugent. Nugent is serving a 21-year sentence for the crime.

New Railway Line.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 6.—Chief Engineer Blanchard arrived here in the van of the Tennessee Central surveying corps that is running a line from Clarksville to a junction with the Illinois Central at Hopkinsville.

BORDER ON CIVIL WAR.

Judges Openly Admit That They Are in Terror of Their Lives.

Lexington, Ky., June 7.—John H. Johns, an attorney of this city, has returned from Jackson, Ky., whither he went to defend Tom Cockrell, charged with the murder of Ben Hargis, several months ago. Johns says the court and bar of Jackson county are in terror over threats of parties on each side of the Cockrell and Hargis factions and that Judge D. B. Redwine refused to act on application for change of venue, announcing that he declined to act because of fear of his own life and the lives of others concerned in the trial of the case. Johns says two other attorneys of the bar were elected to preside as special judge, but each refused to act for the same reason. Gov. Beckham has been appealed to and has the matter under advisement. Johns says the county is bordering on a state of civil war over the case, as both factions are prominent and influential. The situation is strained and bloodshed is expected.

BECKHAM'S APPOINTEES.

Kentuckians Named as Delegates to International Mining Congress.

Frankfort, Ky., June 6.—The list of delegates appointed by Gov. Beckham from the state at large to the International Mining congress, which meets at Butte, Mont., Septemher 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, 1902, is as follows: C. J. Norwood, Lexington; A. G. Spillman, Lexington; James D. Wood, Central City; W. U. Grider, Bowling Green; T. Bailey, Madisonville; F. D. Rasp, Farlington; R. M. Salmon, Yales; Capt. J. W. Moore, Island, McLean county; D. FOR STATE TAXES.

A Suit Against the Union Refrigerator Transit Co.

Louisville, Ky., June 7.—William L. Weller, auditor's agent for Jefferson county, filed suit Friday in the county court for $136,000 state taxes alleged to be due since September 15, 1890, and $27,200 penalty against the Union Refrigerator Transit Co. Mr. Weller alleges the articles of incorporation of the company give its place of business as Crescent Hill, Ky. Its offices are in St. Louis. The company owns about four thousand refrigerator cars, which are used on all the railroads in the United States. Attorneys of the company claim that it owes no taxes here, and will resist any effort of the state to collect the whole or part of their claim.

Meet Next in Paris.

Lexington, Ky., June 7.—The Kentuck Firemen's association concluded its business Friday and adjourned to meet in Paris, Ky., October 23 and 24. Chief G. W. Muir, of Lexington, was elected president; M. F. Rothschild, of Shelbyville, vice president, and Edward Hite, of Paris, secretary.

Resulted in a Draw.

Lexington, Ky., June 5.—The fencing contest for the championship of the United States between W. P. Mayfield and W. C. Deemer, of Brooklyn, resulted in a draw, the acore being 17 to 17. Another contest will take place at a date and place yet to be decided upon later.

Did Wrong But Were Provoked.

Lexington, Ky., June 5.—The board of trustees of Kentucky state college adopted the report of the special committee appointed to investigate the assault by state college students upon D. B. Goode, a reporter. The report condemns the students, but states that the reporter had provoked them.

Thursday will be Granger's Day at the fair this year. Speakers of national prominence will be present and deliver addresses. It is the desire of the members of the Grange to make that a very profitable and interesting day to all, and with that in view they will bend every effort to that end.

In this issue appears the announcement of Hon. D. Linn Gooch as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress. Mr. Gooch has worked faithfully in the interest of his district and the Democratic party since he has been in Congress, and having made a straight Democratic record, he is asking his party's endorsement by a reelection, an honor it seldom fails to accord a faithful servant.

The fair board held its monthly meeting last Saturday, and among other business revised the premium list for this year, increasing several of the premiums, for instance, adding $15 to each of the heretofore $100 premiums making each $70 $30 and $15. No other county fair in this State gives anything that approaches these premiums, while the general list is better than any other country fair in Kentucky.

Col. Berry made a speech at Williamstown, Monday, urging party harmony, and at the conclusion of his remarks he drew from his pocket and read a letter addressed to Hon. John M. Lassing, chairman ot the district committee, notifying him that he had withdrawn from the race for the Congressional nomination. Col. Berry stated before reading the letter that he (Berry) was the only person who knew its contents. The reading of the letter nearly paralyzed some of the Colonel's friends, who were sanguine of his success on the 28th inst, but he had been all over the district and was familiar with the political situation, and was better posted than his enthusiastic friends. To make a long story short two years hence Colonel Berry ought to be given the nomination without opposition.

Several months ago a horse belonging to William Brittenhelm, of Walton, was shot one Sunday. He charged Edward Norman with the shooting, and sued him for the value of the horse and obtained a judgment against Norman for $100 in the justice's court at Walton. From the judgment Norman appealed to the quarterly court, but in the mean time he was indicted for shooting the horse, and upon trial of the indictment in the circuit court the jury returned a verdict, promptly, saying he was not guilty of shooting the horse. Last Tuesday the appeal from the justices court was tried before a jury in the quarterly court, and Britenhelm was given a judgment for $50 against Norman for shooting his horse. The verdicts of the juries conflict. One jury says Norman killed a $100 horse, another jury says he did not kill the horse and still another says he killed a $50 horse, and Norman is wondering what the finding of the next jury will be.

Since the first of last January the town of Florence has been without a government, the trustees who were elected at the November election, 1901, except John Hampton, having failed to qualify. County Judge Cason filled the board by appointment, but those who were appointed refused to qualify, and he let the matter rest until last county court day when he again completed the board of trustees by appointing four members. These qualified and last Thursday evening the board met and organized by electing John H. Ryle chairman. The other trustees are John R. Whitson, William Cody, Thomas B. Castleman, John Hampton. Jeff Stephens was elected Marshal. The office of police judge remains vacant and trustees are having trouble to find someone to accept the position. Judge Cason visited Florence last Thursday evening and assisted to install the new board of trustees, and when the citizens of the town arose Friday morning they found their little city once more under home rule, and the above named gentlemen wearing the badges of authority which their offices carry with them.

Simeon Clore, the subject of this sketch was born in Boone county Ky., Feb. 13, 1821, and died May 27, 1902, aged 81 years, 3 months 14 days. He came to Montgomery County Ind. with his parents at the age of 17 where he lived until the day of his death.

When young Clore came to this county it was almost an unbroken wilderness but he has lived to see it one of the most flourishing and cultivated counties in the State of Ind. Crawfordsville, the beautiful county seat was then a mere hamlet in a dense wilderness with a few people, while at this time she has a thrifty population of ten thousand people. Waveland his nearest town existed more in name than reality, but he lived to see her one of the most flourishing villages in Ind. He has seen the county surpass even the towns in its improvement and he has, by his energy and industry, contributed to the growth and prosperity of both.

Mr. Clore was a farmer by occupation and had acquired a comfortable fortune. He was twice married. His last wife Elizabeth, survives him. His children left to survive him are the fruits of his first marriage. He was an early pioneer and a stalwart citizen. He had a very marked and distinct individuality. He was the personification of frankness. He was truthful under all circumstances and peaceful with all people. He was generous and kind to his neighbors and no one knocked at his door for admission that did not get it. Even the poor tramp who was turned away from many doors could enter the door of Mr Clore and share his home and hospitality. Mr. Clore often seemed loud and gruff, when talking to his friends and if he used harsh and severe words he would end it up with a good natured laugh which indicated his feelings rather than the words. It is no wonder that a heart so large and kind as his should make him a Universalist. He was benevolent enough to want all mankind saved and therefore believed they would be. The great numbers of people who attended his funeral was evidence of the esteem with which he was held in the community. Taking all in all it will be a long time e'er we shall see his like again.—Waveland, (Ind.) Independent.

T. J. Beck, a young M. D., of Cincinnati, and Miss Bessie Clements, of same city, applied to County Clerk Adams for a marriage license one day last week. Mr. Adams is the most particular clerk in the State in the matter of issuing marriage license, and refused the desired document, until the bride's parents were consulted by telephone, when it was ascertained that there were no parental objections. Rev. Sproles performed the ceremony.

The bowlder throwers at Petersburg made an attack on Ira Pease's house Saturday night and smashed the doors and windows in. One bowlder barely missed Mr. Pease, who is lying on his death bed, and was imbedded in the wall near the head of the old gentleman's bed. From there they visited Martin Kittle's house and riddled the windows in it. The same night some person or persons stole 45 chickens from Mrs. Maria Terrill and 40 from W. T. Stott.

Mrs, Dr. Furnish and Master Joe, are visiting Mrs. Furnishes' father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Revill, of this place.

Mrs. Carpenter and son, Claud, are at home again after a visit of several weeks in the Union and Gunpowder neighborhoods.

It rains occasionally yet, and keeps everything growing nicely.

LOCAL NEWS.

Been having some pretty good summer weather.

The temperature was down considerably, Sunday.

Remember the grange afternoon picnic on the 14th inst.

Everybody is making a record of the number of their watch.

Geo. Blyth has a sow and 8 pigs, and some nice shoats for sale.

Several of the coal bins are being filled for the coming winter.

Thieves stole 40 of Mrs. Lute Tanner's frying chickens a few nights since.

James Duncan & Co. have begun shipping this spring's purchase of lambs.

Geo. Gordon began moving his farming implements to his mother's last week.

The word "Pontoed" has taken the place of the word robbed in this part of the county.

J. P. Tanner has a dog that eats every 17-year locust he can catch and he pursues them industriously.

James Beall and son, of Hebron, are bulding an addition to County Attorney Castleman's barn.

Already have our Lawrenceburg Indiana, friends begun advertising big doings on the fourth of July.

That Dr. Rouse is quite handy with the paint brush is evidenced by the appearance of his premises.

Mrs. M. L. Riddell has a young mocking bird that is the whole feathery tribe when it comes to singing.

Farmers are hustling to get all their work up so they can give their undivided attention to wheat and hay harvests.

Conner & Hogan expect to get their purchase of tobacco cleaned up in the next ten days. They ship as fast as they prize.

The number of new cases on the docket of the present term of the Grant circuit court is the smallest in the history of the county.

Bert Sullivan had his commando of roadworkers in service last week, down on gunpowder creek. They were handling considerable rock.

Locusts became numerous in town last week. Up to that time none had been heard here. The English sparrows are feasting on them.

That was not a funeral procession that went out of town last Saturday morning, notwithstanding the Erlanger funeral director was in charge.

A brisk wind and a heavy rain visited this part of the county last Saturday evening. Considerable hail fell in the neighborhood just south of town.

Fishermen can pick bait—locusts—from the bushes along the streams where they angle, an opportunity the like of which will not be afforded again for 17 years.

At the last term of the county court N. L. Moore, of Big Bone, and Sol Long, of Union, were each granted a license to peddle merchandise in this county.

At its last meeting the Boone County Insurance Company made an assessment of one per cent of the premium notes, for the payment of the Ryle loss of $515.

The members of the Boone County Democratic Committee are requested to meet in Burlington, Saturday, June 14th at 10:30 a. m.

A. B. ROUSE, Chairman.

Just now the indications are that the Boone fair this year will be a hummer. Everything appears to be working favorably for a grand exhibition in each and every department.

The weather for several months has been very favorable for wheat and wherever fertilizer was used on flat land in this part of the county in most every instance a good yield is assured.

Clutterbuck Bros. brought in a large coop of friers from off their rural route, last week, and when asked what they would bring in the city, answered, "23 cents a pound." Such provender is entirely too rich for the blood of a country editor.

This office printed a new directory for T. J. Hughes' telephone system, last week. Mr. Hughes' lines cover considerable territory, and he is putting in new instruments daily. He is now getting his system on a paying basis, and no doubt he will find himself well rewarded, in the near future, for the hard work he has done on his lines.

At the meeting of the judicial committee held at Sparta, Tuesday July 29th was selected as the day upon which to hold the primary election in this district for nominating Democratic candidates for circuit judge and commonwealth's attorney. If there is but one candidate for each office by July 14th, the committee will declare them the nominees for said offices.

Miss Mary A. Thompson arrived home, last Wednesday evening, from a visit of several months with friends in New York and other eastern cities.

E. H. Blankenbeker and J. M. Barlow were in town early one morning last week, headed for the Bellevue country. Mr. Barlow does not go lame much now.

Mrs. Alice Adams, who was called to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. DeCoursey, of Ludlow, last Thursday, returned home Friday, having followed her remains to Pendleton county, where they were interred.

Joseph Wene, grandson of A. O. Hall, of Loveland, Ohio, came over last Friday for a few days visit with his relatives here. He works in a powder mill, and has a sore arm, the result of a recent explosion at his place of employment.

Boone County Churches of Christ, Attention!

The first Thursday in September, the 4th, is the date set for the Boone County Christian Convention. An all day session will be held in Burlington. Details and program will be published in due season.

EDGAR JONES.

The protracted meeting at Gunpowder church began as per announcement, last Saturday night. The congregations are large and much interest is being manifested. Considerable work has been done in the way of repairs on the church building, and a church edifice that was about to be allowed to decay and pass away has been renovated and put to good use again, for which the Baptist brethren are entitled to much credit.

Saved from An Awful Fate.

"Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. Shields, of Chambersburg, Pa, "I was so low after six months of severe sickness, caused by Hay Fever and Asthma, that few thought I could get well, but I learned of the Marvelous merit of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, used it, and was completely cured." For desperate Throat and Lung Diseases it is the safest cure in the world, and is infallible for Coughs, Colds and Bronchial Affections. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

Last Thursday night burglars entered the residence of Mrs. Rebecca Sebree, who lives down on Gunpowder creek, and stole her pocket book and a basket of eggs, and her daughter's gold watch. Mrs. Sebree does not know how much money she had in the pocket book, but probably no very large amount. It was only a few days before this robbery that Charles Stephens, one of Mrs. Sebree's neighbors saw three or four strange men camped in that neighborhood. Doubtless these strangers were around locating houses for the purpose of robbery. Since the above was put in type we have learned these additional particulars in regard to the robbery: The house was entered by a window. The thief carried into the house a large stone which was left lying in a window. It is thought the job was done early in the night, as the dog, which was evidently made friendly with the thief or thieves, was barking viciously for some time early in the evening, attracting the attention of Mrs. Sebree, her daughter and son, the only persons at home. The watch taken was a present sent a few months since to the daughter by her brother. The gold chain which was detached from the watch was dropped on the floor, where it was found in the morning. The first known of the robbery was in the morning when Mrs. Sebree arose and discovered the dresser drawers sitting in the floor, and every thing in the room turned topsyturvy. No clue.

Virulent Cancer Cured.

Startling proof of a wonderful advance in medicine is given by druggists G. W. Roberts of Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there had long suffered with what good doctors pronounced incurable cancer. They believed his case hopeless till he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which treatment completely cured him. When Electric Bitters are used to expel bilious kidney and microbe poisons at the same time this salve exerts its matchless healing power, blood diseases, skin eruptions, ulcers and sores vanish. Bitters 50c, Salve 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

Make arrangements to spend your Fourth of July in Lawrenceburg where a grand and glorious celebration will be held under the auspices of Miami Fire Co. No 1. A good program of contests for liberal cash premiums has been arranged and contests are free for all to enter. No fake about this, everything advertised will take place according to program. Another special and new feature will be the free dancing. Heretofore it has been customary to charge each gent for the privilege of dancing, but this year a large and fine dancing floor will be free to all. Dance music will be furnished by a fine string band. Visitors to Lawrenceburg on that day will be well cared for.

A Burlington fishing party composed of about 50 persons, the majority of which was young ladies, went to Gunpowder, last Saturday morning. Chas. Westbay drove a hay wagon that was propelled by four horses and conveyed as merry a crowd of young people as ever visited that classic stream. Several baskets of provisions were prepared for the occasion, and the lunch spread at the noon hour was one of the leading features of the outing. Having spent a delightful day the party started home just about the time the storm clouds began gathering in the west, and the journey was an exciting race with the storm king, the picnicers winning in a very close finish. If any fish were caught during the day, no record was made of the event, but there is no way of estimating the fun that was had.

Several Burlington ladies were in the city, Friday, posting up on spring styles and buying accordingly. When the procession left town, the observing masculine element began predicting rain before night, but they knew not whereof they prophesied.

The State Board of Equalization proposed increasing the land and personal property in this county subject to equalization, two per cent this year, and so notified County Judge Cason, and fixed the 5th inst. for hearing any protest the county might see proper to make. Judge Cason selected the following persons to accompany ex-Assessor Thomas G. Willis to Frankfort on that day and show the State Board the error of its way: County Attorney Castleman, R. O. Powers, of Verona; J. W. Berkshire, of Petersburg; Hon. J. W. Kennedy, of Union. This delegation had no trouble demonstrating to the State Board that Assessor Willis had assessed the county up to its full tax value, and his work was left unmolested, and Boone county will pay taxes on her property just as her efficient assessor valued it. Mr. Willis made the county a good official, and his official labors will continue to be appreciated by her people.

George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its colums, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by all druggists.

EPICUREAN CHINAMEN.

The Tables of Many in This Country Have the Best to Be Found in Market.

The food bought by the Chinese living in America is often quite as expensive as that of the whites. Instead of living altogether on rice and chop suey, as is the general impression, Chinamen, being quite as fond of meat as Americans, buy pork, beef and chickens. Chop suey is made to sell to curious white persons who visit Chinatown. In the vicinity of every large city where there is any considerable Chinese colony, there are truck gardens, devoted to raising vegetables exclusively for Chinamen from seed brought from their native land. These vegetables are unknown to Americans. But the Chinese also consume large quantities of the finekinds of American vegetables, says Forum.

The Chinaman has a sweet tooth, also; and in the best Chinese restaurants in San Francisco, Chicago, New York and other large cities, the best of wines are served to Chinese as well as American customers, together with the finest and most expensive foods. In the average Chinese restaurants in those cities good board can be had by the Chinese for from $15 to $20 a month, and these restaurants are largely patronized. As a rule, the Chinamen are compelled to lodge in mean quarters, but in New York and San Francisco there are a number of well-appointed homes occupied by the families of the well-to-do Chinese merchants, which the American seldom or never sees. In New York there is an apartment house, up to date in every respect, occupied by Chinese families. The Chinaman sticks as closely as he can to the traditions and customs of his country, which are strange to the occidental, and, therefore, a subject for comment and often for derision.

TROLLEY AGAINST HORSE.

The Balky Animal Finds That the Power of Electricity Is Too Much for Him.

People passing along the lower end of the Bowery the other day where one of the cross-town lines intersects the Third avenue tracks were treated to a rare and rather ludicrous spectacle. A white horse attached to a covered van was plodding thoughtfully along in the line of the car tracks. Behind it the motorman was clanging his gong for the passage to be cleared and the driver was urging his horse to move from the track to one side, says the New York Times.

Just as the horse reached the point where the lines intersect it stopped and became entirely lost in its train of thought. The driver pleaded, shouted, cursed, but the horse was oblivious alike to threats and entreaties. It stood quiet and patient, like David Harum's famous equine that "stood without hitchin'."

The cross-town car was blocked—so was the Third avenue car in the rear. The passengers were growing impatient and some of the irritable ones were beginning to alight, but the horse still maintained its statuesque attitude.

A policeman who appeared tried coaxing, then violently tugged at the bridle, but the horse was calmly superior to being either led or driven. It was the Third avenue motorman whose mental activities helped to solve the difficulty just as plans were being formulated for blindfolding the beast. He turned on his power and the car slowly began to move; so did the covered van, right up against the horse, pushing him along, willy-nilly. The horse held to the fight bravely, however, and the Bowery was treated to the rare sight of seeing an actual demonstration of the superiority of electric over horse power. It was not long before the strain began to tell. The horse snorted and moved grudgingly to one side. Then the car sped on its way, bearing the triumphant motorman.

DANDY DOGS IN PARIS.

Leaders of Fashion Have Their Canine Pets Clad in the Height of Fashion.

There appears to be as much care spent upon the dresses of dogs as upon those of the ladies who own them. No leader of fashion in Paris is now seen without her doggie curled and scented, with jeweled collar, leash and bracelets. His outdoor garments are made to match his mistress' toilet, the silken coats being ornamented with frills, and bunches of flowers artistically placed in the ruffles round his neck. For wintry weather he has a warm coat with a huge storm collar, lined and edged with expensive fur, and fastened with a jeweled clasp, says a London paper. No coat is complete without a pocket into which is jauntily stuck the daintiest of small lace handkerchiefs. Nor are his boots forgotten. Unlike puss in boots, however, he has two pairs made of soft black India rubber, and usually buttoned up the sides. If he should prefer lace-up boots he can have them. Collars are many and varied. Thus, a bulldog who is somewhat bare about the neck has a plain collar of dark leather, with bars of brass or steel, and a thick fur ruff at each side to set off his head. A long-haired dog, such as the Yorkshire or Blenheim, has a collar of great suppleness, so as to catch in his hair. Some one has made of blue suede, set with real gold studs, filigree golden balls, and a gold bell. As much as £24 has been paid for such a collar.

Die Violent Deaths.

Of the latest 200 grand viziers of the sultan of Turkey not more than 24 have died naturally. One hundred of them were poisoned, and 36 of the others were either beheaded or drowned in the Bosphorus. Of the remaining 40 the cause of death cannot be traced. One of the viziers was only four hours in office, and another occupied the position for only ten minutes, being strangled at the end of that time.—London Mail.

THE RIGHT WAY OUT OF IT.

Enlightened Ideas of Government Should Do Away with Oppression and Terrorism.

It pleases the spokesmen of the administration to represent that the only alternative to the existing conditions in the Philippines is a scuttle and, unfortunately, in this they are aided to some extent by those democrats who fail to suggest any other remedy.

The true alternative to the present system of conquest, terrorism and silence is the introduction of enlightened ideas of government and the promulgation of the usual guaranties of freedom, says the Chicago Chronicle.

In other words, the methods of Russia and Spain, too long practiced in the name of the people of the United States without their knowledge, should give place to the measures which the great republic has adopted heretofore in all of its dealings with newly acquired territory.

There is evidence that most of the resistance which we have met with in these islands is due to the fact that we have been attempting to establish there an intolerable despotism. We have played the same role that Spain essayed for hundreds of years. We have carried the banner of freedom in one hand and the weapons of tyranny in the other. We have demanded submission not to the republic, but to the empire; not to the constitution, but to Elihu Root; not to the laws of the United States, but to the decrees of Mr. Root's scandalous little bureau of insular affairs.

What can we expect?

The people of the Philippines as a whole may or may not be fitted for self-government, but the fact that considerable numbers of them resist tyranny is conclusive proof that they are intelligent enough to appreciate the fact that the policy which the administration is pursuing there in the name of the American people is in conflict with the ideas of liberty which have long been associated with the government and people of the United States.

Elihu Root's policy in the Philippines is a blunder and a crime. It is a blunder and a crime which the political party now in power at Washington has shared. Considerations of patronage and plunder have silenced every member of the organization with the exception of a few men of advanced age who are no longer influenced by selfish ambitions. Dragooning in the Philippines has been followed by dragooning in America, and such is the fear of the usurpations no republican who looks to a political future ventures to protest.

It must be clear enough now to every intelligent American that the Philippines were acquired not for the people of the United States, nor for the purpose of conferring liberty upon their inhabitants, but with the sole object of opening up a new and profitable field for the operations of syndicates and exploiters. Despotism would favor such a policy just as constitutional government would render it impossible.

The alternative to a drumhead despotism in the Philippines is not to scuttle. It is to establish a government in accordance with the constitution and the laws. So far as certain democrats have indorsed the scuttle policy, they have contributed not a little to the impression that Elihu Root's tyranny must be accepted as a choice of evils.

The Effect Will Be Lost.

Senator Hoar's earnest speech against his party's policy in the Philippines was as sincere an utterance as has ever been voiced in the senate chamber, and it was as genuinely American as sincere. Yet there is not the remotest likelihood of that speech influencing republican action on this issue. The dominant element in Senator Hoar's party is completely surrendered to the perilous policies of imperialism and colonialism that were born with the temptation created by our mastery of Spain in the Philippines. These ominous and un-American policies will be maintained as long as the republican party remains in power. Senator Hoar's great speech was utterly impotent for good, in so far as a correction of his own party's evil tendency is concerned. The American people must turn to the democracy for the saving Americanism necessary in the present crisis.—St. Louis Republic.

——The beef trust does not seem to have been shaken much by the injunction against it in Chicago. But the injunction may serve the purpose of the administration in fooling stupid people into believing that its "war" on the trusts is anything but false pretense. These proceedings are likely to be dragged out until after the congressional elections, and then in all probability they will end in a fiasco, as some similar "wars" have done. Incidentally the president may succeed in convincing the trusts that if they do not want to run up against the real thing they would better make quick decision in his favor as against the wily Hanna.—Johnstown (Pa.) Democrat.

——The democratic party is getting ready for an assault on the walls of special privilege that will force something to give way. Back of the demand for tariff revision and trust regulation will be found the people. And everyone of them will have a hammer and a handful of nails to help nail down the lid of that coffin.—Toledo Bee.

SEE THE MENACE OF TRUSTS.

The People Are Becoming Convinced of the Dangers of Republican Protection.

Unquestionably the sentiment of the middle west and northwest at the present time is so strongly in favor of tariff revision as to promise some extremely disagreeable surprises for the republican party in the near future, says the St. Louis Republic.

For some few years past the people have been slowly but surely awakening to the fact that a high protective tariff contained no meaning of benefit to themselves. They have found that the only results, as far as they were concerned, was that they were compelled to pay higher prices for American manufactured products than was paid in foreign markets for the same products. When they remembered that the high tariff was levied for the express purpose of "protecting" American industries from foreign competition, the fact above mentioned opened their eyes to the bunko nature of the tariff.

During the time that the people, the consumers, have been paying this tariff tax, amounting to many millions of dollars, the monopoly trusts, the sole beneficiaries of this tax tribute exacted from the people, have grown enormously wealthy. The chief figures in these trusts are millionaires many times over. They have been made so because of the enormous profits on their goods which the American cousuming public was compelled to pay. Growing thus wealthy, they have also become arrogant and insolent. They do not now recognize that the people have any rights which they are bound to respect. They feel that they control the republican party and that the republican party controls the government, hence they are safe in scorning the people and insisting upon further privileges and the maintenance of the high protective tariff.

There is a big surprise in store for these monopoly millionaires and for the political party which does their bidding. The patience of the American people has at last reached its limit. The recent development of chief trust rapacity and of the railway trend toward a most ominous monopoly of the carrying trade in the northwest has aroused the people to a sense of peril. Protective action will be taken at the polls in the congressional elections this year and in the presidential elections two years hence. The people now know beyond all question that they must eliminate the trust evil from American life if the rights of the many are to prevail as against the privileges of the few.

They Can't Steal Much.

There is a growing impression that the republican leaders in the house will not undertake to pass the steamship subsidy bill in this session, but will postpone its passage until next winter. The house has ample time to pass the bill now, if a majority could be mustered in its favor. In order to give the republicans of the house rope enough the democrats of the senate made little obstruction or delay to the passage of the bill. But the maneuver has not worked satisfactorily. If the house cannot be induced to pass the bill now there will be just as little—perhaps less—prospect of its passage next winter, after nearly a year's further experience of the growth of the American merchant marine without subsidy.—Philadelphia Record.

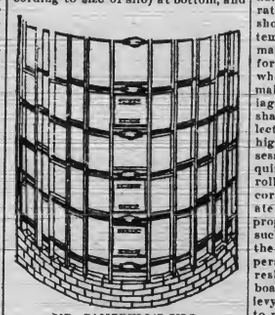
——The hostility to the ship subsidy bill on the part of republicans in the house is so great that its friends advise that no more be said about it, as further advocacy may lead to repeal of the three-quarters of a million bonus now paid to American ocean steamships. — Indianapolis Journal.

——Tariff revision is declared to be in the air in congressional circles at Washington and undoubtedly got a great send-off in the vote of the house on the Cuban bill, on which 62 republicans put themselves on record in favor of removing the Dingley tariff on refined sugar. It is believed to be the beginning of an effort within the republican party to make a general revision of the Dingley schedules.—Pittsburg Post.

——The people have long ago accurately sized up the trust situation. They know that the great combinations in restraint of trade are a menace of the gravest import to the general good. They have seen these organizations created and fostered by republican policies. In every important political campaign they find the trusts aligned solidly on the republican side, contributing heavy sums to the republican campaign slush funds and using all their influence to compel their employes to vote the republican ticket.—St. Louis Republic.



AGRICULTURAL HINTS

AN EFFECTIVE SILO.

Its Designer Claims That It Is Safe and Durable and Can Be Erected at Small Cost.

The foundation wall is of good, hard brick or stone, built about one foot above the surface, cementing on top smooth and level; fill in center with small stone and coarse gravel, well tamped, kettle shape, so that at the sides it comes up to top of wall, then cover with cement two inches thick.

The silo is framed with 2x4 studding, 16 inches apart from center to center, in circular form as shown in cut. It is supported by pieces 14 inches long, spiked between the studding at such distances apart as necessary to nail on siding and to resist the pressure of the strap-iron bands. These bands are placed 2½ and 3½ feet apart (according to size of silo) at bottom, and wider apart toward the top. The 14-inch pieces should project three-sixteenth inch outside of studding, so that by the use of the turnbuckle the hoops may be tightened as the timber seasons. Cover outside up and down with matched siding or boards and battens. Make manholes with good headers and frames. Don't use sills. Set studding directly on the wall, so that there will be nothing to draw dampness and rot out, or making repair easy, if it ever does rot. The roof can be flat, or tin, iron or felt.

This is a good frame and costs less in labor and material than any other frame I have seen. Lath inside with common three-eighth by two-inch lath, which will stand the pressure between the studding. Second growth chestnut, pine or hemlock makes good lath; put them on one-eighth inch apart, and break joints every four or six lath.

I recommend the wood fiber plaster, which contains no acid, as some other cement plasters do, which reduces the strength. This plaster adheres to any substance such as wood, stone, brick, etc., is waterproof, fire and vermin proof, and is elastic and air-tight, contains no lime, hair or sand. I have used it and tested it against freezing and exposure of all kinds of weather, and can recommend it to stand. This should be painted or coal tarred inside, and you have a complete job, and at a cost of about 60 per cent. of what good ceiling would cost and far superior, as it will keep the liquid from the wood and prevent rotting. One ton of plaster should cover 120 yards, and 1,800 lath for same, or an estimated cost of $23 for all material and work, for the 120 yards. Good G. P. Ceiling for same, 1,350 feet put on, will cost about $35.—F. H. Campbell, in Ohio Farmer.

PEACH AND PLUM ROT.

Timely Letter from Prof. M. B. Waite, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Our experiments in the treatment of monilia, the rot of peaches and plums, last year were not altogether satisfactory. In fact, this has been the usual experience of investigators all over the country for several years past. The fact is that spraying with Bordeaux mixture either entirely prevents or greatly reduces the monilia fungus, but the mixture itself is injurious to the foliage. This has varied with the strength of the mixture used and the amount of lime it contains, and in unexplainable ways it has varied in different seasons, times and places. We hesitate to advise any one to spray peaches and Japanese plums after the foliage is out, on account of the danger of injuring the leaf. The injury is of two sorts: First, the shot-hole or corrosive effect, by which the fungicide scorches and cuts holes out of the leaves; this follows shortly after the spraying; and second, the defoliating effect, which comes on gradually, from a week to a month, or even two or three months after the spraying is done.

There is no question about the desirability of spraying before the buds open or at the time they are swelling. This will prevent peach leaf curl and will also be advantageous for the monilia. For this purpose the standard Bordeaux 6-4-50 formula, that is, six pounds bluestone, four pounds lime and 50 gallons water, can be used, or even more concentrated if necessary. The trees should be sprayed until they are blue. If any spraying at all is done, after the foliage is out, it should be done with a formula containing three pounds of bluestone to nine pounds of lime in 50 gallons of water.

MORE AID FOR ROADS.

New York Has Just Passed a Law Which Should Be Studied by Legislators Everywhere.

Gov. Odell has signed a measure passed by the legislature that is calculated to aid very materially in the work of road repairing throughout the state. It is an amendment to the highway law that made possible the substitution of the money system for that of day's labor in the repairing of the public highways, and the bill that has now become a law provides for doubling the state aid toward such work.

Employment of the money system of road improvement has met with very general favor by the people throughout the state. The provisions of the law are of such moment as to warrant more than summary notice. It is provided that:

"Any town voting in favor of the money system shall annually raise by tax, to be levied and collected the same as other town taxes, for the repair of highways, an annual sum of money, which shall be equal to at least one-half the value at the commutative rates of the highway labor which should be assessed under the labor system, but in any town in which there may be an incorporated village which forms a separate road district, and wherein the roads and streets are maintained at the expense of such village, all property within such village shall be exempt from the levy and collection of such tax for the repair of highways of such town, and the assessors of the town are hereby required to indicate on the assessment roll the property included in such incorporated village in a column separate from that containing a list of the property in the town not included in such village, and shall also place on the assessment roll the names of all persons liable to pay tax who are not residents of such village, and the board of supervisors are directed to levy a tax of $1 on each person liable to poll tax as thus indicated; but this tax shall not apply to assessments made for damages and charged for laying out or altering any road or for erecting or repairing any bridge in such town. The amount of such tax shall be determined by the commissioners of highways and the town board, who shall certify the same to the board of supervisors, the same as any other town charge. The clerk of the board of supervisors of each county containing a town which has voted for the money system shall on or before the first day of January of each year transmit to the state controller a statement certified by him and signed and verified by the chairman of such board, stating the name of each town so voting, and the amount of money tax levied therein for the repair of highways during the preceding year. The controller shall draw his warrant upon the state treasurer in favor of the treasurer of the county in which such town is situated, for an amount equal to 50 per cent. of the amount so levied in each town. The county treasurer shall pay out the amount so paid to him on account of the money tax levied in any such town upon the order of the highway commissioners thereof, to be used by him for the repair and permanent improvement of such highways therein, and in such manner as the commissioner of highways and town board may determine. The sum paid by the state to any town by virtue of this section shall not exceed in any one year one-tenth of the per cent. of the taxable property of such town."

The particular change made is the increase in state aid from 25 to 50 per cent. But the general purpose of the law is to insure the making of road improvements and repairing under the supervision of a competent and skilled official. Under the old system of working out the road tax our farmers were apt to do the work at their own convenience. The times they selected were not always the best times for such work and the systems pursued were seldom the same and rarely applied according to effective and accepted plans of road making.

The money system insures the work being done in a uniform way, at the proper time of the year and according to the most modern methods of road construction. Furthermore, the farmers who so desire may receive employment on the work at a fair wage, under proper supervision and direction.

The system was made optional, and while it was heartily indorsed in many sections of the state before the doubling of state aid as provided in this new law, it should now be universally adopted since such a course will be imperative when the extensive plans for our road improvement are carried out.—Daily Saratogian.

Death of San Jose Scale.

There are three kinds of treatment now being recommended for San Jose scale. There is the fumigation method, which is generally believed to be the most effectual, and which is known to be the most expensive, but which cannot be used practically except on comparatively small trees. Secondly, there is the lime, salt and sulphur spray, which seems to be the favorite in New York state and Ontario orchards, where the scale has become established. Third, there is the crude petroleum treatment, which is highly recommended by some, and which has proved emphatically dangerous with others.

The separator is a good cleanser of milk, so far as foreign bodies are concerned, and even with liquid foreign matter the sooner the butter fat is out of the tainted milk the better.

Lactic acid is an acidity produced by an air germ that breaks up the sugar in the milk.

GOD'S LITTLE ONES.

Jesus Takes One of Them as the Text of a Wonderful Sermon.

Discourse by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher on the Divine Thought for Children and the Responsibility of Adults Towards Them.

(Copyright, 1902, by A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.)

Chicago, June 8, 1902.

Text: "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you That in Heaven their angels do always behold the face of My Father Which is in Heaven. Matt. 18:10. Read Matt. 18:1-14.

The Dispute Beside the Way.—Mark tells us that the disciples had been engaged in such a spirited and lengthy discussion among themselves while they were journeying with their Lord to Capernaum that it had attracted His attention. With that marvelous, Divine patience which Jesus always displays towards His erring, self-seeking disciples, He wisely forbears breaking into the discussion, but waits until Peter, and James and John, and Andrew, and the rest have exhausted their arguments, and when they are come into the house, in His quiet, searching way, He asks them: "What was it that ye disputed among yourselves by the way?" A shamefaced confession on their part follows. Instead of talking with their Lord by the way, they had talked "among themselves," and as a result became involved in a useless and silly discussion. They realize now how the time had been worse than wasted. How often is it so among the disciples of Jesus Christ. Their way, their methods, their ideas, their position in the work of the Lord, as they suppose, so occupies their attention that they forget all about the Lord who is patiently and silently walking beside them, and instead of turning to Him for light and help they excitedly argue with one another until the precious, dying souls all about them are forgotten and all the light and joy of Christian services are driven away. Then it is that Jesus comes and gently seeks from us a confession and longs to teach us the supreme lesson of Christian service and true greatness.

A Little Child in Their Midst.—With that impressive and solemn silence which the soul feels when it has confessed its fault to the Lord and awaits the learning of the lesson which His loving wisdom always drives home if the soul is submissive and teachable, Jesus turns from the group of now silent disciples, and, calling a little child unto Him, sets him in the midst of them. Here is his text. A little one to illustrate Divine truth. A little one in the Master's arms helping Him speak some of the profoundest principles upon which His Kingdom was to be established. Here is a picture for God's ministers of to-day to contemplate. A little one in the midst of the modern day congregation, with its innocent prattle, is too often frowned upon, and instead of furnishing a text for the preacher makes him forget both his text and his sermon, and so disturbs his peace of mind as to unfit him for the delivering of God's message. A little child in the midst of them is nearly always the setting which Scripture gives to the audiences to whom Christ preached. The artist in painting the scenes of Jesus' activity on the mountain side, or by the rippling waters of the blue Galilee, or in the villages where He healed and taught, has almost never failed to place the little ones there, and we find them very near to the Master's side. If is the way the Lord would have it. More little ones in the midst of the modern day congregations would bring more of the presence of Jesus into the assembly, and give greater hope for the future of the rising generation.

The Master's Selection of a Little Child.—If your child had been there that day would it have been he whom the Master would have called to His side, and of whom He could have said: "Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven." Or would He have seen so much of your own worldliness, and pride, and selfishness, and impatience, and fault-finding reflected in the child of your daily care, or perhaps neglect, that He must needs turn from him to say to you: "Whoso shall offend one of these little ones, which believe in Me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea?"

Oh, sad it is that so soon is reflected in the innocent babe which God has given as a precious heritage the sins and petty vices of the misguided parents. From the day that that little bit of Heaven begins to draw its nourishment from the mother's breast and feel the touch of the father's hand it begins to learn, and is as sensitive to record the discordant note and angry mood as is the wax cylinder of the phonograph to catch the sound waves that set the delicate needle to vibrating. Sad it is that not every child of to-day would draw the attention of the Master as did the little one of the Scripture before us. Notice that Jesus selected him because of his quiet, sweet modesty, and held him up as an example of beautiful humility. You may polish your little one with society politeness and ballroom grace, you may top him or her out in the latest finery, and help him to find pleasure in the amusement hall and theater, and educate him to read the Sunday newspaper by giving him the funny inside, behind whose mask of alleged humor lies hidden the poison darts from the pit of hell, but be sure that your child will not be the one the Lord will select as a text from which to preach a wonderful sermon on humility the type of true greatness.

The Little One Knew Jesus.—Perhaps Jesus had visited often in the home where lived the little one of our text. His little feet had been directed by the devout parents to the Master's side, and in his childish innocency he had drunk in the Saviour's words and felt the Divine impress on his tender, sensitive little heart. He was not too young to love mamma and papa. He was not too young to love this, the Dearest Friend Who had ever come into their happy home. Two reasons why the little ones in the home do not truly know and love Jesus: No room is made in the home for Jesus, and the parents do not devoutly and faithfully direct the little feet to His side. The Bible may be on the shelf or even in our hands for the few minutes of perfunctory reading; the stereotyped prayer may fall from our moving lips while the heart is buried in the fairs of this world, but Jesus is not there. He only comes where room is made for Him. Will you not make room for Him so that the little ones may come to know Him, too? On the walls of the home I love best hangs this motto:

"Christ Is the Head of This House,
The Unseen Guest at Every Meal,
The Silent Listener to Every Conversation."

And knowing the blessedness of His presence since we made room for Him and receive from Him a daily portion before beginning the duties of the day, we would rather part with any treasure than miss the blessing He alone can give. Make room for Jesus in the home and then daily lead the little ones to Him, where His benediction and blessing may rest upon them. Talk with them about Jesus, and chords will be set to vibrating in their lives which will never cease throughout eternity. Begin the day with Jesus, and often it will close with the eager plea as the tired little head rests upon its pillow: "Mamma, tell me that story about Jesus again." And as the drooping eyelids and gentle breathing sweetly announce that slumberland has been reached we finish our story of Jesus and leave the little one in His arms to rest.

Lessons from the Little One.—Up into the face of the Master the little one gazes in loving wonder, little realizing he has been lifted to the pinnacle of greatness in the Kingdom of Heaven. True greatness never realizes its greatness. The essence of true greatness in the Kingdom of Heaven is childlike humility, which sees only the Lord and accords Him first place and loving service. One of the distressing hindrances to the work of the Lord to-day is the same spirit which was displayed in the discussion of these disciples as they journeyed by the way, and which we are now so ready to condemn and wonder at. There is to-day the same seeking of the chief seats at the feast which was so sharply rebuked by the Lord upon one occasion. Plenty of self-appointed leaders; too many willing to be generals and too few ready to serve as the unknown private. Let this little one teach you the lesson of true greatness in the Master's service.

But first of all note the development of our Saviour's sermon, as recorded by Matthew, in the eighteenth chapter of his Gospel. Having set the child in their midst, Jesus goes on to say: "Verily, I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." Not a question after all of position in the Kingdom, but the vitally important one of first getting into that Kingdom. These words of Jesus are addressed, not to strangers to Him, but to the disciples who have left all and followed Him.

"Peter, I have called you from your fishing nets to make of you a fisher of men. You have heard and obeyed my first call, but the fact that you are concerned about yourself and are seeking the chief seat in the Kingdom is evidence that you as yet do not really belong to my Kingdom. Except ye be converted and become as a little child ye cannot enter into my Kingdom." There stands Peter, with the rest of the self-seeking disciples, and as he turns his eyes on the little one sitting on Jesus' knee and sees with what absorbed interest he presses close to the Saviour's breast in loving confidence, he begins to see himself as Jesus sees him, and to understand the import of His solemn words. Peter the self-seeker does not belong to the Lord. Peter, absorbed in his argument to prove his right to the chief place in the Kingdom, is in danger of losing a place in it altogether.

Take Heed.—Jesus has led step by step from the little one in their midst into His Kingdom, and now He is ready to give them a glimpse into a beautiful mystery of that Kingdom, and He prefaces it by a solemn, "Take heed." "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, that in Heaven their angels do always behold the face of My Father which is in Heaven." When Jesus says "Take heed," there is a solemn import in His words. And with the eternal interests of one of His precious little ones in the balance, there is no mistaking the intensity of His meaning. Two striking conditions mark the attitude of the present age towards childhood. Never was so much thought and effort put forth in behalf of the little ones, and never before were little ones so unwelcome in the home. Never before were children so little home-trained and so over-trained outside the home as to-day. Parents seem content to relegate the secular and religious training of their children to those outside the home, who are not directly interested in them, and the mother's knee and the mother's Bible, the little home task and the patient teaching of the children into industrious habits are fast becoming only memories of the past. Never before was there so much need of raising our voices against these blighting tendencies, and earnestly and solemnly repeating the words of our Lord: "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones."

Childless Homes. — The thunder tones of God's wrath sounds forth in the words, "Take heed," when the despising of these little ones makes them unwelcome guests in the home. It is no longer fashionable to rear large families, or even any families at all. How often the newly-wedded pair, with set purpose born of hell, deliberately determine that no baby voice shall make music in their home, nor baby hand rest softly on the mother's breast! Selfishness and scientific nonsense of the day can dictate a longer list of reasons why the children are not wanted than we have space to enumerate here. But against every reason which the selfish heart can conjure up, these words of Jesus stand out like letters of fire: "Take heed, that ye despise not one of these little ones!" The presence of children in the Jewish home was a manifest evidence of the blessing of God, and the cry of the childless wife was, give me children or I die. Hannah, in the temple, so overcome by the anguish of her loneliness as to appear to Eli, the high priest, to be in a maudlin condition from too much wine, made one request of the Lord, that she might have children, and God gave her the desire of her heart. David sings: "Lo! children are an heritage of the Lord: and the fruit of the womb is His reward. Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them; they shall not be ashamed, but they shall speak with the enemies in the gate."

Responsibility of Parenthood.—Through the open window comes the pleading, persistent notes of a mother sparrow as she seeks by the tempting morsel in her beak to draw her little one away from the nest and get him to try his wings and obtain strength and skill to sail the blue heavens and successfully win a livelihood for himself. I notice she does not commit this important task to some one else, nor does she leave the little one for club appointment, or social function, or even the sewing circle, until her task is accomplished and her birdling can safely fly alone. The heartbreaking cry of the mother, "Where is my wandering boy tonight," would not so often be wrung from the quivering lips if, when the boy was first learning to try his strength and was forming habits, his mother had been at his side to guide his feet and take the sting from the poisoned darts of the enemy of her boy's soul. The foul word, the unclean thought, the lustful habit, the lying tongue, the evil associate would not have usurped her place in his heart if her watchful eye had been faithful to detect the sowing of the first seed, a... in one of mother's quiet little talks she had disarmed the power of the enemy and made her boy strong against temptation. "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones." To turn your child upon the street, to neglect him for responsibilities in society, in charitable work, in church activities, is to despise these little ones, and perhaps forever turn their feet away from the Lord. I do not know how it is in your community, your city, but in the locality where I dive many children live upon the street and go home to eat and, when the hour grows late, to sleep. And oh the crime and nastiness which these little ones learn between the hours of dusk and bedtime. From one end of this land to the other we need the ringing of the curfew bell, but most of all we need an awakened parenthood which will not so despise these little ones as to feel that they are a nuisance when they are around and be glad when they are away out of sight. Oh, the possibility which lies in that little life which God has committed to your hands and which it is your solemn duty to patiently and lovingly develop. "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones."

Angels as Ministering Spirits.—It is a beautiful thought, and one fully warranted by the words of our text, to know that God's angels have special care for the little ones, "for I say unto you that in Heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven." It is as natural for the little one to unfold its mind to the thoughts of a loving Saviour and Heavenly Father as it is for the bright-faced flower to turn towards the warming rays of the sun or the lark to mount up into the heavens with his cheery song. What sweet and wonderful secrets the angels of God can whisper in the tender little hearts, if only the worldliness and unbelief of the parents are not allowed to first plant their blighting seeds of death there. The little lost lambkin out on the mountain side is of more concern than the ninety-and-nine sheep safe in the fold. "Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish." When the tiny bit of humanity comes into the world an angel hovers over the little life and watches it develop. Heaven is very near and the forces of the unseen world are ready to cooperate with the parents in drawing that little one towards God. But if the atmosphere of the home is laden with the things of this world and the Lord has no place there how can the little one's spiritual side grow towards God? It is blighted like the tender plant which is put in the cold, damp, dark cellar. God does all He can to draw the hearts of men towards Him. He starts the babes in life with a ministering angel. What more can he do! "Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you that their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven."

THE ST. LOUIS FAIR.

The Agricultural building is over a third of a mile long.

It takes four horses, five men, a heavy truck and 500 spectators to move a maple tree.

When the construction of the fair is really under way there will probably be 8,000 laborers at work instead of 800.

A section of a city street is to be exhibited at the fair, cut perpendicularly, showing subways, sewers, etc., and things under the street.

Madagascar's exhibit is entirely ready. It may be as well to explain that the reason Madagascar's exhibit is ready is because it is now on display in the French colonial exhibition.

A flight of 50 great marble steps will lead up the hill to the Government building. They will be beautiful to look at. Everybody will take the intramural on a hot summer afternoon.

All the obsolete systems of law known will be talked about at the congress of lawyers and jurists; but when the most obsolete is being discussed it is to be feared most of the young lawyers will be on the Midway.

St. Louis will have the only three-cornered main building ever built at a world's fair. The Machinery building backs up against a hill composed of solid rock, and rather than blast out the hill the builders will leave out a corner.

The nations and foreign states that have so far officially given notice that they will participate in the fair are: France, Japan, China, Greece, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Mexico, Chili, Siam, Peru, San Salvador, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Canada and Cuba. In this list Asia really shows up better than Europe.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The German emperor owns 359 carriages for the use of himself and his court.

Clean windows are scarce at The Hague just now, as, owing to the great height of the houses, domestic servants cannot with safety do the work, and the professional window cleaners are out on strike.

In Lisbon, Portugal, a peculiar feature of an ordinance regarding spitting in public conveyances is that the fine is to be imposed on the conductor, who is held responsible unless he can prove that he has informed the police of the infraction of the rule.

The total population of the United States, including residents of Alaska and Hawaii, and Americans stationed abroad in the military and naval service of the government, but not including Porto Rico or the Philippines, is 76,303,387. Of these people, 10,460,085, or 13.7 per cent., are foreign born.

Poverty is Ireland's worst ill. The problem is complicated by the prevalence of holdings too small for the decent support of a family. The "crofters" of Ireland actually comprise something like one-fourth of the agricultural population. Out of a total of some 486,000 agricultural holdings, 127,000 are of less than $16 annual valuation.

IN DISTANT LANDS.

The Azores' islands have no beast of prey native to them.

In 1909 the Eiffel tower will become the property of the city of Paris, and be used as its meteorological office.

The city of Nola, in Campania, was the first where church bells were used. This was about the year 400 A. D.

The Nile is the only river in the world that flows for 1,500 miles—from the Atbara to the sea—without one tributary.

A JUDGE'S WIFE

CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

MRS. JUDGE MCALLISTER.

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless---Cured by Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Judge McAllister writes from 1217 West 33rd St., Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured. Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna I enjoy that now."—Minnie E. McAllister.

We would caution all people against accepting substitutes for Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. There is no other internal remedy for catarrh that will take the place of Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you to the contrary.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

The great popularity of Peruna as a catarrh remedy has tempted many people to imitate Peruna. A great many so-called catarrh remedies and catarrhal tonics are to be found in many drug-stores. These remedies can be procured by the druggist much cheaper than Peruna. Peruna can only be obtained at a uniform price, and no druggist can get it a cent cheaper.

Thus it is that druggists are tempted to substitute the cheap imitations of Perunna for Peruna. It is done every day without a doubt.

Joseph Chambers, of Cincinnati, made his annual visit to the home of his childhood, near this place, yesterday.

County Atty. Castleman arrived home Monday evening after a visit of several days in Central Kentucky. His wife's sister, Mrs. C. M. Lillard and daughter, Miss Mary Frances, of Lawrenceburg, Ky., came home with him.

A Hazardous Trip.

An octogenarian, who lives near Burlington, and is thoroughly reliable, tells the following as an illustration of how he use to convey his eggs to market before the days of the huckster. He would let them accumulate until there were fifty dozen or so, when he would place them in a meal sack, which he would put on a horse and then ride on the sack to Petersburg, a distance of 8 or 9 miles, where he would deliver them to his kinsman then in the grocery business. He claims that he is the only man in this county who successfully performed the feat of carrying eggs to market in that way. For further and more complete particulars you are referred to Mr. W. T. Smith, whose address is Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

The Harness and Saddle Stallion,
DANDY CRISTO,
Will make the season of 1902, at my stable near Big Bone church, Boone county, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.
DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.
Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs-old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1100 lbs. Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; second dam by Mambrino Time; 4th dam by Bine Bull.
Monto Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark; he by Black Denmark; he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4-mile race horse; he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's first dam by Black William; she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whip's thoroughbred.
Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry, gr-dam by Black Squirrel; great-grand-dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.
This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.
Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.
DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.
He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS.

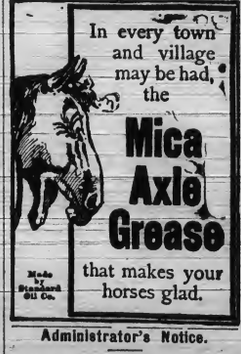
Sired by Wilkes, 2:24, 1st dam Alga by Artillery, 2:21¼, 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:28¾; 3d dam, Emma Arterburn, (dam of St. Armould, 2:29 and gr-d of 2 in 30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58, 4th dam, Jenny Johnson (gr-d of 3 in :30 list.
TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in Kentucky. He is 16½ hands high and weighs 1300 lbs. in ordinary condition; a horse of great power, fine style and action. He is a pure gaited trotter, a very fine breeder. His colts are large with good style and action, and are good sellers.
Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.
Also two Mammoth Jacks,
NUTWOOD and MIKE, Jr.,
will make the season at the same time and place. Nutwood is a dark brown (little gray,) 16 hands high—the premium jack of Northern Kentucky, never been beaten in a show ring, and one of the best breeders in Boone county.
Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.
Mike, Jr., 14½ hands high, will be 8-years-old the 1st of next Oct; was bred at Crescent Hill Stock Farm and was sired by Mike, (Riddell & Boddie's 15 hand jack); dam by Bourbon Chief, 16 hands high.
Terms—$7.00 to insure a live colt.—Limited to 25 mares.
Pasture and attention furnished mares from a distance at $1.50 per month. Care will be taken to prevent accidentes, but no responsibility should any occur. Parties disposing of mares forfeits all insurance and money is due at once.
Crescent Hill Stock Farm is 3 miles West of Richwood on the Richwood and Beaver pike. J. C. BEDINGER,
Richwood, Ky.



Imported French Coach Stallion,
LANTIER 1148,
Will make the present season at Thos. E. Randall's stable on the Burlington & Petersburg pike, 1 mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., the first four days in each week, and at the stable of J. I. McWethy, one mile below Petersburg, the remainder of the time, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Money due when mare is parted with.
DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.
Lantier is black, star in forehead, both hind feet white, foaled June 5, '98; bred by Madam Bourdin of St. Martin, Department of Calvados, France; sired by Government Stallion Conjointeur, dam Raghel by Tortoella out of a daughter of Lagopede.
J. I. McWETHY.
THOS. E. RANDALL.

Take the Recorder.

The Louisville Courier-Journal says: A little boy was drowned. Fruitless efforts were made to recover the body. A sailor told the father to get a loaf of bread and cut the center out. Then fill the hole with quicksilver and put the bread in the water near where the boy was drowned. It will float until directly over the spot where the body lies then sink. The loaf was prepared and placed on the water. It floated for half an hour, then settled in the water and suddenly shot under. The child's body was found directly beneath the spot where the loaf sank.

There is no longer doubt that the Kentucky oil fields extend across the State from the Tennessee line to the Ohio river, says a Mt. Olivet dispatch. Within the last few days oil has been found in six miles of Mt. Olivet and fourteen miles of the Ohio. H. D. Frisbie, who is much interested in the oil industry in Northern Kentucky, and who is drilling a well on the old Galbraith farm, near the north fork of Licking river, has struck a flow of oil at a depth of 220 feet. Expert oil men are convinced that oil exists in that locality in paying quantities. Mr. Frisbie, after pumping out several barrels of oil, has begun sinking the well to a greater depth. Before finding oil, a strong flow of natural gas was struck.

One of the features of the new Kentucky field worth mentioning is that oil has always been found at a short distance below the surface, as compared with the depth of wells in New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

The Fine Stallion,
JOE J.,
Will make the present season at my stable, ½ mile north of Bullittsville, Boone county, Ky., at $10 to insure a living colt. Care will be taken to prevent accident, but I will not be responsible should any occur.
JOE J is a beautiful red sorrel, 16½ hands high, well proportioned, fine style and action, and has proven to be a good breeder, as he has taken the premium whenever shown with his colts as a family.
JOE J was sired by Jenkins' Almont; 1st dam, Bostic Almont; 2d dam, Lecompton, thoroughbred; 3d dam, Tom Hal, pacer.
J. WASH WATTS.

FINE JACK.
I have a fine 3 y-o Jack that will make the season at my stable 2 miles from Florence, on Burlington pike, at $5 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Persons desiring to breed will do well to call and see him before breeding.

THE COMBINED STALLION.
MAX LEDGER,
will make the season of 1902, through the month of April, at O. P. Conner's farm, 4 miles south of Burlington, Ky., near the East Bend road. Beginning the first Monday and Tuesday in May, he will be found at Burlington; Wednesday at Union, and the remainder of the time at home.
Terms—$10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with.
Description and Pedigree:
Max Ledger is a fine black, 16 hands high, is a fine show horse, having taken 47 premiums at 14 fairs, and is the sire of the best lot of colts in Northern Kentucky. His colts are large, active and stylish. He is very fine in form and finish, and for style, we challenge competition. For saddle and harness he is unsurpassed by any horse in Boone Co.
This high bred young horse is from Ledger No. 12358, Vol 9, (sire of Belle K. 2:28¾ fourth heat with but six weeks handling,) Ledger E. pacer 2:24 at 9 yr-old, Kentucky Prince, 2:15; he by Crown Chief No. 4089, sire of Roland, 2:28, by Milford Mambrino; he by Mambrino Chief 11, sire of Lady Thorne, 2:18¼, Woodford Mambrino, 2:21¼ and many others. Max Ledger's dam, Kate Livingston by Forest Temple 136, by Edwin Forest; 2nd dam Madam Temple, dam of Flora Temple, 2:17½; 3rd dam by Tom Crowder; 4th dam by Bellfounder; 5th dam by Passenger.
Pasture $1.50 per month for mares from a distance. L. A. CONNER.

THE PREMIUM STALLION,
DEXTER.
will make the present season at my stable on Gunpowder creek, near Hathaway, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.
Dexter is a bay, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has made 5 races and won 4.
He was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Priam, sired by Bob Deadlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Cassius M. Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred.
Dexter's colts beat all competitors at the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, the Butler county, Ohio, and the Boone county, Kentucky, fairs, and the Boone county Harvest Home. Last year he took the premium at the Boone fair as the best brood stallion with 5 or more colts.
He will be in Burlington every county court day, and at Geo. Moore's stable at Beaver every Friday.
Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may occur.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1902. NO. 35.

BUFFALO.—We have been having some very fine summer weather.

Green beans, and peas and new potatoes are on the bill of fare.

There is a fine prospect for a large crop of potatoes in this vicinity.

James Sebree's hogs destroyed his garden completely one night last week.

L. J. Riley had a nice mare to get cut badly on a wire fence some time since. She is getting along nicely.

A horse belonging to Robert Woods had one of its legs broken by a kick from another horse. It is getting along very nicely.

W. J. Ryle, of Waterloo vicinity, was visiting his son at this place several days last week. He is in poor health this summer.

I wish to rectify a mistake made the other week. It was at E. Conley's that Robt. Woods and family were visiting instead of G. Elston's.

We were glad to see our old friend, B. F. Rue, of Cleves, O., among us for a few days. He and his family were here on a visit last week, the first time since they moved away.

Farmers have been very busy the last two weeks, setting tobacco. They are afraid the grasshoppers are going to be as destructive to the weed as the cut worms were to the corn.

Very few cherries were put up around here. Like all other fruit, they were very few and far between. There are no apples and very few peaches, but prospects for grapes are good.

Several persons from the city have been camping and having a nice time the past week ou Gunpowder. They have entertained this vicinity with splendid music, singing and whistling.

The friends of L. W. Stephens have made up $45 to purchase a horse for him to fill the place of the one that he lost. He heartily thanks them for their kindness, which will long be remembered.

HATHAWAY, June 16.—Chiggers are pleantiful again.

Cutting clover hay is the order now.

The thermometer registered 96 here last Thursday.

Willis Arsmith's dog went mad, one day last week. He killed it.

Big Bone church was given its annual cleaning, last Wednesday.

John F. Green, of Big Bone, visited E. B. Smith, one day last week.

Some body stole Marcus Ryle's tobacco hats one night last week.

Dr. Ryle, of Big Bone, has purchased the late Ras Huey land near Landing Springs.

Elmore Ryle, was thrown in the creek, while riding a colt, Sunday week. Not much hurt.

J. E. Weaver purchased a bunch of nice hogs of Jas. L. Huey last week, and took them to market.

Clark Rouse and son and W. L. Presser cut a bee tree on Mr. P's. farm a few days ago, and got lots of honey.

Big Bone church will ordain Robert Howlett a deacon, Friday, June 20th. There will be an all day meeting and a basket dinner.

Bro. Thomas, we second your motion and will cooperate with you. How would a big fish fry for the Recorder force and its correspondents suit you. Let the editor say when and where! If this don't suit, then most any old thing will do.

GUNPOWDER, June 16.—Sam Tanner and sister are visiting friends in Campbell county.

Mrs. Lizzie Bartell, of Florence, was a pleasant guest of Miss Lelia Floyd, Sunday.

Remember the social at E. H. Snyder's next Saturday evening the 21st. Everybody is invited.

E. O. Rouse and family spent last Sunday in Covington, guests of his brother-in-law, Thos. Thompson.

Luto Aylor went away down on Gunpowder and purchased a fine draught horse of a Mr. Ryle. Price, private.

There is no excitement here over the election in this neck of the woods, and it would be a hard matter to figure the result in this neighborhood.

Uncle Jacob Floyd is in a critical condition. He has been troubled with vertigo for several months, and on Thursday of last week, he had a severe stroke of apoplexy, and his condition has gradually grown worse ever since.

I have heard it said that if beans are planted in the sign of the blossom they will only bloom and bear no beans. I have in my garden some beans which were planted in the sign of the blossom, and never had a more abundant crop of beans. If you make a mistake and plant beans in the wrong sign don't dig them up for they will be all right.

CRESCENT June, 16.—Mr. and Mrs. John Flannigan and Mr. and Mrs. Lowery, of Newport, were guests at the home of Henry Groger, Sunday.

S. D. Rector and wife were visiting relatives at this place, Tuesday.

Albert Norman, of Liberty, Indiana, was the guest of his father, B. F. Norman, last week.

Quite a number from here attended the Granger's outing at Limaburg, last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Maud Morin, of Cincinnati, is spending several days with her aunt, Mrs. Laura Williams.

Miss Ciara Tanner, of Richwood, spent several days with her sister, Mrs. Ella Rector, last week.

J. B. Dixon, the McCormick agent at this place, sold a mower and rake to John Ransaleur, of Richwood, Tuesday.

Your correspondent was calling on Messrs Clinton Smith, Walter Garnett and Robt. McGlasson, of Hebron, last Friday.

Some one "swiped" Will Norman's tobacco plants, on the night of the 6th inst. When Will arrived at the plant-bed, next morning, with expectations of transplanting at least two acres and found that he had not been previous enough, he said something that would not look well in print.

RICHWOOD, June 16.—Raspberries are now in season.

Gaines Robinson sold to Joe Hughes 80 nice hogs, last week.

Wm. Clark, of Ludlow, was a guest at Jerry Carpenter's, Sunday.

Rev. Means was the guest of M. Grubbs, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Faulkner lost a valuable cow by being struck by a train, last week.

Several Cincinnati families spent Sunday at Mrs. Lucy Carpenter's pond.

The reaper, mower and plow will all play the same day the way it looks now.

Many of our young folks attended the Grange picnic at Harvest Home, Saturday.

Chas. Niemeyer and bride, of Covington, were guests of John Carpenter, Sunday.

Samuel Dobbins, Jasper Booth and mother were guests at John Powers', Sunday.

Perrin Hunter, of Price Hill, Cincinnati, was the guest of M. Grubbs, a few days last week.

Rev. Means preached at Zion, Sunday. Subject:—"The love of money is the root of all evil."

At a called meeting Saturday night, Excelsior Grange settled all of their festival business, clearing over $30.

Miss Lillie Hammond spent several days, last week, with her aunt, Mrs. Belle Northcutt, at Walton.

Campers sojourned in this vicinity a few days, last week, and stole Eli Carpenter's dog. He followed them and recovered it near Crittenden.

WALTON, June 16.—The contractor, Mr. Edward Stamler, had the carpenters busy all last week on the graded school building. Mr. J. R. Craven will, tomorrow, have a half dozen brick layers on the walls and the prospect is fair that the building will be pushed to an early completion.

Ike Cahn invited a couple of friends to go down to his house to try a make of his lemonade without the use of ice. It was so delicious that the taste is in the month yet and it waters for another trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Glasscock, Lulu and Joe, have been spending a week in the Bellevue neighborhood, the guests of Pepper Smith. Glasscock and wife, like all other persons who have become acquainted in that happy region, are most favorably impressed with the country and delighted with its people. He calls it "God's own country" and if Alexander traversed it he would have named it for his own.

W. M. Carlyle, of Toledo, O., is the guest of Robert Ford. Thirty or forty years ago Mr. Carlyle started in the business of selling buggies here and sold great numbers of them. Starting out on horseback he traveled every road and bridle path in the whole country and filled the land with vehicles. He prospered and is now in the business of banking, being connected with several of them.

Last Saturday morning about 8:30 o'clock Mrs. Jos. Glinn, of High St., was coming down stairs as usual with her, having the alarm clock under her arm and a lighted lamp in her hand, she tripped or made a misstep and fell to the floor bruising herself badly and having her head gashed so that a few stitches were required. She is getting along very nicely and relinquished not a one of her household duties, but went on about them in the usual manner. It was a narrow escape. Mrs. Glinn now intends to use candles.

Since the last communication death has struck down two victims. The first Mr. Samuel Houston, who passed away on Tuesday night the 10th inst., from brights disease in his 46th year. Mr. Houston was an honest, industrious citizen and had the esteem of those who knew him best. Tho suffering much, he never complained, and spent the last hours of his life to be gently falling asleep. He leaves a widow and several children the most of them quite young; he was a member in good standing of Walton Lodge of Odd-Fellows, and was buried by them in the Baptist cemetery.

Judge Lassing was in town the other day, and with the common sense for which he is remarkable, proceeded to put a large sized squelch on the imaginative croakers, who have been saying the primary was not legally called. The Judge says that it was legally called, that Mr. Nadaud has paid his assessment and he will be before the people in the primary. It dawned upon the minds of the opponents of Mr. Nadaud that Berry's friends would stand no nonsense about nominating by an Executive Committee, and they have handed in their sail. Nadaud is gaining ground every day, and his opponents are fighting shy of an issue about his youthfulness. Very often young blood is the best.

The Odd Fellows' building will be the most attractive part of the town on next Saturday the 21st. We republish from last week's issue:

The officers of the Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. and several distinguished speakers will be present at the Dedication of the Odd Fellows' Hall, corner of Main and High streets, on Saturday, June 21st at 2 p. m. The festival will commence in the store room under the hall at 6 p. m. The candidates for Congress will address the people at 8 p.m., in the Opera House and the town will put on a holiday appearance. The Walton brass band will make its first appearance and will generally surprise the people with the musical talent it will develop. There will be delegates in attendance from all parts of the country.

Happy Time in Old Town.

"We felt very happy," writes R. N. Revill, Old Town, Va., "when Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured our daughter of a bad case of scald head." It delights all who use it for Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Boils, Ulcers, Eruptions. Infallible for piles. Only 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

The thermometer was about 100 in the shade several times, last week.

COMMISSARY.—Mrs. James Beard visited her father and mother Tuesday. Her baby's leg that was broken is almost well.

Mrs. John Popham and daughter, Ettie, of South Hogan, are visiting Mrs. Gertie Parsons and Columbus Popham.

Mr. Fred McAtee and wife, of North Hogan, Ind., were visiting relatives in McVille the latter part of last and the first of this week.

Bernard Rogers and Ira Ryle went to Cincinnati last Sunday to the Zoo. The biggest sight and greatest excitement seen, was the Allphin—Beall foot race. Allphin was game, but Beall was the fleetest of foot.

Miss Eva Botts, the belle of Bellevue, and Miss Grace Sutton, a charming country lady, called on Misses Artie and Stella Ryle, last Sunday morning. All that is necessary to say about the intelligence and charms of Misses Artie and Stella is that they are within the corporate limits of the Commissary.

Last Saturday during the rain and hail storm, Wm. Slayback and Ed Burris were standing in the barn. They noticed the milch cows had taken shelter from the rain and hail under a couple of locust trees in the pasture field near by; the trees being only a few feet apart. Lightning struck in the top of one of the trees knocking the bark off to the gronnd, and strange to say, did not hurt any of the cattle, 14 in number.

Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Ryle were out riding, driving Henry Scott's blooded horse, Commodore Roseberry. They stopped at Eugene Kelley's to partake of some ice cream. When they started home the horse undertook to run one of his bluffs, and came near backing over an embankment, but the women were not of the bluffing kind, but forced him up into the road, headed for home, when they gave an exhibition of their superior horsemanship, splitting the pike wide open to Mrs. Scott's home, a distance of ¾ of a mile. Time, 1:20.

Some thought the rain and hail had destroyed all the locusts, but they seem to be as numerous as ever at the Commissary. We are like Joe Lillard's old bird dog, "have no ear for such music." We wish something would destroy them. The largest swarm of locusts known in the world's history invaded South Africa over 100 years ago. They were driven into the sea by a north wind, and the waves threw them back, a bank of dead locusts from three to six feet deep being formed for fifty miles along the coast.

Rabbit Hash, am glad our items interest you. Its so seldom anything we say or do interests anyone, that when it does it gets close to us—touches a warm spot in our heart. We hesitated to make the beginning, and felt very much embarrassed when we did, because we knew our efforts would be read by an intelligent public. A few days ago one of our neighbors said to us, "your items suit my taste the best of any in the Recorder," and another said, "yours is the first we look for and read." Such expressions as theirs and yours are encouraging, and does us good. We intend to take a little outing in the near future, and if you will send your name and address to Box 73, Burlington, Ky., we will come down and extend you the hand of brotherly love and friendship and break bread with you.

FLICKERTOWN.—The thermometer registered 100 last Thursday.

The saw mill men are boarding at Sam Hensley's.

All who had plants finished setting tobocco last week.

Some of the farmers will have to begin harvesting their wheat this week.

The early potatoes are made, and the prospects for a good crop of all kinds are flattering.

Jas. Minor was overcome by heat last Friday, and was in a critical condition for a good while.

D. M. Snyder and wife and several friends, of Bellevue, were here fishing last Thursday. They report pretty good luck.

Your correspondent's wife had hatched, last week, a chicken with two heads. It was a perfect, well developed chicken, with the exception of the two heads. Both heads were well developed and were joined together at the back of the cranium.

RABBIT HASH.—News is unusually scarce this week.

W. C. Ryle was visiting his mother here Saturday and Sunday.

Cale Ryle had a surgeon down from Lawrenceburg to see his horse, which has lung fever.

Bro. Cleek has been engaged to preach for the East Bend Baptist church for a year.

Quite an excitement was created here Thursday evening by the sinking of the towboat, Relief. She struck the sunken barge in the lower chute, and turned completely over. No lives were lost.

FLORENCE.—Miss Celia Tucker, of Walnut Hills, is the guest of her aunts, the Misses Hoggins.

Mr. Abel Carpenter is confined to his room with a sprained back.

Miss Lena Tanner is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Sarah Powers, in Verona.

Miss Minnie Hoggins has returned home after a brief stay in Cincinnati.

W. A. Kenyon, wife and son, Tom, spent Sunday with Mrs. Mary Latham.

Miss Virginia Cory Finch left Monday for a six months' visit to Canada and at the lakes.

Mrs. Will Conner and daughter, of Buffalo, New York, are visiting relatives in this place.

Mrs. Robert Rouse and children were entertained by Mrs. George Rice, near Limaburg, last Thursday.

Jas. Carpenter is having his house recently purchased of the Bedinger heirs, renovated, and he will occupy it soon.

Mrs. Lucretia Kenyon is spending a few days with her neice, Mrs. Spencer Tanner, in Point Pleasant neighborhood.

BIG BONE, June 16.—Everybody is busy and news is scarce.

Farmers are getting along nicely with their crops.

Dry, hot weather had the lead at the Springs, last week.

Mrs. Ruth Rigge was visiting at the Springs, Saturday and Sunday.

Smallpox has disappeared from this community. There was but one case, and by the careful management of Dr. Ryle the disease was prevented from spreading.

Lou Miller and wife have returned from Ardmore, Indian Territory, where they went some time since in search of health, and we are glad to note that Mrs. Miller's health is very much improved.

Will White, formerly of this place but now employed with the C. & O. railroad at Covington, accompanied by Jno: Relb, was visiting the springs Sunday, and made the other boys go away back and set down.

Rev. Mills preached a splendid sermon at the M. E. church here, Sunday, the first sermon here for three months, owing to the illness of the pastor, and small pox in the neighborhood. Rev. Mills is recovering from au operation removing his tonsils and he did not preach at night.

IDLEWILD.—Mrs. Emily Rucker, who recently returned from a visit to her son's in the Constance neighborhood, is quite sick at the home of her daughter, Mrs. N. S. Walton, near Hebron.

Miss Irene Kirtley, of Covington, is the guest of Miss Zayda Gaines, Mrs. Sebe Jones, of North Bend, O., was severly shocked by lightning last Thursday.

Benjamin Willis and wife, of Lexington, are visiting his brother Tom and family, near here.

Mrs. James Brown and Mrs. Owen Allen are each quite sick, and Mrs. John Cropper is very low.

Several of the young people here attended the opening of the picnic season at Harvest Home Grounds, last Saturday.

Lyman, son of O. W. Gaines, of Bullittsville neighborhood, who has been attending college at Georgetown, is at home.

John Jones had a cow killed by the lightning during the storm, last Thursday. She was standing under a tree that was struck.

Last Sunday our pastor and Rev. W. S. Taylor, pastor of Sand Run church, exchanged pulpits, and each congregation was pleased with the sermon they heard.

Carroll county compliments Circuit Judge Lassing very highly as a jurist, and everybody down there appears to be his friend, and are ready to bestow higher honors on him. Boone is very proud of the judge.

Several of the friends and relatives of mine host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Crisler, visited Petersburg, last Saturday to participate in the celebration of the 25th anniversary of their wedding. A very delightful time was had.

Glad that the Carrollton papers assures us that the traction road will be built. We hope our county will do her part in this useful enterprise.—[The road is yet only a probability, but a very strong one. The company was incorporated at Carrollton, on Tuesday of last week.—ED.]

June 11th, at high noon, Miss Herma Chambers and Mr. Grant Mathews were married at the home of the bride by Rev. Milo Atkinson. Only near relatives were invited. The bride possesses many lovely attributes of character and was admired by all. Mr. Mathews is very fortunate to secure such an estimable lady for his wife.

The Sunday School Covention at the Bullittsburg church is over. It was attended by persons from every neighborhood in the county, and the crowd was very large. Interesting speeches and instructive discussions spiced with humor were the order. The dinner was abundant, and the intense heat before noon and the storm in the afternoon, marred the occasion some, what as to comfort. Two ladies were prostrated by the heat. Thirty dollars was raised for Sunday School Work in the State, and Boone will be a banner county in the noble work.

UNION, June 16.—Nannie Huey spent last week with Sara Quisenbury of Hamilton, Ohio.

Miss Imogene Neal, of Erlanger, is the guest of Mrs. Dora Bannister.

Mr. and Mrs. Cronch, of Warsaw, are guests of their daughter, Mrs. J. A. Huey.

ALFRED CASON,
Burlington, Ky.

BEAVER, June 16.—John Haley and wife spent Sunday visiting John Lockhart and wife at Mid way.

Mrs. Net Hoard, Mrs. Lizzie Grubbs and Miss Nattie Gregory were reported on the sick list last week.

The two pretty daughters of Bates Carroll, of Covington, were visiting James Smith and family here the past week.

Rev. Lawrence, of Lexington, will preach each second Sunday morning in the month at Fairview Christian Church, near here.

Will Wilson had his men out on the road, last Monday and Tuesday, and many of the hands remarked that they would prefer free pikes to the present road working system.

Tom King, the expert bicyclist, of Owenton, Owen county, wheeled into Beaver last Saturday evening, and rumor has it that ere the balmy days of June have passed, he will lead to the altar one of Beaver's prettiest young ladies, we hope this is not true.

An event of unusual importance occurred at the hospitable residence of Mrs. Mary Ryan, near here, last Saturday evening in the way of a musical treat of rare excellence, a music recital by Prof. R. Limberg and scholars. The program was nicely arranged and admirably executed. Violin and piano duet, The Calif of Bagdad, Hughes Johson and Prof. Limberg; Miss Maggie Ryan, piano solo—Chariot Race March, also Maiden's Prayer; Miss Josie Madin, piano solo—Sonata, by Mozart; Miss Katie Hunne, piano solo—Drum Corps March; Violin and piano duet—Sounds from the Ball—Hughes Johnson and Prof. Limberg; Miss Lizzie Madin, piano solo—Sonati, by Clementi; Miss Katie Dempsy, piano solo—Dynamite Gallop; Miss Emma Stahl, piano solo—Centennial March; Miss Susan Houston, piano solo—The Danube Waltz; violin and piano fantasia—Home, Sweet Home—Hughes Johnson and Prof. Limburg; Miss Annie Reyner, piano solo—Golden Days Polka; Miss Delia Roberts, piano solo—Musquito Parade; solo and duet by Misses Salen and Susan Houston, Maggie Ryan and Mrs. Tinie Hunne; duet, by Miss Mary Salen Houston and Prof. Limburg. A large number of ladies and gentlemen from Beaver, Verona and Berkshire were present and all enjoyed the evening greatly. At 12 o'clock, promptly, the hostess and her daughters invited the guests into the spacious dining room, where was awaiting them a delicious repast of ice cream, cakes, etc. Immediately after partaking of the refreshments, the guests sought their sacred homes, hoping to soon again enjoy such a pleasant affair. The peculiar distinctive feature of the evening's entertainment was the thorough knowledge of each pupil in the performance of his or her respective work, reflecting the ability and tact of Prof. Limburg in the musical education of his pupils.

PETERSBURG, June 14.—Miss Katie Green, of Big Bone, who is visiting Mrs. M. M. Terrill, is the guest of Miss Sue Wingate.

Pauline, the 5 or 6 year old child of Milburn Cave, had her arm badly scalded yesterday. Her aunt was carrying a bucket of water, which the child ran against with above result.

Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Harry McWethy left today to attend the Woman's Foreign Mission Society which is holding its 24th annual session at Maysville. Mrs. McWethy represents the Petersburg auxiliary which is a flourishing society.

Personal Mentions.

Col. Graddy was in town, Sunday.

My little son had an attack of whooping cough and was threatened with pneumonia, but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. Seydel-Soden, editor of Wold-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale by All Druggists.

Mathews-Chambers.

Benry Grant Mathews and Miss Laura Herma Chambers were married at high noon on Wednesday, June 11th at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chambers. The ceremony was performed in an impressive manner by Rev. Milo Atkinson, brother-in-law of the bride. Miss Jean Chambers acted in capacity of maid, and Mr. Earl Walton as best man. The bride wore a beautiful creation of Paris muslin, lace and ribbon, surmounted by veil, tastily arranged with rose-buds, and carried a shower bouquet of Bride's roses. The maid of honor also wore white and carried pink roses. After the ceremony the guests sat down to dinner, which was served in true Kentucky style, daintily and bountifully. In the center of the table was an immense bunch of roses; at each end were two hearts interwoven of smilax and sweet Elysium, and at each plate was a favor in the shape of a rose-bud. The bride and groom were very handsomely remembered by their friends with presents of silver and cut glass and bric-a brac.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Mathews, parents of the groom; Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Orr, Mrs. Phil Orr, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Garrett and the Misses Orr, from Covington; Mrs. A. E. Holden, from San Antonia; Miss Jean Chambers from Florence, and Mr. Earl Walton, Mrs. T. B. Mathews and daughter from Petersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathews left Cincinnati on evening train for Cleveland and Niagara Falls.

How to Avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over, and if procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful medicine in use for bowel complaints, both for children and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale by all druggists.

The Republicans of Boone County will meet in mass convention in Court House Burlington, Saturday June 28th. (this date selected by Appelate Committee) 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of selecting 8 delegates to the Convention to be held in Maysville, Ky. Thursday August 14th, to nominate candidate for Judge of Court of Appeals.

T. B. MATHEWS.
Chairman Executive Com.

Seven members of the county Democratic executive committee responded to the call for a meeting of the committee, last Saturday. The proposition to call an early primary election for nominating a candidate for clerk of the circuit was defeat by a vote of 7 to 5.

Coronation of EDWARD VII.

Being an Account of How His Majesty Will Be Crowned King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India, on Thursday, June 26.

ON THURSDAY, June 26, Edward VII. will be crowned king of Great Britain and Ireland and emperor of India. All the machinery of the government and the energies of English political and social life have for months been directed towards perfecting arrangements for this unique event, which promises to be the most splendid coronation in the history of the United Kingdom.

Thursday seems to have been a popular day for crownings. June 26 is the anniversary of the day on which Oliver Cromwell was installed as lord protector in Westminster hall. It is also notable that the following English monarchs have been crowned on a Thursday: Stephen, John, Richard II., William and Mary, Queen Anne, George IV., William IV., and Queen Victoria. That is a fair collection of lucky and unlucky monarchs, which makes it difficult for any superstitious person to gather omens for the day chosen.

Edward VII., the chief figure in the grand event, was born November 9, 1841, and succeeded his mother January 22, 1901. He was married to Princess Alexandra of Denmark March 10, 1863. Their oldest living son, George Frederick, prince of Wales, was born in 1865, and married Princess May of Teck in 1893. The other living children of the royal couple are Louise Victoria, duchess of Fife; Maud, Princess Charles of Denmark, and Princess Victoria Alexandra.

THE CORONATION SERVICE.

Official Form, as Amended and Approved by His Majesty.

The form of the coronation service, as finally amended and approved by the king, consists of 26 distinct sections.

The king and queen and their retinue will form in procession at Buckingham palace. They will enter the great west door of Westminster abbey, where they will be welcomed by the shouts of the king's scholars of Westminster school and by the anthem, "I was glad when they said unto me, We will go to the house of the Lord."

Instead of going direct to their thrones the royal pair will kneel in private prayer on footstools in front of their chairs. Then the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord high chancellor, the lord great chamberlain and the Garter King of Arms, each in turn, will formally present the king, the lords carrying the regalia will step up and the dean of Westminster will place the regalia on the altar.

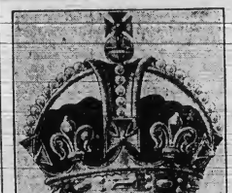
The abbreviated litany and part of the communion service will follow.

Then the archbishop will recite the Nicene creed and the bishop of London will preach a short sermon.

Just before the sermon the king, who up to that stage of the ceremony will have been uncovered, will put on a cap of crimson velvet trimmed with ermine.

Then comes the oath-taking, after which the king will be anointed.

Then the king's cap and crimson robe will be removed and four Garter knights will hold over him a rich pall of silk or cloth-of-gold, the dean of Westminster will pour holy oil into a spoon and the archbishop of Canterbury will anoint the king, making the sign of the cross on the top of his majesty's head, thus consecrating him "King over this people, whom the Lord your God hath given you to rule and govern."



The king will then kneel and the dean of Westminster will invest him with the super tunica.

According to official rules, in theory, the coronets of the nobility are never worn except at the coronation of a sovereign, when they are put on at the precise moment when the primate of England places the crown upon the brow of the king. Upon occasions of state the coronet is carried before the personage on a cushion, and at the funeral it is placed on the coffin, or borne on a purple cushion.

The shouts of God save the King" are caught up by the crowd outside, church bells ring and cannon are fired, not only in London, but in all chief towns. After a Bible is given to the king a solemn te deum is chanted, and enthronement follows or homage. The king is conducted to a throne in the center of the abbey, and there receives the act of homage, first from the lords spiritual, who kneel about him, pronounce the words of homage and kiss his hand.

KING EDWARD VII. IN HIS CORONATION ROBE.

BRITISH ROYAL CROWN.

HER MAJESTY, ALEXANDRA, QUEEN OF GREAT BRITAIN.

Next will come the ceremonies which caused so much discussion, including the presentation of the sword of state, the standards and the spurs, and then the orb will be placed in the king's right hand, he will again be divested of the crimson robe and will be enveloped in a purple robe of state, and the archbishop of Canterbury will give the scepter to the king, while the lord of the manor of worksop supports the king's right hand and a ring is placed on his majesty's fourth finger.

The orb is a golden ball, six inches in diameter and 11 inches high, including the cross, which surmounts the orb. Diamonds, rubies, emeralds, sapphires and pearls are set in the orb also, a fine amethyst, which forms the pedestal of the cross. When the crown is finally placed upon the monarch's head, instantly all that great crowd of peers and peeresses put on their glittering coronets, and the abbey rings with "God save the king!"

Princes of the blood royal ascend the steps of the throne, take off their coronets, repeat the homage, touch the crown upon the king's head, and kiss his left cheek. The peers of the realm follow suit, with the exception that they kiss the hand instead of the cheek. The words of homage are:

"I do become your liege-man of life and limb, and of earthly worship, and faith and truth I will bear unto you to live and die against all manner of folk, so help me, God."

When the act of homage is over, the members of the house of commons give nine hearty cheers, with cries of "God save the King," repeated by all.

During homage medals are thrown to the occupants of the choir and lower galleries. Divested of all symbols of sovereignty, the king receives the holy sacrament, and the "Hallelujah chorus" concludes the service.

After this ceremony the queen will be crowned. She will be anointed on the head, four peeresses holding a magnificent pall over her, the king will put a ring on her finger, the archbishop of York will place the crown on her head and the scepter and ivory rod and dove will be placed in her hands.

Prayers will be offered, the peeresses will put on their coronets and the service will end with the communion.

The crown for Queen Alexandra was made for the Queen of William III. It is set with pearls, sapphires, diamonds and other precious stones. The scepter for a queen consort is very like the king's, only not so large; the rod for the queen is of ivory surmounted by a dove and a cross. It is said that Queen Alexandra would prefer to be crowned according to Russian custom, by the king's own hands after his coronation, but she realizes that the innovation might not be pleasing to English ideas.

PLEASING TO THE PEOPLE.

Incidental Ceremonies Which Will Delight the Gaping Crowds.

Apart from the coronation itself what, so far, has afforded the greatest possible satisfaction to the 5,000,000 inhabitants of London is that the king and queen, and with them the rest of the royal family and scores of foreign princes and potentates, will come among them, will not be content with simply riding from palace to abbey and back again, but will pass in state through the principal arteries and some of the mean streets of the metropolis, in order that their subjects may see them and cheer them.

It will be the most memorable 14-mile drive ever undertaken by royalty. Queen Victoria did something of the kind on the occasion of the diamond jubilee in 1897, but that as this undoubtedly was, it will be excelled by the royal pageant to be carried out June 26.

The reception of the king and queen by the lord mayor will be suggestive of medieval times. It is one of the ancient privileges of the city of London to bar, if need be, even the progress of a king into its wealthy domain. Therefore, when the king and queen ride in state along the Strand and reach the law courts, a quaint little ceremony will be gone through with stately solemnity ere the royal cavalcade proceeds on its way.

At the spot where old Temple Bar used to stand, but where now an inartistic monument nicknamed "The Griffin" occupies the center of the narrow roadway, the lord mayor, with his mace bearer, his sword bearer, and all the retinue of the Mansion house, will await the coming of royalty. It may be that, with proper regard for effect, a replica of the ancient gates of the city will shut off Fleet street from the Strand in much the same way as was done with such striking effect when the late queen made her triumphal entry into Dublin a year before her death. Whether this be so or not, there will be a demand as to who comes there on behalf of the representatives of Gog and Magog, and when it is made known that it is their majesties, then the lord mayor will ride bareheaded into the royal presence, and as evidence of loyalty will hand to his majesty the key's of the city. These, in due course, will be handed back, and the lord mayor will then lead the way down Fleet street, past St. Paul's as far as the Mansion house, where doubtless he will take leave of the royal party.

Another interesting ceremony will be the cutting of the first sod for the Queen Victoria memorial to be erected immediately in front of Buckingham palace. This will be done by King Edward in the presence of his illustrious guests gathered from all parts of the world. The happy idea of beginning this great national undertaking at the time of the coronation originated with his majesty, who rightly considers that the presence in London of so many foreign royalties and diplomatic personages is an opportunity that the nations of the world will gladly seize to pay a tribute to the memory of Queen Victoria.

AMERICA TO THE FRONT.

To Be Represented at the Coronation by a Special Embassy.

The coronation will be witnessed by representatives from every known country in the world, including all the provinces and dependencies of the British crown. The European powers will be represented by princes of the blood and the republic of France by a special embassy. The United States delegation will consist of Hon. Whitelaw Reid, special commissioner, Gen. J. M. Wilson and Admiral Watson, representing respectively the army and the navy. In the great naval parade and demonstration preceding the coronation, in the English channel, the battleship Illinois, in command of Rear Admiral Crowninshield, will take a prominent part. The official representatives of the United States will have seats in Westminster abbey and will be treated very much like princes. For the time being they will outrank Mr. Choate, the American ambassador at London, and all other diplomats.

GOD'S OPPORTUNITY.

It Is Most Perfectly Realized During Man's Extremity.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher on One of the Profoundest Secrets of a Happy and Successful Christian Life.

(Copyright, 1902, by A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.)

Chicago, June 15, 1902.

Text.—My grace is sufficient for thee: for My strength is made perfect in weakness.—II. Cor. 12:9.

Paul's Experience.—Here in this twelfth chapter of second Corinthians we touch the extremes in Paul's life, and from the third Heaven in Paradise where his soul was in such transports of celestial joy that he knew not whether he was in the body or out of the body, and where he heard things which never mortal ear heard him speak—they were so sacred; from that glorious height to which God by special favor raised him, we find him a few verses farther on plunging down to the depths of human misery and weakness, as for a time the infirmity of the flesh, whatever it was, obscured the blessed face of his Lord and shut out all the joy from his Christian experience. This thorn in the flesh, this messenger of Satan, was the one plague-spot of his life, the fly of corruption in the ointment of his fragrant Christian life. Down on his knees in the dust goes Paul, and he beseeches God, not once nor twice, but thrice, that it might depart from him. Then, like the rift in the dark cloud through which the golden glories of the splendid sun come streaming, illuminating and transforming that which has been dark and forbidding into a glowing, glistening mountain peak of heavenly beauty—then Paul finds in the marvelous love and wisdom of God his thorn in the flesh is to become all aglow with the glory and power of Christ; that, instead of being removed according to his agonized and repeated petition, it is to be transformed and become a subduing, softening influence on his life. It is to be no longer a thorn of sorrow, but a fragrant rose of gladness, and his heart breaks forth into song as he exclaims: "Most gladly, therefore, will I glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me!" His thorn has become God's golden-tipped goad to better service.

The Thorn in the Flesh.—Perhaps there has been no incident in the life of Paul over which there has been more speculation than this thorn in the flesh, and the curiosity to know just what that thorn was. As though exact knowledge in this respect would aid in better understanding the experience and learning its lesson. I am decidedly of the opinion that Paul under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit left the nature of the thorn indefinite in order that the followers of Jesus Christ might realize that their infirmity, their thorn in the flesh, whatever it might be, could be treated in the same way as that of Paul, and become gloriously transformed even as was his. You see if Paul had been explicit, the brother with a similar thorn would be claiming a monopoly of this blessed experience, and "Me and Paul" would be his theme, and many a poor, discouraged brother with a different kind of a thorn would go sadly away bearing his unchanged thorn with him. A thorn is a thorn whether you find it on a rosebush or a thistle, and the same hand can turn the point of both from piercing the tender flesh. So the Lord can deal with all thorns in the flesh and transform them into ministering influences.

Paul's undoubtedly was a desperate case; his thorn of such a stubborn nature as to tax the utmost power of Christ to help him bear it. As Paul, under the direct inspiration of the Holy Spirit, was made to declare himself the chiefest of sinners in order that he might become the great example of the saving power of Jesus Christ, so in his thorn he gives encouragement to all similarly afflicted. If the Lord was able to transform his thorn, if His grace was sufficient to soothe the lacerations made by its lancet point, then there is hope for you and me, and we can "come with boldness to the throne of grace and obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need."

These thorns are present in every life to a greater or less degree. A thorn in the flesh is an irritating influence or circumstance in life, any bodily infirmity, any weakness, any hurtful lust or desire. These may be classified under two divisions: Thorns of a permanent character, such as physical deformity or weakness, and the temporary thorns of daily trials, difficulties, burdens, perplexities, misfortunes, persecutions, etc. Paul's thorn was undoubtedly of a permanent character, but his experience has its application no less to the temporary, petty thorns of the daily life. It is the little foxes that spoil the vines, and it is not so often the great thorn which wrecks the life and destroys its peace of mind and its usefulness, as it is the many little thorns. You may have in your life the permanent thorn. You know what it is. You most certainly have the little thorns piercing your weary feet day by day and pricking and irritating the busy hands. This experience of Paul is for you, and if you will but learn his secret you too can rejoice with him because the power of Christ can rest upon you and make that thorn, big or little, a means of grace and the stepping-stone to more consecrated, efficient service.

Persistent Prayer.—With his thorn goading him to madness, Paul finds refuge in prayer, the Christian's sure haven in the time of darkness, doubt and difficulty. Three times he goes to the Lord and pleads his case. How many hours and days of agony and darkness are included in the three times that Paul sought the presence of the Lord; he does not say; certain it is that Paul's was no hastily-uttered prayer, no rushing into the presence of the Lord and a rushing out again to some task of tent-making to make sure of his next meal and lodging. With his closet door shut and just one request on his lips he pours out his soul before his Lord in anguish of pleading. The one request prayers into which are thrown all the intense desire of one's being are the prayers which reach the ear of God. "Lord, if Thou wilt, Thou canst make me clean." "Lord, that I might receive my sight." See the needy multitudes following Jesus, each with one petition on his lips for the supplying of some supreme need. The leper, the halt, the lame, the blind, the centurion for his servant, the ruler for his daughter, all come with one persistent cry which never failed to reach the Master's ear.

Paul goes over his whole case with the Lord, he opens up his heart to the Divine love and sympathy, he makes his request known, God hears but does not answer, and Paul leaves his closet with a heavy heart and darkness all about him. No light from God. No answer. Ah, Christian, is this your experience? Have you pleaded your one request before the Lord in your closet alone, and gone out again with no light and no joy? The fault is not that of your loving and wise Heavenly Father, but is due to your own condition of heart, which as yet is not ready for the blessing which God wants so much to give. "The heart is deceitful above all things," and "we ask, and receive not, because we ask amiss (without at first being conscious of it), that we may consume it upon our pleasures." Paul is in darkness, but he knows the trouble lies within himself and not with God. With David he can exclaim: "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted in me? Hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise Him for the help of His countenance."

Again Paul seeks his closet and again he unburdens his heart before God. As he waits there before his Lord his heart is made ready for the blessing; it is cleansed from selfish motive and desire and his will is brought into harmony with that of his Lord. Perhaps he begins to realize the danger he was in of getting out of practical touch with the needy world through too constant dwelling in the third Heaven experiences. This is one danger which besets the deeply spiritual to-day. We need the mountain-top experiences; we may have them, but we must not build our tempies there, one for Christ and one for the few favored disciples, but we must get down among the multitudes to seek and to save the lost. Christ went down from the mountain of transfiguration to the death on the cross. We must come down from our mountain-top experiences and give our lives for others, if we would find them again. As God taught Paul that lesson, so will He teach you, and you will come to realize that the thorn in the flesh is given, "lest you should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelation."

Paul went out from the presence of the Lord at that second seeking refreshed, yet humbled. The thorn is there to remain, and he is sorely buffeted. There is joyless submission on his part. He must endure for Jesus' sake. Ah, how often this is the condition of the Christian heart! Realization that the affliction, the infirmity must be borne, but a joylessness in it all which is discouraging and disheartening! With Paul we need to get back into our closets a third time and hear the sweet tones of our Master say: "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness." Then we can go out singing with Paul: "Most gladly, therefore, will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me."

Strength Made Perfect.—There is a difference between strength made perfect and strength made manifest. The helpless and submissive babe in the mother's arms snuggles close and draws its nourishment and obtains its rest under her sheltering protection, and thus is her strength made perfect in the weak submission of the little babe. Out on the street midst the gathering crowd the blue-coated officer is struggling with the criminal who desperately seeks to obtain his freedom. The officer finally subdues his prisoner and hustles him off to the lock-up. Here is strength made manifest.

Here is the little acorn with the germ of the mighty oak within the sheltering walls of its tiny prison. Planted, the swelling, throbbing life pushes down and up, and the strength of nature is made perfect in the resultant growth. As the tree shakes its spreading branches in the warming sunshine and refreshing rain, and pushes its roots downward to the trickling stream below, nature's forces and strength continue to find their perfection in the submissive will of the tree. The darkening sky in the west betokens the gathering storm, and as the whirling clouds and rushing winds sweep violently by, lo! we find our great oak lying low before us and realize that the mighty, convulsive strength of nature has been made manifest.

Here is a human life through which God longs to pour His strength and power. As long as that life is submissive to the Divine will, the strength of God is made perfect in that life. The instant that life seeks its own will and way, contrary forces are set to work. It may prosper in the ways of the world. "Behold, these are the ungodly who prosper in the world; they increase in riches." And as we behold their prosperity, we are prone to say, with David: "Verily, I have cleansed my heart in vain, and washed my hands in innocency." This troubled David as it does you, "Until," as he goes on to say, "I went into the sanctuary of God; then understood I their end."

Noah submitted to the will of God and obediently constructed the ark For 100 years he became the object of ridicule of an unbelieving world and was looked upon as a weak and spiritless member of the human family, but the power of God was made perfect in his submissive weakness when the ark he had constructed bore him safely on the breast of the mighty flood while those who prided themselves in their own strength and wisdom were resting in watery graves. Abraham, by his blind obedience to the Divine command, established a nation and prepared the way for the coming of Christ. And in Christ we find the perfect exemplification of the mighty power of God being made perfect in weakness. When Peter drew his sword in protection of his Lord in the Garden of Gethsemane, when the Roman soldiers and officers of the temple came to arrest him, he turned to that zealous disciple and said: "Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and He shall presently give me more than 12 legions of angels?" Yea, verily He might, but would not, for the strength of God was to be made perfect in His weakness. The seeming defeat on the cross, enabled Paul to write: "For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

Man's Extremity God's Opportunity.—And if "God's strength is made perfect in weakness," it must needs be that man's extremity becomes God's opportunity. God cannot do much with the soul that is trusting in its own strength and wisdom, and will not recognize a need outside of itself. But let a soul get to the end of itself as did Paul, and the grace of God is found sufficient and His strength is made manifest in the confessed weakness. Jesus couldn't do much for the young man who came to him seeking the way of eternal life because he was trusting in the riches he was not willing to give up; but across the lake of Galilee, in the country of the Gadarenes, He met the poor demon-possessed man, and in answer to his cry gave him deliverance. The thief on the cross who came to the end of himself and turned to Christ for help soon found himself in Paradise with his Lord. The other thief on the cross who stubbornly refused to recognize the Christ, but reviled Him, passed on into darkness and eternal death. In the one, man's extremity became God's opportunity. In the other, man's extremity worked for him his own destruction.

The helpless sinner at Jesus' feet is raised up a cleansed and saved soul. God has to get a man down before He can help him up. Man cannot step from his own sufficiency into the Kingdom of God. He must realize a desperate need. His cry must be, "Lord, save or I perish." The Christian at Jesus' feet, discouraged and disheartened with his own effort to do and to overcome, finds he can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth him. Rev. F. B. Meyer, pastor of Christ church, London, says: "Do not sit down before that mistaken marriage, that uncongenial business, that physical weakness, as though thy life must be a failure; but take in large reinforcements of that Divine grace which is given to the weak and to those who have no might. It is clear that St. Paul had reached such a condition that it was a matter of deep congratulation for him to be deficient in much that men hold dear, and to have what most men dread. He rejoiced in all that diminished creature-might and strengthened his hold on God."

Joy in Infirmities.—When Paul realized that God's strength was made perfect in his weakness a new source of joy was opened up to him. Ah, how that thorn in the flesh became dignified and glorified that day, when this blessed truth burst upon his spiritual vision. Paul emerges from the gloom of his physical infirmity into the glorious light of the presence of his Lord. The thorn is no longer there as a thorn, but has become the evidence of the presence of the grace and power of God. This is your privilege, too, and mine. The thorn in the flesh, the daily trial and disappointment, the misfortune and privation may all be transformed into blessings.

On the busy streets of the downtown district of Chicago, where strong men rush to and fro in the vigor of their manhood manipulating large enterprises and managing great establishments, there slowly moves an almost helpless cripple with his wares hung around his neck, from the sale of which he gains his livelihood. His limbs are twisted and helpless, his misshaped frame trembles with distressing palsy, his face is set and marked with lines of care and suffering, his eyes are fixed on the walk before him in order that he may be sure of his ground as he drags his shuffling feet along, while the crutches under his straining shoulders support him. What a picture of weakness and helplessness in the midst of throbbing, pulsating human strength and life. Surely the cripple is the picture of distress, and suffering, and human woe! Surely no joy there! Come with me, and you shall see. "Good morning, brother." (I have learned to call him brother, for we are blood relations, both cleansed in the blood of Jesus Christ and both made sons of God and heirs to the Kingdom, with Christ as our elder brother.) As my salutation reaches his ears he steadies his shaking frame and raising his eyes to mine greets me with a smile. The face is transformed in an instant with the peace and joy from within, which comes from the indwelling Christ, and he makes cheery reply. Not a word about his weary body and distressing lot, but: "I'm rejoicing in the Lord. He is good to me. Praise the Lord, He's coming soon." Yes, and when He comes He will find one soul at least watching for Him, and rejoicing in present infirmities because God's grace is sufficient for him, and God's strength is made perfect in his weakness.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

SHADY RESTING PLACE.

An Arrangement That Adds to the Comfort of the Farmer's Family During the Dog Days.

Where the trees about one's house are small, or where there are none, this arrangement will be found pleasant in summer. The floor and framework of this shady resting place are made of wood, while the covering is either white duck or striped awning cloth, sold at all dry goods stores—the only fault to be found with the latter being its liability to fade. The board floor is very desirable, since it permits the use of this when the grass ground would be moist. The smooth floor also affords a splendid chance for children to play in wet weather, or indeed in any weather, since their clothing will become soiled much less easily when playing on such a floor than upon grass ground or gravel.

This place can also be made to shelter a hammock, stretching this from one corner to an opposite corner. The roof frame should, of course, be braced in the same direction as that occupied by the hammock, running a two by three strip of lumber from the top of one corner post to the top of the one opposite; also placing a similar piece between the tops of the other two opposite corners. The cloth gables should be fitted to the frame and tacked in position, after which the roof, side and end flaps (all in one piece) can be stretched into position, and held in place either by tacking or by cords through eyelet holes and tied about the frame.—Country Gentleman.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Make the boy's interest in the farm so profitable that he will be anxious to make farming his life work.

The farmer as well as the business man who is going to forge to the front these times is the one who thinks and plans.

Broom corn should have frequent cultivation till the plants are two feet high. Then the cultivation may be stopped unless needed to retain moisture.

If one has been so unwise as to have gotten in more area of crops than he can cultivate properly it may pay him even now to abandon some of it and cultivate thoroughly the remaining portion.

Irrigation produces such large returns for the outlay that many farmers could well afford to invest in an irrigation plant of their own if not in an arid or semi-arid region where irrigation is carried on by means of great systems.—Farmers' Voice.

Brome Grass Beats Timothy.

Brome grass and timothy were grown at the North Dakota station to compare the yields of green grass and to study their relative value for hay, considering their yield and chemical composition. In five cuttings during the season brome grass yielded 5,537.6 pounds of green grass, or 1,628.3 pounds of dry matter per acre, and timothy 4,681.6 pounds of green forage, or 1,422.8 pounds of dry matter. The results were decidedly in favor of brome grass for permanent pasture. Brome hay contained about twice as much protein as timothy, and no more fiber than the average for timothy grown in different parts of the country. Owing to its larger root system, brome grass is considered a better humus producer and soil improver than timothy.

Ration for Young Turkeys.

Feed the young turkeys stale wheat and corn bread. A few hard-boiled eggs mixed in the bread with a little salt and pepper is good for the first week. Don't forget to give them plenty of grit in the way of sand mixed with their feed or broken shells, dishes or lime rock. The main thing to keep turkeys healthy and growing fat is to keep them clear of lice. Commence on the old hen before they are hatched. Dust the hen twice a week with ashes and a few drops of coal oil added, grease the hen and young turkeys as soon as they are hatched with fresh butter or lard with a drop or two of coal oil to every teaspoonful.

Feeding Soy Beans to Hogs.

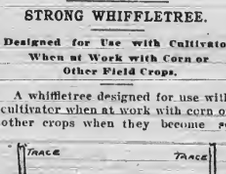
Prof. C. F. Curtis, of the Iowa experiment station recommends that if a person has corn, soy beans and shorts to feed to a sow with pigs, the best way is to grind the corn and beans and feed with the shorts in the form of slop. The proportion recommended is 25 pounds of corn, 60 pounds of shorts and 15 pounds of soy beans. Two feeds a day of soaked corn is also recommended. Soy beans are a new feed, and it will do no harm to use even a smaller proportion until the sow and pigs are used to it if it has never been fed. The feed should be mixed when dry and made into a slop later. This will insure better mixing and more satisfactory results.

THE HORSE BUSINESS.

It Has Changed Within the Past Decade and Working Along Old Lines Pays No Longer.

With the revival of horse breeding as a profitable industry the fact must be recognized that there has come a complete revolution in this business. The old methods will no longer prove profitable. We must raise for profit distinct types of horses for the market, and not generally all-round useful horses. We must define in our minds the different types of horses in demand, and then work toward the production of the best specimens of one or more of these types. These types, briefly stated, are the road, carriage and coach horse, the cab horse, the draft horse, and the American trotter or road horse. One of these types should be selected in breeding horses for market, and the peculiar characteristics of each one studied and carefully understood. Breeding for a specific class is the only kind that pays to-day. The man who breeds on the old lines is doomed to failure. His horses will bring so much less in the market that there will be no margin left for profits. One reason why horses become a drug in the market ten years ago was because farmers and breeders produced a surplus of horses which had no particular characteristics. They were not specially good in any line. Then a demand slowly grew up for horses which would excel in one particular class, and this has steadily increased until to-day it has become universal. The evolution in breeding has thus made it necessary for the farmer and breeder to know his particular class of horses thoroughly. Promiscuous breeding does not pay, but special class or type breeding does. Every horse must be bred for a particular purpose, and if at the beginning the animal does not promise any good points for a particular purpose, the sooner you can dispose of him the better. The small horse, and the horse of mixed virtues, has passed forever, and his day will never return. Breed the large horse that is useful for particular lines on hauling, the road or coach horse which can travel well with a fair load, or the trotter which can make speed. In one of these classes every horse must excel or he cannot bring the high market prices offered. Premiums are daily offered for the best animals of any class.—C. L. Petters, in Prairie Farmer.

FOOD VALUE OF MILK.



When Combined with Bulkier Food Its Nutritive Properties Exceed Those of Meats.

Prof. Fraser, of the Illinois Agricultural college, has been making some close computations as to the relative value of milk and beef as food. In this time of high-priced meat, those who are inclined to a milk diet will find much comfort in perusing the figures. A reading of them will increase the respect of the ordinary consumer for skimmilk. The professor takes 25 cents' worth each of steak and milk for comparison. With the sum named he purchases five quarts of whole milk, or eight and nine-tenths quarts of skimmilk, or two pounds of round steak at 12½ cents per pound. In the whole milk he finds .369 pounds of protein in the skimmilk .657 pounds and in the beef steak .360 pounds. At its market value the skimmilk contains more food value than either the beef steak or the whole milk. It will be noticed that the protein contents of the whole milk and of the beef steak are practically the same. Remember that this comparison is made with round steak, one of the cheap classes of meat and one of the most nutritious. When we get to comparing milk with porterhouse steak the argument is still stronger in favor of the milk, for porterhouse steak is not more nutritious than round steak but is much higher in price. Milk as a diet has, however, one drawback and that is its bulk. The stomach of the adult is not so constituted that milk can be made a sole diet. It does not hold enough of it. The proper method of utilizing milk is to combine it with bulkier foods.

high that an ordinary whiffletree would injure them is shown herewith. It is made of three-quarter-inch steel. The cultivator clevis is attached at a, and traces of harness at b b. The curves c c are made by bending the end of the whiffletree as shown, thus allowing the corn to slip by the tracer over the bent wire without knocking the growing crops down.—Willard Sheaf, in Farm and Home.

Hog Cholera Investigations.

The work with swine diseases in Iowa has not been entirely satisfactory. During 1899 21,000 animals were treated. Of this number 70½ per cent survived, while in nontreated herds during the years 1896 to 1899 only 36 per cent. of the hogs lived.

There are poor farmers because their farming is poor.

AGAINST TARIFF FOR TRUSTS

Western Republicans Who Favor Free-Listing Monopoly-Controlled Products.

It seems that Representative Babcock's constituency is not the only republican constituency in Wisconsin that objects to a tariff whose chief function is to arm trusts with power to exact $5 from Americans for an article which they are glad to sell to foreigners for $3.

The constituency represented in the house by J. J. Jenkins, republican, have their opinion about this kind of a tariff. In their recent convention they adopted a resolution in which they declare that the industries of the country have outgrown the needs of a protective tariff. In proof of this proposition they submit the notorious fact that our manufacturers are competing successfully in the markets of the world, says the Chicago Chronicle.

They therefore declare that they "favor a revision of the tariff without unreasonable delay, which will place upon the free list every article and product controlled by any monopoly, and such other articles and products as are beyond the reach of protection."

No doubt there are other republican constituencies in the west which are ready or getting ready to express themselves to this effect. Certain deliverances of the republican governor of Iowa in his message last January imply that in the opinion of that official a great many republicans in that state are not willing to be bled for the purpose of securing foreign markets for the protected classes, after having been bled for 40 years to secure for them the home market.

What these western constituencies have yet to learn is that the western republicans are not the republican party and will not be consulted to any great extent when it comes to deciding what its tariff policy will be.

They have yet to learn that for the last quarter of a century at least the policy of their party has been shaped in all particulars to suit the interest of the classes which are protected by the tariff or other legislative devices in getting possession of a portion of the earnings of others to which they are not justly entitled and for which they render no equivalent.

They have yet to learn that if they wish to be delivered out of the hands of robbers they must associate themselves with a party which does not uphold legalized robbery on the plea of necessity or on any other plea whatsoever.

If they wish to escape smallpox they must not put themselves in the hands of doctors who will expose them to the contagion.

If they wish to safeguard themselves against grand larceny they must not applaud and encourage larceny in any degree.

If they wish to protect their property against further tariff pillage they must attack the entire system of pillage from end to end and from top to bottom.

THE TARIFF AND THE TRUSTS.

Paramount Nature of This Issue Has Been Made Plain to the People.

From Washington comes the announcement that the executive committee of the democratic congressional committee is considering plans for making the trusts and tariff the leading issue of the coming campaign for the election of representatives in the national congress.

The democratic party has everything to gain from a campaign conducted on the issue, says the St. Louis Republic. Indeed, the situation is that the people themselves are dictating the issue for the political struggle of this year and of 1904. They have come to see so clearly the truth that the tariff imposes a heavy burden upon them for the exclusive benefit of the trusts that the paramount nature of this issue is made absolutely certain. They have learned, through the beef trust's greed and arrogance, the ultimate evil of the trust system to such a convincing extent that they demand with irresistible insistence the correction of trustism by means of a revision of the tariff that shall destroy the trust monopolies of products and markets.

The democratic party will meet the people half way by making the congressional campaign on the tariff-trusts issue. There is no hope of republican action against the trusts or for revision of the tariff. That party is so completely under the dominance of trust magnates that its usefulness to the people is gone. It is the party of the trusts and of the burdensome tariffs which create the trusts, and it must be removed from power in the government as the first step toward relief from tariff taxation and trustism. Never before in this country has there been so distinct an alignment of the people against a favored and privileged class as is now witnessed.

The democratic congressional committee should by all means make trusts and the tariff the paramount issue of the approaching campaign. The campaign literature, the work of democratic speakers and of democratic newspapers, must all deal agressively with this issue. The American people are determined upon relief from trustism and the tariff, and the national democracy must lead the movement which shall terminate in victory for the people.

——Operations like those of the beef trust give socialism an added impetus in the minds of the toiling masses; even in the thoughts of many who are not usually classed with the masses in a country where no real class distinction exists, there is a feeling that something is wrong.—Albany Argus.

UPON THEIR OWN HEADS.

Reasonable Results of the Admiration's Blunder in the Handling of Philippines.

President Roosevelt, Secretary Moody and every republican that undertakes to defend the work of the army or justify the policy of the government in the Philippines, can now appreciate the far-reaching effects of the blunder the administration made when it permitted the establishment of a military censorship. The evil that institution did has lived after it. The good, if there was any, has been interred with its bones, says the Detroit Free Press.

When the administration authorized a censorship that suppressed news, distorted news and invented news, it succeeded in setting the seal of disingenuousness upon all information emanating from the Philippines or relating to the Philippines. It was many months before the American people came to understand that their government did not consider them fit to know the truth about their own business; but having once comprehended it, they are slow to forget it. As a result of the administration's folly, the country as a whole believes nothing that any officer of the government, either civil or military, may say in regard to the conditions in the archipelago.

When a man like Gov. Taft says that this thing is so or that his testimony ought to be conclusive. It is not. While nobody charges the governor with deliberate misrepresentation, his statements are accepted at their face value only by persons that prefer to believe them. For the rest there is shrugging of shoulders, insinuations as to the pleasures of rainbow chasing, an offset of contradictory testimony given by others, and a general evidence of polite distrust. Theodore Roosevelt, whose reputation for truth and veracity is certainly as good as that of anybody in the United States, is the victim of the censorship evil, too. When the president declares that the army has not violated the rules of war and that individual cases have been urged to the disgrace of all the troops, nobody seems to believe this because the president has said it. Administrationists accept it, because it is in the interests of their party. Democrats sneer at it. Persons that are trying to learn the truth assume that the president of the United States must be reliable, and yet they recall how Mr. McKinley seemed to be badly informed at times in regard to the insular matters that he discussed And thus it goes.

There can be no general credulity in an atmosphere of distrust, and this atmosphere of distrust was created when the administration went into the business of suppressing information through the medium of a military censorship. It is unfortunate now that the democrats in congress, in order to make campaign material for their party, should misrepresent conditions in the Philippines, and possibly circulate falsehoods about the atrocities committed by the troops. But we must remember that it was the government of the United States that first began the business of lying about the Philippines. The administration did not call it lying; but it was lying, and its own folly has survived to plague the party.

POLITICAL DRIFT.

——The Ohio republicans are harmonious; but none of the harmony is genuine without Mark Hanna's signature on the label.—Albany Argus.

——Secretary Root cannot forgive Miles, of course. The revelations of the conduct of the war in the Philippines have put the secretary's correspondence with Miles in a ridiculous light.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

——President Roosevelt knows too much about politics to lay much stress on anything complimentary to him in the resolutions of the Ohio republican convention. There will be men at Cleveland who "smile, and murder while they smile."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——Statesmen who constantly quote the late president McKinley are making the mistake of alleging private conversations that belie his public utterances. The rest of the country knows just as well as to certain republican senators that he said: "Forcible annexation is criminal aggression."—Detroit Free Press.

——To the trusts, which he so strenuously upholds both in and out of congress, he turns for the necessary campaign funds; to the laborers he turns for votes. This sort of politicul policy has been sometimes called by scoffers carrying water on both shoulders. Whether this can be done successfully can be better known Anno Domini 1904.

——It is not surprising that Senator Hanna has declined to take charge of the republican congressional campaign. His plea of too much work is an excuse which many other of the old McKinley politicians will use during the next few months when they are asked to get out and hustle. As shrewd prophets they realize that little less than a miracle will save the republicans during the congressional fight. Senator Hanna does not care to identify himself with a lost cause.—St. Louis Republic.

——The republican party is held together by the mutual attachment of its members to a system which robs the masses in the interests of combined capital, and it would be politicl suicide for the republican party to meddle with present tariff rates. The tariff must be revised by the democratic party if it is ever to be revised at all, and the sooner the voters get this into their heads the sooner conditions will be brought back to the normal and the markets will be governed by the economic laws of supply and demand.—Peoria Herald-Transcript.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce J. W. CAMMACK, of Owenton, as a candidate for State Senator in the 23rd Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Boone, Owen and Gallatin, subject to the action of the Democratic purty.

For Circuit Judge.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Judge JOHN M. LASSING as a candidate for reelection to the office of Circuit Court Judge of the 15th Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Primary election July 29, 1902.

For Commonwealth's Attorney.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Robt. Wood, of Gallatin county, a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney in this Judicial District composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the Democratic primary election.

For Circuit Clerk.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL, of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

In another column Judge Lassing is announced as a candidate for Circuit Judge, subject to the primary election July 29th. His record on the bench has been so eminently satisfactory to both litigants and attorneys that he is not likely to encounter any opposition at the primary election. He has made a record of which Boonecounty is justly proud, and she will give him a handsome endorsement at the polls.

After Col. Berry withrew from the race for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district, Judge Hodge, of Newport, who, for several years, has been laboring under an erroneous impression that his presence is needed in Congress, began trying to concoct some scheme for having the primary election called for the 28th inst. postponed in order that he might enter the race and have more time in which to make a canvass, but his proposition, which, if carried out would have been a political outrage, was nipped in the bud by Judge Lassing, Chairman of the District Congressional Committee. Judge Hodge claims that legal notice of the time of holding the primary election was not given, but this office knows notices were mailed to persons in each county in the district in ample time, and Judge Hodge and a few others who are never so well satisfied as when raising political hades, are the only persons who are kicking, but they can not change Judge Lassing's course, in the least, from that which is proper.

One day last week the Kentucky Post stated that the District Committee would meet and declare Congressman Gooch the nominee. The statement was wholy unauthorized on the part of the committee, and raised such a storm of indignation among Democrats that its originator can not be located.

Virulent Cancer Cured.

Startling proof of a wonderful advance in medicine is given by druggists G. W. Roberts of Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there had long suffered with what good doctors pronounced incurable cancer. They believed his case hopeless till he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which treatment completely cured him. When Electric Bitters are used to expel bilious kidney and microbe poisons at the same time this salve exerts its matchless healing power, blood diseases, skin eruptions, ulcers and sores vanish. It begins to appear that Grant county may be in for an epidemic of smallpox at no distant date. During the past week Dr. J. H. Limerick, of Cordova, has treated eighteen cases in his neighborhood, all of which have been properly reported to the Grant County Board of Health, and isolated and placed under strict quarantine. The disease was brought to that neighborhood in some old furniture from Covington.

The family of Ralph Daugherty in town, have had smallpox during the past three weeks, and the facts were so closely guarded by the family that the Health Board and the authorities knew nothing about it until the family had about recovered; they then had the premises disinfected, old clothes burned and a general cleaning up ordered. In the meantime Mr. Daugherty, who runs a huckster wagon, made his regular trips and the family seem to have scattered the disease broadcast. The smallpox was brought to Daugherty's by Miss Bishop. She is also of Covington, and a relative of the family. One of the children visited the family of J. W. Shields near Oak Ridge church, and two of his children are down with the loathsome disease. His premises has been placed under quarantine and the children isolated.

The children of Henry Jewette and A. B. Jewette each caught the smallpox from the Daugherty home. They visited them during the time some member of the family was ill with the disease, and nine days later broke out with the pest. The children have all been taken to the home of A. B. Jewette and isolated in one room and placed in the charge of Mr. Jewette and the premises quarantined.

How many more persons were exposed to the Daugherty family while they had the disease is not known.

At the present time there is no smallpox in Williamstown or nearer than one and a half miles, and it is perfectly safe to come to town at any time.

Summer weather was fully installed last week.

Meeting of the Democratic 23rd Senatorial Committee held at Owenton, Ky., June 7th, 1902.

The resolution which was passed by the Democratic Committee of Owen county and certified to this committee as follows: The committee of the 23rd District having met at Sparta Ky., on June 6th, 1902, for the purpose of discussing the time and manner of nominating a Democratic candidate to be voted for at the regular November election, 1902. Owing to the resolution passed at the convention that nominated Dr. J. G. Furnish as a candidate for State Senator, leaving it to the county committee, whose time it is, under the rotation symstem in this district, to select the time and manner of the nomination of a candidate for the State Senate, a resolution was passed by the Senatorial Committee on the 6th inst. referring the matter of fixing the manner and time of nominating a candidate for the State Senate, to the Owen County Committee, (it being Owen County's time to have the candidate.)

1. It is now therefore ordered that the manner of nominating a candidate for State Senator in said District shall be by Primary Election held in Owen county on the 29th day of July, 1902.

2. That each candidate shall be assessed his proportional part of said Primary Election, to be paid on or before the 14th day of July, 1902, to M. B. Salin, Secretary of the Owen County Committee.

3. That if only one candidate shall qualify on or before the 14th day of July, 1902, then the Chairman of this Committee shall certify that fact to the Senatorial Committee of said District for action.

4. That all persons who supported the Democratic ticket at the last State election, all persons who have become of age since said election who will support the nominee of this Primary and all young Democrats, who will become of age before the Regular Election, 1903, are allowed a vote.

This June 7th, 1902.

J. H. CUNNINGHAM, Chmn.
M. B. SALIN, Sec'ty.

It is therefore ordered that this committee do now ratify and adopt the action of said County Committee aforesaid as the act of this committee.

PETERSBURG WRITE-UPS.

Some of the Leading Citizens.

EVERETT L. HELMS.

Mr. Everett L. Helms, was born in this little city, September 7th, 1876. He married Nellie Josephine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Krutz, April 18th, 1897. He has one bright little boy, Elvin Earl, who won first prize at Lawrenceburg Fair, Aug 24th, 1899. Mr. Helms is a popular young man, liked by old and young, rich and poor. He conducts the finest barber shop in Boone county, being centrally, located next door to the Christian church in this city. He is also Superintendent of the Christian church Sunday school, and has builded said school up 12 per cent in the past two years, being a tireless worker in the cause of Christ. When in Petersburg go in and see him, for he is a jolly good fellow, and if you are in need of a shave, hair cut or want a good cigar, he'll give you the best on the market.

o o o

G. MARSHALL TERRILL,
(Dentist.)

The subject of this local, G. Marshall Terrill, was born near Petersburg, this county, September 2nd, 1878, and will be 24 years of age next September. He is a son of the late John L. Terrill. His mother was Miss Mary M. Marshall, of West Virginia, before her marriage to Mr. Terrill. Marshall is a grandson of Capt. Geo. W. Terrill, who represented this county, in the legislature several times. He attended the common schools of this county, and the Aurora, Ind., high school. He is now a student of the Louisville college of Dentistry, and will graduate next May. He knows, at the present, all the Theory of Dentistry, and has opened up an office for practice at the following places: Hebron on Tuesday of each week; Burlington on Wednesday; Bellevue, Thursday, and at Petersburg Friday and Saturday of each week. Marshall is a bright and studious young man, and is sure to make his mark in his chosen profession. He is a leading member of the Christian church at this place, and an enthusiastic K. of P. When wanting any dental work don't forget to call on G. Marshall Terrill at the above named places. His rates are reasonable and satisfaction is guaranteed.

E. T. KRUTZ,
(General Merchant,)

Was born in Switzerland county, Indiana, and came to Gallatin county, Ky., when a small boy. His first mercantile venture was at Steele's creek, Gallatin county when he was a young man. He married Miss C. R. Davis, of Paris Ky., who was born in London England. To them two children were born Nellie Krutz Helms, wife of E. L. Helms, and Forest Krutz, who helps his father in the capacity of salesman. Mr. Krutz was in business at Big Bone for a number of years, and came from there to Petersburg, where he entered the mercantile house of J. Frank Grant, in 1892. He engaged in business for himself again in Petersburg, and his success in the mercantile line has been phenominal. He is always on the alert, and is business from the word jump and go. He carries a full stock of groceries, dry goods and farming implements, and his prices are always right. He is a leading member of the Christian church, and member of the order of K. of P. He is, also, agent for the Mail Co. steamers, and President of the Petersburg Building and Loan Association. He is owner of his own residence and business house, besides numerous other parcels of real estate in town. Mr. Krutz is a close buyer, a quick seller and an all round good business man, whom it is a pleasure to meet. Call on Krutz when in need of anything in his line, and he will treat you right.

S. C. BUCHANAN,
(Druggist,)

Was born in Ohio county, Indiana, June 24th, 1857, and has been connected with the drug business for over 25 years. He knows every feature of the trade from years of hard labor and experience. He began business in the Corner Drug store in the city of Rising Sun, Ind., from which place he moved to Petersburg and opened a drug store in 1883. Thinking the Northwest offered better oportunities for a young man, he sold his drug stock to Dr. J. E. Terrill in 1885, and moved soon afterwards to Harrisville, Michigan, when he and his brother, B. Frank Buchanan, the well known author and druggist of Rising Sun, started into business, which was fully up to their expectations. He returned to Petersburg in 1890, and commenced the present business in 1893, in the little store around the corner, which has grown to the Big Store on the corner. His object is to supply the people with standard drugs and medicines, and meet their wants promptly. Dr. Buchanan's aim is to give satisfaction to all and for any article purchased from him that is not as represented he will gladly refund the money or make it right. His motto is a satisfied customer's the best advertisement. Mr. Buchanan also carries in stock a large assortment of paints, oils and varnishes. He sells garden seeds grown by Landreth & Co., whose reputation is world wide. He makes his own flavoring extracts, which guarantees purity and strength. The best cigars and all brands of chewing tobacco is found on his counters as well as cool soda and ice cream for the girls and their beaux, and to refresh the weary.

B. J. CRISLER,
(Proprietor of Hotel Crisler.)

Was born in this county, January 16th, 1857. He is a son of W. P. and Elizabeth Gaines Crisler, old and well known residents of this county. He was married June, 14th, 1877, to Miss Laura Aylor, daughter of William Aylor, of Hebron neighborhood. To them two children were born, both still living. W. W. Crisler, the son, is the popular salesman for the Great China Tea Co. of Cincinnati. Miss Pearl, the handsome daughter, is the leading society lady, of Petersburg and vicinity, and is admired by both young and old for her many pleasant traits of character. Mr. Crisler commenced the hotel business in Petersburg in 1897 in what is known as the Berkshire House, where he enjoyed splendid patronage. He moved to his present location, the Loder House, in 1898. He has a number of regular boarders besides all the transient trade. This Hotel is beautifully located, over-looking the placid Ohio, with the verdant hills of Indiana looming up in the back ground, giving it a picturesque appearance, causing many tourists to stop at this popular hostelery to enjoy the scenery. Mr. and Mrs. Crisler are peculiarly fitted for the hotel business, as they can always make their guest feel perfectly comfortable: When you come to the metropolis of Boone, don't forget the Crisler House. Rates reasonable.

Dr. J. M. GRANT,
(Physician,)

Was born near Petersburg, Boone county, in the month of February, 1852. Consequently he is 50 years of age. He was married in June, 1876, to Miss Viola Hyatt, daughter of Capt. Alex Hyatt, the well known river man, who was captain of Ohio and Mississippi river steamers for 40 years. To them two children were born, both still living, Grace G., who married Mr. Geo. Dunlap, a special guager in the Revenue Service, now at Peoria, Illinois, where they make their home, and Wallace, the son, who is the popular clerk on the independent packet, Golden Gate. Dr. Grant graduated from the Ohio Medical College of Cincinnati in the fall of 1873 and from the Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, in the year of 1875. He began the practice of his profession at Bellevue, this county, in May, 1873. He located in Burlington in 1877, and at once built up a splendid practice. Upon the death of Dr. W. H. Terrill, he was induced to come to Petersburg in 1888, and at once began a lucrative practice which he still enjoys. He is kind and sympathetic in the sick room, polite and courteous in his every day walks, is a leading member of the Bullittsburg Baptist church, a prominent I. O. O. F. in the State, a Mason and a K. of P. Dr. Grant has a splendid practice at this point, and is often called beyond the confines of his own territory in consultation with other physicians. He is a member of the county board of health.

o o o

Dr. W. J. WEINDEL
(Physician and Surgeon.)

Dr. W. J. Wendel was born in the town of Petersburg, March 28, 1875. He attended the district schools of the town, graduated from the Kentucky School of medicine, Louisville, class of 1897. He began the practice of his profession at Patriot, Indiana, in 1897, where he enjoyed a splendid practice. In October, 1900, he married Miss Edna Newbold, of Rising Sun, Indiana. Last April he returned to Petersburg, where he now has a splendid and growing practice. Dr. Weindel's parents and grand parents were among the earliest settlers of Petersburg. His father was the popular salesman for Jas T. Grant and John T. Gaines, when they were engaged in the mercantile business here.

MISS LOU W. ALLEN.
(Milliner.)

Miss Lou W. Allen, daughter of Nathan W. and E. Agnes Allen, was born in this county on May 23, 1865. She first entered the millinery business with Miss Sarah W. Calvert, at Lexington, Ky., in March, 1899, continuing in that city one year, when she returned to Petersburg, and opened a millinery store in the Stott building on October 17, 1900. She began with a small but carefully selected stock, and her numerous friends gave her a liberal patronage, which soon enabled her to increase her stock, and she is now enjoying an immense trade, extending 12 or 15 miles into the country. Not millinery alone but almost everythihg in the way of ladies wearing apparel is carried in stock, and her large patronage is a reward for hard work and strict attention to business.

Miss Allen was elected Secretary of the Epworth League of the Covington District, in June, 1898. She resigned before the expiration of the term, but was reelected in February, 1901, and served the entire term. Miss Lou, as she is familiarly called, was President of the Petersburg Epworth League for four years. She is an energetic worker in the departments of the M. E. church, and is found in her accustomed place at each meeting, unless there is some providential hindrance.

The harvesting of a good crop of wheat is now at hand.

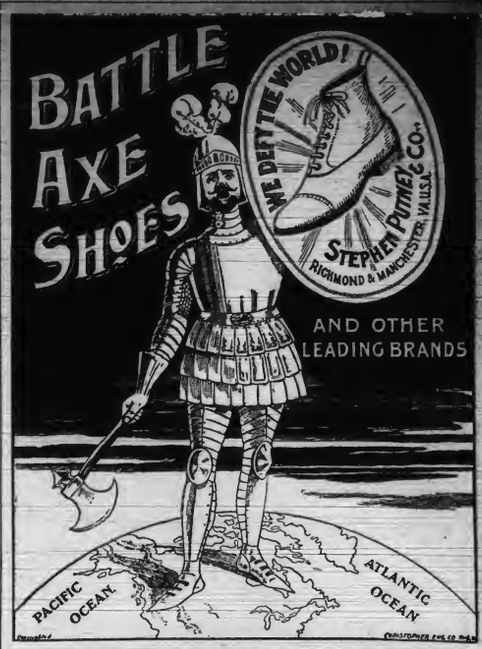
George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by all druggists.

"Judge J. M. Lassing,—Dear Sir:

Matters of personal interest demands my attention to such an extent that it will be impossible for me to give the canvass the attention that I should in justice to myself and my friends. I therefore desire to withdraw my name as a candidate for the Congressional nomination at the primary on June 29th., 1902.



I am very Respectfully,

WIPED OUT BY FIRE.

The Business Portion of Alexander City, Ala., Destroyed.

Opelika, Ala., June 14. — The business portion of Alexander City, a place of 1,500 inhabitants, was wiped away by fire, the loss reaching at least $750,000, which the insurance will not begin to cover.

The flames began in the foundry and machine works, and the long period of hot, dry weather had well prepared the buildings of the little city for the rapid spread of the flames. A light wind was blowing, and with fierce rapidity the fire spread from building to building until the entire business portion was a seething mass of flames.

The place has no water works, and all the terror-stricken people could do was to save what little they could, and then, almost prostrate, flee from the awful heat.

Dadeville was telegraphed for dynamite so that some of the buildings could be destroyed and thus check the progress of the flames, but it arrived only to find the city a mass of ashes.

The depot of the Central of Georgia railway was burned with all its contents. The telegraph office, two hotels, post office, saloons, livery stable, practically all the stores and eight residences, together with numerous law and other offices were destroyed.

On account of the fact that the telegraph and telephone offices having been destroyed, it is impossible to obtain exact information regarding the fire.

The railroad has established its telegraph lines under a tree, and appeals for help and for food are going out.

The loss of valuable papers will run into the thousands of dollars.

The tracks of the Central of Georgia are so badly warped that the passenger trains east and west Friday night had to transfer.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

He Recommends a Law Creating Reciprocity With Cuba.

Washington, June 14.— President Roosevelt sent a special message to congress, reiterating former recommendations for a law creating reciprocity with Cuba. No reference was made to Gen. Wood's appropriation of Cuban funds to circulate reciprocity literature. After quoting extracts from the previous message on the subject, the president states that Thursday he received through the American minister to Cuba an earnest appeal from President Palma for "legislative relief before it is too late and (his) country financially ruined." He says the reasons for Cuban reciprocity outweigh those for reciprocity with any other country, and are consistent with "the protective system under which this country has thriven so marvelously."

He adds: "It is to our advantage as a nation that the growing Cuban market should be controlled by American producers. The events following the war with Spain, and the prospective building of the isthmian canal, render it certain we must take in the future a far greater interest than hitherto in what happens throughout the West Indies, Central America and the adjacent coasts and waters."

GEN. LEE'S DAUGHTER ARRESTED.

She Took a Seat in a Trolley Car Reserved For Negroes.

Alexandria, Va., June 14.—Miss Mary Curtis Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, was taken into custody, charged with violating the law affecting the Washington, Alexandria & Mt. Vernon electric road, which provides for the separation of white and colored passengers. Miss Lee was arrested on complaint of Conductor Thomas S. Chauncey and was escorted to police headquarters, where, after telling her story, she was released on her personal bond for appearance in court, should the railroad company decide to prosecute the case. Miss Lee boarded the car at Washington, and without realizing, had taken a seat in the portion reserved for colored people. She was comfortably seated, and being encumbered with several bundles, declined to move to the forward part of the car, although the conductor explained the law on the subject to her and frequently requested her to move.

EPIDEMIC OF CHOLERA.

Alarming Situation in the Philippine Islands Reported.

In Manila Alone a Total of 277 Cases With 215 Deaths Had Occurred Up to April 19, the Date of the Report.

Washington, June 14.—A rather alarming situation with regard to the epidemic of cholera in the Philippines is set out in a report received by Surgeon General Forwood from Lieut. Col. Heiseman, at present in charge of the medical department of the army in the islands. The appearance of the disease at Manila, in March, is attributed in some quarters to vegetables coming into the islands from affected Chinese ports, and in others to the drinking of Pasig river water, foul with the sewage of the city. Lieut. Col. Heiseman says that the number of different points attacked by the epidemic and the consequent infection of many streams which are universally used for drinking and bathing and into which all foul material and garbage find their way makes probable a large number of deaths before the rains, which ended the two great epidemics in the eighties, occur. The army, he says, is much better protected than the native population or than civilian Americans in the islands, because of the care which is exercised in supplying good food and water.

In Manna alone a total of 277 cases with 215 deaths had occurred up to April 19, the date of the report, with 453 cases and 308 deaths outside the city. In the provinces the disease attacked 22 different places. In the Camarines, at Nueva Cacares, the disease appeared, and this has been the only point where the army has suffered, two cavalrymen and an infantryman having the disease. The colored troops, the report says, naturally mix much more with the natives than the whites, drinking the water in the shacks which they visit, and eating native food, and they are thus much more liable to contract cholera.

The district known as the "Farola" was the first one in Manila to be attacked. It is described by Col. Heiseman as being "Probably the most wretchedly unsanitary place in the city," and was the first and one of the heaviest sufferers in the great cholera epidemic of 1882.

Smallpox has also appeared and has been more prevalent, it is stated, this year than in any except the first, of American occupation. The wife of an army officer in Manila has been attacked by it.

Vigorous measures of prevention have been instituted to attempt to check the spread of cholera. Manila has been quarantined against all other points, distilled water has been provided, house to house inspections made, chloride of lime freely used, a cholera hospital established, the foul farola burned, and 28 army medical officers have been detailed to duty with the Manila board of health. Medical officers of the army have been given practical charge of health matters in or near towns where troops are stationed.

The report on the health of the army in general shows a slight decrease in the percentage of sick. The number of deaths has increased by six. Out of a total of 36 recent deaths, dysentery has been the cause of 18.

EXPOSITION DEFICIT.

New York Congressmen Advocate An Appropriation of $500,000.

Washington, June 14.—The New York members of the house of representatives were before the house committee on appropriations to ask an appropriation of $500,000 to cover the deficit of the Buffalo exposition. Representative Alexander, of Buffalo, who spoke for the delegation, said that the shooting of President McKinley had a depressing effect on the exposition towards its close when there was the greatest expectation of large return, and that under nominal conditions there would have been a much larger income.

Two Drowned.

Chester, Pa., June 14.—Capt. Hannett Robbins, of Port Morris, N. J., and Mrs. Pluma Haines, of Camden, N. J., were drowned opposite this city by the capsizing in a hard wind of the sloop Henry S. Robbins, laden with oyster shells. Miss Lizzie Jones, of Camden, and Robert Reed and Chas. F. Burton, of Port Morris, were rescued by the United States launch Cadet.

Tickets Sold to a Hanging.

Montreal, June 14.—Thosvald Hansen was hanged here for the murder of Erick Marotte, a 9-year-old boy, last autumn, in order to obtain some change, 17 cents, which the boy was jingling in his hand. Hansen's neck was broken. Tickets of admission to the execution were openly sold at prices ranging from 50 cents to $10.

A Dinner of Welcome.

London, June 14.—A dinner of welcome was given Friday night to Jos. Wheeler and H. Clay Evans, new consul general, and ex-Congressman English, of Indiana, at which many representative Americans and Englishmen were present.

Week's Business Failures.

New York, June 14.—Business failures for the week in the United States number 165, as against 153 last week, 188 in this week last year. For Canada 12 for the week, against 17 a year ago.

BRINGING IN MEN.

Carload of Men For the Pennsylvania Anthracite Regions.

Reading, Pa., June 14.—Another carload of workmen went through here for the coal regions. Thus far it is said the Philadelphia & Reading Co. has secured more than 1,000 men, mostly firemen, engineers and pumpmen. It was stated by an official that there is not a colliery in the Reading company's territory where the pumps are not being manned, where desired.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 14.—The work of the strikers in attempting to bring out all men who are still in the employ of coal companies goes steadily on. Their campaign against the engineers, firemen and pumpmen is nearly over, most of those men being out, and the union is now paying more attention to the fire bosses, clerks and others who have taken the places of those who quit work. Pressure is being brought to bear on them in every possible way. Quite a number of the fire bosses throughout the region have already stopped work because they had been asked to take the strikers' places, and at a meeting held here Friday afternoon about a dozen more consented to join the strikers. The labor leaders hope to have more out by Monday. The company officials are aware of the attack on the fire bosses and they are making effort to hold them.

The miners' union is now planning to expel from the organization all engineers, firemen and pumpmen who have not yet obeyed the strike order. They have been given until Saturday night to join the strikers, and if they do not quit they will be expelled and their names published throughout the region as "unfair" workmen.

The miners' leaders as a rule will not talk on the matter of boycotting, but the rank and file of the strikers openly admit that they try to boycot all men whom they look upon as being "unfair" workers.

Nothing developed here which in any way changed the situation. President Mitchell had nothing to give out regarding the West Virginia situation.

Washington, June 14.—The president, it is stated on good authority, proposes to apply directly or indirectly to congress for legislation which will enable him to meet the coal strike situation. It is understood that the president and his advisors argue that there is no law which would meet the case and settle the issues satisfactorily.

THE VOTE COUNTED.

Officers Elected By the International Typographical Union.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 14.—The canvassing board of the International Typographical union completed the count of the vote for national officers of the organization cast in the biennial election. The total number of votes cast in the election was nearly 29,000, about 70 per cent. of the entire strength of the union. Following are the officers chosen for the ensuing two years: President, James M. Lynch, Syracuse, N. Y.; first vice president, C. E. Hawkes, Chicago; third vice president, James Mulcahey, St. Louis; fourth vice president, J. F. O'Sullivan, Boston; secretary-treasurer, J. W. Bramwood, Denver; delegates to American Federation of Labor: Printers, William M. Garrett, Washington; Max S. Hayes, Cleveland; Frank Morrison, Chicago. Allied crafts, J. F. O'Sullivan, Boston. Trustees union printers' home: Printers, Thos. McCafferty, Colorado Springs; L. C. Shepard, Chicago. Allied crafts, H. H. Rogers, Chicago. Agent union printers' home, William Kennedy, Chicago. President Lynch received over two-thirds of the vote cast for president.

PAID THE PENALTY.

Perry Christian Hanged at Moundsville For Murder.

Moundsville, W. Va., June 14.—Perry Christian, white, 26 years of age was hanged in the state penitentiary Friday night at 5:13½ o'clock. His neck was dislocated and death ensued in nine minutes. His remains were taken Friday night to Wellston, O., his former home, for interment. He professed religion some time before his death and went to the scaffold bravely without flinching, accompanied by Rev. D. W. Ruble, prison chaplain, and Rev. B. M. Spurr. About 40 persons witnessed the execution.

In March, 1901, Perry Christian murdered G. W. Dent near Boomer, W. Va.

Gov. Nash and Senator Foraker, of Ohio, from which state the Negro came, attempted to intercede in behalf of Christian, but Gov. White ignored their entreaties.

AN AMATEUR DETECTIVE.

A Knight of the Razor Who Showed Qualifications for the Sleuth Profession.

Sherlock Holmes has a promising rival in a barber known to the Philadelphia Record. He astonished one of his customers the other day by asking him if he were not left-handed. The man admitted that he was, and suggested that the barber had probably seen him hang up his hat.

"No," said the barber; "I have other ways of finding out such things. "I see, too, that you are a bookkeeper."

"Yes," admitted the customer, "your guesses are correct. How do you know?"

"It's easy," said the barber. "In shampooing your head I noticed ink on your hair at the left temple. This ink, I concluded, must have got there from a pen resting on your left ear, which indicated that you were a person who used a pen a great deal; as only such persons use their ears as pen-racks.

"That didn't convince me that you were a bookkeeper, however, because a literary man might stick his pen behind his ear for convenience. I learned of your profession when I applied the lather. This made the ink on your hair wash out, and I discovered two shades of ink—red and black. Nobody but a bookkeeper uses red and black ink, so it was easy to class you as a bookkeeper.

"I knew you were left-handed because the ink was on the left side—the side that a left-handed writer would involuntarily use when sticking his pen back of his ear."

"Wonderful, wonderful!" said the customer. "Now suppose you stop talking for awhile, and finish shaving me."

ROUGH ON MARK TWAIN.

An Englishman's Appreciation of One of Chauncey Depew's Little Jokes.

Once upon a time Senator Depew and Mark Twain were fellow passengers on a trap across the ocean. One night a dinner was given and Twain was called upon for a speech. He made a number of characteristically humorous remarks, and then sat down amid applause. Mr. Depew was next called upon, relates the Washington Post.

"Mr. Clemens and I exchanged speeches before dinner," he said, "and he has delivered mine. He is so bad that I won't disgrace him by repeating it." Then Mr. Depew sat down, while everybody laughed.

The next morning, while Mr. Clemens was pacing the deck, an Englishman came up to him.

"Mr. Clemens," he said, "I always thought that Mr. Depew was a smart man, but that speech of his which you delivered last night was certainly the worst drivel I ever heard."

Her Strong Point.

"Can you sing?" said the theatrical manager.

"Not the least in the world," replied the applicant for a job.

"Can you dance?"

"Not a bit."

"Then what use do you suppose, young lady, we could make of you as a member of our company?"

"You ought to see me try to do a song and dance. It's the funniest thing in the world."—Chicago Tribune.

None in Stock.

"I observe," said the literary customer, "that 'concealment, like a worm i' the bud,' hath preserved on the damask cheek' of some of these apples. That is a poetical quotation, I presume you have read Shakespeare?"

"Red Shakespeare?" echoed the apple dealer. "No, sir." That's a variety I've never heard of."—Chicago Tribune.

An Unfavorable Symptom.

THE ROSEBUD INDIAN RESERVATION TO BE OPENED FOR SETTLEMENT.

A HALF MILLION ACRES OF RICH LANDS TO BE THROWN OPEN.

FINEST GRAZING AND FARMING LANDS.

DIRECT RAILROAD NOW BUILDING.

The new extension now being built by the North-Western Line to Bonesteel, S. D., brings to mind the treaty recently made with the chiefs of the warlike Sioux by which part of the famous Rosebud Reservation is to be turned over to the government and one more of the few choice tracts of public lands now remaining, be thus opened to settlement.

The land in question lies between the Missouri and Niobrara rivers and is well watered and fertile. Farm lands near the Reservation are selling at from $20 to $35 an acre, grazing lands at from $6 to $15.

The country is level or slightly rolling, consisting of black loam with clay subsoil, making the very best of farming land. It seems to suffer exceptionally little from drought.

A great boom has sprung up in Bonesteel, to which point the North-Western Line is building. Last fall there were fifty settlers there. To-day there is a town of 300. Ninety days from now there will be 3,000. Five real estate offices have opened, and town lots are selling at from $300 to $800 each.

The Reservation will probably be opened by a lottery plan, such as was made use of in Oklahoma. Fifty thousand people are expected to take part in the drawing for the land.

To enter a homestead of 160 acres one must be the head of a family or have attained the age of twenty-one years; a citizen of the United States or one who has filed his declaration to become such. To establish a title to the land, residence must be maintained thereon, improving and cultivating the land continuously for five years.

With the completion of the North-Western Line from Verdigre to the Reservation boundary at Bonesteel, there will, without doubt, be a tremendous influx of homesteaders as soon as the President's proclamation sets a date for the the opening. Interest in the matter in Nebraska is intense.

SURRENDER OF BOERS.

It is Still Going on With the Greatest Good Will.

DeWet Was Surrounded By Thousands Boer Men, Women and Children, Who Struggled to Shake the Hand of Their Hero.

London, June 16.—Dispatches received here from South Africa show that the surrenders of Boers are proceeding with the greatest good will. The total of those who have already surrendered number 16,500, and the British are extending every possible kindness to the men who come in.

The appearance of Gen. DeWet at the camp at Winburg was the signal for a great display of enthusiasm. When he arrived at the camp, Gen. DeWet was at once surrounded by thousands of Boer, men, women and children who struggled and clamored to shake the hand of their hero. Gen. DeWet mounted a table and delivered an address. He warmly applauded the staunch support that the women had given the burghers during the war, which, he said, had greatly encouraged the men in the field. Continuing, Gen. DeWet recommended his hearers to be loyal to the new government, and said:

"Perhaps it is hard for you to hear this from my mouth, but God has decided thus. I fought until there was no more hope of upholding our cause, and however bitter it may be, the time has now come to lay down our arms. As a Christian people, God now demands that we be faithful to our new government. Let us submit to His decision."

Neither Gen. DeWet nor Mr. Steyn, former president of the old Orange Free State, was ever wounded during the war. Gen. DeWet has not seen his wife for two years.

The repatriation committee, which has been formed to assist the Boers in returning to their farms, has a gigantic task before it. The concentration camps will be converted into supply depots to provide the returning burghers with the means to rebuild and restock their farms. The wives and families of the Boers will, if desired, be maintained at the expense of the government while the burghers are preparing the farms for their reception. Two thousand of the national scouts, who fought upon the British side during the war, will immediately be disbanded and each scout will be provided with a pony and enabled to return to his farm.

London, June 16.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener dated Pretoria, Saturday, June 14, says that 2,594 Boers have surrendered since Thursday, June 12, and that everything is proceeding most satisfactorily.

WEST VIRGINIA STRIKE.

Effort Made to Enlist the Co-Operation of the Railroad Men.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 16.—An effort is being made to induce the railroad men to refuse to handle coal mined in this district. Success in this would mean a complete suspension of mining. There is some little uneasiness among the operators. Organizers left this field Monday on the West Virginia Central to induce a strike among the miners of the Davis Elkins syndicate. Mother Jones and others addressed 300 hundred men Sunday at Willow Tree school house, near Menongahela. The crowd was largely composed of women, children and farmers.

ROW BOAT OVERTURNED.

Three People Drowned in Lake Huron, Near Edison Beach, Mich.

Port Huron, Mich., June 16.—During a gale Sunday afternoon Arthur Martin, aged 21, Beatrice Abraham, aged 14, and Norma Abraham, aged 7, were drowned in Lake Huron by the overturning of a row boat off Edison beach. The accident was witnessed by a number of people, but the storm was so fierce that no help could reach the young people. The storm blew up suddenly with the wind from off the shore. Martin endeavored to get the bow of his boat into the wind, but it swamped in the heavy sea. All three bodies were recovered.

LATE CONGRESSMAN CUMMINGS.

The Letter Carriers of Savannah Held Memorial Services Sunday.

Savannah, Ga., June 16.—The letter carriers of Savannah held memorial services Sunday night at St. Stephens' Episcopal church in honor of the late Congressman Amos Cummings, the letter carriers' champion. The services were under the auspices of Branch No. 678 of the National Association of Letter Carriers. The services of Mr. Cummings and his never failing friendship for the letter carriers were highly eulogized.

STRIKERS AGAIN RIOTING.

Attempt to Start Electric Cars Was Cause of Demonstrations.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 16.—The presence of 700 armed men sent by Gov. Kimball to restore order had little influence except in the central parts of the city Sunday, where the soldiers formed an invincible guard, and Sunday afternoon rioting broke out anew in the suburbs and spread to the neighboring city of Central Falls. The resumption of the electric service which had been abandoned since Thursday was the signal for demonstrations at the points where neither soldiers nor police were stationed, and the character of the attacks grew worse until the traction company was forced to abandon the car service.

The disorders extenued over so great an area that the troops available were unable to handle the situation, and it was said that before the usual car traffic can be resumed it will be necessary to place the city of Central Falls and parts of Cumberland, Lincoln and North Providence under military control. To do this an increase in the number of troops will be necessary. It was demonstrated that the cars could not be operated in safety under the present condition. The tracks were obstructed and cars were pelted with stones by the mobs, not only in the suburbs of this city, but in Central Falls. Missiles struck many of the employes, some of whom were injured and rolling stock was damaged.

About 3,000 people gathered around one car in Central Falls and their attitude was so threatening that a machine gun was loaded and two companies of marines were ordered to charge the crowd. The car proceeded but the line was later abandoned. The marines then marched through the city and at another point the machine gun was made ready for action when it became apparent that an outburst was imminent. Mayor Fales, of Central Falls, not having requested military protection from the governor, asked that the troops be withdrawn and this was done after two hours of service.

At a conference Sunday between Gov. Kimball, Mayor Fales and Gen. Tanner, it was decided that the militia would not be sent to Central Falls until their services were requested. The militia unintentionally invaded Central Falls to quell a disturbance and the conference was for the purpose of preventing such a repetition. No disturbance occurred in this city or elsewhere during the forenoon and the troops patrolled even a greater stretch of territory than before, in preparation for the resumption of traffic.

DEATH IN A STORM.

Fisherman Killed By Lightning—Two Churches Struck at Chicago.

Chicago, June 16.—Chicago was visited by an electrical storm Sunday afternoon which wrought death, caused a panic among 100 Sunday-school children and damaged considerable property. Three churches were struck by electric bolts, one, the Memorial German Episcopal, being destroyed.

Calvary Presbyterian church, West Congress and 42d streets, was struck while the Sunday-school services were being held. The bolt entered the steeple and tore through the ceiling, causing a panic among the children. The building caught fire, but all the children were rescued without serious injury.

During the storm lightning demolished one of the steeples of the Lady of Sorrows' church, Jackson boulevarde and Albany avenue.

Joseph Killiain, while resting in a fisherman's hut on the shore of Lake Calumet, was killed by lightning, and in different parts of the city while the storm was in progress many other persons received shocks.

BECAME PANIC-STRICKEN.

Earthquake Shocks and Rumblings at Syracuse, Sicily.

Syracuse, Sicily, June 16.—Strong earthquake shocks, accompanied by a sound of underground rumblings, were experienced here Saturday night. The inhabitants of Syracuse became panic-stricken. The disturbances did not effect any damage. For several days past the sky over Sicily has been overcast and the heat has been overwhelming. Shocks of earthquake are reported from other parts of the Island of Sicily.

Commercial Telegraphers Organize.

Chicago, June 16.—The commercial telegraphers of Chicago, who for several years have been without a union, were organized Sunday by the American Federation of Labor. The new organization will be known as the International Union of Commercial Telegraphers.

Betrothal of Prince Nichols.

Athens, June 16.—The betrothal is announced of Prince Nicholas, the third son of King George of Greece and the Grand Duchess Helen, daughter of Grand Duke Vladimir, of Russia.

Circus Tent Blown Down.

Sigourney, Ia., June 13.—The main tent of the Harris circus was blown down by high winds Thursday and 23 people were injured, two of them seriously. Miss Clara Campbell, aged 20, was hurt about the back and may not recover.

Strike Declared Off.

Carbondale, Ill., June 13.—The strike which has been on at the Chicago & Carlinville Coal Co.'s shaft, and which at one time threatened to involve the entire Seventh district, has been declared off.

CAPTURED TROOPS.

Five of the Fifth Cavalry Reported Beloved to Death.

It is Expected a General Amnesty Will Be Declared July 1—This Will Release Filipino Prisoners on Island of Guam.

Manila, June 16.—Friendly natives in Manila say a report is current among their countrymen that the five soldiers of the 5th cavalry who were captured by the insurgents May 30 have been beloved to death near Teresa, in Morong province, Luzon. This report has not been confirmed by the American authorities of that district.

Twenty-five members of a band of insurgents who were captured while fighting with Gen. Lukban in Samar took the oath of allegiance to the United States and were subsequently released. Four members of the band were killed in the engagement which resulted in the capture of their companions. The 25 who have sworn allegiance have seen Gen. Chaffee and have promised to give him all the assistance in their power in the work of maintaining the present peace conditions in Samar.

A commission has been sent to Samar to appoint Senor Llorentes governor of the island and to establish civil government there. It is expected that a general amnesty will be declared July 1. This amnesty will result in the release of the Filipino prisoners now on the island of Guam.

The prospects in the island of Leyte for a speedy termination of the armed resistance there are bright. Since the ports of the island were closed surrenders of insurgents to the native constabulary have occurred daily.

Gen. Davis, the commander of the American forces on the island of Mindanao, has been informed by Datto Ada that two of the three Moros who murdered an American soldier named Lewis were killed in the engagement at Bazan between Moros and Americans last May and that the other murderer has disappeared.

An American sentry belonging to the engineers was badly cut with a bolo in the hands of a Moro while on duty near Vicars.

Several Dattos, under the sultan of Mindanao, have called upon Col. Frank D. Baldwin, of the 27th infantry, and have asked for American flags. This action on the part of the Dattos is considered equivalent to taking the oath of allegiance to the United States.

LOVERS' QUARREL.

Mrs. Sahlor Killed By Harry M. Ricer—He is Killed By Another Woman.

Philadelphia, June 16.—Mrs. Rachel Sahlor, a widow, was Sunday shot and instantly killed at Coatesville, Pa., 40 miles west of here, by Harry N. Ricer, of New Castle, Pa., who was also killed by a bullet from his revolver while struggling with another woman for possesion of the weapon. The tragedy, it is said, was the result of a quarrel. Ricer was regarded as Mrs. Sahlor's accepted suitor. Saturday night Ricer visited the woman and they are said to have quarreled. Mrs. Sahlor ordered him from the house and she went to the home of Mrs. Mary L. Ernest to spend the night.

Sunday Ricer appeared at the house and demanded an interview with Mrs. Sahlor. She declined to receive him and was dismissing him at the door when he drew a revolver from his pocket and shot her through the heart. He then, it is claimed, aimed the revolver at Mrs. Ernest, who grappled with him. During the struggle the pistol was discharged, the bullet taking effect in Ricer's head, killing him almost instantly. The coroner's jury found letters in Ricer's pocket signed "Alma" which indicated that he was engaged to be married to a young woman in Columbus, O.

Columbus, O., June 16.—Miss Clara Alma Lowrey, said to have been engaged to Harry N. Ricer, the murderer of Mrs. Sahlor, at Coatesville, Pa., was prostrated Sunday night when she learned of the tragedy. She said she was not engaged to Ricer, but had known him for two years and corresponded with him. She knew nothing of Mrs. Sahlor and had never heard Ricer refer to her.

THE PRINTERS' KICK.

Those in the Employ of the Government at Manila Want Pay in Gold.

Manila, June 16.—Henry C. Ide, the member of the Philippine commission who was assigned to the department of finance and justice, has received a petition from the printers in the employ of the government asking that their salaries be paid in gold or in some other established and non-fluctuating currency. In reply to this petition Mr. Ide said he thought that the conditions of which the printers complained would probably be relieved. They are now paid in Mexican silver.

Alleged Counterfeiters Arrested.

Baltimore, June 16.—United States secret service men, aided by local police, captured eight Italians, supposed to be members of a gang of counterfeiters who have operated in several parts of the country during the past few months.

Resolutions Presented to Gen. Chaffee.

Manila, June 16.—The chamber of commerce has presented to Gen. Chaffee a set of resolutions which express the regard with which Gen. Chaffee and the army in the Philippines are held by the business men of Manila.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, June 10.—Senate—The isthmian canal project was discussed in the senate Monday.

House—The house passed the bill to protect the president, vice president, members of the cabinet and foreign ministers and ambassadors and to suppress the teaching of anarchy by a vote of 175 to 38. It is a substitute for the senate measure which contained no anti-anarchy provisions, but which did contain a provision omitted from the substitute for a body guard for the president. The substitute consists of 13 sections. It provides that any person who shall unlawfully, purposely and knowingly kill the president, vice president or any officer entitled by law to succeed to the presidency, any foreign ambassador or minister accredited to this country "while engaged in the performance of his official duties or because of his official character or because of any of his acts or omissions," shall suffer death. Any person who attempts to commit any of the above offenses shall be imprisoned not less than ten years. Any person while engaged in unlawful attempt to inflict grievous bodily harm upon the president or any person entitled to succeed him, if he inflicts injuries which shall cause death, shall be imprisoned for life; if such injuries do not cause, death such offender shall be imprisoned not less than five years.

Any person who aids, abets or conspires with another to commit any of the above offenses shall be deemed a principal. Any person who knowingly harbors, conceals or aids with intent that he may avoid arrest or punishment any person who has committed one of the above offenses shall be imprisoned from one to 25 years. Any person who advocates the unlawful killing of an officer of the government or the government of any civilized nation because of his character or who openly justifies such killing with intent to secure the commission or any of the above offenses shall be fined from $500 to $5,000 and imprisonment from one to 20 years. Any person who conspires or advises any person to assault or kill, within or without the United States, the chief magistrate of a foreign country because of his character, shall be punished as follows: If the attempt is made and death results such offender shall suffer death. If such attempt does not result in death the punishment shall be a fine of $500 to $5,000 and imprisonment from five to 25 years. If such attempt is not made the punishment shall be a similar fine and imprisonment from one to five years. Section 2 provides that no person who is opposed to all organized government or is a member of any organization entertaining or teaching such opposition shall not be admitted into the United States, and that any person who aids such person to enter shall be fined from $500 to $5,000 and imprisoned from one to five years. Section 12 prohibits naturalization of anarchists.

Washington, June 11.—Senate—Another of the big supply bills of the government was disposed of by the senate Tuesday, the naval bill carrying more than $78,000,000 being passed. It includes provision for two first-class battleships, two first-class armored cruisers and two gunboats; but strikes out the house provision that one of each shall be built at government yards.

House—The house defeated the bill to transfer certain forest reserves to the agricultural department and to authorize the president to establish game and fish preserves. Its death was accomplished by striking out the enacting clause. The house then adopted a special order for the consideration of the Corliss Pacific cable bill by a vote of 108 to 73.

Washington, June 12.—Senate—Just before adjournment Wednesday the senate agreed to vote finally on the Nicaragua canal bill and all pending amendments on Thursday, June 19, the voting to begin at 2 p. m.

House—The house dispatched the Corliss Pacific cable bill by the same method it adopted Tuesday in the case of the forest reserve bill. It struck out the enacting clause of the measure by a vote of 116 to 77, thus giving no opportunity to test the strength of the Dalzell substitute which authorized the president to contract with a private company for the laying of a cable.

Washington, June 13.—Senate—After considering the London dock charges bill for an hour and a half Thursday without completing it, the senate resumed consideration of the isthmian canal question. Mr. Morgan (Ala.) occupied the floor for three hours and a half.

House—The house adopted a special rule for the consideration of the irrigation bill which passed the senate some time ago and devoted the day to general debate of the measure. Friday the bill will be read for amendment under the five minute rule.

Washington, June 14.—Senate—During the greater part of Friday the senate was in executive session, the nomination of Capt. Crozier to be chief of ordnance of the army being the particular subject under consideration. The president's message urging the establishment of reciprocity relations between the United States and Cuba received after the senate had gone into secret session. The doors were opened, the message was read and the secret session was resumed.

House—The house passed the irrigation bill by a vote of 146 to 55. Many amendments were offered, but only one except those offered by the committee, was adopted. It was of a minor character. The bill already has passed the senate. The friends of the measure greeted the announcement of its passage with a round of applause.

Milling Plant Destroyed.

Atlanta, Ga., June 14.—Fire totally destroyed the plant of the A. DeLoach Milling Co., situated east of this city, entailing a loss estimated at $55,000, partially covered by insurance. Five thousand feet of lumber, the property of the company, was also destroyed.

Given the Decision.

Denver, June 14.—Harry Forbes, of Chicago, was given the decision over "Young" Devaney, of Denver, at the end of ten rounds before the Elyria Athletic club. Forbes had the better of the fight from the start.

FROM ALL OVER THE STATE.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED.

Louis Wolfes Arrested at Lexington—Played the Races.

Lexington, Ky., June 12.—Louis Wolfes, local manager for Brooks, Mead & Co., of Charleston, W. Va., was arrested here Wednesday on the charge of embezzlement. A. D. Mead, of the firm, says Wolfes confessed embezzling about $200 to play the races; also admitted burning 170 contracts and forging an Adams express receipt for a package of money not sent to the firm. Mead claims to have this confession in an affidavit. Wolfes has a family and lives here. He refused to be interviewed.

ASHLAND WILKES STOCK FARM.

Sold to S. S. Brown, Pittsburg Millionaire, For $85,305.

Lexington, Ky., June 12.—S. S. Brown, the Pittsburg millionaire, Wednesday closed a deal for the old Ashland Wilkes stock farm, owned by F. P. Drake, paying $85,305 cash for 807 acres. It adjoins Harkness' Walnut Hall, and is within a short distance of Haggin's Elmendorf, Young's McGrathiana and Keene's Castleton studs. It will be used as a thoroughbred breeding farm. Within the last fortnight Brown has bought $28,000 worth of colts in this vicinity.

Nominated For Congress.

Paducah, Ky., June 13.—In pursuance to a call by Chairman Mott Ayres, of the First congressional district, the democratic executive committee met here Thursday afternoon and again chose Ollie M. James as the nominee for congress. Because the election was not held under the Carroll law a few weeks ago the renomination resulted Thursday.

Jury Disagreed.

Lexington, Ky., June 14.—The jury in the case of Will Mosby, the Negro charged with the murder of J. W. Hawkins, a prominent merchant, has been discharged. It stood six for the death penalty and the rest for acquittal on the first ballot. On the last ballot 11 were for manslaughter and one for the death penalty. The trial lasted nine days.

Two Killed in a Fight.

London, Ky., June 12.—A report reached this place Wednesday evening from Clay county of a fight in which two men were killed. A party composed of the Bishops and Gabbards are said to have been drinking together, when a dispute arose. About a dozen men are said to have been engaged. One man was killed on each side before ammunition was exhausted.

Farm Hand Found Wealth.

Burnside, Ky., June 14. — News reaches here that Berry Wright, a farm hand working on what is known as the John E. Grider farm, near Crcelsboro, Russel county, unearthed a teakettle containing $630 in gold and silver coin. It is believed that the money was buried by the late John E. Grider.

Ideal Winter Quarters.

Lexington, Ky., June 14.—The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association is preparing to spend thousands in making its track the ideal winter quarters for trotters. New stables, model jogging roads and other improvements will be made. As it is about 900 racers, trotters and pacers, are wintered here.

Top Beef Prices.

Lexington, Ky., June 14.—Well Bros., agents for Nelson Morris & Co., bought of W. W. Estill, of this county, 90 head of export cattle, for 5½ cents, which is the top price paid here this year. The deal will foot up $10,000. The cattle will be shipped to Liverpool.

Had Sunk Twice.

Williamsburg, Ky., June 13.—While attempting to cross Cumberland river on boom logs Thursday Miss Jolo Sutton lost her footing and fell in midstream. Miss Sutton was sinking the second time when Ben Gatliff ran from his home, plunged in and rescued her, more dead than alive.

A Strike at Paducah.

Paducah, Ky., June 13.—A number of plumbers, helpers and laborers went on a strike at the Paducah Gas & Electric Co.'s plant. They claim plumbers imported from Peoria, Ill., are being paid higher wages than the home plumbers.

A Union Miner Fined.

Madisonville, Ky., June 14.—Samuel Jones, a union miner, was arrested by Marshall Blanks, of Morton's Gap, charged with carrying concealed deadly weapons. He was sent to jail in default of the payment of a fine of $25 and costs.

Mrs. Margaret Gill Dead.

Lancaster, Ky., June 12.—Mrs. Margaret Gill, widow of John Gill, died after an illness of two years from tuberculosis. She was president of the local W. C. T. U. and was 51 years of age. She leaves three daughters and a son.

Capt. Lambdin Dead.

Paducah, Ky., June 12.—Capt. W. F. Lambdin, one of the best known river men on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, died at his home here early Wednesday morning from jaundice and dropsy.

KENTUCKY EDITORS' OUTING.

Secretary Morningstar Arranging For Their Visit to Michigan.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., June 14.—Robt. E. Morningstar, secretary of the Kentucky Press association, is here in conference with Manager Morse, of The Avery, and the mayor of the city in reference to the programme of entertainment upon the occasion of the visit of the Kentucky editors, with their wives and sweethearts, the first week in July. Mr. Morningstar expressed himself as being delighted with the proffered hospitalities, and thinks that this year's Michigan outing will be the most enjoyable the Bluegrass boys and girls have ever experienced.

STOP THE STUDY.

Partisan Strife May Conclude Study of Civil War at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., June 13.—No formal action has been taken in the case of Laura Talbot Galt, the 13-year-old girl who refused to sing "Marching Through Georgia" in her class at the Eighth ward school, and who stopped her ears with her fingers that she might not hear it. The school board will consider the case, and it is not improbable that the study of the civil war in the public schools will be stopped. Until within the last few years this phase of American history was tabooed in the schools here, and it is believed that there is still too much feeling for it to be continued.

SILVER MINE OPENED.

One Found in Laurel County Which Assays $80 Per Ton.

Barbourville, Ky., June 14.—A silver mine has been opened in Laurel county which is turning out ore valued at $80 per ton. The mine is located on Woods creek, and it is said to have been discovered 48 years ago, but only partially developed.

The thickness of the ore rock steadily increases as the work progresses, and it is thought it will reach six feet. Minur, Nelson, Stewart and Cornelius are the operators. They think the mine will prove one of great value.

SAT ON THE TRACK.

Crippled Tramp Fatally Mangled By a Work Train at Hawesville.

Hawesville, Ky., June 13.—A. C. Hathaway, a crippled tramp, was killed here Thursday by a work train. He deliberately sat on the track, and when the train approached thrust out an arm, which was severed. He was taken to Cloverport, where he died to death. He was about 30 years old, and a member of a Louisville masonic lodge. He told an officer here that he intended to kill himself.

Two Veteran Masons.

Scottville, Ky., June 13.—The oldest living members of the Graham lodge of masons at Scottville are M. Y. H. Holland, of Allen Springs, and Manny Hughes, of Holland. They were initiated June 12, 50 years ago, and have been loyal and honorable members since that time.

Acknowledged He Shot to Kill.

Paintsville, Ky., June 13.—Dave Edwards, who was indicted for shooting with intent to kill a mine inspector, went to trial Friday. When the case was called Edwards pleaded guilty, but the prosecution asked that evidence be heard in the case.

Grocers Arrested.

Henderson, Ky., June 13.—Thirteen of Henderson's leading grocers were notified to appear in police court Friday to answer charges of selling unlabeled adulterated food products. The warrants were sworn out by City Prosecuting Attorney Banks.

A Union Depot.

Lexington, Ky., June 14.—It is given out that the Chesapeake & Ohio and Louisville & Nashville railroads will erect a fine union depot in this city, President Stevens, of the C. & O., and General Manager Smith, of the L. & N., have, it is said, agreed on terms.

Gov. Beckham Visiting.

Lexington, Ky., June 14.—Gov. and Mrs. J. C. W. Beckham, Mrs. Julia Beckham, of Frankfort, the Misses Smith, Misses Fuqua, of Owensboro, and Kriskion, of Chicago, are guests of S. L. Van Meter at his country place for a few days.

Indian Marries a White Woman.

Paducah, Ky., June 14.—The marriage of Lewis Pretty Eagle, an Indian doctor, who has been here a few weeks, to Mrs. Nora Wall, of Brookport, Ill., at Labelle Park, was announced Friday.

Will Winter in the Blue Grass.

Lexington, Ky., June 14.—Capt. S. S. Brown, of Pittsburg, who recently bought a $32,000 farm near this city, will follow the example of Henry M. Zeigler, of Cincinnati, and Arthur Featherstone, of Chicago, and winter his racers in the blue grass.

Struck By Lightning.

Lancaster, Ky., June 14.—While riding along the road Luther Ray, of Buckeye, this county, was struck by lightning. He was painfully, but not dangerously injured. His horse was instantly killed.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Fifteenth Judicial District at Sparta, Gallatin county, Ky., on the 5th day of June, 1902, at which all of the members of the said committee were present, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, For the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates for the offices of Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney of the Fifteenth Judicial District, to be voted for at the November election, 1903, it is ordered by the Democratic committee of said district that a primary election be held in each voting precinct in said Fifteenth Judicial District, on the 29th day of July, 1902, between the hours of 6 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., said election to be conducted in all respects as required by the statute laws of Kentucky.

All known Democratic voters and all Democratic minors who will be voters at said November election, 1903, shall have the right to participate in said primary election. All candidates desiring to be voted for at said primary election shall, on or before July 14, 1902, notify in writing the Chairman and Secretary of said Committee of their candidacy, and shall pay, in the aggregate to the Secretary of said committee for the purpose of defraying the expenses of said primary election, the sum of $1,000, to be apportioned as follows: All of the candidates for circuit Judge to pay in the aggregate $500. All of the candidates for Commonwealth's Attorney to pay in the aggregate $500.

If only one candidate for either of said positions, he is to pay full amount as apportioned to it; if more than one candidate, to be equally divided among all of the candidates for same. If not more than one candidate announces for each office at 12 o'clock noon on the 14th day of July, 1902 then this call for primary is suspended, and the Chairman of this committee is empowered and directed to declare said announced candidates the Democratic nominees for said respective offices, and he, and the Secretary of this Committee shall so certify said nominations to the various County Clerks of said district. In the event of no primary the nominees shall pay all expenses incurred, same to be divided as follows: one-half by each nominee.

Should more than one candidate announce for either of said offices this Committee shall meet on the 18th day of July, 1902, for the purpose of appointing officers of said primary.

A Hazardous Trip.

An octogenarian, who lives near Burlington, and is thoroughly reliable, tells the following as an illustration of how he use to convey his eggs to market before the days of the huckster. He would let them accumulate until there were fifty dozen or so, when he would place them in a meal sack, which he would put on a horse and then ride on the sack to Petersburg, a distance of 8 or 9 miles, where he would deliver them to his kinsman then in the grocery business. He claims that he is the only man in this county who successfully performed the feat of carrying eggs to market in that way. For further and more complete particulars you are referred to Mr. W. T. Smith, whose address is Burlington, Boone county, Ky.

STOPS PAIN

Athens, Tenn., Jan. 27, 1901.

Ever since the first appearance of my menses they were very irregular and I suffered with great pain in my hips, back, stomach and legs, with terrible bearing down pains in the abdomen. During the past month I have been taking Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and I passed the monthly period without pain for the first time in years. NANNIE DAVIS.

What is life worth to a woman suffering like Nannie Davis suffered? Yet there are women in thousands of homes to-day who are bearing those terrible menstrual pains in silence. If you are one of these we want to say that this same will bring you permanent relief. Console yourself with the knowledge that 1,000,000 women have been completely cured by Wine of Cardui. These women suffered from leucorrhœa, irregular menses, headache, backache, and bearing down pains. Wine of Cardui will stop all these aches and pains for you. Purchase a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui to-day and take it in the privacy of your home.

THE COMBINED STALLION.
MAX LEDGER,
will make the season of 1902, through the month of April, at O. P. Conner's farm, 4 miles south of Burlington, Ky., near the East Bend road. Beginning the first Monday and Tuesday in May, he will be found at Burlington; Wednesday at Union, and the remainder of the time at home.

Terms—$10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with.

Description and Pedigree:

Max Ledger is a fine black, 16 hands high, is a fine show horse, having taken 47 premiums at 14 fairs, and is the sire of the best lot of colts in Northern Kentucky. His colts are large, active and stylish. He is very fine in form and finish, and for style, we challenge competition. For saddle and harness he is unsurpassed by any horse in Boone Co.

This high bred young horse is from Ledger No. 12358, Vol. 9, (sire of Belle K. 2:28¼ fourth heat with but six weeks handling,) Ledger E. pacer 2:24 at 3-yr-old, Kentucky Prince, 2:15; he by Crown Chief No. 4089, sire of Roland, 2:28, by Milford Mambrino; he by Mambrino Chief II, sire of Lady Thorne, 2:18½, Woodford Mambrino, 2:21½ and many others. Max Ledger's dam, Kate Livingston by Forest Temple 136, by Edwin Forest; 2nd dam Madam Temple, dam of Flora Temple, 2:17¼; 3rd dam by Tom Crowder; 4th dam by Bellfounder; 5th dam by Passenger.

Pasture $1.50 per month for mares from a distance. L. A. CONNER.

THE PREMIUM STALLION,
DEXTER.
will make the present season at my stable on Gunpowder creek, near Hathaway, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Dexter is a bay, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has made 5 races and won 4.

He was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Priam, sired by Bob Deadlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Caselus M. Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred.

Dexter's colts beat all competitors at the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, the Butler county, Ohio, and the Boone county, Kentucky, fairs, and the Boone county Harvest Home. Last year he took the premium at the Boone fair as the best brood stallion with 5 or more colts.

He will be in Burlington every county court day, and at Geo. Moore's stable at Beaver every Friday.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may occur.

COL. CHIEF
Will make the season of 1902 at the two following places: First three days of the week at Verona, Ky.; last three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at my place, Florence, Ky., on Burlington pike.

Mares served at $10 to insure a living colt, money due when mare is parted with.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Description and Pedigree.

Col. Chief is a chestnut sorrel, 16 hands high, and is a fine harness horse, foaled May 12, 1898.

Col. Chief's sire Col. Kip 15877 (2.20½) bay horse 16¼ hands high, weighs 1250 lbs., sire of the champion yearling of '92 Pawling 2:31 (2-yr-o) 2:22½, (3-yr-old) 2:21½.

Col. Kip was sired by Kenwood 15876 son of Harry Clay 45, sire of Clayton 2:19, Sunshine, 2:26 and the dam of St. Julien, 2:11½, etc. First dam, Agnes by Hamlet 180, by Volunteer 55; second dam, a daughter of Broken Legged Hunter, son of Kentucky Hunter, grand sire Flora Temple, 2:19½; dam, Oak Leaf, was sired by Geo. Willis; he by Belmont, dam by Geo. Wilkes; 1st dam by J. Stevens by Bostic's Almont; 2d dam by C. M. Clay, 3d dam by Tom Crowder, 4th dam by Blacknose.

James P. Tanner,
Box 78, Florence, Ky.

The Harness and Saddle Stallion,
DANDY CRISTO,
Will make the season of 1902, at my stable near Big Bone church, Boone county, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1100 lbs. Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; second dam by Mambrino Time; 4th dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark; he by Black Denmark; he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4-mile race horse; he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's first dam by Black William; she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whip's thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry, gr-dam by Black Squirrel; great-grand-dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS.

Crescent Hill Stock Farm.
SEASON 1902.
Timothy Boy 27854
TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854, bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son. Sired by Wilkes, 2:24, 1st dam Alga by Artillery, 2:21¼; 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:18¾; 3d dam, Emma Arterburn, (dam of St. Armould, 2:29 and gr-d of 2 in :30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58, 4th dam, Jenny Johnson (gr-d of 3 in :30 list.

TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in Kentucky. He is 16¼ hands high and weighs 1000 lbs. in ordinary condition; a horse of great power, fine style and action. He is a pure gaited trotter, a very fine breeder. His colts are large with good style and action, and are good sellers.

Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.

Also two Mammoth Jacks,
NUTWOOD and MIKE, Jr.,
will make the season at the same time and place. Nutwood is a dark brown (little gray,) 16 hands high—the premium jack of Northern Kentucky, never been beaten in a show ring, and one of the best breeders in Boone county.

Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.

Mike, Jr., 14½ hands high, will be 3-years-old the 1st of next Oct; was bred at Crescent Hill Stock Farm and was sired by Mike, (Riddell & Doddle's 16 hand jack); dam by Bourbon Chief, 16 hands high.

Terms—$7.00 to insure a live colt.—Limited to 25 mares.

Pasture and attention furnished mares from a distance at $1.50 per month. Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur. Parties disposing of mares forfeits all insurance and money is due at once.

Crescent Hill Stock Farm is 3 miles West of Richwood on the Richwood and Beaver pike. J. C. BEDINGER,
Richwood, Ky.

Imported French Coach Stallion,
LANTIER 1148,
Will make the present season at Thos. E. Randall's stable on the Burlington & Petersburg pike, 1 mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., the first four days in each week, and at the stable of J. I. McWethy, one mile below Petersburg, the remainder of the time, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Money due when mare is parted with.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25, 1902. NO. 36.

COMMISSARY, June 20.—George Thomas went to Rising Sun, last Saturday, on business of his own and for some of his neighbors.

Artlase Fleek and best girl attended church at Bellevue Sunday night.

Carl Rouse and his best girl split the pike wide open between Bellevue and the Commissary, last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Scott and daughter, Maud and Mrs. Clyde Berkshire, were guests of W. T. Ryle and family, last Wednesday.

Jack Sandford and Hubert Gaines called on their best girls last Sunday evening, living a few stones throw from the Commissary.

Mrs. Pheobe Wilson, who has been visiting relatives here for a month or six weeks, returned to her home in Indiana Thursday.

Crescent, when expressing your thoughts, you should use uptodate language. You should have said, "some one Pontoed Will Norman's tobacco plants," not "swiped."

The members of the christian church at Bellevue met on the river bank Thursday evening at 6 p. m. to administer the ordinance of baptism to a convert. During the services another made the confession, and was immersed. At the night meeting at the church two were reclaimed. The church people felt very much rejoiced.

Bro. White, we think fisbfries are of bad repute. So far as we are individually concerned we would prefer that the ladies prepare the grub at home. By the time the picnic is held, if held at all, there will be plenty of chickens ripe to take the place of fish. We think this the best and cheapest plan and will be the most satisfactory to all. We are willing that Bro. Riddell name the place and date. We are willing for any old thing the majority favors.

We were standing out in front of our place of business Friday afternoon when a young man drove up, halted, looked around with curiosity and amazement, and asked, "is this the Commissary?" We answered, "yes sir!" He then inquired for the road leading to William Snelling's. We replied, "there it is," nodding our head toward the Rockbranch road. He then got out of the buggy, walked to where we were standing, and inquired, "are you the Commissary correspondent." We answered, "yes." He walked around us three or four times, looked us over from head to foot and said, "you are the oddest combination I ever met. If I were around shooting fools, judging you by your looks, I certainly would snap one cap at you; but a person cannot always correctly judge a peanut by its hull." On inquiring we found the gentleman to be Hubert W. Northcutt, Crescent's talented correspondent. Mr. Northcutt was here to make application for the Cason school.

LIMABURG.—John Hicks and family of Covington were guests of W. R. Rouse, a few days since. Mrs. Wilhoit accompanied them home.

Wheat will make a good yield.

Garden truck never looked nicer.

The thermometer went down to 45 on the 22d.

James M. Utz has a stack of good hay for sale.

Some corn will be given its last plowing this week.

Ephraim Tanner, who was very ill last week, is some better.

Tobacco has all been set, and some of it worked the first time.

Mrs. William L. Utz had a chicken to hatch that had three feet.

Columbus Summers, of Erlanger, was the guest of Irven Baker, Sunday.

Henry Clore and wife, of Florence, were guests at R. W. Rouse's, Sunday.

Irvin Baker and Miss Dora Baker were visiting Mr. Mayhues, of Oblo, on Sunday.

Henry Quick and wife, of Hebron, were visiting at William Garnett's Sunday.

Rev. Slater and wife, of Florence, were guests of Geo. W. Baker and wife, Sunday.

Lewis Beemon has some very fine Irish potatoes, this year's growth, on exhibition at the store here.

William N. Uts and wife are enjoying the company of a 10 pound boy, who came to their home on the 16th inst.

W. C. C and Claud Rouse have taken down the old refreshment stand at the Harvest Home ground, and they will erect a new one.

PT. PLEASANT.—Mrs. Julia Stansifer, of Covington, is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. M. Riggs.

Bro. Nooe, of Lexington, will fill his regular appointment here next Sunday.

Virgie Riggs is slowly recovering from a severe attack of sciatic rheumatism.

All who attended the conventions last week agreed that each was a complete success.

John Gross, of Pt. Pleasant, and Carrie Otton, of Cincinnati, were married June 11th.

Mrs. Carey Robinson, who has been quite sick for some time past, we are glad to say is improving.

Miss Susie Sublette, Kentucky's State C. W. B. M. organizer spoke at the church Sunday morning.

H. F. Russell will bring a raft of 600 logs from Manchester, Ohio, down to the North Bend Saw mill, this week.

F. M. Wingate made two good sales of roadsters the past week—one to M. E. Leming, of Missouri, for $200, for the other he got $150.

Harry Robinson and Mary Gergon were united in marriage on June 4th, by Rev. McNeale, of the 4th St. Christian church, Covington.

My little son had an attack of whooping cough and was threatened with pneumonia, but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. Strickfaden, editor of Wold-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale by All Druggists.

Mrs. Rucker's obituary will appear next week.

RICHWOOD, June 23—J. W. Carpenter spent Sunday in Verona.

Cap. Clacken has a new binder.

Mrs. Batty Long had a severe fall, last week.

John Rice has recovered from an attack of mumps.

Major Conner and wife visited Jerry Conrad, Sunday.

Gaines Robinson had a heifer killed by lightning, Friday.

Crickets are playing havoc with newly set tomato plants.

There will be a game of ball here, next Saturday afternoon.

Jeff Carpenter and family spent Sunday with John R. Carpenter.

Edward Stephens and family were visiting Wm. E. Glacken, Sunday.

J. C. Robinson and wife and Mrs. Conrad visited G. Robinson, Sunday.

A. J. Glacken is entertaining a young lady at his house. Mother and baby are doing nicely.

Many will plant corn where they intended to set tobacco, on account of the scarcity of plants.

Many of our citizens attended the dedication of the Odd Fellows' Hall at Walton, Saturday.

If Nadaud runs June 28th, like he formerly rode the wheel in his century races, he will win easily.

That Newport Hodge thinks to "butt in" and butt Gooch and Nadaud ont, but he has no such thing, as yet.

Mrs. Fannie Snow and Mrs. Sallie Lancaster, of Williamstown, were the guests of Mrs. Dora Glacken, last week.

Clarence Rector and family, of Crescent, and Mrs. Cary Carpeuter and family were the guests of John Tanner, Sunday.

Rubber tired buggies and run-ahouts are now the correct thing with us. It seems our roads are hard on the tires and easy on their makers.

Mrs. M. Grubbs, Mrs. Maggie Grubbs and Miss Ida, and Mrs. Maggie Tanner and daughter spent Saturday with M. L. Tanner at Bank Lick.

We are awaiting anxiously for the "Recorder's faithful correspondents picnic," and only have one suggestion, namely: that we do not get in a bunch on that day or some one might throw a bomb and get the whole bunch and then, oh! what would the Recorder do? And where would they get more like unto us?.

The action of some campers or gypsies along our roads have often been a source of great annoyance to our residents, with no redress. Our county laws should bring this class under their control. Some of them and a majority of them, secure their horse feed and bodily feed without permission, burn rail and plank fences and without any molestation. The persons that stole Eli Carpenter's dog, also went into one of our resident's houses and devoured a good dinner left by the housewife for her husband, and when he returned, was surprised to find his dinner gone under the belt of a traveling hobo.

WALTON, June 23.—Last Saturday will be long remembered as the biggest day ever saw here on an occasion of the kind. Up to the noon hour the prospect of a failure was not a very remote looking one; but, in a short time the people came pouring in on the country roads, and the midday trains had furnished their quotas and the looks of the whole place were changed as if by magic. The new Odd-Fellows' building, gaily decorated, stood out in classic beauty and was the most prominent subject of admiring comment on the part of the visiting spectators. The citizens gathered among them and were pleased with their encomiums. The effect was heightened by the resounding strains of martial music that made the welkin ring, floated in the air and every thing seemed to wear an exultant look; for, after the eyes are satisfied with beholding lively and joyous prospects and the motions are stirred by soul inspiring notes of sweet melodies, how could it be otherwise than joyous and happy?

The Walton brass band, recently organized, was perfect in execution and contributed more than anyother factor to the content and satisfaction of the thronging mass of humanity which seemed to so suddenly fill our streets.

The long table set in the spacious and handsome store room, was a sight to gladden the heart of an epicure, and the way "men—and women too" demonstrated that provisions were delicious and abundant was gratifying to all who could quit eating long enough to look around and see what others were doing. The band played almost continuously, and when the hour arrived for the political gladiators to appear only Nadaud put in an appearance and he was greeted with prolonged shouts of welcome. Every foot of space on the floor of the Opera House, its commodious stairway, the sidewalk and the streets were a living mass, trying to get near the speaker. It was the largest ovation to a political aspirant the town has ever seen. Why Mr. Gooch did not appear, unless it was that he did not care to submit to another scoring, such as was administered to him at Independence the other day. There is much complaint on account of the unfairness shown in the selection of judges, clerks and sheriffs for the primary, all for this precinct being prominent Gooch men. It looks as if fraud is premeditated and the feeling is almost justified since the effort to set the primary aside and nominate Gooch by the Committee. Is the air of Washington so balmy and purifying that one term alone can germinate and bear fruit "in ways that are dark and tricks that are vain?"

Happy Time in Old Town.

"We felt very happy," writes R. N. Revill, Old Town, Va., "when Bucklen's Arnica Salve wholly cured our daughter of a bad case of scald head." It delights all who use it for Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Boils, Ulcers, Eruptions. Infallible for piles. Only 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Ekew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

Fire was exceedingly comfortable Sunday and Sunday night.

FLICKERTOWN.—Some of the farmers are not done setting tobacco.

Farmers are busy harvesting.

Walter Campbell had his force of hands on the road last week.

There will be a basket meeting at the school house next Sunday, the 29th.

Miss Alice Deck spent last week with John Klopp and family at the Aurora ferry.

Wm. Smith came down from Addyston, last Sunday, to look after his bees and stock.

Go to the polls next Saturday, boys, and vote for the best man. If you don't you will regret it.

Botts & Setters have quit sawing and are overhauling their engine preparatory to begin threshing.

The wolf has been driven from our door once more, since green beans and new potatoes are a part of our daily menu.

John Belcter, of Newport, spent last week with his wife, who is spending the summer with her father, here, on account of her health.

Miss Lizzie Asbury, of Bellevue neighborhood, and Miss Susie Wingate, of this neighborhood, eloped to Lawreuceburg and were married, last Thursday.

Many from here attended Mrs. Emily Rucker's funeral at Bullittsburg, last Thursday. She was a sister to Mrs. Nicholas, of this neighborhood. She leaves a host of other relatives here who deeply mourn her death.

The person who spoke of J. B. Tolin last week as a candidate for circuit court clerk, could not have picked a better qualified man for the office in the county. Mr. Tolin has been a student worker for the Democratic party all of his life and has never asked any compensation for his services. Like his neighbor said last week, we do not know whether Mr. Tolin wants the office or not, but feel satisfied that if he does all he will have to do is to let the people know his wants, and he will get it dead easy. We have known him from our childhood days and we feel confident that a more worthy man could not be found to fill the office.

CRESCENT, June 23.—Chas. Fulton and wife, of Florence, were guests of Clarence Rector and wife, Sunday.

Wm. Despass is spending several days with his son, Chas. Despass, of Newport.

Miss Mabel Huron has returned from a pleasant visit with relatives near Hebron.

Fred Perkins and family, of Covington, spent Sunday with John Mayhery and wife.

J. B. Dixon, our popular McCormack agent, sold three mowers and four rakes, last week.

Will Stephens and wife, of Cincinnati, were guests of Marion Stephens, of this place, Sunday.

Miss Blanche Northcutt was calling on the Misses Louisa and Alma Brown, of Hebron, Friday.

Henry Folmer and wife, of Independence, were calling on Mr. Hogsflle and wife, Sunday.

Hubert Carpenter, the telegrapher at Bracht, was the guest of his father, J. H. Carpenter, last Wednesday.

Your correspondent, while touring in the western part of the county, last week, met the talented Commissary scribe.

Cove Carpenter and Clarence Rector were called as witnesses in the case of Huey vs. Forsyth at Independence, last Thursday.

Several freight cars were derailed on the Q. and C. near here, Monday. The track was promptly cleared by the wrecking crew and no delay of importance was caused.

Mrs. Ida Carpenter's school at Beech Grove, closed Friday, the 13 inst. Mrs. Carpenter had quite a large school and the patrons were all highly pleased with the manner in which she conducted her work and with the advancement of her pupils.

Robt. Nortbcutt, jr., of Lexington, is spending several days with relatives at this place. There seems to be some special attraction for him near Walton, too. When asked why matters were thusly, he would say that he had "running orders" from his "chief dispatcher," and that she had told him to "show up on schedule time or take siding for some special." We don't quite understand what he meant, but infer that there is a girl in the case.

IDLEWILD.—E. M. Gaines, of Rising Sun, was visiting friends here last week. He is in good health.

W. R. Kirtley, of Lawrenceburg, was here on business, last Thursday.

Mrs. B. R. Gaines entertained several of her Petersburg friends, one day last week.

The weather is very favorable for harvesting, and the golden grain promises an abundant yield.

Mrs. Mary Gaines, of Richmond, this State, is at the bedside of her sister, Mrs. John Cropper.

Perry Kirtley and wife, of Kansas City, Mo., are visiting his father, Rev. A. Kirtley, near here.

Mrs. Edgar Cropper has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Walton, of Home City, for several days.

Mrs. Stephens and Miss Ida, of Hebron, are with Mrs. Owen Allen, whom we are glad to report is some better.

Misses Schuster and Gallagher, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, will be the guests of Mrs. Charles A. Gaines for two weeks.

Misses Anna and Beulah Gaines spent last Friday with Mrs. George Dunlap, of Peoria, Ill., who is visiting her parents at Petersburg.

Mrs. Fletcher Clore is still unable to use her arm she got badly injured by a fall at the ferry as she was on her way to visit her daughter at Rushville, Ind.

Woman's Missionary meeting at Bullittsburg was well attended, and all were well pleased with their work in the Master's cause. Visitors were present from several cities.

Read the advertisement of the Keeley picnic on July 5th.

UNION.—Had frost, Saturday morning.

M. C. Norman is quite sick with "grippe."

N. N. Winston has been quite sick for several days.

Mrs. Rachal Rice is visiting relatives in Shelby county.

Miss Mary Hedges is visiting her brother in Walton.

Virginia Conner entertained with a dinlug Wednesday.

Mrs. Patterson, of Burlington, is the guest of friends here.

Mrs. B. B. Hume and daughter, Maud, were visiting relatives in the city, last Sunday.

Nace Conley and wife have moved to Covington, where he has a position with the telephone company.

Mrs. Amanda Ward and a half dozen of her little wards, of Verona, were visiting her mother, Mrs. Ann Chandler, last week, at Midway.

Rev. H. Miller, regular pastor at Hughes Chapel, preached a very able and interesting sermon to a large and appreciative congregation, last Sunday morning.

James Lancaster and family were brought here last week from their home in Cinciunati, to bury their youngest child, which died of whooping cough.

The acreage of tobacco anticipated by our farmers early in the spring in this locality, has been materially curtailed by a lack of plants, cutworms and insects of various kinds.

J. H. Sleet has lost about 40 very fine hogs in the past two weeks of cholera. He has tried a great many remedies, but to date none seems to arrest the terrible epidemic in its course.

Miss Alice Walker, a very pleasant and entertaining young lady, of Covington, is sojurning with her friends, Mr. Kite Glore and family at the hospitable home of Mr. Geo. Moore.

John Cleek lost a fine yearling steer last Saturday night. He had kept the animal confined in the barn for several days before it died, during which time it had exhibited unistakable symptoms of hydrophobia.

Quite a number of young people visited the pleasant home of Richard Madin, last Saturday evening, and enjoyed the merry hours 'til midnight, listening to sweet music and tripping the light fantastic toe.

A large number of our citizens attended the dedication of the New Odd Fellows' Hall and listened to the eloquent speeches of Robt. Woods, Cliff Nadaud and other distinguished gentlemen last, Saturday at Walton.

L. D. Jackson and Jack Marshall, of Richwood, have established a beef route through here, and are supplying our people with choice meat at reasonable prices. We hope that liberal patronage will enable them to continue up to their present standard.

A peculiar affliction has attacked and killed several fine specimens of the mongrel, canine family in Beaver, recently. There are grave suspicions, among those who have lost their favorite "dorgs," of poison having been administered, and woe be to him who did such a thing should be be found.

PETERSBURG, June 21.—Sam Pink is home from Maysville.

Miss Nettie Heasley, of Locust Grove, is the guest of Miss Maud Jarrell.

Esq. Early, who has typhoid fever, is some better, we are glad to report.

THE PHILIPPINE WAR.

Secretary Root Makes Answer to the Senate Resolution.

The Cost, Including Outstanding Obligations, Showa That the Total Up to Date is $170,274,586—Table of Expenditures.

Washington, June 20.—Secretary Root Thursday made answer to the senate resolution of April 17 calling for information as to the cost of the war in the Philippines. It is shown that $50,000 was advanced for the expenses of the Philippine commission originally from the United States treasury, but this amount afterwards was reimbursed out of the Philippine treasury. For railroad transportation of troops and supplies to and from the Philippines since the peace treaty was ratified the cost has been $4,803,443.

Reports from the various bureau officers are submitted to show the cost of the Philippine war, including outstanding obligations, showing that the total up to date is $170,274,586.

The expenditures by years were as follows:

	Exp'n'd.	Liab'l'ts.
Fiscal year 1898 (2 months —May and June).....	$ 2,680,850	.....
Fiscal year 1899.....	26,220,673	.....
Fiscal year 1900.....	50,802,540	.....
Fiscal year 1901.....	55,567,422	12
Fiscal year 1902 (10 months —July to April inc.....	34,498,022	172,060

Secretary Root concludes with the following explanation:

"Attention is invited to the fact that large quantities of valuable property, such as ships, lighters, etc., horses and mules, wagons and harness, clothing, equipage and ordnance, medical, signal and engineer supplies, the cost of which is included in the foregoing statement, still remain on hand in the Philippine islands for use. Parts of these supplies are already being reshipped to this country.

"It should also be observed that a large part of the expense during the past year should not properly be treated as occasioned by military operations in the Philippines for the reason that it consists in pay of maintenance of troops whom we have had to pay and maintain whether they were in the Philippines or not in order to keep up the minimum number of regular troops required by law as a safeguard against future contingencies. The minimum at which the regular army is required to be maintained by the act of February 2, 1901, is 52,967 men, and the maximum is 100,000. We have now less than 10,000 in excess of the minimum number. The cost of that excess only is properly to be treated as occasioned by operations in the Philippines.

"The present scale of expense in the Philippines is, of course, greatly reduced from that shown in the foregoing statement, because of the continuous reduction of the army, made possible by the restoration of peaceful conditions. Thus in the middle of the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1901, there were about 70,000 American soldiers in the islands. That number is now reduced to about 23,000. Orders have now been issued for the return of the 8th, 15th, 24th and 25th infantry, and a squadron of the 10th cavalry, and when these orders have been executed the number of American troops in the Philippines will have been reduced to 18,000. For the past six months we have been bringing troops home, as rapidly as we could do so economically, by the use of our own transports."

RIOTS IN TORONTO.

Efforts to Run Cars With New Men Caused Acts of Violence.

Toronto, Ont., June 23.—The first attempt made by the Toronto street railway to run their cars with men hired to take the places of the striking motormen and conductors was met with violence. Only one effort was made to reopen the traffic, and the temper shown by the strikers and their sympathizers convinced the officials that it would be impossible to run cars without strong protection. It was therefore decided to appeal to the authorities for troops and to suspend operations until their arrival Monday morning.

Stones, sticks, eggs and stale vegetables were the weapons used by the strike sympathizers to prevent the railway company from giving a service. Several of the imported men were roughly handled by the mob, and Motorman Johnson, an old employe of the company, came near losing his life.

The worst riots occurred at the corner of Scollard and Yonge and Bloor and Yonge, in proximity to the Yorkville barns. Very few arrests were made.

Sunday morning cars were started simultaneously from the barns at Kings street west, Queen street west, Yorkville, Dundas and Yonge streets. A crowd had gathered about the entrances of the barns awaiting developments. The appearance of a car at the Yonge street barn was the signal for hooting and yelling by the crowd. The car was run out to the main track and the conductor gave the motorman the signal to go ahead. The crowd called upon the crew to desert the car. Their refusal to do so was followed by a shower of stones and bricks. Every window in the car was smashed and the crew left their posts and ran into the barn.

An attempt was made to run a car from the Yorkville barns around the belt line. A big stone thrown against the window dashed the glass into Motorman Johnson's face, badly lacerating it. He was struck by a number of stones and was otherwise maltreated. Johnson persevered, however, and made the circuit of the line.

The attempt to run out five cars at the King street east barns at 8 o'clock was attended by scenes of the greatest disorder and violence, several persons being injured by flying missiles, including W. H. Moore, private secretary to Mr. Mackenzie, president of the road, who was severely injured in the face by a brick. Three arrests were made. All five cars were badly shattered in less than five minutes after they made their appearance. Motorman Quigley was struck on the head by a stone and badly injured.

Meantime the civil authorities were communicated with, and it was decided to call out the militia. Seven hundred and fifty mounted men from the Niagara camp, consisting of 250 rifles of the governor general's bodyguard, 200 mounted rifles and 200 men of the 1st and 2d dragoons left Niagara with their horses in three special trains at 10 o'clock Sunday night, and will arrive at daylight. In addition 300 of the Queen's own, 300 grenadiers and 200 highlanders have been ordered to parade at the armories. Several hundred extra policemen were also sworn in Sunday night.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

Silk Workers in the Hudson County, New Jersey, Mills Are Out.

New York, June 23.—Twelve hundred silk workers employed in the Hudson county (N. J.) mills met Sunday night at West Hohoken and decided not to go to work Monday morning. These workers represented about five per cent. of all the employes in the mills of that section. The move is made to express sympathy with the Paterson mill workers who are out. Those at the meeting declared no violence would be attempted, but as soon as the police board heard of the action taken they made preparation to protect all workers who want to go to the mills.

Mayor Groth, of Union Hill, N. J., swore in 300 special policemen Sunday as a precautionary measure against any trouble that may arise in his town Monday. The same step was taken by the authorities of North Bergen. All these places are contiguous to Paterson.

Maj. Gen. Wheaton Arrives.

London, June 23.—A dispatch from Odessa published Sunday morning in the Standard says that reports received there from all the black soil grain producing regions of Southern Russia indicate abundant crops.

THE SUPPLY OF COAL.

In Case of a General Strike it Would Soon Be Exhausted.

There Are Approximately 450,000 Miners in the Country, Scattered in 30 States—Twenty-Four States Would Be Involved.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—It is estimated by W. B. Wilson, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, that the present supply of bituminous and anthracite coal above ground would be exhausted in less than three months, if there should be a general suspension of work in the mines. According to this estimate, if the national convention of the mine workers in Indianapolis July 17 should vote for a general suspension of work, in support of the anthracite strike, as is now proposed, the vast industrial machinery of the United States would be handicapped for fuel so that thousands of factories would have to suspend work.

Wilson has statistics showing there are approximately 450,000 miners in the country, scattered through 30 states. The miners of 24 four states would be actively involved if there should be a suspension of operations. In Idaho, Nevada, California, the Dakotas, North Carolina and two or three other states brown coal, known as lignite, is mined, but the organization did not take these states into consideration when it issued a call Thursday for the national convention.

There are now over 300,000 members of the mine workers' organization. Mr. Wilson says that nearly every non-union man would go out if a general suspension of work should be ordered. During the first anthracite strike two years ago there were only 8,000 anthracite men in the organization, yet over 125,000 went out.

The anthracite organization now includes 147,000 men; since the strike was ordered a few days ago the Virginia and West Virginia men have been flocking to the union.

In Indiana 10,800 men are employed in and about the mines. The Indiana operators have a short supply of coal on hand. Probably the largest supply of coal is the hins at Buffalo, N. Y., and in other cities along the great lakes. Mr. Wilson says it is impossible to keep a large supply of bituminous long, because of liability of loss from spontaneous combustion.

Anthracite can be stored indefinitely but the supply in the collieries is now running short. The bituminous mines in most localities are being worked at capacity, but the supply is shorter than usual.

Canada has no coal on which this country could draw if there should be a general tie up. The British isles might supply a part of the market, but at a price that would be almost prohibitive to the manufacturers and ordinary consumers. The tariff on imported coal is 60 cents a ton more than the miners receive as a rule for mining in the United States.

At the coming convention the belief is that the competive district—Western Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois—will take a stand against a general strike. These states have contracts that they do not want to break. The combined vote of the competive district with that of Iowa is expected to prove strong enough to prevent the success of the proposition for a general strike.

There are a number of states whose agreements expire July 1 and it will depend largely on the outcome of the deliberations between their operators and miners as to where the balance of power will lie in the convention.

MILITARY ACADEMY BILL.

The Senate and House Conferees Reached An Agreement.

Washington, June 21.—The senate and house conferees on the military academy appropriation bill reached an agreement. The senate receded from its amendment increasing to the extent of $1,000,000 the fixed cost of the new buildings at West Point, leaving the figure as placed by the house at $6,500,000. The amendment providing for purchase of Constitution Island, New York, also was stricken out. Most of the other senate amendments were accepted.

FOR REST, FEED AND WATER.

Bill Providing That Cattle, In Transit, Should Be Unloaded Every 40 Hours.

Washington, June 21.—The cattle interests of the southwest have been objecting to the provision of the law that live stock shall be unloaded from cars every 28 hours for rest, feed and water, and the house committee on commerce ordered a favorable report on a bill urged by these interests fixing the period at 40 hours. This is claimed to insure humane treatment and not unduly to burden the cattle shippers.

Transport Hancock Arrives.

San Francisco, June 21.—The United States transport Hancock arrived Friday night from Manila.—The Hancock brings the headquarters and ten companies of the 8th infantry, besides 400 enlisted men, 300 casuals and 50 military prisoners.

The Gunboat Marietta.

Washington, June 21.—The gunboat Marietta has left the New York navy yard under orders to proceed to San Juan, P. R. Here the gunboat will lie for a short time to await developments in Venezuela.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, June 18.—Senate—Throughout Tuesday's session of the senate the isthmian canal question was under consideration. Speeches were delivered by Messrs. Perkins (Cal.), Gallinger (N. H.), Stewart (Nev.) and Morgan (Ala.). All advocated the adoption of the Nicaraguan route except Mr. Gallinger, who made a forceful argument in favor of the Panama oute.

House—The house spent the day considering bills reported from the judiciary committee. By far the most important measure was that to amend the existing bankruptcy law. The minority made a vigorous effort to repeal the present law, but was overwhelmingly defeated, 65 to 137. The bill passed amends the law in 15 particulars to meet defects which, it is said, experience has proven. The most important amendment is one to define preference, to meet the supreme court decision in the case of Pirie versus the Chicago Title and Trust Co. Four additional grounds for refusing a discharge in bankruptcy also are asked.

Washington, June 19.—Senate—Interest in the isthmian canal question increases as the time for a final vote in the senate approaches. Thursday at 2 o'clock the voting on the amendments to the pending Nicaraguan canal bill will begin and a final disposition of the matter is expected to be reached afterward. The senate Wednesday devoted practically its entire session to the canal question.

House—The near approach of the end of the present session of congress was signalized by a general political speech by Mr. Richardson (Tenn.), the leader of the minority. Taking advantage of the latitude allowed during general debate on the deficiency appropriation bill he delivered a set speech of an hour and a half. Mr. Bartlett (dem., Ga.) offered an amendment to the deficiency bill to reimburse the Cuban government for the salary allowed by Secretary Root to Gov. Gen. Wood out of the island revenues. In the course of some remarks early in the session Mr. Cannon declared that if he could have his way congress would adjourn sine die before July 4. The general deficiency appropriation bill, the last of the supply bills, was passed. A night session was held at which the house considered bills reported from the committee on Indian affairs.

Washington, June 20.—Senate—An isthmian canal, while not yet absolutely assured, is nearer to construction than it ever has been. The senate Thursday by a majority of eight votes adopted the Spooner substitute for the Hephurn Nicaraguan canal bill, the vote on the substitute being 42 to 34. After two amendments to the measure had been adopted, one providing for a commission to supervise the construction of the canal and the other providing for the issuance of $130,000,000 of two per cent. gold bonds to raise money with which to construct the waterway, it was passed by a vote of 67 to 6. The Spooner substitute in brief provides that the president shall select the Panama route if he can obtain a clear title to the Panama Canal Co. property, but, otherwise, he shall adopt the Nicaraguan ronte. The Panama route was considered more desirable by the senate than the Nicaraguan route. The only question left open is the title to the property, and that the president will determine if the house should adopt the senate's amendment to its bill. The senate had some debate over the trouble into which it has gotten with the house over amendments to the army appropriation bill, and finally asked for a conference with the house.

MAP OF PANAMA CANAL ROUTE.

House—The opening day of the week's debate on the Philippine government bill in the house was signalized by a remarkably strong and exhaustive speech by Mr. Cooper (Wis.), chairman of the committee on insular affairs. He spoke for almost three hours and was given close attention by both sides of the house.

Washington, June 21.—Senate—No business of importance was transacted by the senate Friday in open session except to agree to a conference report finally disposing of the military academy appropriation bill. Soon after the disposition of routine business the senate went into executive session and at 1:10 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

House—Debate on the Philippines civil government bill continued in the house from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., and at a session held at night. The speakers were given close attention, each side enthusiastically applauding its respective orators. The isthmian canal bill was sent to conference after the senate amendment had been non-concurred in. The house reiterated the position it had taken on the army appropriation bill by ignoring the action of the senate and sending the bill back to the senate after voting to adhere to its disagreement to this objectionable army post amendment.

To Help the Convicts.

Tacoma, Wash., June 21.—J. W. Merrill, brother of one of the Oregon convicts who have been terrorizing the country around Salem since their escape, has given up a good position here to go to the assistance of the fugitive desperadoes.

The Week's Failures.

New York, June 21.—Business failures in the United States for the week number 177, as against 165 last week, 188 in this week last year, 167 in 1900, 199 in 1899 and 220 in 1898. In Canada 18 this week against 13 last week.

CONGRESSMAN FITZPATRICK

Says Pe-ru-na Is a Splendid Catarrhal Tonic.

Congressman T. Y. Fitzpatrick.

Hon. T. Y. Fitzpatrick, Congressman from Kentucky, writes from the National Hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"At the solicitation of a friend I used your Peruna and can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with catarrh or who needs a good tonic."—T. Y. FITZPATRICK.

A Good Tonic.

Pe-ru-na is a natural and efficient nerve tonic. It strengthens and restores the activity of every nerve in the body.

Through the use of Pe-ru-na the weakened or overworked nerves resume their natural strength and the blood vessels begin at once to regulate the flow of blood according to nature's laws. Congestions immediately disappear.

Catarrh Cured.

All phases of catarrh, acute or chronic, are promptly and permanently cured. It is through its operation upon the nervous system that Pe-ru-na has attained such a world-wide reputation as a sure and reliable remedy for all phases of catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice free.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

CORONATION WEEK.

After Rainy Weather it Opened With Bright Sunshine.

Count Von Waldersea and the German Officers With Him Ware Entertained at Dinner By Field Marshal Lord Roberts Sunday.

London, June 23.—The reappearance Sunday of brilliant sunshine after weeks of rain and murky weather gave to the first day of coronation week an air of unusual gaiety and gladdened the hearts of thousands of British subjects from all parts of the empire and thousands of foreigners who are pouring into London eager to witness as much of this week's events as possible. The announcement that King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the court would return to London from Windsor Monday at noon increased the universal anticipations for that day and served to quiet, to some extent, the flood of extraordinary rumors concerning the king's physical condition, varied in some quarters by weird tales of plots to assassinate his majesty and other fictions all of which have been promptly denied by the officials most intimately connected with the king.

King Edward's health was authoritatively declared to be good at Windsor castle Sunday, and Sunday morning his majesty attended divine services accompanied by other members of the royal family. Sunday evening he enjoyed a drive through the royal gardens of Windsor castle in a closed carriage.

At the command of the king many thousands of persons were admitted to the east terrace of Windsor castle Sunday afternoon for the Sunday band performance. The terrace was crowded. The king and the queen listened to the music from the windows of their private apartments. King Edward's appearance does not justify the sensational rumors of his illness. The congested condition of the streets of London throughout Sunday furnished an omen of the conditions of travel through these streets the latter days of this week. The barriers across the streets which intersect those through which the coronation procession will pass, and which have now been completed, are proving an impediment to ordinary traffic.

Kensington Gardens and the beautiful groves about the Crystal and Alexandra palaces are filled with colonial and native troops clad in scarlet, white, khaki and blue uniforms.

The throngs in the street at night find much to engage the eye. The fronts of innumerable buildings are hung with lighted decorations and the venetian masts are covered with garlands and connected by strands of roses. The streets are filled with mile after mile of many colored lights and the various stations of the royal coronation procession are marked with arches representing Great Britain's colonies. American flags were in evidence at a great number of windows. Some hotels are flying both American and British flags from their staffs, in honor of the many American visitors domiciled within. Count Von Waldersee, one of the German representatives to the coronation; the duke and duchess of Aosta, from Italy, and many other distinguished representatives of foreign royal personages arrived at London Sunday.

Count Von Waldersee and the German officers with him were entertained at dinner Sunday night by Field Marshal Lord Roberts. In toasting King Edward and the British army Count Von Waldersee paid a high compliment to Earl Roberts.

Replying to the German officer's remarks Earl Roberts complimented Count Von Waldersee upon his services in China and warmly thanked him in behalf of the British army for his allusions to its work in South Africa. Earl Roberts concluded by calling for a toast to Emperor William and the German army.

CHOLERA ATTACKS SOLDIERS.

Ninety Have Died in the Philippines Since the Disease Broke Out.

Manila, June 23.—Ninety American soldiers have died of cholera since the disease first broke out. Owing to the increase of cholera the health authorities here and in the provinces are enforcing stringent regulations. The total number of cases and deaths from the epidemic are as follows: Manila, 1,530 cases and 1,235 deaths; provinces, 7,369 cases and 5,440 deaths.

CHINESE CRUISER WRECKED.

One Hundred and Fifty Officers and Men Lost Their Lives.

London, June 23.—A dispatch to the Central News from Shanghai says that the Chinese cruiser Kai-Chi was wrecked Sunday by a terrific explosion while laying in the Yang Tse river. The Kai-Chi sank in 30 seconds and 150 officers and men on board were killed or drowned. Only two men on board the cruiser escaped death.

Victory For United States.

Quebec, June 23.—Judge Andrews discharged the motion for contempt against Detective Carpenter, and has remanded Messrs. Gaynor and Green, charged with embezzling United States funds, to Montreal in charge of the jailer of that city.

Capt. Wild to Be Reprimanded.

Manila, June 23.—Capt. Frederick S. Wild, of the 13th infantry, has been sentenced by court-martial to be reprimanded for the burning of a native cook pit at Lingayen, province of Pangasinan, Luzon.

AT A GARDEN PARTY.

A Fight in Which One Man Was Killed and Three Fatally Wounded.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 23.—An attack upon the American army in the Philippines, made at a garden party here, started a desperate fight, which cost four lives. One man is dead and three others, including the traducer of the soldiers and a discharged regular, recently returned from Manila, who defended the name of the military, were probably fatally wounded.

Lincoln Monday, who served three years in the archipelago as a member of the 9th infantry, and who is a survivor of the massacre of Company C at Balangiga, Samar, gave Alonzo Barger the lie when the latter declared that "two-thirds of the American soldiers who went to the Philippines were hoodlums and the other third were cowards and bullies."

In the fight that followed, Charles Hobbs and John Kennedy took the part of Barger. All fought with knives, until Monday, weak from the loss of blood, sank to the ground. Then one of his friends in the crowd handed him a revolver and he shot Kennedy dead. Monday then shot at Barger and Hobbs, but failed to hit either.

COLOMBIAN REVOLUTION.

The Town of Agua Dulce Was Captured Last Thursday.

Panama, Colombia, June 23.—The fleet of government gunboats returned here Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock with the news that the town of Agua Dulce had been captured Thursday, June 19.

As the government forces approached Agua Dulce over 100 government soldiers who had been previously captured by revolutionary forces under Gen. Herrera and had been incorporated in the liberal army, joined the government troops under command of Gen. Berti.

Agua Dulce was captured without resistance. The government boats went up the bay as far as the town itself. When the revolutionists sighted them they fled from the town, leaving behind 300 head of cattle and one sailing vessel full of produce.

JUMPED THE TRACK.

Two Trainmen Killed, Five Seriously Hurt and Passengers Injured.

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—A passenger train on the Sioux City branch of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad, due to arrive in St. Paul at 7:25 a. m., jumped the track near Ashton, Ia., early Sunday. Two trainmen were killed, five others seriously hurt and a number of passengers received minor injuries.

The passengers injured were attended by surgeons who were brought to the scene of the wreck on a wrecking train and all were able to continue their journey.

The cause of the wreck is said to have been a misplaced switch. The train was running at a high rate of speed and when it left the track the mail cars and smoker piled up on top of the engine. The sleeping cars also left the track, but did not overturn.

DYNAMITERS' WORK.

Deliberate Attempts Made to Wreck a Circus Train.

Duluth, Minn., June 23.—Dynamiters early Sunday made what is believed was a deliberate attempt to wreck a circus train bound for Duluth on the Northern Pacific railroad at a point between Maple and Poplar, Wis. In seven different places between these two points the track was blown up by dynamite and no trace of the perpetrators has been found. The first explosion occurred at 3 a. m. just as a freight train was nearing Maple. The train was brought to an abrupt stop and sentinels were sent along the track towards Poplar to warn the incoming circus specials.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Six Blocks of Buildings Were Destroyed at Portland, Ore.

Portland, Ore., June 23.—A fire that started shortly before midnight Saturday night in the Phoenix iron works, formerly the Wolff & Zwicker plant, on East Madison and East Water streets, burned for four hours and destroyed six blocks of buildings valued at $600,000. The insurance amounted to about $200,000. It was long after daylight before the fire burned itself out.

The Boat Capsized.

St. Louis, June 23.—Four boys were drowned Sunday evening by the capsizing of a boat at Fern Glen, a resort 15 miles from here. They are: Eddie Flynn, 17 years old; Robert Regan, 16 years old; Peter Larkin, 17 years old; Alphonse Kerns, 16 years old. The drowning occurred at the annual picnic of the St. Louis turnverein. The boys were rowing in a skiff on the Mermac river when it capsized and the occupants were thrown out.

Will Recognize the Union.

Altoona, Pa., June 23.—The 300 bituminous miners who since April have been on a strike at the Sonman shaft to force the operators to recognize the union, have succeeded in obtaining recognition and will return to work at once.

Trolley Cars Collide.

Philadelphia, June 23.—A score of persons were injured in a collision of trolley cars at Chestnut Hill, a suburb, but the majority of the victims proceeded to their homes after being treated at a hospital.

PRESCRIBED BY MR. HILL.

A Method of Dealing with the Trust Evil Recommended by a Magnate of Combines.

Mr. James J. Hill is the man who is always to be listened to respectfully; but no public utterance he has ever made, is entitled to more respectful attention than the address he delivered at the dinner of the Illinois Manufacturers' association in Chicago recently. Mr. Hill professed to discuss "Commercial Expansion," but his address was far broader than the title. It might more properly have been named "A Plea for the Observance of the Natural Laws of Trade on the Part of Governments and Individuals." The title is cumbersome, but it is comprehensive, says the Detroit Free Press.

Naturally, the greater part of Mr. Hill's speech was devoted to the subject of railroads; but he touched the trust question at two of its vital points —the tariff and excessive capitalization. As for the former, Mr. Hill insisted that the tariff had outlived its usefulness. As for the latter, Mr. Hill could see no reason why congress, under its power to regulate commerce between the states, should not enact an incorporation law, under the provisions of which companies should be obliged to satisfy a commission that their capital stock was actually paid up, either in cash or in property.

That the tariff is becoming a burden to American commerce is already apparent; but the tariff is the complement of the policy of excessive capitalization, and while one exists the other is likely to live with its brother in economic crime. Without the tariff the excessive capitalization which Mr. Hill complains of would hardly be possible in industrials. The certainty of foreign competition would leave the promoter without his occupation, and terminate the practice of selling prospective profits, which, after all, is the source of most of the evil in the "judicious combination." The capitalization of prospective profits makes it necessary to earn dividends not only on the investment but on the prospective earnings. The established method of procedure in modern trust exploitation is to issue bonds that represent approximately the value of the property, and stock to the uttermost limit of the promoter's imagination. Where bonds are not issued, preferred stock is substituted. Interest must be paid on the bonds, or the property will pass into the hands of a receiver. If the stockholders receive anything, the laborer and the consumer must both be squeezed. The monopoly raises prices for its finished product; reduces so far as possible prices for raw material; holds its employes down to the lowest possible wage and struggles to exist under a load of fraudulent evidences of investment.

There can be no commercial stability under methods that nullify one of the primary laws of trade, and even if Mr. Hill's suggestion is not adopted by congress, the legislation that he advocates must eventually establish itself. As he said in his speech, the laws of trade are as certain as the laws of gravitation. They operate more slowly, however. Sometimes they do not enforce themselves until a devastating commercial panic has razed the industrial structure to its foundations. At rare intervals governments are capable of foreseeing the consequences of tampering with the laws of trade, and they either remove abnormal conditions or establish normal conditions in the name of the general welfare. But it is needless to say that congress could accomplish little in the way of suppressing excessive capitalization while tolerating a tariff that invites excessive capitalization, that encourages the promoter to capitalize not only the profits but the tariff schedules. The one violation of the law of trade is the logical outcome of the other violation of the law of trade, and the secondary effect cannot be cured while the primary law is nourished.

——The Ohio republican declaration that "we will give the Filipinos better government than is possible for them in any other way" is the voice of the demagogue and the charlatan. We have no power to give any nation on earth better government than it can provide for itself.—Hartford Times.

COST AND PROSPERITY.

Benefits Which Are Realized Mainly by Members of Trusts and Monopolies.

The great prosperity of the country redounds most to the benefit of trust proprietors, the manufacturers who are combined in trusts with a tariff which gives them vast profits on their products and to corporations transacting business in violation of the national and state anti-trust laws. The prosperity is abundant, but it is confined to a few, says the Chicago Chronicle.

The great mass of the people of the country live on stated wages. All the money earned by the vast majority comes to them as wages and salaries which cannot be advanced as the cost of living increases day by day.

The result is obvious. The man living on his salary or wages finds his daily expenses for himself and family much greater than formerly, while his wages or salary remains about the same. The men living on fixed wages—and they compose nine-tenths of the male population—have no share in the national prosperity.

On the contrary, they are worse off relatively than they were before the tidal wave of prosperity swept over the country. The cost of living—the daily expenses of life in every home—can be stated at an average of 25 per cent. more than the cost before prosperity arrived. Every householder can estimate for himself the harvest of prosperity which he has gathered.

There are few necessaries of life that have not advanced at least 10 per cent. in cost within two years. Many of the necessaries of life have advanced 40 or 50 per cent. in cost. Some necessaries have advanced from 20 to 30 per cent. The average is at least 25 per cent.

There has been no corresponding increase in the amounts received by any wage earners in the country. The trusts, monopolies and combines have monopolized the harvest of prosperity. None of the fruits goes to the common every-day citizen trying to live on his earnings, which are the same as they were before we had our "prosperity."

It is true that there are few or no idle men. Our prosperity has given employment to many thousands who had been unable for years to obtain a livelihood by labor which they were willing and anxious to perform. In that respect our prosperity has been of benefit to others aside from members of the trusts and combines.

But that is its limit. While it has given means for a livelihood to many thousands who before it came were idle it has not increased the means of a livelihood enjoyed by those who had not been idle. On the contrary while not increasing their pay and wages it has increased by at least one-quarter all the expenses of their homes and methods of life.

THE THING THAT THEY FEAR.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——So far no apologist for the Philippine policy of coercion and cruelty has answered the speech of Senator Hoar. It is invulnerable because it is true.—N. Y. World.

——The Cuban reciprocity measure could be brought in home with a sacrifice hit on tariff revision, but that strike the republicans are unwilling to make.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

——The Philadelphia Press remarks that "the democratic party is having a whole lot of trouble to get an issue that will keep over night." Perhaps this is a mere ruse to get the democrats to show their hand. The democrats are not in power now, and it is not incumbent on them to come forward with issues. Their present business is, rather, to pester the republicans about what they have on their hands. It is the party in power which just now, has to make good.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——Having bought the Philippines from Spain for $20,000,00—with an insurrection thrown in—it now appears that we are likewise to buy up the real estate holdings of the religious orders in the islands. Just when we shall get through paying for property which is already netting us a loss of perhaps $30,000,000 per year is a question which is eventually going to interest the taxpayer, whether his sympathies be imperialistic or otherwise.—Chicago Chronicle.

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

SEVEN MEN IN JAIL.

After the Party Henry Ferguson's Throat Was Cut.

Cadiz, Ky., June 19.—Seven young men have been lodged in jail here charged with the murder of Henry Ferguson, near Ferguson Springs. The unfortunate youth was found lying on the roadside Sunday with his throat cut. He had gone to a party in the neighborhood the night before and left with a number of companions. The crowd was drinking and neighbors heard them quarreling. As a result of investigation John Ferguson, Luther Bryson, Hardy Colson and the four Oakley brothers—Tom, Odie, Darion and Sam—have been arrested and lodged in jail here pending an examination Thursday.

BY PRIMARY ELECTION.

Proposition to Nominate State Officers By That Method Favored.

Frankfort, Ky., June 19.—The proposition to hold a democratic primary election in Kentucky next year to select the nominees for governor and other state officers is taking tangible form. Hon. Lead McQuan, of Warren county, a distinguished lawyer and politician of Western Kentucky, who was chief counsel for William Goebel in the noted gubernatorial contest of 1900, is out in a strong interview favoring the primary idea. He says that the primary method is the fairest way and that the plan is meeting with much favor among the rank and file of the party.

GOLD CRAZE.

Louisvillians Are Hunting For the Precious Metal in Back Yards.

Louisville, Ky., June 20.—Nearly every one in the southern part of Louisville is engaged in a hunt for gold since the precious yellow metal was discovered in the yard of F. M. Raley, on L street, near Sixth. The craze threatens to spread, for many people are now of the belief that Louisville is built over gold, and that if the search is continued another bonanza will be revealed.

THE MOB WAS FOILED.

It Went to Wickliffe to String Up Taylor Abbey, Colored.

Paducah, Ky., June 21.—Near Wickliffe, Taylor Abbey, a Negro, tried to catch Miss Annie Hobbs while the 16-year-old child was with a younger sister en route home. The children eluded him, and Abbey was soon lodged in jail. Friday morning 75 men went to the jail to lynch Abbey, but were foiled. He had been removed to Clinton for safe keeping. There is talk of going there after him.

State Good Roads Association.

Frankfort, Ky., June 21.—Agricultural Commissioner Nall, who is president of the State Good Roads association, issued an order calling off the annual meeting fixed for August 12-13, at Lexington, and postponing it until October 21-22 next. The change of time was made at the request of Secretary J. C. Van Pelt, of Louisville, and a number of Western Kentucky members of the association who would be unable to attend the August meeting.

Made a Wild Scramble.

Paris, Ky., June 20.—Deputy sheriffs and the police raided the local pool-room. Fourteen spectators and the pool employes and operators were captured. The paraphernalia was confiscated. In the scramble to escape some well-known sports narrowly escaped injuries by colliding with doors and window frames.

Big Flouring Mill Burned.

Clinton, Ky., June 19.—The large flouring mill at this place, owned by the firm of E. C. Reid & Son, caught fire and was destroyed. Several frame buildings adjacent to the mill were also burned. The mill was valued at $8,000, and the loss was partly covered by insurance.

To Establish Glass Factory.

Brandenburg, Ky., June 21.—The Calor Oil & Gas Co. is under negotiations with a view of establishing a large glass plant at Willow Dale, in this county. The plant under consideration will employ about 100 skilled mechanics and 150 helpers and laborers.

Muhlenberg Coal Land Deal.

Greenville, Ky., June 20.—Another deal of considerable magnitude in Muhlenberg coal lands has just been consummated. James Graham, of Detroit, Mich., associated with a party of capitalists of Nashville, Tenn., has paid $47,000 for the 2,700 acres of land and the mining appliances of the Mud River Coal Co.

Woman Killed in a Family Fight.

Livingston, Ky., June 21.—In a family quarrel between J. H. Jewell and Joe Moore, at Withers' post office, five miles north, several shots were fired. Moore shot Mrs. Jewell and she died a few hours later. Moore has left the country.

Young Man Drowned.

Louisa, Ky., June 21.—Charles Adkins, of Ferguson creek, Pike county, aged 25 and married, was drowned one mile below Pikeville, while trying to save a boy who was beyond his depth. A colored man saved the boy.

TO CONSOLIDATE.

Four Railroads to Unite With a Capital of $4,800,000.

Lexington, Ky., June 19.—Four Kentucky railroads will consolidate July 1, with a capital of $4,800,000, and will be known as the Lexington & Big Sandy Railway Co. It will operate 138½ miles of track. The roads are the Elizabethtown, Lexington & Big Sandy (124 miles), Kentucky & South Atlantic (13½ miles), Ohio & Big Sandy (51½) miles and the Ohio River & Charleston (81½).

The articles of consolidation, which have just been prepared here, provide that the new company may ultimately go into the hands of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad. The C. & O. uses the E., L. & B. S. from Ashland to Lexington. The board of directors named in the articles are George W. Stevens, Richmond, Va., president C. & O.; Decatur Oxtell, Richmond, Va., vice president C. & O.; H. T. Wickham, Richmond, solicitor C. & O.; G. P. Wall, Richmond, real estate agent C. & O.; C. E. Wellford, Richmond, secretary C. & O.; T. D. Wallace, Ashland, Ky., assistant solicitor C. & O., and H. C. Boughton, Kentucky division superintendent of C. & O.

The directors will meet in Ashland July 1 and Mr. Stevens will be elected president of the consolidated roads. Other officers of the C. & O. will probably be selected to corresponding officers with the L. & B. S. Main offices will be at Ashland.

IN THE SPRING.

The Body of a Little Child Found Buried By the Land Owner.

West Liberty, Ky., June 21.—Columbus Jinkins, of this county, exchanged farms with a neighbor. After moving to his new farm he was advised not to use the water out of a certain spring on the farm. After inspecting the spring he found a child buried about two feet in the spring. Great excitement prevails. County officers are investigating the matter. As yet there is no clue to the owner of the child.

ACTION RECONSIDERED.

The Louisville & Nashville Road Secures a Reduction in Valuation.

Frankfort, Ky., June 21.—The state board of valuation and assessment Friday reconsidered the action taken May 20 as to the L. & N. Railroad Co. and reduced its franchise valuation from $12,912,626 to $10,774,899, a reduction of $2,137,727. On the valuation fixed the company will pay $51,180 in taxes, as against $30,898 last year.

Killed a Constable.

West Liberty, Ky., June 20.—Geo. Lyons shot and instantly killed Dock Furguson on Paint creek, this county. Furguson was constable in the Paint precinct. Lyons was trying to make Furguson give him his revolver, so he could follow some other men who, he claims, got his whisky. Furguson refused and Lyons shot him twice, killing him instantly.

Col. Berry's Traction Line.

Frankfort, Ky., June 21.—Incorporation articles were filed with Secretary of State Hill Friday by the Ohio Valley Traction Co., of Carroll county, with a $30,000 capital. The company will build a line from Milton, Trimble county, through the counties of Trimble, Carroll, Gallatin, Boone and Kenton to Cincinnati. Among the incorporators is Albert S. Berry, of Newport.

Mrs. Haggin's Gift.

Versailles, Ky., June 20.—Plans for the new school building and dormitory of Ashland seminary, Mrs. J. B. Haggin's gift to the Lexington diocese of the Episcopal church, have been accepted and the work of construction will begin soon.

Bought a Pair of Yearlings.

Lexington, Ky., June 20.—Mack Fisher, Danville, has sold to R. L. Baker, Lexington, two yearling colts by Imp. Scorpion, one out of Dam Lindolette by Linden and the other out of Louisa Lee by Imp. Candlemas. Price, $500 each.

Col. Whallen Must Pay.

Louisville, Ky., June 21.—A jury Friday awarded Theodore Hallam, of Covington, Ky., a judgment for $1,000 against Col. John H. Whallen for legal services at the time Col. Whallen was accused of trying to bribe Senator Harrell.

Got a Verdict For $35,000.

Bowling Green Ky., June 21.—John W. Shelton, who was born and reared here, has secured a verdict for $35,000 in Texas against the Santa Fe railroad. While traveling in the Indian territory he had both legs cut off by a train.

Power Concentrated.

Hawesville, Ky., June 21.—W. P. Allen, of this city, has on exhibition a rotary engine eight inches square which develops four-horse power and makes 3,000 revolutions. It is pronounced successful by experts. He has applied for a patent.

A Strike at Paducah.

Paducah, Ky., June 21.—All the employes of the Rohkopf Saddlery Co. walked out, claiming that the company had not lived up to its agreement made several weeks ago, when some of the men struck.

The Georgetown Times says a new disease has appeared among the horses in Long Lick, Scott county, neighborhood. The animal begins to cough and run at the nose, as if afflicted with distemper, but afterwards gets stiff and nervous and staggers. Quite a number of horses have it and some have died.

It is estimated that half a million cattle will be moved from the south ranges this year, says the Drovers Journal and the method of moving them brings to mind the great changes that have taken place in the west during the last 20 years. These cattle are being sent to their destination in patent stock cars at the rate of 40 miles an hour. A score of years ago they followed a crooked trail and picked up what they could from the range adjacent. It took from 2 to 3 months to get cattle through then, and now 3 or 4 days is time enough. There has also been a great improvement in the value of the cattle partly through breeding and partly through a better consumptive demand. It is estimated that the value of the cattle going north this year will be over $10,000,000.

Cornell Agricultural Experiment Station has for several years been conducting experiments in feeding pigs with separator and skim milk and corn meal. The following is a summary of these:

1. In 1897 one pound increase in live weight of pigs was made with 1.7 pounds of corn meal and 4.8 pounds of skimmed milk.

2. In 1898 the most economical gain of the year was made with corn meal and skimmed milk when the proportion by weight of corn meal to skimmed milk was about 1 to 3 parts.

3. The most economic gains in 1899 were made when corn meal and skimmed milk were fed in the proportion of one pound of corn meal to 6.7 pounds of milk. One pound increase in live weight was made with 1.5 pounds of corn meal and 10.4 pounds of skimmed milk.

4. In 1900 most economical results were obtained when one pound of corn meal was fed with 2.5 pounds of milk. The amount of food required for one pound gain in live weight was 2.6 pounds of corn meal and 6.8 pounds of skimmed milk. Bone meal seemed to produce beneficial results.

5. In 1901 the pigs were overfed before the experiment began. Extreme care must be exercised in feeding skimmed milk to young pigs that amount fed is not too great. They should only be fed what they will consume quickly.

6. Most economic results were secured in 1901 where one pound of corn meal was fed with six pounds of skimmed milk and in addition a small quantity of bone meal. It required 2.2 pounds of corn meal and 13.3 pounds of skimmed milk to produce a pound of gain live weight.

7. As a result of five years' work it is found that most economic returns are secured with skimmed milk when corn meal is the grain used. The proportion of corn meal to skimmed milk may be varied without apparently affecting results. In no case should the amount of skimmed milk fed be greater than the pigs can quickly and easily consume.

Several years ago there was an act of the Legislature passed which required all physicians to register with the county clerk all births and deaths which they attended professionally. The law has only been observed in a few counties. Last week in Hopkins county the grand jury indicted every physician in the county for failing to comply with the law.

An observing farmer says: "There are some curious things about corn, and one is, where do the red speckled ears come from when you do not plant any but white corn? And another is why don't we find an ear with an odd number of rows on it? You can find a four leaf clover, but you never found an odd row on an ear of corn yet. It is always fourteen, sixteen, twenty, or some other even number and we would like to know about its mathematics and what objections nature has in these instances to odd numbers.

Some time Saturday it was found that at the Democratic primary there were 64 more votes counted in Oldtown for recorder than there were ballots cast. This caused consternation in the Democratic camp, and accordingly the election board got together Tuesday evening and went over the tally sheets again. The result was that it was discovered that an error of 100 had been made in the footing of Clifford Haynes' vote, he having received 178 votes instead of 278. The discovery of the error gives the nomination to Ed Fox by a majority of 75.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Saved from An Awful Fate.

"Everybody said I had consumption," writes Mrs. A. M. Shields, of Chambersburg, Pa., "I was so low after six months of severe sickness, caused by Hay Fever and Asthma, that few thought I could get well, but I learned of the Marvelous melt it of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, used it, and was completely cured." For desperate Throat and Lung Diseases it is the safest cure in the world, and is infallible for Coughs, Colds and Bronchial Affections. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

Owing to the fact that postmasters in handling so much mail matter are liable to make mistakes and get mail into the wrong boxes, the postal authorities have fixed a penalty of $200 on persons taking other people's mail out of the postoffice and not returning it. The law is to have people look at the mail before they leave the office, and then if they should have mail which does not belong to them they should return it at once. This applies to newspapers as well as any other mail matter. The offense cannot be excused by saying that it is the postmaster's fault, as that makes no difference. Persons who get mail other than their own should return it at once or they may find to their sorrow that the law applies to them.

Virulent Cancer Cured.

Startling proof of a wonderful advance in medicine is given by druggists G. W. Roberts of Elizabeth, W. Va. An old man there had long suffered with what good doctors pronounced incurable cancer. They believed his case hopeless till he used Electric Bitters and applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which treatment completely cured him. When Electric Bitters are used to expel bilious kidney and microbe poisons at the same time this salve exerts its matchless healing power, blood diseases, skin eruptions, ulcers and sores vanish. Bitters 50c, Salve 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Grant.

There is a major in a certain English regiment who has a great contempt for incapacity of any kind and is somewhat impatient into the bargain. Some time ago he was in charge of a detachment of men, and a sergeant complained that he could get no man to undertake the duty of barber to the company.

"Is there no gardener in the company?" asked the major testily. "I seem to remember one. Send him to me."

The man was duly sent, but on receiving orders to act as barber ventured to expostulate.

"Great heavens!" yelled the major. "If you can cut grass, you can cut hair! Go and do it."

The man went, but what the others said is unprintable.

Several so-called milk preservatives are being offered this year that were not on the marked a year ago, and the claim is made for at least one of them that it will not in any way injure the milk. It would seem almost unnecessary to advise farmers to avoid these preservatives, for the use of them will mean trouble. The local board of health in nearly every town in the country sufficiently large to have such a body of men, backed by the law, will make more trouble this year than ever before. Formalin and other chemicals used for the preservation of milk are very injurious to health, and laws against the use of them are rigorously enforced. Unfortunately, the farmer cannot control the milk after it leaves his hands, but as many farmers deliver the product of their dairies direct to the consumer this warning is meant for them. The writer has personal knowledge that the utmost precautions are being taken in many States, and there is no way of fooling these authorities. In some sections the law has been changed so that a term of imprisonment has been added to the heavy fine that was imposed a year ago. In other sections fine and imprisonment takes the place of fine or imprisonment.

Iowa not only has the reputation of being the greatest agricultural State in the Union, but that it leads as well in the production of fine cattle. In the breeding of shorthorns it stands first, and the sale of these cattle clearly shows that the business is on a good paying basis. The average of the sales of Iowa shorthorns the last year has been from $200 to $725 a head, with the majority of sales ranging from $300 to $500 a head. The breeders of Hereford cattle in Iowa enjoy a good healthy trade in their favorites, breeding about one-tenth of all the Hereford cattle in the United States, and represented by over three hundred breeders, two hundred of whom are members of the association. Thus Iowa stands fourth in the production and sale of Hereford cattle, and the prices obtained at the public sales averaged from $200 to $300 a head. Although there are ten times as many shorthorns in the United States, and three times as many Herefords as Aberdeen-Angus, yet the farmers and breeders of Iowa are reaching out for the latter kind, and Iowa stands first in the breeding of Angus cattle, having nearly three hundred breeders raising one-third of all the Angus cattle in the United States, showing a growth and increase within the State of 800 per cent in the last ten years.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Some of the Leading Citizens.

WINGATE & THOMPSON,
(Traders and Buyers of Leaf Tobacco.)

M. F. Wingate, the senior member of this firm, was born within 4 miles of his present home, on the 1st day of March, 1857, consequently he is 45 years of age. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and soon developed a liking for trading. He was married to Miss Eliza J. Crisler, daughter of T. P. Crisler, of the Bullittsville neighborhood, on Dec. 24th, 1879. To them four children were born, three of whom are still living, one having died in infancy. Gaines, his oldest son, is assistant superintendent and book-keeper at the Boone Co. Distillery, and is an expert accountant. Mrs. Wingate died in 1896, and Fill, as he is familiarly called, never married again, making his home with his father and mother and grown daughter, Miss Maud. In 1892, Mr. Wingate was appointed Deputy Revenue Collector at this place, and served four years. He is generous to a fault, liberal in his contributions to church and charity, although not a member of any church or order.

James M. Thompson, junior member of this firm, was born in Carroll county, near the Owen and Gallatin line, on June 24th, 1860. Came to Boone about 25 years ago, was married to Ida May Allen, daughter of Nathan and Agnes Allen, of the Bellevue neighborhood, April 23rd, 1882. To them 5 children were born, all of whom are living. Mr. Thompson is an energetic, wide awake, hustling trader, shrewd and far seeing in a business transaction loyal to his friends and a true blue Democrat, willing and ready to assist the party at all times. The firm of Wingate & Thompson, circulate more money among the farmers of Northern Kentucky than any other firm doing business of their kind. Their trade extends far into Indiana and Ohio. Half the leaf tobacco they handle comes from these States. Mr. Thompson belongs to no church, but, like Mr. Wingate, his family are Methodists.

BERKSHIRE & McWETHY,
(General Merchants.)

John W. Berkshire, the senior member of the firm, was born on a farm near Petersburg, August 12th, 1842, consequently he will be 60 years old this coming August. He attended the common schools of the county. In October of 1863, he was married to Miss Fanny S. Walton, daughter of John H. Walton, better known as "Jack" Walton. Mrs. Berkshire is a sister of Mr. N. S. Walton, and is a good christian lady. Mr. and Mrs. Berkshire have six children, the eldest son, J. B. Berkshire is the popular clerk on the Steamer Workum. One son, Frank Walton Berkshire, is U. S. Chinese Inspector at Chicago, having been appointed to that office by President Cleveland. He married a Chicago lady and makes that city his home. The subject of this sketch, J. W. Berkshire, is a leading member of the Christian church an Odd Fellow and a member of the county Board of Equlization, and a Democratic Executive Committeeman from Petersburg precinct. His heart and his purse are always open to the calls of distress. He is called "Honest John" by his intimate acquaintances. R. A. McWethy, the junior member of the firm was born near Petersburg, in the year 1855, he being 47 years of age. Mr. McWethy has been married twice. His first wife was Miss Martha Lyon, whom he married in 1882. They had one child. His present wife was Miss Katie Weindel, whom he married in June, 1890. They have no children. Mr. McWethy is not a member of any church, but is an enthusiastic Odd Fellow. He owns a beautiful home on the main street of the town. Mr. McWethy and Thos. Cowen engaged in business at Ada Ohio in 1887, and did a good business. "Dick" as he is called by his numerous friends came back to Petersburg and the firm of Berkshire and McWethy was organized in 1884. Their trade has steadily increased until now when they have the largest trade of any firm of the kind in the county. You can get any thing from a darning needle to a threshing machine of them, and have it delivered right at your door. During the season of 1901 and 1902 this firm bought over 300,000 pounds of leaf tobacco which they packed and shipped to market, giving employment to a number of our citizens. They are enterprising and up to date business men and when you want anything in their line don't forget Dick and Honest John.

Mr. Berkshire is at present being mentioned as a candidate for circuit clerk, and should he conclude to make the race he will be very much in evidence when the polls close on the day of the primary.

o o o

ELIHU ALDEN

Was born in Columbus, Indiana, in the year 1851. His partents come to Petersburg when he was only four years of age, and he has been a resident of the town ever since. Mr. Alden is a grandson of William Snyder, one of the old settlers of Petersburg and a leading business man of Northern Kentucky, in the early days, having been the builder and owner of what is now the Boone County Distillery. In them days flour was made in connection with the manufacture of whisky. Elihu was clerk on the Steamer Minnie for a number of years, and in May, 1883. was married to Miss Cora E. Caldwell, of Aurora, Ind. To them two children were born, William O. and Pauline Alden. He engaged in his present, occupation that of steam boating, in 1884. In 1889 he was appointed U. S. Guager in the Revenue Service by Col. John J. Landran, who was the colector for this district. Again, in 1893, he was appointed Deputy Collector at Petersburg by Collector D. N. Cominogre and served up to within a few months ago. The Steamer Paulihe, of which he is owner and captain, makes five round trips between this place and Aurora and Lawrenceburg, Ind., each day. This pretty little steamer can be chartered by picnic parties for moon light excursions at any time. He is accomdating and pleasant, and people from the country wishing to make the train or do trading in either of the Indiana cities, will find it convenient to travel on the Pauline. Mr. Alden is a Mason an Oddfellow and a K. of P.

o o o

G. C. GRADY,
(Deputy Revenue Collector.)

G. C. Graddy, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue at Petersburg, was born in Woodford county, Kentucky. He spent five years in the common schools under one tutor, and three years in the Kentucky University at Harrodsburg, in which institution he bore the honors of his class in mathematics for three successive years. Upon leaving college he took charge of a private school in Grant county, which school he conducted for three successive sessions, making a record that has never been attained by another teacher in the State: One of his pupils, the Hon. Worth Dickerson, became a member of Congress: one, an inmate of the penitentiary; one was hung by a mob for stealing horses; one committed suicide; three were killed in a barroom fight, and others distinguished themselves in questionable ways.

At the close of his career as teacher, he married Miss Alice Cave, who was born in this (Boone) county, but reared in Woodford county. He moved to this county in 1867, and has been a permanment resident of the county since. In connection with farming he engaged in the development and sale of fancy saddle horses, and soon acquired the reputation of being the most successful educator, exhibitor and salesman of the saddle horse in the State. Included among his customers were some of the wealthiest and most distinguished men of our nation.

He was clerk of the Christian church at Bullittsville years, and for two years was Superintendent of the Sunday School. For several years he was an active member of the Grange, and filled the highest position within the gift of that order. He organized the Boone County Fire Insurance Co. In 1885 he lost his wife, gave up farming and engaged actively in politics. In 1896 he advocated the single gold standard and followed his ideas into the Republican camp, and he holds the position he fills to-day under the appointment of a Republican administration.

Read It in His Newspaper.

George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its colums, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew,' and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable pains had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale by all druggists.

PETERSBURG ROLLER MILLS.

Ben Belden, Proprietor of the Petersburg Flouring Mill, became owner of the present mill by purchasing the plant from the Petersburg Milling Co., in 1885. Up to that time it was the property of a Stock Co. Mr. Belden is also owner of a flouring mill at Markland, Ind., a thriving little town some twenty miles down the river in Switzerland Co. His leading brands are Patent and Straight, which has a reputation beyond the confines of the two States. Mr. Belden has in the last year greatly improved his plant by placing in it the most modern machinery. He is also dealer in coal and all kinds of mill feed. His trade is growing every day and by the help of the farmers of Boone, he expects to increase his volume of trade in the future, and by fair and honest dealings, merit a continuance of their patronage. The above is a good likeness of Mr. Belden's three little boys, whom are termed the three little millers of Kentucky growing every day. Call on Mr. Belden when you need anything in his line.

HAIL TO THE KING.

Thoughts Suggested by the Coronation of the King of England.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher in Which He Discourses on Jesus' Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem and His Crown of Thorns.

Text.—And He answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out.—Luke 19:40.

During the present week the elaborate and magnificent coronation ceremonies of King Edward VII. are to be carried out in all of their brilliant elaborateness, and the eyes of the world, as it were, will be turned in the direction of "Merry Old England" and festive London. The few will see the actual crowning of the king in Westminster abbey, the thousands and hundreds of thousands will catch a glimpse of the gorgeously-robed king as he passes in triumph through the streets to the abbey, and their throats c—") swell with the popular acclaim. As the vast crowds sway and throb under the tense excitement and enthusiasm of the occasion and the mighty thunder of their voices splits the air and rolls through London's gayly-decked streets, the millions in the distant sections of the city will catch up the refrain and cr, "Hail to the king."

The setting of our text carries us back to the period in world's history when the Light of God was just beginning to burst through the dreadful darkness of the centuries preceding, and the scene enacted is similar in some of its details to that upon which the world is soon to gaze in England. Similar in that a King was there receiving the homage and acclaim of the multitudes over whom it was His right to reign, but oh, how dissimilar, for the triumphal entry as King leads to the crown of thorns and the death on the cross. The shouts of the people are soon to be changed from "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord: peace in Heaven, and glory in the highest," to the hoarse, mad cry of "Crucify Him! crucify Him!"

Our text gives us the response of Jesus to the jealous, angry criticism of the Pharisees, who objected to His being hailed as the Heaven-sent King. Behind Him lies Bethany, where at His omnipotent command the tomb was forced to give back its dead and the sorrow of that home where Jesus loved to tarry was turned to blessed joy. Lazarus in the midst of the multitudes is a living witness to the power of Jesus and His right to reign. The changed skin of the leper, the seeing eyes of the blind, the straightened, strengthened limbs of the lame and the halt, the rational, intelligent bearing of those possessed with devils, all tell their story and swell the enthusiasm of the multitudes. In the immediate presence of such mighty works, and so many living witnesses, Jesus must be exalted to His rightful place and be accorded the homage which it was His right to receive, if but for a brief moment. And if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." Think of it! The cold, hard, unfeeling stones lying by the roadside would burst with the story of a Heaven-sent King and proclaim their glad message, if the human heart, so insensible to the gift which God had sent into the world, should remain untouched and human lips refuse to proclaim Him the King. And it would have been even so, but thanks be to God there were some that day into whose hearts had come the realization that King Emanuel (God with us) was even then present, and they rejoiced in the deliverance He brought.

On that picturesque and beautiful roadway leading from Bethany up through the palm and flower-fringed path winding its ascent up the sides of Mount Olivet and down the steep descent through the valley of the Kedron and on into Jerusalem man and nature were found for a few brief moments in perfect accord with the Divine will and purpose. The foliage of the trees was never greener and more luxuriant, the bright-hued flowers were never more brilliant, the birds never sang sweeter or clearer than on that morning when Jesus, in fulfillment of Scripture, rode triumphantly as King to the scene of His rejection and His ignominious death. As He passed along the way with the shouts of the multitudes and the fresh voices of children ringing in His ears, the trees bent their swaying branches in graceful obeisance, the flowers nodded their fragrant tribute and the birds circling in the air above sent forth their notes of glad greeting and worshipful praise, and then sped on in advance of the rejoicing throng, filling the air with their glad song. All Jerusalem is stirred, and, moved by one impulse, it catches the refrain and goes forth to meet the coming King. Willing, eager hands catch the bending branches of the trees, which gladly give of their luxuriance to carpet the ground over which the King is to pass. The flowers skirting the roadside fairly spring into the hands of the happy children in their eagerness to lend their fragrance and beauty to such a scene as the world had never before seen and never again will see until the One who on that day was the center of that joy-intoxicated throng shall again come in the triumph and rejoicing of Heaven to be received as King by the nation which then rejected Him.

"Jesus shall reign where'er the sun
Does His successive journeys run;
His Kingdom stretch from shore to shore
Till moons shall wax and wane no more."

Sounds of Joy and of Weeping.—While the multitudes rejoiced, and hailed Jesus as King, the heart of our Lord was being wrung with the agony of His rejection and the coming destruction of His beloved city. As He reached the summit of the Mount of Olives "He beheld the city and wept over it." Jesus knew that many in that throng who were now praising Him would in a few short days be crying for His blood. With that infinite wisdom of His Divine nature He was able to penetrate the shallowness of the passing emotion, and see beneath the germ of unbelief and the passion born of hell. If Jesus had turned to that multitude that day and plainly told them that their song of praise was only the prelude to the tragic strains of the crucifixion, that the same hands that were scattering branches and flowers in His path would ere long be frantically throwing dust into the air and crying: "Crucify Him! crucify Him!" they would have been as empha tic in their protestations that such thing could not be, as was Peter when His Lord told him that before the cock should crow twice he would deny Him thrice.

It is hard to believe that the germ of murder, of theft, of lying, of lust and adultery, of sins, big or little, lies buried in the human heart, ready to flash forth under temptation like the powder in the magazine to which is applied the tiniest spark of fire. It is hard to realize that that hardened criminal in the dock listening to his sentence of imprisonment or death was once a tender, innocent little babe; that the germ of sin was there which, given full rein, has grown to hideous proportions and borne fruit in the crime demanding punishment.

We rejoice in the present moment of ease and satisfaction and superficial pleasure, while our Lord may be just at hand viewing us with tear-dimmed eye as He realizes what the next moments, or days or years may bring forth. Now, we may be with the throng which is praising Him, our voices may be raised in helping to swell the hymn which floats out on the breeze from church window and steeple, our feet and hands may be busy with the externalities of church life and Christian service, and to-morrow, when the day of testing comes and we must come out and be separate, we may be numbered with those whose cry is: "We will not have this Man rule over us." Unless the will belongs to God, unless it has been surrendered to His control, man knows not at what instant there may flash out in his life that which will identify him with the enemies of Jesus Christ.

"Teach me, Lord, my true condition,
Bring me childlike to Thy knee;
Stripped of every vain ambition,
Willing to be led by Thee."

The Motley Throng.—Three elements are markedly noticeable in the multitudes which surrounded our Lord during His triumphal entry into Jerusalem and the proclaiming Him as King. There were the few true believers in Christ as the Saviour of the world and the promised Messiah; there were the greater number of curious, unthinking spectators who were quick to catch the spirit and enthusiasm of the moment and lend their voices to the popular cry; and lastly there were the avowed enemies of Christ, who contested every foot of ground which Jesus trod, and endeavored to thwart His every move.

The crowd that surrounded our Lord that day represented in miniature the people of the world to-day in their relation to God and His Christ. If you had been there on the side of Mount Olivet that momentous day, in which class would you have been found? Not many to-day would be found, it is true, among the avowed enemies of Jesus Christ, for this is a day of popular religion and common recognition of Jesus Christ as a great leader, if not as the Saviour of the world. But would you have been numbered with the few believing disciples, or would your heart have deceived you, and while to-day you were hailing Him as King, to-morrow you would yield to the popular cry, and shout with the frenzied crowd: "Away with Him?" Self estimates are dangerous and unreliable. It is easy to look at ourselves with the natural eye and judge that we would have stood with the few faithful ones. It was easy to belong to that rejoicing throng as it hailed the Lord as King, but in the dark hour on Calvary,

"If we had been among the throng that saw
the lowly Saviour die,
If we had heard the cruel song, the heartless jest, the mockery,
Would we who now His triumph sing,
Have hailed Him then as Lord and King?
Would you or I?"

Thorns Instead of the Bejeweled Crown.—After the magnificent pageant has ended and King Edward has passed in regal state into the halls of Westminster abbey, the sparkling golden crown will be placed upon his brow, and the brilliant royal assemblage will greet him as their crowned king, a fitting climax to the magnificent scene. How different was the climax which marked the days following Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem! How the scene has changed! Instead of the rejoicing multitudes, the glad hosannas, the children's voices, the waving branches and flower-strewn path, we find the disciples scattered as sheep without a shepherd, the dark-visaged multitudes led by the Jewish rulers demanding that Jesus be crucified, and Pilate in his weakness yielding to the popular cry, and delivering the Man in whom he found no fault at all into the hands of his soldiers to be scourged and buffeted, as was the brutal Roman custom in dealing with the prisoner condemned to death.

While the frenzied mob outside was impatiently awaiting the crucifixion of Jesus, the Roman soldiers took Him into the common hall and, having called all the band together, they stripped Him and put on Him a scarlet robe. They plaited a crown of thorns and put it upon His head. Then, placing a reed in His right hand, they bowed the knee before Him, and mockingly said: "Hail, King of the Jews!" Ah, what a coronation! Oh, tragedy of the ages! Crowned with the piercing thorns, the emblem of the cursed ground from which the first Adam must obtain his living. How strikingly significant that He who was to bear the sin of the world in His body on the tree should have as His crown that which sprang from the soil as the direct consequence of sin! Man, in his hellish rage, is only fulfilling the will of God and making beautifully complete the marvelous plan of redemption.

What a contrast. The crowning of the earthly potentate is marked by the bringing of gifts, the paying of tribute, the showering of the best of the nation upon his kingly head, but in the dark picture before us we see the sins of the world being rolled upon the Lamb of God, the sin bearer. Man is doing his worst in order that God may do His best, and beyond that agonized, thorn-crowned head, we see the vision of the risen and ascended Lord, awaiting at the right hand of God for the fullness of time when He shall come again in power and great glory to rule over the earth.

Man may delay, but he cannot thwart God's plans. Disobedience and unbelief delayed the possession of the promised land by the children of Israel, and it was not until after 40 years wandering in the wilderness and the death of every soul but Caleb and Joshua, who lacked not faith to go in and possess the land, that Joshua led the hosts of Israel across the dry bed of Jordan and encamped against Jericho. The plotting of the crown of thorns upon the Saviour's brow marked but another step in the rejection of Jesus as the promised Messiah of the Jews. For 1,900 years it has delayed the fulfillment of much of the prophecy relating to the great prosperity and blessing of the Jewish nation. During the interim, the time of the Gentiles is being fulfilled, and the church, the mystical body of Christ, of which He is the head, is being made complete. The millennial dawn is drawing nigh and the supreme coronation of the ages will be enacted with the hosts of Heaven as the attendants of the triumphant King, and the peoples of the earth, the glad and obedient subjects of the Heaven-sent and earth-bought King. "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in Heaven, neither the Son, but the Father." Watch, therefore, "lest coming suddenly, He find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, watch."

I understand that at the coronation of King Edward all the nobles of his state, following the placing of the crown upon his head, will crown themselves by placing upon their own heads their coronets. What a sight this will be. As the magnificent creations of the jewelers' art catch the glinting light and throw it back in myriad glenms and flashes, the brilliancy of the scene will be heightened and intensified. Fortunate indeed will be the one whose lot it is to behold the magnificent spectacle, but away beyond anything which man could devise will be that coronation scene in Heaven to which we are all invited, and which we may attend if we only will. Preceding the description of this scene in the fourth chapter of Revelation is given this blessed, all-inclusive invitation: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come to him and will sup with him and he with Me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with My Father in His throne." And we who have invited the Master in to be our guest here will be His guest over there, and then, "Behold, a throne was set in Heaven, and One sat on the throne. And He that sat was to look upon like a jasper and a sardine stone; and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like unto an emerald. And round about the throne were four and twenty seats, and upon the seats I saw four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white raiment; and they had on their heads crowns of gold. And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices; and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God. And before the throne there was a sea of glass like unto crystal; and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, were four beasts full of eyes before and behind. . . . And when those beasts give glory and honor and thanks to Him that sat on the throne, who liveth forever and ever, the four and twenty elders fall down before Him that sat on the throne and worship Him that liveth forever and ever, and cast their crown before the throne, saying: Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honor and power." That this language may be largely figurative is admitted, but the fact that God has been obliged to resort to symbolism in order to bring the heavenly program within the range of understanding of the human mind only intensifies the possibilities of those transcendently beautiful and magnificent heavenly scenes. Fortunate may those be, indeed, who are present at the brilliant coronation ceremonies of the king of England, but blessed, thrice blessed, will be he whose privilege it will be to be present at the coronation of the King of kings and Lord of lords. The invitation to be present is to you and to me. We may be present if we will.

DOCTORS AND INSURANCE.

The American Professor's Relation to the Employers of Medical Service.

The greatest single employer of medical service, and one, we urge, which is not sufficiently or rightly valued by us, is the life insurance company, says American Medicine. The largest companies have on their lists of active examiners as many as one-third of the practitioners of the country and smaller companies may have 10,000. There is hardly a medical man that is not or that has not been employed by the insurance companies. The benefit extends to the humblest and youngest through the beneficial and assessment organizations, and there are few men so busy that they do not welcome positions with the largest companies. Several million dollars a year, at least three, is certainly not too high an estimate of the income to the American profession from this source. This fact, it may be incidentally noticed, should give pause to those who advocate rival companies limited to policies on the lives of physicians. Moreover, the best companies pay good fees, not seldom higher than does the private patient, and they pay 100 per cent. of our bills promptly, and in cash. The positions thus held by medical men are often of social, professional and financial advantage to the examiner. We are not unmindful of the fact that the profession as a rule gives its quid pro quo. Without our services, the results of scientific research and zeal, the financial affairs of the insurance companies would not be so prosperous, and at all times the companies are dependent upon our special knowledge for this success. The queries to which all this leads up, however, are these: In the first place, are we, as a profession rightly and sufficiently cognizant of our obligation and advantage in this matter? Not, we do not hesitate to reply, so long as we do not specially and better prepare our medical students to meet the peculiar demands to be made upon them. There should be in every medical college some special lecture courses designed to give the special instruction required of the life insurance examiner. Some of the questions in examinations by the college, and by the state boards should be framed with this in view. Secondly, are those members of our profession who are examiners giving back to us results of their examinations? They have splendid opportunities for research, tabulation of statistics, and the formulation of valuable conclusions derived from the rich clinical material placed at their disposal. Some good work of this kind has been done, but as a whole the scientific contributions of the medical examiners of life insurance companies are deplorably wanting in unity and throughness. The companies may rightly ask of us a proper recognition and preparation for their special work, and we may as justly demand of them more scientific, statistic and literary work as evidences of their social obligations.

AN EXCELLENT TRELLIS.

One of the Best and Cheapest Devices of the Kind for Sweet Peas We Have Ever Described.

The diagram shows construction of the best and cheapest trellis we have ever used for sweet peas. Posts are of 2x4-inch stuff, each eight feet long, set two feet in the ground and 16 feet apart. Narrow boards (1x2 inches) are nailed to top and bottom of posts after setting. Small wire nails are driven part way in six inches apart the entire length of the boards. The work is easier done if nails are driven in before nailing boards to posts. Let the nails in top strip slant upward and those in bottom one slant downward, to prevent the slipping of netting from nails. Nail top strip on first; measure down on post driving in nails every six inches; then nail on bottom strip. Have a ball of gardeners bunching twine (cost, five cents); tie end of twine to nail at left upper corner; cross diagonally to B; wind twine once around nail, and go to C; then to D, etc. Draw the twine snug, always wind once around each nail. Fill the entire frame ending at F. Tie the twine very securely, and break off; this is the warp.

For the filling, tie end of twine to nail marked F, cross to G then to H, then to I, etc. Weave the filling into the warp by passing the ball alternately over and under the threads of warp. Peas do better on a trellis of this kind than on brush or wire netting. We have no difficulty in coaxing them to climb to the top or beyond; the vines never burn on this trellis as they will on a wire one, during the heated term. When the frost puts them out of business, cut the strings loose at the four corners of frame, pull the vines and the entire mass of vines and twine can be slipped off the frame in two minutes and carried away to be burned on the rubbish heap. Anyone who has tried to clear the old vines from wire netting will appreciate this easier way of disposing of them.—J. E. Morse, in Rural New Yorker.

WATERING THE TREES.

Moisture Should Reach the Roots from Some Other Direction Rather Than the Surface.

Unless the owner of trees understands some of the more important principles of growth, there is danger that he will, when applying water, do more harm than good. To apply water in small quantities through the drought season is to cause the roots in the ground to turn toward the surface and grow in that direction. Then when the watering is discontinued for any reason the roots dry out much more quickly than if they had not been watered at all. When water is applied to trees it should be in sufficient abundance to soak the ground to a depth of several feet. The roots will then not turn up to get moisture. If it is necessary to apply but little water at a time it should not be put on the surface of the ground. Dig a hole and put a large piece of drain pipe so that the water being thrown into this pipe will soak deep into the ground. In case of not having a drain pipe or piece of tile, a hole can be made sufficiently deep to act as a reservoir. Let the water soak into the ground from this hole. The idea is to get the water to the roots from some other direction rather than from the surface of the ground.—Farmers' Review.

Buttermilk for the Pigs.

Buttermilk should not be given in large quantities to a sow that is nursing pigs, says Theodore Lewis, in American Swineherd. It may so affect her milk by causing it to curdle prematurely in the stomachs of the young pigs as to cause the death of the latter. If fed at all, the quantity should not exceed 40 pounds to a barrel of swill. If the buttermilk has been obtained from a creamery and has become an acid before it can be fed, better avoid feeding it. Buttermilk as obtained from creameries, even though fed to shoats or pigs, when fed single and alone, will, as a rule, cause the evil results above alluded to. And yet there is no food that may be fed to such great advantage in connection with other food as the by-product of the dairy.

In purchasing the male birds always get good ones. The natural tendency to decline and degeneracy in color, is well as in the physical points, is always present.

The same treatment given worms on the gooseberry bushes as given the currant bushes will destroy the worms that eat the leaves.

CAUSE OF GOOD ROADS.

In All Parts of New York It Is Prospering as It Never Has Prospered Before.

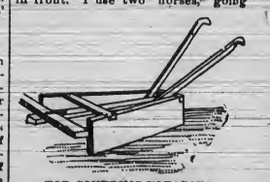
The action of the board of supervisors of this county in recommending the building of 35 miles of good road under the state aid plan, and the appropriation of the county's share of money for the improvement of four miles of road on which estimates had already been made, bring the matter of good roads to a practical test where it has heretofore been a theoretical proposition.

It shows the growth of good road sentiment which is shared all over the state. The Utica Press printed in a canal town, concedes that the good roads sentiment has a majority over the canal sentiment, and it suggests that: "In case the legislature fails to sanction the submission to the people of a constituitonal amendment authorizing the appropriation of $38,300,000 for the further improvement of the canals, there may be a chance for the proposition in reference to good roads. There is undoubtedly more sentiment favorable to road improvement than to canal improvement. As road improvement would be shared by all the counties in the state, it is practically certain that there would be popular approval of an amendment to the constitution permitting the state to issue bonds to the amount of $20,000,000 to carry on this movement."

Certainly here is more argument for a tax on the New York farmer to get his products to market than there is to tax him for getting the products of his western competitor to market. The legislature has probably refused to sanction the submission of the canal proposition, and if it remains in its present determination the way is clear for the submission of the $20,000,000 proposition for good roads, as both subjects could not be submitted in one year. It is believed that the people would accept the good roads proposition, in which all would receive equal benefit.

The legislature is pretty sure at least to grant $600,000 this year to the state's fund for aid in building good roads. It is an epoch of good road building. The legislature has passed several acts favorable to securing better roads. There is the O'Brien bill, which provides a county option plan, whereby any county may adopt the most modern system of caring for its roads and bridges. It codifies the present laws, provides for the cash system, a county engineer and the proper care of bridges and the contracting therefor. The Green compulsory adoption of cash road tax system has reached third reading in the senate, and the bill to compel the use of wide tires after 1905 is on general orders in the senate.

Assemblyman O'Brien, of Clinton, has also passed his bill to allow villages to bond themselves and thus raise money for the purchase of a steam roller, stone crusher and engine, and other roadmaking machinery. This bill has met with no opposition.



One of the best of good roads measures is that introduced by Assemblyman Plank, of St. Lawrence county, which has been signed by the governor, and is a law. It provides a measure for localities that object to the more expensive requirements of the Highie law. It is an amendment of the Fuller law of 1898, and gives towns adopting the money system of highway improvement 50 per cent. bonus from the state treasury, instead of 25 per cent. This law takes effect immediately. Towns which have or do adopt the money system will get an immediate benefit on future work. W. Pierrepont White, of Oneida, who is a leader of the good roads movement, says that this law will go far toward intelligent improvement and work on all country roads.

This seems to be an era of good roads. Those that have been made create demand for more. The money cost is great, but the cities and villages pay it and it is converted into labor in the rural districts, and the good road remains as the result.—Watertown (N. Y.) Times

A POTATO COVERER.

As a Tool for the Purpose Made Evident by Its Name It Certainly Has No Superior.

I have for years used a potato coverer that is made entirely of wood and at little expense. The boards that do the covering are 1x10x28, nine inches apart at the rear end, and 24 in front. I use two horses, going astride the row. The tongue is in one piece, and is bolted in so as to make the implement run smooth without too much work for the driver. The weight on the handles regulates the depth of the covering. It scrapes in the surface dirt, leaves a ridge to harrow down, and kills the weeds just before the potatoes come through. I have tried different cultivators with covering attachments, but they do not give such perfect work. As a tool just to cover potatoes, the above has no equal.—Epitomist.

PUZZLE PICTURE.

"AS SOON AS MOTHER LEAVES I SHALL GO IN SWIMMING." WHERE IS HIS MOTHER?

THE WALL-EYED PIKE.

It Is a King on the Table, But in the Water It Is a Veritable Churl.

A king on the table and a churl in the water is the wall-eyed pike, though why so noble a fish in flesh should be so unworthy of respect in freedom no man can say, says the New York Sun.

The pike has appetite and sufficient courage to pursue smaller fishes. It has great strength and is swift. It is formidably armed and safe from attack once it has attained a good size. It inhabits cold, deep water, which should give it a disposition to resist capture.

Bass or muskallonge taken from the same lake or stream will fight until the angler's wrist aches and his temper is wrecked, but the wall-eye, once it has surged hungrily at the lure and the barb has been driven in deeply, apparently cares nothing about its future and is willing to go wherever the line directs. Its utter lack of pugnacity makes it despised by fishermen, otherwise its size, beauty and delicateness would make it a prize worthy of any rod.

The wall-eyed pike, so-called from its round, staring eyes, set far up in its shovel head, will eat when hungry anything that it can bite and it is generally hungry. It is active enough in pursuit of prey, but is otherwise disinclined to exertion.

It is never seen rushing hither and yon, or leaping from the water in pure joy of motion. It does not travel far, but selects in youth some part of the lake and sticks to it summer and winter unless driven elsewhere by lack of food. Traveling means work, and it dislikes to move.

For this reason a pike which has been hooked and not landed, or has been merely grazed by the barb, may generally be taken in the same place at the same time on the day after. If it has been hooked and not landed, the escape is due generally to some accident, not to any effort of its own. The line may become entangled, or cut on a rock, or the hook hold may be slight.

The fish has one characteristic not shared by any other: Often when it is struck and the angler reels in he will find the line come easily and slackly, as if there were nothing on it. The ike in reality is swimming toward him as if anxious to surrender and have done with the matter.

It may make a slight flurry when within a yard of the boat, but most often it will only half turn, putting just a little of its weight on the line, then submit to being lifted by the dipnet with scarce a waggle of its broad tail. Its long face has a sort of vacuous grin, as if to say that it would as soon be in the boat as in the water and had no choice at all between baking and frying.

Of resistance, as the trout or bass or salmon understands it, the pike knows nothing. Sometimes its temper is bitterly aroused by the sting of the hook and drag of the line and then it goes to the bottom and lies there sulkily. It pulls ita head down as often as it is lifted up and opposes its dead heft to the reel.

Often it may be seen lying there with its fins spread out and its flukes motionless, its great lidless eyes staring upward through the clear water, just doing nothing at all. At such times, after the angler has tried to dislodge it by tightening the line and giving it the butt and so forth, he will reach into his pocket, take out his knife and tap the rod sharply with it.

This sends a jar down the line extremely disagreeable to the fish, and it will come up.

The wall-eye may weigh two pounds or 12, but its cowardice and laziness are the same at all ages. Anglers when they take it, although they realize that its capture is of no credit, do not throw it back for two reasons: First, they do not want it to bother them, or a brother angler, again, and, second, it is mighty good to eat, being in flavor and firmness superior to any other large freshwater fish.

The Effects of Artillery.

It has long been a commonplace that the effects of artillery are mainly "moral," but for all that the introduction of the new explosive—lyddite, especially—and of quick-firing guns had insensibly revived the belief in the great material value of artillery. It would be gratuitous to say that artillery has had a great downfall in general estimation—among those who have always taken a sane view of its uses we do not think it has—but we may fairly say that relatively to artillery the rifle has gained in reputation. We know now that lyddite, although it may make short work of the mahdi's tomb, is of little use against earthworks, especially when it falls on very soft ground, and that the stories of men whose senses left them and whose teeth shook in their heads because they happened to be within a quarter of mile of an explosion of lyddite were mere moonshine.—London Spectator.

CAUGHT ON THE RUN.

A Shave That Was Closer Than the Man Getting Shaved Suspected.

"I'm going to shave myself from this time on," said a Duluth insurance man to a friend from St. Paul who had come up for a day, relates the News-Tribune.

"I'll tell you the reason. The fact is that every time I get stretched out in that plush-covered chair I lie and think about what would happen if the barber should go crazy."

"Oh! Oh! You don't think for a minute that there's any danger of that, do you?" queried his friends.

"No, I don't think—I know. And I'll tell you all about it. About six years ago, right here in Duluth, a barber did go 'batty,' and when he was shaving a man. It so happened that his insanity was not of the vicious sort, or the kind that murderers display, or it might have been all day with the man under the towel.

"This incident occurred in a Superior street barber shop that was considered at that time one of the best in the city. A man was ensconced in the chair and his face had been thoroughly lathered. The barber—a large, rather handsome fellow—gave the razor a few clips in the strop, and started to amputate the brush. He gave the razor a gentle skip across the man's face, as if he thought it a joke; then he started to shave in a hurry. All this time he wore a sickly grin, and the proprietor of the shop, having noticed that the man had not been acting just right for a few days, walked over to him and told him to quit. He did without a protest, and was examined in probate court the next day. He was adjudged insane, and sent to Fergus Falls for treatment. His malady was of but a temporary nature, however, and he was released in three months. He is now running a barber shop up north."

"Yes, but how about the man who was getting shaved?" inquired the friend, who gave evidence of being a good listener.

"Why, do you know, the man in the chair never knew the difference. He was one of those big, fat fellows that go into a trance whenever they get shaved, and he never noticed it when they switched barbers on him."

SOUVENIR NOT WANTED.

Congressman Didn't Want Anything to Remind Him of His Hotel Bill.

Congressman Amos J. Cummings, of New York, was an industrious man and some time ago found that devotion to both his official duties and his literary occupations had "run him down," says an exchange. Thinking to recuperate by a few days' rest, he went to the most fashionable hotel at one of the southern winter resorts. A letter of introduction to the manager of the establishment brought a hearty welcome and "the best in the house." But his appreciation was rather diminished by the unexpected size of the bill.

As he was leaving Cummings stopped at the hotel news stand to get some papers. The pretty young woman attendant called his attention to a showcase filled with fancy trifles and said, sweetly:

"Congressman, don't you want a souvenir?"

"What for?" asked Mr. Cummings, rather gruffly.

"Why, to serve as a reminder of this place," she said.

"Humph!" replied Mr. Cummings, looking ruefully at his receipted hotel bill. "I don't want to remember it. If you have any souvenirs there that will make me forget it I'll buy one."

HANDICAPPING HABITS.

Things Done "Just for Now" Sometimes Become a Lasting Disadvantage.

Many young people form habits which cripple and handicap them for life by doing things "just for now." They let things drop wherever they happen to be, "just for now," thinking that they will put the book, the tool, the letter, or the article of clothing, later, where it belongs, says O. S. Marden, in Success.

When these young people grow up to manhood and womanhood, they find that the habit of putting things down anywhere, "just for now," has become a tyrant that fills their lives with confusion and disorder.

It takes no more time or effort to put a thing where it belongs, in the first place, than it does later—perhaps less; and the chances are that, if you do not do so at the proper time, you never will.

Even if it costs you a little inconvenience, at the moment, to put everything in its proper place, to do everything at the proper time, the orderly and methodical habits which you cultivate in this way will increase your power and usefulness a hundredfold, and may save you much trouble and mortification in the future.

Strawberry Puffs.

Mix well one pint of flour, two level tablespoonfuls of baking powder and a little salt. Make into a soft dough with milk, about one cupful. Put a spoonful of dough into well-greased cups, then a spoonful of strawberries, then turn the dough. Steam for 20 minutes. Turn out onto a platter and serve.—Good Housekeeping.

Beets with Potatoes.

After the beets have been boiled and skinned, mush together with boiled potatoes; season with salt, dress with butter, sprinkle with pepper, turn into a hot dish and serve at once.—Ladies' World, New York.

A LITTLE VARIETY.

The Paris Salon seems to be less fashionable this year than in times gone by.

Trinket or jewel boxes in sterling silver are heart-shaped, the interior richly gilt.

Kerosene will make tin kettles as bright as new. Saturate a woolen rag and rub with it. It will also remove stains from the clean varnished furniture.

A woman has received the Victor Hugo prize for the best medical work. The Paris academy of medicine awards it to Dr. Melaine Lipinska, of Warsaw.

A New York paper tells how the little daughter of a multimillionaire—name not given—is taken for a walk every pleasant morning. The child is accompanied by two maids, one walking on either side, and behind these come two men servants, burly of build, of determined aspect, and both armed with revolvers. All this because the parents fear their darling may be kidnaped.

Alfred Beit, who is frequently credited with being the richest man in the world, is altogether unlike Cecil Rhodes, the man with whom he was so long associated in South African affairs. He is highly polished, courteous, reticent, well-balanced man of the world, whose London home has been furnished with a scrupulous eye to the avoidance of display. He spends a great deal of his time on horseback, and is regarded as one of the best-dressed men in London, abhorring a wrinkle as much as Cecil Rhodes detested fine clothes. Nearly all the clerks in his employ are university men, and several are members of the aristocracy.

WOMEN WORKERS IN LONDON.

London has 700 women photographers.

The lady musicians of London have grown in number to 5,525.

Women "engaged in scientific pursuits" are either too modest to put themselves down as such, or they are really rare beings, for there are only 18, and at the last census there were 14.

A total of 5,796 represents the women and girls in London who are engaged in some work connected with the "general or local government of the country." These are civil servants and women in municipal and parochial employ.

The total number of authors, editors, journalists, reporters and shorthand writers is now 603, at the last census it was 419. But the "others connected with literature" have also increased, the total being now 275, while in 1891 it was 126.

In "professional occupations and their subordinate services" altogther, there are 52,962 women and girls. Of these some 3,000 are engaged in various kinds of religious work, whether as missionaries, preachers, nuns, sisters of charity, or as church and chapel officers.

RAIL AND TIE.

A locomotive going at express speed gives 1,036 puffs per mile.

Canada's railway mileage was only 2,087 in 1867. In 1890 it was 17,824.

An average pair of engine driving wheels run 66,773 miles before they are worn out.

A new car-coupling is being tried on a German railway. It lessens the space between the car to 7.8 inches.

The railways of Great Britain have just over 150 miles of tunnel. The seven longest railway tunnels have a total length of 13 miles.

Millions of Fish.

Great attention is being paid this year by the Wisconsin Fish Commission to the stocking of the streams and lakes of that state. Fifteen million pike fry and two million muscallonge are to be distributed in the Wisconsin lakes, and it is proposed by the Wisconsin authorities to give the visitor to that state this summer plenty of sport with rod and line.

The Chicago & North-Western Railway, which reaches all the principal fishing resorts in Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, announces favorable excursion rates and special train service from Chicago and Milwaukee this summer to take care of what they anticipate will be the largest movement to Wisconsin resorts that has ever been known

My work in the studio often suggests to me illustrations of life, one of which may be of interest.

The Enduring Cast

By LORADO TAFT, Noted American Sculptor.

For instance, in modeling a portrait, we scoop the clay from the big clay box, clap it into a support, shape rudely the form of an egg, and upon its surface proceed to locate the features of the face. The eyes are gouged in and the ears stuck on. The work is gradually advanced by dint of much looking and much comparing. We measure and mold, scrutinize and scrape, put on and take off, fairly caress it into life—compel it to exist. When the work is complete we take a plaster cast of it, that is, throw plaster of paris all over the face and shoulders, taking an impression of these forms. The mold becoming hard, is pried off from the clay and it seems as though the labor of weeks were completely lost, for the clay is torn to pieces, the features are destroyed and nothing remains but the impression in the mold. The clay goes back into the clay box, to be used over again. What was one day a bust of Washington may the next be used in a head of Lincoln or McKinley. Cleopatra may become Susan B. Anthony.

IS NOT THIS THE STORY OF OUR OWN EXISTENCE? We, too, are gathered from Nature's great clay box, the breath of life is blown into our nostrils, and we play our little part, then fold our hands and are returned to the clay box once more. As Hamlet sings:

"Imperial Caesar, dead and turned to clay, Might stop a hole to keep the wind away."

IT SEEMS AS THOUGH ALL WERE LOST, BUT AS WITH THE BUST, THE IMPRESSION REMAINS. All is not lost; the greater part, the essential, endures. If I were a preacher I believe I could write a sermon on this text.

To Preserve, Purify, and Beautify the Skin, Hands, and Hair Nothing Equals

Cuticura SOAP

MILLIONS of WOMEN Use CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

COMPLETE TREATMENT FOR EVERY HUMOUR, $1.

Cuticura Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal; and CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS (25c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, and humiliating skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. British Depot: 27-28, Charterhouse Sq., London. French Depot: 5 Rue de la Paix, Paris. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT PILLS (Chocolate Coated) are a new, tasteless, odourless, economical substitute for the celebrated liquid CUTICURA RESOLVENT, as well as for all other blood purifiers and humour cures. Each pill is equivalent to one teaspoonful of liquid Resolvent. Put up in screw-cap pocket vials, containing 50 doses, price $1.

Frank L. Gordon.

On May 18th, 1902, Frank L. Gordon died at his home near Hebron, Ky., after a lingering illness of four months. F. L. Gordon was one of Boone county's oldest and best known citizens and his death calls for more than a passing notice.

He was born October 24th, 1824 and was married to Miss Sallie McGlasson, November 1st, 1849. To them were born eight children, six of whom are living and with their aged mother are left to mourn his death. Bro. Gordon confessed Christ and was baptized at South Fork Christian Church in 1857. It was the privilege of the writer to be with him in the autumn of 1900 when he spent several days among relatives and old friends. There in the church of his younger days he met with them all for the last time and lifted up his voice in song and prayer. In 1879 he became a charter member of the Bullittsville Christian church and was elected an elder—a position which he held until his death. Here in this congregation he will be greatly missed. For many years he was at his post of duty in spite of disagreeable weather and almost impassible roads. He loved the church; he loved the old hymns of praise; his faith in Christ was unfaltering to the end. Bro. Gordon's life was one of activity and industry, and together with the aid of his thrifty wife, he accumulated a comfortable fortune. He has fought the good fight; he has kept the faith. May the tenderest blessings of the Father rest on his loved ones—and especially on her, who for over fifty years walked with him and comforted him.

THE COMBINED STALLION.

MAX LEDGER,

will make the season of 1902, through the month of April, at O. P. Conner's farm, 4 miles south of Burlington, Ky., near the East Bend road. Beginning the first Monday and Tuesday in May, he will be found at Burlington; Wednesday at Union, and the remainder of the time at home.

Terms—$10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with.

Description and Pedigree:

Max Ledger is a fine black, 16 hands high, is a fine show horse, having taken 47 premiums at 14 fairs, and is the sire of the best lot of colts in Northern Kentucky. His colts are large, active and stylish. He is very fine in form and finish, and for style, we challenge competition. For saddle and harness he is unsurpassed by any horse in Boone Co.

This high bred young horse is from Ledger No. 12358, Vol 9, (sire of Belle K. 2:28½ fourth heat with but six weeks handling,) Ledger E. pacer 2:24 at 3-yr-old, Kentucky Prince, 2:15; he by Crown Chief No. 4080, sire of Roland, 2:28, by Milford Mambrino; he by Mambrino Chief 11, sire of Lady Thorne, 2:18½, Woodford Mambrino, 2:21½ and many others. Max Ledger's dam, Kate Livingston by Forest Temple 136, by Edwin Forest; 2nd dam Madam Temple, dam of Flora Temple, 2:17½; 3rd dam by Tom Crowder; 4th dam by Bellfounder; 5th dam by Passenger.

Pasture $1.50 per month for mares from a distance. L. A. CONNER.

THE PREMIUM STALLION,

DEXTER,

will make the present season at my stable on Gunpowder creek, near Hathaway, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Dexter is a bay, 16½ hands high, and weighs 1,300 pounds. He has made 5 races and won 4.

He was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Priam, sired by Bob Deadlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Cassius M. Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred.

Dexter's colts beat all competitors at the Lawrenceburg, Indiana, the Butler county, Ohio, and the Boone county, Kentucky, fairs, and the Boone county Harvest Home. Last year he took the premium at the Boone fair as the best brood stallion with 5 or more colts.

He will be in Burlington every countysecourt day, and at Geo. Moore's stable at Beaver every Friday.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may occur.

JAS. H. AYLOR.

The Harness and Saddle Stallion,

DANDY CRISTO,

Will make the season of 1902, at my stable near Big Bone church, Boone county, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.

Dandy Cristo is a dark bay, 5 yrs old, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and weighs 1100 lbs. Dandy Cristo by Black Cristo; he by Monte Cristo, 59; first dam by Black Squirrel, 58; second dam by Mambrino Time; 4th dam by Blue Bull.

Monte Cristo by Montrose; he by Diamond Denmark; he by Black Denmark; he by Denmark, thoroughbred, the great 4-mile race horse; he by imported Hedgeford. Monte Cristo's first dam by Black William; she by Brown's Highlander; 2d dam by Whip's thoroughbred.

Dandy Cristo's dam by Virginia Morgan and Spark's Cren Berry, gr-dam by Black Squirrel; great-grand-dam, Highlander and Blades' famous saddle horse, Regulator, from Bracken county.

This breeding has produced the best saddle and harness horses ever in the Blue Grass section, and it is hoped that the breeders in this section will take advantage of it and raise a higher grade of horses, when it can be done so cheap.

Remember that a fancy saddle horse commands as high price as ever, while common horses are too cheap to give away.

DANDY CRISTO took first premium in general purpose ring at Florence fair in 1899; has made two shows and took first each time.

He will be at Union on Friday and Saturday of each week after the middle of April, and at home the remainder of the time. R. LEE HUEY, SAM HICKS.

SEASON 1902.

Timothy Boy 27854

TIMOTHY BOY, No. 27854, bay horse, foaled April 3, 1893, bred by D. Bedinger & Son. Sired by Wilkes, 2:24, 1st dam Alga by Artillery, 2:21¼, 2d dam Valdosta by Nutwood, 2:28¾; 3d dam, Emma Arterburn, (dam of St. Armould, 2:29 and gr-d of 2 in 30 list) by Mambrino Patchen 58, 4th dam, Jenny Johnson (gr-d of 3 in 30 list.

TIMOTHY BOY is one of the best bred horses in Kentucky. He is 16¼ hands high and weighs 1300 lbs. in ordinary condition; a horse of great power, fine style and action. He is a pure gaited trotter, a very fine breeder. His colts are large with good style and action, and are good sellers.

Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.

Also two Mammoth Jacks,

NUTWOOD and MIKE, Jr.,

will make the season at the same time and place. Nutwood is a dark brown (little gray,) 16 hands high—the premium jack of Northern Kentucky, never been beaten in a show ring, and one of the best breeders in Boone county.

Terms—$8.00 to insure a live colt.

Mike, Jr., 14¾ hands high, will be 3-years-old the 1st of next Oct.; was bred at Crescent Hill Stock Farm and was sired by Nutwood, Riddell & Boddle's 16 hand jack); dam by Bourbon Chief, 16 hands high.

Terms—$7.00 to insure a live colt.—Limited to 25 mares.

Pasture and attention furnished mares from a distance at $1.50 per month. Care will be taken to prevent accidentes, but no responsibility should any occur. Parties disposing of mares forfeits all insurance and money is due at once.

Crescent Hill Stock Farm is 3 miles West of Richwood on the Richwood and Beaver pike. J. C. BEDINGER,
Richwood, Ky.

Imported French Coach Stallion,

LANTIER 1148,

Will make the present season at Thos. E. Randall's stable on the Burlington & Petersburg pike, 1 mile west of Idlewild, Boone county, Ky., the first four days in each week, and at the stable of J. L. McWethy, one mile below Petersburg, the remainder of the time, at $10 to insure a colt to stand up and suck. Money due when mare is parted with.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1902. NO. 37.

WALTON, June 29.—Mrs. John Watson and Mrs. Edward Harris have returned from a week's visit to Chattanooga, delighted with their trip.

At the meeting of the Ohio Valley Masonic Association held at Patriot, Indiana, June 24th, Walton was selected as the place for holding the next yearly meeting, June 24th, 1903.

Mr. Ben Hume, who it will be remembered, lost 2 cows a short time ago by hydrophobia, on Saturday last had misfortune to lose a two-year-old heifer by the same dreadful death.

Saturday night and until Sunday morning a destructive storm visited our locality, causing great damage to [illegible]ing crops, breaking down fruit and shade trees and laying telegraph poles carefully across and along the side of the turnpike southwardly. It looks as if it will be impossible to save the crop as small grain is spoiled the wet weather continues. Some of the corn may be straightened up, but much of it is broken short off. Perhaps the hay crop may be saved, but if it is the wet weather must stop right now.

Fred Eskew had an exciting experience leaving the city of the storm from Sherman, where he first met it as he was returning from a business tour thru Grant county in the interest of his brother, H. L. Eskew. Some of the incidents were startling—the whole trip was full of danger. At Bracht the wires were down, the horses scared and the buggy broken to pieces. Assistance was obtained of Mr. L. Hopkins, and after some hours of delay he reached Walton. Fred had been thrown from the buggy, caught in the wires and dragged around generally, but came out of it without serious injury. It was providential that he came out of it alive, as it was the worst storm for the time of year ever known in this locality.

RICHWOOD, June 29.—Mrs. Lucy Carpenter is quite sick at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hearne.

Riding cultivators have become a fad here.

Miss Bettie Hill, of Covington, is visiting relatives at this place.

Excelsior Grange meets Saturday at 8 p. m. Important business.

Charles Finnell, the ex-Union ball twirler, has signed with Richwood.

Jefferson Carpenter, who was taken seriously sick last week, is better.

Mr. and Mrs. Acra, of Ludlow, were guests of Mr. Fields and wife, Sunday.

Clarence Tanner, of Covington, spent several days with John Tanner, last week.

The incessant rain interferes badly with our work, and especially with harvesting.

Claud Rice and James Snow represent our town at Nelson's Business College in Cincinnati.

Any ball team wishing a game for any Saturday afternoon, address Manager, Richwood, Ky.

Theo. Carpenter was spending his 3-year old stallion, Saturday. He is a good looker and speedy.

Our butcher, L. D. Jackson, can hardly supply the demand for beef, and will have to enlarge his shop.

Otis Acra and Miss Lucy Fields, of this place, were married in Covington, Saturday, by Rev. Vickers.

Many friends and relatives from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Maggie Cody, at Florence, Saturday.

Albert Byland and Thos. Carpenter have been sick with symptoms of malaria, but are now much better.

Several staunch Republicans voted at the primary and were asked if they would support the nominee? Will they?

J. C. Bedinger returned from a two months trip west, and left last Tuesday on a visit to his brother, Henry, in Ohio.

Miss Ida Grubbs chaperoned her neice, Marian Tanner and her nephew Wiley Grubbs, to the Zoo, last Wednesday.

Lightning struck Richard Lampton's barn, Friday, and shivered some of the heavy timbers, but did not fire the building.

D. H. Bannister uses five horses to his binder and the way Columbus swings his leaders at the corners would do a veteran stage driver justice.

We are expecting a great, big 4th up our way, having purchased a pack of shooting crackers, a spit devil, Roman candle, sky rocket and torpedo.

The Union ball team failed to appear for their game with the locals, Saturday. There will be a game between those teams the afternoon of the 4th.

The many friends of Henry Bedinger, formerly of this place, will be glad to hear he received a lucrative government position in the South some time ago.

Wilson Ellis and Josie Belle Northcutt were married in Covington, Saturday, by Rev. Miller. They will make their home on uncle Billy Respass' place.

John Rice rode his horse in the lake Saturday, to water it, and it fell with him injuring itself badly. Luckily it was near the shore, for John would not float.

A "coon" going to a church gathering a few Sundays ago, lost a wicked 10 in. 38 caliber revolver near here, and the owner can receive same by paying the costs, etc., and explaining why he needed that gun at church, or perhaps it was a "gospel gun," but it don't look like one.

Summer complaint is usually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Leading, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

IDLEWILD.—Mrs. Stephens' sister, Mrs. Fox, of Cincinnati, is her guest.

Glad to have no new cases of sickness to report this week.

Some of our farmers quit cutting wheat because it was too green.

Kassabaum, of Aurora, passed here one day last week with 4 wagons, taking a family monument for J. W. Gaines to Bullittsburg cemetery.

June 28th was the most incessant day's rain we ever knew. The thunder that accompanied sounded like cannons, while the lightning was very vivid.

Are not the sermons written for your paper by "the High Way and Byway Preacher," by Rev. Frank Talmage, of Chicago, son of the talented DeWitt Talmage? [They are.—ED.]

The North Bend Executive Board met at Bullittsburg, last Friday afternoon. Nine ministers were present, but only five delegates were on hand. The business was soon dispatched. The Board will meet again August 30th in Petersburg.

Our hearts are saddened by the death of au old friend and sister, Mrs. John Cropper, which occurred on the night of June 25th, after a painful illness of four months. Appropriate services at the house by Rev. J. A. Kirtley and Swindler, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends who came to show their last act of respect. At the vault Rev. Sproles read appropriate scripture and prayed.

BUFFALO.—Several of the farmers took advantage of the fine showers we had last week and finished setting tobacco.

A good many raspberrys was gathered in this week.

Miss Maud Tate, of Hebron, is visiting friends here.

The finest prospect for corn around here that has been for years,

Several of the ladies of this vicinity dined with Mrs. Ella Utz, last Wednesday.

Miss Alma Ryle, of Waterloo, spent last Tuesday with her brother and family at this place.

Arch Rouse bought a good work horse from Webb Newman, of Union, last week. Price, $50.

L. J. Riley has been very sick for the past two weeks, but we are glad to say he is very much improved at this writing.

Cage Stephens, of Woolper, came down last Wednesday and delivered his crop of tobacco to Conner & Hogan, for 6½ and 3 cts.

Last week was fine weather for harvesting and a great deal of wheat was cut here. The wheat looked fine although the chints bug had injured it greatly.

This vicinity was greatly shocked by the announcement of the death of T. J. Adams, who was loved and respected by all around here. The family has the sympathy of this community and may God sustain them in this great affliction.

HATHAWAY, June 30.—Some of the farmers finished setting tobacco last week.

E. R. Smith is not quite so well.

All of the wheat went in to the shock here last week.

R. R. Houston and family were in Covington, shopping, last Friday.

Mrs. G. L. Smith was the guest of Mrs. Caroline Ryle, last Tuesday.

There has not been as cool a time for harvesting as last week, for some years past.

Miss Pearl White was visiting in the North Bend neighborhood, last Friday and Saturday.

We are thankful for items furnished us recently and will be glad for more in the future.

Bro. Acra, if anything that pertains to the picnic or fishfry is pulled off you must surely be in the swim.

Miss Cora Aylor entertained several of her friends at dinner in a most delightful manner, last Sunday.

Waller Marshall and wife, of Locust Grove, were guests of Elmore Ryle and wife on Gunpowder, last Sunday.

Edgar Beasley and wife, of Locust Grove vicinity, and C. E. White of near Burlington, were guests of W. L. White and wife, Sunday.

G. L. Smith went to Patriot Tuesday to attend the Ohio Valley Association held with the Masonic order of that place. He reported a grand time.

The driving clover hay recently by W. S. White's machine struck a stump in the grass, throwing him into the wheel which caught his foot and held him fast until assistance was rendered him when he was released. It bruised his foot considerable.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Clements entertained not long since as guests, E. E. Utz and family, Richard Head and family, Ezra Blankenbeker and wife, Robert Clements and family, Mrs. A. J. Utz and little grand daughter, Miss Jessie, and Mr. Willis, of Cynthiana, Ky.

The ordination at Big Bone on the 20th inst., was a success in every particular. There was a large crowd in attendance. The visiting ministers were Revs. O. M. Huey, of Carrollton; S. M. Adams, of Walton, and E. B. Atwood, of Bellevue. They all took part in the exercises. At the noon hour refreshments were served on the tables in the yard. All spent a most pleasant day.

Commissary you spoke of fish fry's being in bad repute. We don't think so. If they are conducted in the right way, they can be as nice as any other gatherings. I have in times past helped to conduct several and they were a success in every particular. We propose to not have anything stronger than coffee to drink, if that is what you have reference to. This is all I have to say in this matter, so I will drop the subject "sine die."

The many friends of Rev. H. Max Lentz in this county, will be glad to hear that his daughter, Miss Ruth L., received the gold medal awarded the best all-round student at Shepherd College, during the term ending a few days since.

COMMISSARY.—The people in the neighbood of the Commissary are as prosperous and well-to-do as those of other neighborhoods, yet, we have none so well-to-do that they can live without working, and visit all the time, nor none so poor that they have to go visiting occasionally to get a good square meal to keep soul and body together. Harvest is on and people are busy, therefore no visits to report.

As a past time during the week we read a very touching, sympathetic story and it has warmed up our poor old heart, that we have a warmer and kinder feeling toward all mankind. Nearly everyone here goes to Aurora a day or two before the shimmas to get their little brown jugs filled with spirits. We went up last year, but did not get the little brown jug filled; never do, but we got full—full as a stuffed goose, so to speak; not on the spirits of the little brown jug, but on the spirit of forgiveness, kindness and liberty love. Such drunks as this don't give a fellow the hust-head, nor does not have a tendency to heart failure, but instead has a quieting and soothing effect on the heart and conscience.

We hold no ill will against any one, not even the lady who mistook us for "Ponto." Perhaps the lady was not to blame, because we are a little off in color, our complexion being the color of a saffron head mulatto, or a meerchaum pipe, and when dressed in a blue shirt, greasy blue overalls and slouch hat, we look like the skin of a sugar-cured ham.

We get full every Christmas and do not get sober from one to another. This morning after finishing our story, we sat thinking if more people would get on such drunks as ours, how much more happiness there would be. While thinking we were looking over an old file of papers and noticed and read the following bit of poetry, which we think beautiful, and as its so in touch with present state of feellugs, we will give it to the readers of the Recorder:

"Loving words will cost but little,
Sourneying up the hill of life;
But they make the weak and weary
Stronger, braver for the strife.
Do you count them only trifles?
What to earth are sun and rain?
Never was a kind word wasted,
Never was one said in vain."

"When the cares of life are many,
And its burdens heavy grow,
Think on weak ones close beside you—
If you find them, tell them so.
What you count of little value
Has an almost magic power,
And beneath their cheering sunshine,
Hearts will blossom like a flower."

We hope every little boy and girl whose papa takes the Recorder, will read and commit to memory this bit of poetry, and let it be their guiding star—their guardian angle through life.

BEAVER LICK June 30.—Harry Jones was visiting in Covington, Saturday and Sunday, the guest of relatives and friends.

Joe Lucas was visiting among the young people of Verona, last Sunday.

Aunt Cassie Carroll, of Frankfort, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. B. B. Hume and family, this week.

The consensus of opinion among the farmers here is that the rainy season has "set in," which, accompanied by heavy winds Saturday night, did great damage to growing crops.

James Pottinger and wife are busily engaged entertaining a bouncing young baby boy at their home, which arrived June 25th. Jim says he is the most welcome guest that has visited him this summer.

The following officers for Harmony Lodge I. O. O. F., at Big Bone, were elected last Saturday for the ensuing term: Lou Miller, N. G.; Ed McAllister, V. G.; W. L. Baker, Sec'ty.; Add Miller, Tres.; C. E. Williams, Host.

Thomas Dwyer and wife and Miss Tierny, of Cincinnati, were visiting Joe Ryan and family last Saturday night, which was the occasion of a nice social dauce at their home. The unusual inclemency of the weather prevented many invited attending.

Jesse Allphin, who has been spending some months in the Indian Territory, is at home on a visit and spent last Sunday at Beaver. He speaks entertainingly of the prospects in the "wild and wooly" southwest, to which he expects to return in the early autumn.

The congressional primary election passed off here last Saturday without any enthusiasm on the part of the voters. General apathy seemed to have conducted the whole affair, giving Hon. D. Linu Gooch 40 and to Col. Cliff Nadaud, 16 votes respectively.

Sam Johnson, who resides on the farm of J. O. Griffith, has had some very peculiar experience with some Early Ohio potato vines this spring. After the potatoes had filled the hill they began forming trees and four inches above the surface, on the vines, where potatoes large as guinea eggs are to be seen growing.

FLORENCE, July 1.—Mrs. Jack Berkshire and children, of Petersburg, are guests of Mrs. John Ryle, this week.

Born on the 13th, to John Buckner and wife, a daughter.

Mrs. Lucretia Kenyon has returned home after a pleasant stay in Point Pleasant.

Uriah Budlesile, of Independence, spent a few days last week with his sister, Mrs. Clark.

Mrs. Hester, Miss Grace Hamilton and Albert Riggs, of Erlanger, were entertained by Mrs. Fred Utz, last Sunday.

The funeral of Mrs. Will Cody took place at the Christian church last Sunday morning. Rev. Slater conducted the services.

Mrs. Charles Chipman and children and Miss Lizzie Harrison, of Erlanger, were guests of Mrs. Tom Clutterbuck, last Thursday.

Two fine cows belonging to Rev. Utz disappeared from the pasture, last Saturday night, and it is supposed they were stolen, as the fence was perfectly secure.

UNION, July 1.—Manley Huey, of Carrollton, is here visiting his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

Sara Quisenberry, of Hamilton, O., is the charming little guest of Nannie Huey.

Miss Bessie Harter, of Marietta, O., is the pleasant guest of Mrs. J. W. Conner.

Alma Bristow is recovering rapidly from the severe kick received from a horse, last week.

Dr. Robert Herndon, a graduate from the Louisville Medical College, will locate here in a few weeks.

Miss Nellie Cleek, one of Beaver's fair belles, was the guest of Miss Alva Williams, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Will Scott and daughter, Miss Alice, of Kenton county, spent last Thursday with Mrs. Mike Knaley.

The Ladies' Society of the Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. J. N. Gibson, Saturday the 5th at 3 p. m.

Mrs. P. T. Fall and children, of Alexandria, Indiana, are guests of relatives here. They will remain several weeks.

Rev. W. T. Spears, of Washington, Ky., a former pastor at this place, is here spending a few days with his old friends.

Sara and Rachel Conner are guests of Miss Lizzie Stephens, of Bullittsville. They will visit friends in Delhi, Ohio, before they return.

Mrs. Nelson Quisenberry, of Hamilton, Ohio, and Mrs. Robert Rice, of Florence, spent several days last week with their sister, Mrs. James Huey.

FLICKERTOWN.—The wind and rain Saturday did considerable damage to the oats crop.

The blackberry crop will be unusually short.

An extra good crop of wheat is being harvested.

We have been having plenty of rain the last few days.

Mrs. Alice Cook, of Bellevue, spent last week with John Deck and family near here.

J. B. Tolin, the Petersburg popular correspondent, was cutting a dash with some of our girls, Sunday.

This neighborhood was shocked last Thursday by the announcement of the death of T. J. Adams of Burlington.

On account of the drouth early in the spring the meadows are pretty short, but will be of a fine quality if harvested properly.

About 500 people attended basket meeting at the school house Sunday, and listened to two good sermons by Revs. Atwood and Kirtley.

The election was so quiet in this neighborhood that a good many did not go to the polls Saturday, because they did not know there was an election.

Your correspondent was severely bitten on the hands and arms by a vicious dog last Monday. Although several days have been spent in trying to get a shot at the dog, it is still at large.

A meeting was to be held at John Baldon's Saturday to organize a ball team, but the weather was so unfavorable that very few went. The business was postponed until next Saturday afternoon.

Bro. White probably does not know that the Commissary correspondent is a single man, and a ladies man, or he would not have suggested any thing so rude as a fish fry for the Recorder's outing. We think it would be best to get up something to please Bro. Thomas and the ladies.

RABBIT HASH.—Mrs. R. L. Platt is recovering from an attack of fever.

Cale Ryle lost a horse of bilious fever.

Jerome Wilson has his new barn completed.

Fine ralus have fallen here in the last few days.

The Grange entertainment has been postponed indefinitely.

Hubert Clore, of near Waterloo, was calling on friends here Sunday.

But for the rain a good many would have finished cutting wheat last week.

We are glad to report Miss Lillian Ryle as convalescing. She has typhoid fever.

Rev. Atwood preached to a large congregation at the K. P. hall, Sunday night.

People here were greatly shocked by the news of the death of jailer Thomas J. Adams.

Miss Bettie Dolph entertained a party of young people from Hume, a few days since.

Thieves broke the lock on Will Wingate's corn crib, a few nights since and stole several bushels of corn.

Several from here attended Price's show at Rising Sun, last week, and report it the best of the season.

The river is rising, and heavy rains reported above are making uneasy all who have crops on the low bottoms.

Elbert Ryle, who has a position with the Moore Oil Co. in Cincinnati, was visiting his uncle, John P. Ryle, here, last Wednesday and Thursday.

The primary election passed off very quietly here, and only about half a vote was cast. There was but one vote difference between the candidates.

Miss Katie Craig has a very fine patch of both black and red raspberries. Some parties were up from Landing the first of the week, for berries.

The tow boat Fulton sunk a barge of coal, Monday night among the other wreckage on the lower bar, and Tuesday the J. O. Cole split up a raft of logs she was taken through, the raft striking the sunken barge. This is becoming the most dangerous point on the river.

The work of raising the Relief made business brisk at this point on the river, last week. The boiler and cabin were removed before it was possible to turn the hull of the sunken boat to its proper position. A jolly party of our young people spent Tuesday evening on the steamer Williams that was assisting to raise the wreck.

Don't forget the Keeley picnic at Harvest Home next Saturday afternoon—dancing begins at 12:30 p. m.

GUNPOWDER, June 30.—The rainy weather is rather unfavorable for harvesting, and the wheat crop will be injured to some extent on account of it.

Joseph Freeman had 8 nice shoats killed by lightning last Saturday morning.

On account of the inclement weather there was a small congregation at Beaufil church last Sunday.

Mrs. Lizzie Quick and Mrs. J. H. Tanner were pleasant guests of Mrs. Florence Floyd, last Monday.

Misses Berulce Quick and Glendora Tanner are visiting friends and relatives in Hebron neighborhood.

But little interest was manifested in the election here and, there was a very small vote polled in the Florence precinct.

B. C. Surface is getting along very well. Miss Pearl Utz, of Covington, is his nurse. She is very efficient in her profession.

Ben Snyder, our hustling agent for the Deering Harvesting Machine Company, has sold 23 machines, binders and mowers.

Lonnie Tanner lost a valuable mare last week. She was kicked by another horse, resulting in a broken leg. She had to be killed.

R. O. Beemon and wife, entertained most royally, a number of their friends at dinner last Sunday, and your correbeing one of the number he is prepared to say that the hospitality dispensed cannot be excelled by any one and the dinner, consisting of all the delicacies of the season, was highly complimented by all present, without expressing it in words, as actions speak louder than words. Mrs. Beemon and daughter know how to get up a good dinner and know how to entertain also.

CRESCENT, June, 30.—Frank Respass, of Newport, was visiting his father, Wm. Respass, last Friday.

In Memory of Mrs. Emily Rucker.

Our community was shocked at the sudden death of Mrs. Emily Rucker, June 17th, at 8 p. m., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. N. S. Walton. She attended the convention, Thursday the 12th, but not being well, the heat overcame her, she was sick for several days, but not considered daugerous, either by her family or physician, but the stroke of paralysis of the heart came like a flash and in a few moments she was dead. Her son knowing she was better, was on the L. & N. cars where the dispatch reached him in time.

Like the golden grain, ready for the harvester, Mrs. Rucker was a ripe sheaf for the Master's garner. She lived the time alloted to man, and Boone had always been her home; she was, therefore, known and knew all, and no one had more relatives and truer friends than she had; she was one of a large family of children of the pioneer Baptist preacher, Rev. James Dickens, her mother, a Miss Cloud. Her only two children—Mr. J. J. Rucker and Mrs. N. S. Walton, survive her. She was raised under christian influence, but did not unite with Bullittsburg church until 28 years ago and was baptized by Rev. J. A. Kirtley. Her husband, Mr. Alfred Rucker, has been deceased 23 years, and in those years, she has employed her time in serving her Lord and visiting those she loved. We will all miss her and look in vain for her coming; instead she is making an eternal visit to her happy home as a "Child of the King." We have so few such priceless links to the past and the old, that our hearts are sad when they leave us. Have they not a right to that blest home that Jesus has gone to prepare for them, and was she not ready, only waiting for the summons when it came? her lamp all trimmed, by the afflictions of this life, bright with the promises of blest Savior, burning with His grace and desire to enter into her happy home, how wise? God has ordained all things for these that love and trust Him, that she, after years, bearing the burdens of this day, tempted by sin, severed by death, suffering the afflictions of mortality and ready for her spirit to take its flight to its bright, eternal home, where there is no "Goodbys, no tears, no sin, no trouble and no death. She was one who was only prompted by her conscience, only acting from principle, speaking as she honestly believed, without deception, honoring her Savior by words and acts; loved by her own family, esteemed by her friends, which they proved by their last token of respect. And, after words of scriptural comfort, at her daughter's home, by Revs. Kirtley and Sproles, with her loved ones, her body was taken to lie in the Bullittsburg cemetery until that blest "Resurrection morn."

Servant of God, well done,
Rest from their loved employ;
The victory fought, the battle won,
Enter now, with thy Master's joy

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Review of the Work Accomplished at This Session.

Notably Among the Acts Is the Isthmian Canal Bill, Which Consummates the Efforts of Half a Century.

Washington, June 30.—The work of congress is now practically closed, so that it is possible to sum up the record of what has been accomplished during the past seven months, which constitute the first session of the 57th congress. The session has been marked by exceptional business activity, with many questions of far-reaching general interest engaging attention. With the exception of the Cuban reciprocity bill most of the larger subjects of general legislation have been enacted as laws or will become such before the session closes. Notable among these larger measures is the isthmian canal bill, which consummates the efforts of a half century to link together the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific. This bill probably involves a larger sum of money than that covering any other single undertaking by the government outside of war expenditures. The Philippine civil government bill is another measure of far-reaching importance, extending to our remote Pacific possessions a system of internal government, together with coinage, currency, banking, corporation, timber and homestead laws. Among the other important laws enacted are those repealing the war revenue taxes, extending and making more effective the Chinese exclusion laws; establishing a tariff for goods to and from the Philippines; extending the charter of national banks for 20 years; establishing a permanent census office; restricting the sale of oleomargarine by placing a high tax on imitation butter; providing a consular and diplomatic service for Cuba; establishing an extensive system by which the government will aid in the irrigation of the arid and uncultivated sections of the west.

The repeal of the war revenue taxes reduced taxation $73,250,000, and is said to be the largest single reduction of taxation ever made in this country. By this step the last of the taxes imposed at the beginning of our war with Spain has been wiped out. The Philippine tariff act imposes 75 per cent of the Dingley tariff rates on articles coming from the Philippines to the United States, and also imposes on articles entering the Philippines from the United States the rates of duties established by the Philippine commission.

The irrigation act is of special importance to the development of the west. It carries an irrigation fund in the treasury department into which is to be paid the proceeds of the sales of public lands in the arid states. This fund in turn is to be used in storing water and establishing irrigation systems, the irrigation sections to be open to homesteaders, who are to be charged by a proportionate share of the cost of the improvement.

The Chinese exclusion law continues the exclusion "until otherwise provided by law," and also applies the exclusion "to the island territory under the jurisdiction of the United States."

Aside from these important laws there are a number of other measures of general importance which have passed one or both houses but have not progressed to the final stage. These include the anti-anarchy legislation which grew out of the assassination of President McKinley. Bills restricting anarchy and throwing safeguards about the president have passed both branches of congress, but it has been impossible to reach an agreement in conference, so that the subject goes over until next December.

A bill giving statehood to Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma, known as the omnibus statehood bill, passed the house and the senate has determined to take up the matter early in the next session.

JESSE JAMES' BODY.

The Remains Disinterred and Reburied in the Cemetery at Kearney, Mo.

Kansas City, Mo., June 30.—Jesse James' body, which has been buried for 20 years in the door yard of the old James homestead, near Excelsior Springs, Mo., was disinterred Sunday and buried in the cemetery at Kearney, Mo., beside the body of his father and wife. Mrs. Zerida Samuels, mother of Jesse James; Frank James, his brother, and Jesse and Mary, his son and daughter, attended the ceremony. A funeral service was held, and the pallbearers were comrades of Jesse James when all were members of Quantrell's band. When the skeleton of his father was dug up Jesse James, jr., picked up the skull and pointed out the hole made by the bullet from Bob Ford's pistol.

Engagement in Morong Province.

Manila, June 30.—A detachment of United States marines and a force of native constabulary have had an engagement with a large body of Ladrones in Morong province, Luzon. One marine and seven Ladrones were killed.

Eight Inches of Snow.

Denver, Colo., June 30.—The storm damage in Denver and vicinity is estimated all the way from $10,000 to $50,000. Snow fell to the depth of eight inches in Leadville and many other places in the mountains.

FLOOD AT ALTON, ILL.

Much Damage Was Wrought to Manufacturing Plants.

Alton, Ill., June 30.—One of the most disastrous floods in the history of this city and vicinity resulted Sunday from the heavy rains of Friday and Saturday. At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon it was estimated that 10,000 acres had been covered by the overflow of Wood river, which is three to six miles wide. Most of this land is either occupied by manufacturing interests or planted in crops. The greatest single disaster caused by the flood was the destruction of the plant of the Stoneware Pipe Co. at East Alton. The loss is estimated at $10,000. The water rose rapidly, being 12 inches higher than ever before, and filled an underground duct leading from the mammoth smoke stack to Kiln No. 4. The kiln was filled with stoneware and red-hot. When the water reached the kiln it turned into steam and an explosion followed. The kilns are built close to the American plant, and the explosion set fire to the buildings and other kilns, burning them to the ground within a short time.

In East Alton the residents were compelled to use skiffs to get about the principal streets. The water filled all the cellars in the village, and some of the largest stores were also flooded. A number of outbuildings were washed away, and the station of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad was carried away by the flood and lodged in a field a quarter of a mile distant.

The flood produced the worst railroad tie-up in recent years in the vicinity of the Altons. The Big Four and the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroads were hit the hardest, while the Burlington sustained the smallest amount of damage.

St. Louis, June 30.—This city and vicinity is the center of a rainstorm of unprecedented severity, that has prevailed almost incessantly since Saturday morning. According to the local weather bureau reports 5.45 inches of rain fell here between 2:30 a. m. Saturday and 8 p. m Sunday, and the end is apparently not in sight. At times the storm equaled a cloudburst in severity.

Considerable damage, the total estimated at about $250,000, resulted from the wind that accompanied the rain. Saturday night the wind attained a velocity of about 55 miles an hour, blowing down trees, telephone, telegraph and trolley poles, and interfering with communication of all sorts. From the surrounding country comes reports of destruction to and the washing out of railroad tracks and bridges, causing considerable delay to trains.

Five hundred feet of the north wall of the Varied Industries palace at the World's fair site fell Saturday night as the result of the storm, the water undermining the foundation when the wind was at its height. In places the World's fair grounds are covered with water.

Nearly all inbound trains were delayed Sunday as a result of the storm, arriving at Union station from 40 minutes to 5 or 6 hours late. Several wash-outs were reported, and telegraph wires were reported down, so that the trains could not be located.

STORM AT CHATTANOOGA.

Four People Killed and Much Damage Done to Farm Property.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 30.—Three people were killed in Saturday night's storm and much damage was done to farms in this section. Miss Cora Kelly, a schoolteacher of this city, while driving through a grove of trees in Meigs county, near Dayton, Tenn., was killed by a falling tree. Her companion was uninjured. James Grayson, proprietor of a sawmill, and his sawyer, Jesse May, were killed by falling timbers. Private Joseph Quirk, of the 7th infantry, while trying to prevent a stampede of the horses in the government corral, was trampled under the feet of the animals and probably fatally injured. Sunday afternoon during a thunder storm at Harriman, Tenn., a 15-year-old daughter of Frank Dugger was killed by lightning. Mr. Dugger's residence was burned to the ground and a second daughter was seriously injured.

UXORCIDE AND SUICIDE.

Henry Canfield Killed His Wife and Then Took His Own Life.

Sterling, Ill., June 30.—Henry Canfield, of Morrison, killed his wife, of whom he was jealous, Saturday night and then took his own life. The bodies were not found until Sunday. The discovery was made by a daughter of the dead couple, who entered their bedroom and found her parents lying dead on the floor side by side. The shock produced nervous prostration, and her condition is now critical.

The murderer and suicide was 75 years old and his wife 69. They had been married for 50 years, and were the parents of several children, who are prominent here.

Largest Cotton Mill in the World.

Kansas City, Mo., June 30.—The largest cotton mill in the world is to be built within 20 miles of Kansas City. Ten million dollars is to be invested, $3,100,000 of which has already been subscribed by eastern and western men.

The German Budget.

Berlin, June 30.—The deficit in the German budget for the year 1901 is officially announced to be 40,000,000 marks. The railway revenue in particular has fallen off. It is stated that the prospects for 1902 are not bright.

FIGHTING IN HAYTI.

Engagements Between Men From the Fleet and Revolutionists.

Foreign Consuls, Under Protection of Their Various Flags, Are With Gen. Firmin, and Are About to Embark.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 30.—There was much fighting here Sunday and great excitement prevails. Adm. Killick, commander of the Haytien fleet, disembarked a further detachment of troops and a large quantity of ammunition at 4 o'clock Sunday morning for the better protection of Gen. Firmin, one of the candidates for the presidency of the republic.

Since 6 o'clock Sunday morning there have been several lively engagements between the men from the fleet and the revolutionists from the north. Several machine guns were set in a commanding position by Gen. Firmin's forces, and an attempt was made to drive the men from the north from their positions. Notwithstanding the fire from the machine guns, detachments of the northern revolutionists made several attacks on Gen. Firmin's followers and the latter were eventually dislodged.

In the meantime the vessels under the command of Adm. Killick were bombarding Capt Haytien. This action was taken without previous notification to the foreign consuls here. There has been a lively rain of shots down the streets of Cape Haytien.

At the moment of filing this dispatch the foreign consuls under the protection of the various flags are with Gen. Firmin and are about to embark on the government gunboat Oreto Pirot. They are under a rather heavy fire and in considerable danger. The foreign residents of this port are at present exposed to the lawlessness and savagery of the combatants.

Deep regret is expressed that no warship of a foreign power is in the harbor to afford protection to foreign residents.

Great excitement reigned here Sunday afternoon.

ATHLETICS AND RELIGION.

Representatives of Creeds Is Planned For the Olympian Games.

Chicago, June 30. A gathering of representatives of the many religions and creeds of the world, which will rival the congress of religions of the World's fair, is planned for the Olympian games in 1904, by Bishop Faellows, chairman of the committee on ethical and religious organizations. The religious feature of the games will be organized on the same broad lines as the games themselves have been planned.

Every country that is invited to send its athletic representatives will be urged to have its religions represented as well. Following the idea that all games of endurance and skill had their origin in religious worship in ancient times, this committee will endeavor to show that the connection has not been lost in later years. It is held that the temperance and self denial exacted of candidates for modern sports of all kinds is closely allied to the principles of self-control which are taught as part of every creed in civilized land, and that athletics and religious work together toward forming a race of perfect human beings.

TABLET OF WHITE MARBLE.

A Tribute to the Late President Unveiled in a Washington Church.

Washington, June 30.—A small tablet of white marble, bearing in letters of gold a brief statement of the life and deeds of William McKinley, the tribute of his friend, Judge Thomas H. Anderson, formerly of Ohio, but now a member of the district bench, was unveiled in the Metropolitan M. E. church here Sunday. The unveiling was attended with simple ceremonies in the presence of some of those who had helped the dead president execute the will of the people.

Well-known men added their tributes to the solemn melodies of the choir in making the occasion a memorable one. The American flag that concealed the tablet was drawn aside as the congregation sang with deep feeling "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The tablet occupies a position on the north wall of the main auditorium midway between the two entrances to the church.

Cholera Record in the Philippines.

Manila, June 30.—According to official reports there have been in Manila up to date 1,740 cases of cholera and 1,385 deaths from the disease. The same reports for the provinces show 9,444 cases and 7,038 deaths. Lieut. Col. Louis M. Maus, the insular health commissioner, says that there probably have been 2,000 deaths from cholera in the provinces of which it is impossible to get records.

Ordered to Manila.

Manila, June 30.—Brig. Gen. George W. Davis, in command of the American forces at Zamboaga, Mindanao, has been ordered to Manila to take command of the department of the north. Brig. Gen. Samuel S. Summer will succeed Gen. Davis at Zamboagna.

Paris-Vienna Automobile Race.

Vienna, June 30.—The Paris-Vienna automobile race was won by Marcel Renault. He covered the distance from Paris to Vienna in 15 hours and 22 minutes, an average speed of 82 kilometers (about 51 miles) an hour.

LITERARY CURIOS.

Queer Titles by Which Some of the Current Works of Authors Are Called For.

The literary craze that is sweeping over the country is producing some queer results among those who are anxious to be considered literary," said the bookseller, relates the Atlanta Constitution. "Yesterday a woman was in here looking for 'The Crisis,' and I sent her away satisfied with 'The Crisis.' The same day a gentleman asked if I had 'Dry Am I.' I gave him 'D'ri and I,' and he departed with what he had been looking for.

"But the other day I was fairly stumped when a party came in and asked me if I had 'Wait a Minute.'

"'Never heard of it?' said I.

"'That is funny,' he answered; 'it is being talked about, and I am anxious to read it.'

"I looked all over my book lists and satisfied myself that there was no such book in existence, and he went away disappointed, and with an impression, I fear, that I was not keeping what I take pride in—a first-class book store.

"The day following, however, he came back smiling and asked for 'Tarry, Thou Till I Come.' He had taken the precaution this time to write the title down."

THE MOUNTAIN CHAUTAUQUA.

Mountain Lake Park, Maryland. On Crest of the Allegheny Mountains.

Unquestionably the most superb and sensible summer resort in America. 2800 feet above sea level, $250,000 invested in improvements, and still the place retains its charming rural simplicity. Five hotels and 100 cottages open for boarders at reasonable rates. This resort is the site of the "Mountain Chautauqua" and summer schools, and of the great Chautauqua itself and is annually visited by thousands of persons who are strengthened in mind by the unexcelled facilities afforded for educational work and invigorated in body by the health-giving influence for which this paradise of the mountains is famous. Excursion tickets may be obtained over the B. & O. South-Western from June 1st to September 30th, good returning until October 31st, 1902. Special low rates during July and August for the Chautauqua and other gatherings. Information about attractions, entertainments, summer school courses, etc., will be furnished in reply to inquiries addressed to L. A. Rudisill, Mountain Lake Park, Maryland. For information on the subject of rates and time of trains apply to ticket agents B. & O. S.-W. R. R., or the undersigned. J. B. Scott, District Passenger Agent, Cincinnati, O. O. P. Mrs. D. Arnold, President German Woman's Club, Grand Pacific Hotel, Los Angeles, Cal., Relieved of a Tumor by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered four years ago with a tumor in my womb, and the doctors declared I must go to the hospital and undergo an operation, which I dreaded very much and hesitated to submit.

"My husband consulted an old friend who had studied medicine, although he was not a practising physician, and he said he believed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure me. That same day I took my first dose, and I kept it up faithfully until twelve bottles had been used, and not only did the tumor disappear, but my general health was very much improved and I had not felt so well since I was a young woman.

"As I have suffered no relapse since, and as I took no other medicine, I am sure that your Compound restored my health and I believe saved my life."—MRS. D. ARNOLD.

THE KING STRICKEN.

An Operation For an Intestinal Trouble Performed.

His Majesty Complains But Very Little of Discomfort and It is Thought He is Now in a Fair Way to Finally Recover.

London, June 25.—With dramatic suddenness King Edward has been stricken down upon the eve of his coronation. He lies in a critical state at Buckingham palace. In spite of the intensity of this tragic interruption, the lower element of London are "mafficking" through the flag-decked streets, their portion of society in gowns and jewels has gathered at what is called a gala coronation dinner at one of the fashionable hotels.

Shortly after 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon his majesty moved from his couch to the operating table and the anaesthetic was administered. Sir Frederick Treves made the incision near the patient's groin and carried it upwards, with an outward slant for nearly four inches. The obstruction was removed and a tubing was placed in the affected intestine.

As a result of the operation the coronation ceremony, which was scheduled for Thursday, was indefinitely postponed, and it is questionable whether it will ever occur. If the king improves it will take at least six weeks before he can recover sufficiently to undergo the strain.

London, June 26.—King Edward's condition Wednesday night was even more satisfactory than has been indicated by the last bulletin. He has made a decided improvement and the feeling at Buckingham palace is very hopeful. His majesty is able to take nourishment; he bad scrambled eggs and a little hock and soda Wednesday evening and with his own hands he opened several telegrams.

London, June 27.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham palace at 11 o'clock Thursday night:

"The king has passed a fairly comfortable day and bas maintained his strength. There is a returning desire for food, which has been very carefully given. There has been some return of pain in the wound. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

London, June 27.—Those around King Edward continue to be astonished at his rapid recovery. The slightly annoying symptoms mentioned in the bulletin issued at 11 o'clock Thursday night are quite inconsequential compared to the fact that his majesty again took food Thursday night and was afterward allowed to smoke a cigar.

Queen Alexandra sat with her husband all the evening and only left him after he had fallen into peaceful sleep.

Following the expressed desire of the prince of Wales, the arrangements for illuminating the city which involved the costly erection of set pieces for electric and gas lights will be allowed to remain and will be utilized "immediately, it is authoritatively announced, that the king is out of danger."

By the king's personal desire the royal pardons of offenders in the army will go into effect just as if the coronation bad occurred.

The prince and princess of Wales dined at Buckingham palace Friday night in company with several foreign royal personages. All the diners returned early to their homes.

London, June 30.—Saturday night passed with less incident at Buckingham palace than any other night since the operation was performed on King Edward. There were fewer watchers outside the palace, the public apparently having accepted the official announcement that the king has passed the point of immediate danger. The following bulletin was issued at 9 o'clock Sunday morning:

"The king feels stronger in spite of some discomfort from the wound. Nothing has occurred to disturb the satisfactory progress the king is making."

This bulletin was not issued until 10 o'clock, consequently the few persons who were passing in the neighborhood of the palace were the only ones attracted to the announcement. When the footmen had posted the notice, however, the crowds soon increased, early church goers stopping to read the latest news and passing on with expressions of thankfulness.

A bulletin posted at the palace at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon said the king's progress was in every way satisfactory and that the local discomfort had decreased.

King Edward's physicians announced at 9:45 o'clock that the royal patient's progress was entirely satisfactory. No further bulletins were issued Sunday night.

London, June 30.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Copenhagen says that Queen Alexandra has invited the deputies of Danish hussars to return to London at the end of September for the coronation of the king.

Tennis Championship.

New Orleans, June 27.—The match of the gulf states tennis championship was played between R. G. Hunt, of Alameda, Cal., and A. W. Seguin, of this city. This makes Hunt the permanent owner of Stauffer cup, having won it twice in succession.

American Yacht Won.

Kiel, June 27.—The American yacht Uncle Sam, owned by Francis R. Riggs, of New York, won the first of the international special class races here Thursday, the stars and stripes crossing the line eight minutes ahead.

CENSUS REPORTS.

Combined Textile Industries of the United States.

Washington, June 28.—The census bureau issued a report on the combined textile industry of the United States for 1900. The branches included in the industry follow:

Cotton manufactures, including cotton goods and cotton small wares, wool manufactures, including woolen goods, worsted goods, carpets and rugs, other than rag, felt goods, and wool hats; silk manufactures, hosiery and knit goods, cordage and twine, linen goods, jute goods, and dyeing and finishing textiles.

The census shows a capital of $1,042,997,577 invested in the 4,312 establishments reporting for the industry. This sum represents only the live capital utilized and the value of the lands, buildings, machinery, tools and implements. The value of the products is returned at $931,494,566, to produce which involved an outlay of $23,239,162 for salaries of officials, clerks, etc.; $200,022,447 for wages; $62,122,916 for miscellaneous expenses, and $521,345,200 for materials used, mill supplies, freight and fuel.

The value now represented for hosiery and knit goods can not be divided between cotton and wool, but it it be added to the reported home production the total value of the textiles consumed in the United States in 1900 is $895,587,581, and the percentage imported is only 9.18.

A census report on agriculture in Illinois, issued, shows that the farms of Illinois, June 1, 1900, numbered 261,151, and were valued at $1,765,581,550 of which amount 85 per cent. represents the value of the land and implements rather than buildings. The value of farm implements and machinery was $44,977,310, and live stock $193,758,037. The total value of the farm property was, $2,004,316,879. The total value of the farm products for 1899 was $345,649,611, of which 62 per cent. is in value of crops, including forest products cut or produced on farms. The farm product value for 1899 exceeds that for 1889 by 87 per cent., in part doubtless due to a more detailed enumeration in 1900. The gross farm income for 1899 was $263,752,431, and gross income on investment 13 per cent.

The census bureau issued a report on fruits and vegetables, fish and oysters canning and preserving, showing a capital of $48,497,978 invested in the industry in the 2,195 establishments reporting for the United States. The value of the products is returned at $82,592,196; wages, $12,910,399; for materials used, mill supplies, freight and fuel, $53,365,055.

The census bureau issued a report on the manufacture of pens and pencils in the United States for 1900. It shows that a total of $3,671,741 was invested in this manufacture in the 56 establishments reporting for the United States. The value of the products is returned at $4,222,148; wages, $1,192,405; materials used, mill supplies, freight and fuel, $1,747,852.

MISSOURI COAL MINES.

They Are to Be Absorbed By a Syndicate Controlled By J. P. Morgan.

Kansas City, June 28.—All the big coal mines in Missouri are to be absorbed by a syndicate controlled by J. Pierpont Morgan, according to R. G. Rombauer, of Kirkville, Mo., a coal operator.

"An effort was made about a year ago by Mr. Morgan's Chicago representative to organize a syndicate in Missouri," said Mr. Rombauer. "The negotiations were not successful, but a new plan of absorbing the Missouri mines has recently been proposed and the indications are now favorable for the consolidation of the most important mines in Missouri.

"The Missouri operators have had so much trouble with the labor unions and with railroads, that many good mines can be bought for reasonable prices."

Mr. Rombauer asserted that the plan to consolidate Missouri mines by eastern capitalists was only part of a plan to form a trust to contro. the coal output of the United States.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, June 28.—Friday's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $205,505,307; gold, $101,609,737.

To Use Oil as Fuel.

St. Louis June 28.—River men are considering the use of oil for fuel on the packets running out of St. Louis. The arrival Friday of the towboat McDougall equipped with oil burners, from New Orleans, demonstrated the practicability of the use of oil.

Left For the East.

San Francisco, June 28.—The ten companies of the 9th infantry, which arrived on the transport Kilpatrick, left for the east Friday, Col. R. F. Robein commanding.

Consignment of Boer Prisoners.

Island of St. Helen, June 28.—The first consignment of Boer prisoners, numbering 478 men, sailed from here for South Africa. After taking the oath of allegiance to Great Britain, the prisoners marched to the boat singing the national anthem.

Justice Long Dead.

Detroit, Mich., June 28.—Justice Long, of the Michigan supreme court, died Friday. He was born June 14, 1841, and was badly wounded in a battle during the civil war, making him an invalid for life.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, June 24.—Senate—A motion was entered formally in the senate Monday by Mr. Quay (Pa.) to discharge the committee on territories from further consideration of what is known as the omnibus territorial bill—a measure to admit as states the territories of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona. Mr. Quay spoke briefly but forcibly in support of his motion. No action was taken on the motion. During the latter part of the session the unfinished business, the bill ratifying a convention with the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, was under discussion. It was not disposed of.

Washington, June 25.—Senate—The senate Tuesday passed bills creating a national forest reserve in the Southern Appalachian mountains and ratifying the agreement between the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians of the Indian territory and the United States. The first bill provides for the purchase of 4,000,000 of acres in the Southern Appalachian system at a cost not to exceed $10,000,000. The secretary of agriculture is to designate the lands to be purchased and is to take measures to preserve the hardwood forests which they bear. The following bills were passed: Authorizing the president to receive public lands and buildings in the island of Porto Rico for public uses and granting other public lands and buildings to the government of Porto Rico, the provision giving the resident commissioner from Porto Rico to the United States a seat in the house of representatives being eliminated; authorizing the president to appoint Lieut. Commander William P. Randall a commander on the retired list of the navy.

House—Two notable speeches marked the closing of the general debate on the Philippine civil government bill Tuesday. They were made by Mr. Landis (Ind., rep.), and by Mr. Williams (Miss., dem.). There were big demonstrations after each concluded. The other speakers were Messrs. Ball (Tex.), Jones (Va.), Shaforth (Col.) and Crumpacker (Ind.). The latter closed the general debate for the bill.

Washington, June 26.—Senate—The senate Wednesday disposed for this session of the omnibus statehood question which has been pending for several days. Mr. Beveridge (Ind.), chairman of the committee on territories, announced that a report on the bill before the committee would be made on the third day of the next session. This was satisfactory to Mr. Quay (Pa.), who, after securing an agreement that the committees' report should be the unfinished business on and after the 10th of December.

House—The Philippine civil government bill was thrown open to amendment in the house. Very slow progress was made, only 15 of the 50 pages of the bill being completed. The earlier portion of the day was devoted to consideration of conference reports on the sundry civil army and naval appropriation bills. The house adopted a proposition agreeable to the senate with reference to the disputed items in the army bill and by a vote of 63 to 95 refused to agree to the senate amendments to the naval bill providing for five submarine torpedo boats.

Washington, June 27.—Senate—During the comparatively brief time the senate was in session Thursday the conference report on the isthmian canal bill was agreed to and the general deficiency bill, the last of the big supply measures, was passed. A slight protest was made against the appropriations of $500,000 for the Buffalo exposition and $160,000 for the Charleston (S. C.) exposition, but finally they were included in the bill. The measure also carries $45,000 for the payment of the expenses of the last illness and death of President McKinley, that amount including the pay of the physicians.

House—At 8 o'clock Thursday night at the end of a nine-hour session, and of a debate lasting night and day for a week, the house passed the Philippine civil government bill practically as it came from the committee. It was a party vote—141 to 97—with the exception of Mr. McCall (Mass.), who voted with the democrats. The minority substitute for the establishment of a temporary government in the islands and their permanent independence as soon as a stable government could be established was defeated by 95 to 136. The debate during the day was at times of a lively character. The democrats offered a multitude of amendments, but all were voted down, including one offered by Mr. Patterson (Tenn.) to prohibit slavery or in voluntary servitude in the islands. The greatest interest attached to an amendment offered by Mr. McCall (rep., Mass.) to the end of the bill to declare the policy of the United States to be to develop the capacity of the Filipinos for self-government and pledging the faith of the United States to grant them self-government. He supported the amendment in an eloquent speech. It was lost, 89 to 128.

Washington, June 28.—Senate—Quite unexpectedly a sharp debate arose in the senate Friday on the question of Cuban reciprocity. Mr. Teller (Col.), at whose instance the senate committee on Cuban relations made its investigation of the subject, delivered a spirited speech in opposition to reciprocity with Cuba.

House—The house began consideration of the contested election case of Horton against Butler from the 12th Missouri district. In this case the majority of the committee found that the election was so tainted with fraud as to make it invalid, and said that the seat be declared vacant. The minority found that Mr. Butler, the sitting member, had been legally elected and recommended that he retain his seat. The vote will be taken Saturday.

Prominent Mason Dies.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 28.—Melvin T. Youngs, grand lecturer of the Masonic Grand lodge, died after a prolonged illness, aged 76 years. Mr. Youngs was said to be the Nestor of Masonic grand lodge lecturers in the country.

Broke the Track Record.

Hartford, Ct., June 28.—Bobby Walthour defeated Harry Caldwell by five laps in a 20-mile motor-paced race at the Hartford Velodrome. Carl Rudin, of this city, broke the track record by seven seconds in 1:21 4-5.

FOR THE GLORY OF THE FLAG

A FOURTH OF JULY STORY

BY CHARLES EUGENE BANKS.

"I DON'T think I've slept a wink all night. Those confounded cannon crackers have been exploding since midnight. If I had my way—"

"You would strike Fourth of July from the calendar, eh, papa?"

Col. Johnstone whirled about in his walk up and down the gallery to face his daughter, framed in the doorway. She looked so fresh and beautiful in her light summer gown, with a bouquet of pansies at her throat, that the frown disappeared from the father's face and a proud, glad light shone in his eyes.

"You Should Put On a Red, White and Blue Sash!"

"You are superior to nature, Mabel," he said, holding out his hands in welcome. "I do believe you would look like a rose newwashed in dew, if you did not sleep for a fortnight."

"But I do sleep, papa. When one is happy one doesn't mind noise, even of cannon crackers."

"I should have to be in a state of ecstatic bliss not to mind 'em. The roar of a battlefield is music, compared to this infernal banging."

"You forget, sir, that they are celebrating the independence of this glorious America. I am ashamed for you. Where is your patriotism?" She released her hands, put them behind her, and looked at him with all the severity she could command.

"The Goddess of Liberty offended with one of her subjects! By Jove! the role is becoming. You should put on a red, white and blue sash and sit on the platform at the celebration today."

A wave of color swept over the neck and face of the girl. "I wish I might, papa, or—that is, I wish very much to hear the speaking in the grove to-day. You will take me, won't you?"

Go over there to be jammed about in a crowd of crazy idiots who think they are showing their patriotism by shooting off firecrackers and making spread-eagle speeches? I'd like to please you, daughter, but you will have to wish again."

"I'm sure it would be good fun, papa, and I want to hear the speaking. Capt. Tolliver is going to speak, and—"

"Tolliver! What is he doing here?"

"He is just back from the Philippines on leave of absence, and has consented to make an address."

Col. Johnstone took two or three turns up and down the gallery. Then, coming to his daughter, he said, slowly:

"You know, Mabel, how I feel toward Tolliver. He is the son of my old comrade and I have tried to make a man of him. But he is a dreamer. He has refused to accept a position in the bank, where he might learn to earn a living. He went to this war against my express wishes. He is ungrateful as well as foolish."

"I'm sure you misjudge him, papa. Capt. Tolliver is doing what he thinks right. He believes he ought to make his own way in the world, as you have done."

"He has no right to ask you to suffer for his Quixotic notions. If he had stayed with me I would have made a man of him."

"That's just it, papa; he doesn't want any one to make a man of him. He wants to be one himself. Isn't that better?"

"He's a dreamer, Mabel, and there is no place in this world for dreamers. But, there, never mind. We'll go to the celebration, if your heart is set on it. Come and pour the coffee, and we'll have breakfast. Drat that cracker! I'll see to it next year that none of them are brought inside the road gate. We'll hear what young Tolliver has to say, but that's all. He is milk and water, a dreamer. The fellow might have had a good position in my bank. Now, he must look out for himself."

Quite a crowd had assembled in Oak grove when Mabel and her father drove up. Col. Johnstone was the most prominent man in the community, and was greeted on all hands with homely words of welcome. He tied his horse in the shade of a sugar maple, and he and his daughter moved slowly along toward the platform, before which temporary seats had been arranged for those who wished to listen to the exercises. Groups of people were scattered about on the grass under the trees, surrounded by baskets of food and delicacies, for there was to be an old-fashioned picnic at the conclusion of the speaking, and almost everybody had come prepared to stay the day out. Boys were running about begging fire to set off their crackers, or flourishing toy pistols in a way that threatened the eyesight of half the company. Young men and maidens strolled about the grounds, chanting patriotic songs, or gossiped in knots under the friendly oaks.

Col. Johnstone found a seat for his daughter and himself near the platform. The band struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner," the presiding officer and the speakers filed onto the stage, the seats quickly filled, and the literary programme of the day began. Every reference to the freedom and glory of the United States, and they were many and eloquent, was cheered to the echo. It was a typical company of American citizens, bent on making the most of the one day in the year set apart to commemorate the brave deeds of their forefathers.

At last the chairman introduced Capt. Tolliver, the hero, he said, fresh from the battlefield of the war in which the United states was at present engaged. The young officer arose and began at once to speak. He made no attempt at oratory, but told in a simple, soldiery way of the trials and struggles of his fellow soldiers in the far-away orient. He pictured the benefits which were to come to the country with the new possessions, how America had at last taken its rightful place among the nations of the earth, and how the flag, which waved above them there on this anniversary of the greatest day in the history of the country, was loved and revered by the men who were fighting under its shadow across seas, among strangers, for the honor and glory of America.

Just here a bulky form arose from one of the middle benches, and, pushing its way into the aisle, came forward near the platform. It was Jim Darrow, the bully of the township, and reckoned as one of the most quarrelsome men in the community. When the people saw him approaching the platform, they moved uneasily in their seats, for they divined he meant some insult to the speaker.

"What right have you in the Philippines, Ned Tolliver?" he shouted, hoarsely.

"The right of a soldier fighting for his country," replied the young officer, calmly.

"You lie. You are all a set of thieves and murderers. You joined the army because you couldn't make a living at home, and now you are taking it out of a helpless lot of niggers. You are a lot of thieves and—"

"I Don't Take Back Nothin'."

Capt. Tolliver sprang from the platform and faced the bully. The bronzed face had an ashen color, but his eye flashed and his voice was ringing and firm:

"Take back what you've said, Jim Darrow."

"I don't take back nothin'!"

The slender, compact form of the captain straightened, the clinched hand shot out from the shoulder, there was a dull, crushing sound, and the bully swayed and fell in a heap between the seats. Then the captain sprang lightly back upon the platform and began to speak as though nothing had happened to interrupt him. But the crowd, which had sat breathless for the moment, suddenly awoke to the situation, and, rising as one, began to cheer. A dozen men ran down the aisle, and, grabbing the bully, who was slowly rising to his feet, fairly dragged him off the grounds.

Col. Johnstone was the first to reach the platform. He grasped Tolliver's hand as he hurried to his side, and said: "By the honor of a soldier, you are a man. Hang it, sir, you may dream as much as you want to. You were right. A bank is no place for you. Forgive me and come home with us to dinner. Mabel is here, and wants to see you."

And that night, as the three sat in the moonlit gallery, the colonel took his pipe from his mouth to say: "I didn't think it was in you, Tolliver. Dreamer! Gad, I never saw a prettier knock-down in my life. You are worthy the best and sweetest girl in the country, and you shall have her, whether you come into the bank or not."

His Mother's Darling

"MY NIECE, Mary, was always a well-meaning girl, but she would say the wrong things almost every time," said one old gentleman to another; and she's got a boy that's going to be her very counterpart."

The old man's eyes twinkled, and his plain, good-natured face was puckered with enjoyment, as he drew from his pocketbook a small sheet of note paper.

"I sent Hal a toy-monkey last year, that plays all kinds of pranks when it's wound up," he chuckled. "Sent it to him for his birthday, which happens on the Fourth of July. Now, listen to this letter of thanks I got from him. He's just eight years old:

"He's Just Eight Years Old."

"'Dear Uncle Ned: I am delited with the munkey, thank you. He makes me think of you offen. And whenever mamma winds him up and he begins to jump, mamma and I feel as if we were back at your house where all those toys are, and mamma will look at the munkey and say: "That's your Uncle Ned all over."

"'Good-by, from

"'your greatfull HAL.'"

Something Equally Good.

"So you're not going to let your boy have any fireworks on the Fourth?"

"No."

"Don't you think that's rather hard for the youngster?"

"Oh, no. I've promised to take him to the country and let him fall out of one of his grandpa's cherry trees."—Chicago Times-Herald.

"Perfectly needless, my dear. She'll soon hear a report to that effect."

BOONE CO., RECORDER
Wednesday, - - July 2, 1902.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

For State Senator.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce J. W. CAMMACK, of Owenton, as a candidate for State Senator in the 23rd Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Boone, Owen and Gallatin, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For Circuit Judge.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Judge JOHN M. LASSING as a candidate for reelection to the office of Circuit Court Judge of the 16th Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Primary election July 29, 1902.

For Commonwealth's Attorney.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Robt. Wood, of Gallatin county, a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney in this Judicial District composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Grant, Gallatin and Owen, subject to the Democratic primary election.

For Circuit Clerk.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL, of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

In the recent Democratic primary election in Owen county, to nominate a candidate for circuit court clerk, the four candidates received 2,414 votes, Steiger, the successful candidate winning out by only 20 plurality.

MR. BRYAN says Mr. Cleveland's kind of Democratic harmony is n. g., and Mr. Cleveland accuses Mr. Bryan of being a disturbing element among Democrats, while along comes Mr. Watterson, urging serious objections to the politics of each of the gentlemen. It is apparent that the lesser lights in the Democratic party are the ones to be looked to for bringing about a party harmony by which something can be accomplished.

THE Pendletonian says: "The scarcity of tobacco plants has curtailed the tobacco output in Pendleton very materially. The crop has, however, started off nicely, and with favorable conditions should yield abundantly for the acreage." This same condition appears to prevail pretty generally in the tobacco producing counties in Kentucky, but the reduction in the crop will not be sufficient to increase the price very materially, as the tobacco trust has the business so completely in its control that it can make prices to suit itself under almost any circumstances.

We used to believe in what we read when young about the value of plowing deep to bring up the fertility that had leached down through the surface soil into the subsoil. Our opinion was changed when we tested the deep plowing upon a field with a clay subsoil that we planted with corn. Later experiments have more thoroughly convinced us that deep plowing, by which we mean a depth of more than four to six inches, is seldom beneficial in this climate, whatever it may be in other sections of the country. The crops like corn, that like to spread their roots near the surface where the soil is warmed by the sun, certainly do not need to have the earth stirred very deeply for them, while those that send their roots down into the subsoil, as onions, clover, beets, etc., can do so almost through the hardest subsoil or anything excepting a gravel in which there is no moisture.—American Cultivator,

Responding to a telegram from an Eastern paper, giving the substance of ex-President Cleveland's address at the Tilden Club celebration in New York, upon the reorganization of the Democratic party, and asking for an expression of opinion, Gov. Beckham wired the following:

"I am in receipt of your telegram asking for an expression of opinion upon Mr. Cleveland's speech concerning the so-called reorganization of the Democratic party. I do not see that the party is in need of a reorganization, and if it is, then I am clearly of the opinion that such reorganization as might be necessary must be done by those who have faithfully stood by the party's principles and have never wavered in their support of the party's nominees. The Democratic party as now constituted is amply able to take care of itself, and, without veering from the fundamental principles of its founders, is eminently able to meet in a wise and conservative way any new issues that may confront the American people. The party is far from being insolvent. Defeat has not disheartened us, for, to be in the minority is no evidence of being in the wrong. I rejoice to see those who have left us in the past showing a disposition to return to the Democratic fold. They shall meet with a cordial reception, but the ark of the covenant of Democratic principles must be preserved in the hands of those true to the faith, and not surrendered to those who have gone off at critical times to worship false gods."

No state bank organized and doing business prior to 1893 will this year pay any revenue in the way of taxation into the State Treasury, thus reducing the general revenue fund about $80,000. Next year these same institutions will pay only about one-fourth of the amount of taxes assessed against them, thus reducing the State revenue for 1903 about $60,000.

This reduction of State revenue and saving for the banking institutions, was provided for by the General Assembly at its recent session in the passage of House Bill 138, which is Chapter 1 of the published acts. It is entitled "An act to put the State banks and trust companies on the same footing with national banks of this State in reference to the overpayment of taxes," and is intended to refund to the banks the money they paid into the treasury in excess of the regular tax rate of 42½ cents for the years 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896.

The banks paid this excess under the Hewitt law of 1886, in accordance with which they paid the State 75 cents in lieu of all other taxes, and which act the Supreme Court decided was superceded by the revenue act of 1892.

Auditor Coulter estimates that the State banks have paid into the treasury an excess of about $140,000, for which they were entitled to credit on future tax claims against them.

This act of the General Assembly became effective on June 18th and the taxes for the year are due and payable on July 1st next. The assessment of bank taxes is, under Section 4, 1902 of the Statutes, made on reports of December 31st preceding the assessment, which is made in March of each year. The taxes are due to be paid on July 1st following and is thus caught by the refunding act.

WHAT HORSES ARE BEST TO BREED.

According to a bulletin of the Illinois Experiment Station the demand for horses is excellent today, but they must be bred for particular market purposes. The different market classes are determined by the size, color, style and conformation to generally accepted standards. The first and highest class is the road, carriage and coach horse, which must be of good breeding from 15 to 16 hands high, and a weight of 1,000 to 1,150 pounds. If well matched such carriage horses are worth a quarter more than when offered singly. The American cob in this class is one of the most profitable, and the animal must be handsome and stylish. Light gray and mottled carriage horses are the hardest to sell of this whole class. The cab horse is put in the second class by the writer of the bulletin, and the animal must be very useful, chunky and hardy, but this class is not bred by itself, but consists of the cullings from the first class. The bus horse is not a very profitable horse to breed, but if one can combine it with other breeds there is some money in it. The draft horse is one of the best breeds for raising, and the demand is good. But prices vary so much that a good deal depends upon the kind of draft horse the breeder produces. The cheapest grade sells for $125, and others up to $300, with some extra heavy fine ones as high as $350. When heavy draft horses are matched in teams they bring considerable more, and such teams have sold for $800 a pair. A good breeder with fine stock to begin with can make more money in raising the draft and carriage or road horses than any others. Between these two he will then often have culls which can be disposed of as representatives of the other classes. But in all horse breeding it is necessary that breeding for certain market classes should be held well in view. The markets are becoming more exacting every year, and horses that cannot be classified in one or the other class are drugs in the sales.

FARM NOTES.

Bordeaux mixture controls downy mildew on lima beans.

The Iron Mountain is a rich peach and almost melts in the mouth.

A haphazard, go-easy way in farming is not going to bring a big profit this year.

Make the boy's interested in the farm so profitable that he will be anxious to make farming his life work.

Chicory culture was started by Long Island farmers several years ago, but it did not pay and has been abandoned.

The farmer as well as the business man who is going to forge to the front these times is the one who thinks and plans.

Broom corn should have frequent cultivation till the plants are two feet high. Then the cultivation may be stopped unless needed to retain moisture.

It has been demonstrated that in the sections where thorough drainage is practiced larger crops are produced, and at less cost than where drainage is neglected.

The current worm is already to begin work on the first approach of warm weather. Powdered hellebore is the remedy, which may be used with water or applied in the dry condition, while the leaves are damp from rain or dew.

String beans can be obtained during the entire summer by planting once a month for successive supplies. The seed germinates quickly in warm weather, and the plants grow rapidly. They can also be extensively grown for picking.

When the old strawberry beds are out of use plow them under for late cabbage or turnips. If preferred the land may remain for a garden spot next spring, but if such is preferred the bed must be seeded. Late in the fall cover the beds with manure and plow the spot next spring.

An Indiana newspaper tells of an ingenius plan in use by farmers on a rural mail route. At cross-roads points where there are usually a number of boxes the farmers, in order to make it convenient for themselves as well as the carrier, have rigged up a contrivance which is decidedly novel. Here sixteen farmers are served and all have their boxes mounted on a wagon wheel which has been set on top of a post. The sixteen boxes lay around the edge of the wheels, and when the carrier comes he simply has to give the wheel a turn to make the boxes that he wants to come before him so that all can be filled without getting out of the wagon. It is a miniature postoffice out of doors.

A exchange tells of a school boy who was compelled by his teacher to write an essay on the mouth and this is what he wrote: "The mouth is the front door of the face; it is the aperture of the cold storage of our anatomy. The mouth is the crimson aisle to the liver; it is the fountain of patriotism and the tool chest for pie. Without the mouth the politician would be a wanderer on the face of the earth and go down to a dishonored grave. It is the grocer's friend the orator's pride, the dentist's hope. It is temptation's lunch counter when attached to a maiden and tobacco's friend when attached to a man. If puts some men on the rostrum and others in jail. It is the home of that unruly member, the tongue. Without it married life would be a summer dream and the dude would lose half his attractions."

When the city of Galveston, Tex., shall have finished its projected three miles of sea wall it will have a barrier of cement and steel along the ocean front five feet thick at the top and 16 feet at the bottom, a safeguard of stone which will rise some 17 feet above the highest water of the flood of 1900. The wall will rest upon piles and be protected from undermining by shell filling and riprap, says the Mobile Register. The foundations will be laid a little back from the usual high-water line and about three feet above mean low tide. A second and quite as important a feature of the project is the filling in of the land back of the wall for a stretch of some 200 feet. Thirty-five feet of this made level nearest the wall will be laid with brick so as to provide a driveway of 30 feet and a walkway, if the top of the wall be included, of nine feet in width. Next to the driveway on the bay side of the filling will be a strip of 60 feet of embankment planted with Bermuda grass. There are large possibilities of artistic development along the wall as thus planned and in their present temper the citizens of Galveston seem to be intent upon realizing these possibilities to the full.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

The small vote polled in this county at the primary election, last Saturday, shows how little interest was taken in the race for the congressional nomination. Grant was the only county in the district where anything like a full vote was cast, the primary election for nominating a candidate for circuit clerk in that county bringing out a large vote.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similiar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

Early Saturday morning county Judge Cason entered an order in the county court appointing Samuel Adams, son of the late Thos. J. Adams, jailer of Boone county. Young Adams is in Walla Walla, Washington, and was notified by wire of the appointment. There were nine applicants for the office. Judge Cason's action in the matter will certainly receive the endorsement of the whole people of the county. Young Adams will serve until next November, when a jailer will be elected to fill the vacancy. In making this appointment Judge Cason held no secret conferences with politicians for the purpose of ascertaining how the better to advance his own political interest by taking the advantage of the death of a friend and neighbor. He made the appointment as he believes justice and humanity demanded.

T. J. ADAMS

Suddenly Called to His Final Reward.

The sudden death last Wednesday night of Thomas J. Adams, jailer of this county, was a great shock to this community. He was attending to his official and other duties as usual all day Wednesday, and came up in town about dark and remained until about 8 o'clock, apparently in perfect health and in his usual good spirits. Upon going home he retired for the night and was soon sleeping. It was about nine o'clock he woke and remarked to his wife, putting his hand on his left breast, "that same pain has returned," and before medical aid could be secured or the neighbors could be notified, he was a corpse.

Mr. Adams was in his 60th year, being born in 1832, and was a consistent member of the Baptist church the last twenty-four years of his life, and as a public official last month would have concluded the first six months of his second term as jailer of this county.

Thomas Adams, and Miss Alice Decoursey, daughter of Samuel Decoursey, of Pendleton, county, were married October 6, 1864. To them were born twelve children, six of whom are living, all good, industrious citizens.

In 1898 Mr. Adams made his first appearance in politics, asking the Democrats to nominate him for jailer. He made a very quiet campaign against three hustling opponents, using neither money nor other things to influence any man's vote, and when the polls closed he surprised his opponents and their friends by having received more votes than the other three candidates combined. Of course he was elected at the regular election. In 1901 he was nominated by a very flattering vote, and again elected, his second term beginning January 1, this year.

Thomas Adams was a quiet, unassuming citizen, a kind and indulgent husband and father, and a God loving man. He had no enemies, and circumstances were never such that he was not ready and willing to accommodate his fellow man to the utmost of his ability. He was as honest as the days are long, and his life throughout was one worthy emulation. This life was not one of luxury to him but he bore his trials with a christian fortitude seldom seen. He leaves a wife, four sons and two daughters who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their sad bereavement. The funeral was preached at the Baptist church at 10 a. m., last Friday by Rev. Samuel Adams, of Walton, after which the remains were consigned to their last resting place in the cemetery north of town. The pall bearers were County Judge Cason, County Clerk Adams, County Attorney Castleman, Sheriff Allphin, Superintendent Snyder, and Surveyor Vest.

Stuntebeck-Scott Nuptials.

One of the most fashionable events of the season was the marriage of Bartholomew Stuntebeck and Margaret Cecelia Scott at St. Paul's Church, Florence, at 9:30, June the eleventh. The ceremony was performed in a very efficient and impressive manner by Father Cobe during Nuptial High Mass. The church, brilliantly illuminated for the occasion, was decorated with the most beautiful plants and cut flowers. The canvas was spread from the door to the altar just before the bridal party entered to the sweet strains of "Loghengbrin Wedding march," rendered by the accomplished violinist, Miss Stuntebeck, accompanied by the organ.

The bride, a perfect picture to look upon, wore a beautiful white silk muslin over taffata, decolette, elbow sleeves with lace and ribbons, surmounted by veil, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and trailing fern. The groom, a young man of fine appearance and marked intelligence, was attired in the conventional suit of black. The maids, Miss Alice Scott, sister of the bride, and Miss Katie Grogan, were dressed in organdy val. lace and ribbon, and carried shower bouquets of pink roses. Messrs. Ed Stuntebeck and Charles Scott were the groomsmen. The ushers were Messrs. Willie Scott and Joe Stuntebeck, another brother of the groom.

An elegant reception was held from 12:30 to 8 o'clock at the beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Scott, parents of the bride, near Crescent, who were most gracious and pleasing in dispensing hospitality. The home was artistically decorated with a profusion of smilax and roses. The dining room presented a brilliant appearance and a most sumptuous repast was served. The table was tastefully arranged, the bride's cake almost covering the entire center of the table. At either end was a massive pyramid of fruits and flowers.

Immediately after the bridal party were served, the groom's father presented the bride with $100 in gold. Her grandfather Collins also remembered her with a sum of money. Mrs. W. H. Scott's gift to her daughter was a pearl rosary. There were other handsome presents too numerous to mention, which embraced articles of value in silver, chinaware, cut glass, linen and brica-brac.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuntebeck left Cincinnati on an extended tour to Niagara Falls, New York, Buffalo and Canada, and will be at home after July the first, at Madison Avenue Covington.

Long may they live to enjoy some of life's purest pleasure with just enough clouds to make a clear sun set.

O. M. Wood, of Carrollton, was here Wednesday working in the interest of the proposed traction railroad, and securing the balance of the right of way. He has the right of way over nearly the entire route and condemnation proceedings will be instituted for the balance in a short time. Mr. Wood states that where the right of way is given only forty feet is asked, but where land is condemned for the purpose sixty-feet will be taken. There is no question about the road being built. Mr. Wood believes it and is giving his time and services toward the preliminary work, which he could not afford to do if it was merely a matter of speculation as to construction of the road. All that is delaying the matter of building is the getting of the right of way, as the survey has all been made and the capitalists are ready with their money to begin the construction of the road.—Warsaw Independent.

That was a fine rain that fell Saturday morning, and it was needed.

Living on the farm of Mrs. R. C. Nunneiley, in Fayette county, is a woman who has a husband and six children. Last fall, when the youngest child was one-year old, the mother cooked three meals per day for the family, milked the cow and walked to and from the field—one mile—and cut fourteen shocks of corn. Later, she broke from 80 to 100 pounds of hemp per day. In early Spring she and a small boy cut 180 acres of corn stalks. She wired the slats and made wire picket fence around the garden. She makes a first-class hand at setting and stripping tobacco, and has contracted with a neighbor to thin his corn for 20 cents per acre. She is an expert washer and ironer and is hard to excel in house-cleaning and putting down carpets. She takes in sewing and dresses her own children for Sunday school. She is intelligent, quick in action, always cheerful, and while resting a little can go to the piano and play "Nearer My God, To Thee," and other selections in a very creditable way.

Mr. Combs has Governor Isaac Shelby's old place on the Lexington and Richmond pike, in Fayette county. The farm consists of 840 acres, and from 300 to 500 acres of tobacco are cultivated each year. In order not to exhaust the strength of the soil, the tobacco is rotated between wheat, clover and blue grass the third season. The blue grass restores the sod and furnishes fine grazing. In addition to this system of rotating the crops a large amount of chemical fertilizer is used. It is necessary to constantly enrich the land for the season that tobacco exhausts the soil at the ratio of 14 tons of wheat to 1 of tobacco. Inasmuch as it gives back strength to the soil in proportion as it detracts from it, the stems and stalks are very valuable as fertilizers. Mr. Combs paid the manufacturers $5,000 last year for the stems from his own crop.

ROBERT SALLETTE
A Ballad of the Revolution.

THE Liberty Boys are up and out;
They're here with a song and there with a shout;
They're here in a flash and there in a flame,
And they fleer and jeer at King George's name.

The Tories may bluster and flutter and fret,
But the Liberty Boys will beat them yet;
And the chief of the Boys is Robert Sallette.

Robert Sallette—his limbs are long,
And his good right arm is uncommonly strong.
He rides like a centaur, he swims like a fish;
And the Liberty Boys will rise at his wish;
And the Tories have never a chance to forget
The name and the fame of Robert Sallette.

There's a gentleman Tory, rich and old;
He has bought up acres and hoarded up gold.
He sits in his house never making a noise,
For fear of a visit from the Liberty Boys.
And he says aloud: "A price I will set
On the head of this traitor, Robert Sallette.

"Oh, Governor Wright is mild and kind,
And justice and mercy are much to his mind;
But a harsher voice than his should be heard
To uphold the cause of King George the Third.
And to silence this horrible noise that comes
From Boston way of fifes and drums.
One hundred guineas the man shall get
Who will bring me the head of Robert Sallette!"

The Tory sits in his old oak chair,
With arms and brazonry carven fair;
He sits and quakes, and his very heart aches,
And not even the ghost of a noise he makes;
For news came last night that the Boys would ride;
And he hears the tramp of a horse outside,
A jingling stirrup, a ringing tread;
And the soul within him sits cold with dread.

There falls on the door a thunderous knock,
And it jars his ear like a cannon's shock.
And into the room there strides, before
The trembling darky can close the door,
A stalwart man with a ponderous sack,
A sword at his side and a gun at his back.
He drops the sack with a heavy thump,
And it strikes the floor like a leaden lump,
And he says, with a look so stern and bright
It seems to pierce like a sword of light:
"A hundred guineas I come to get,
For I bring you the head of Robert Sallette!"

The Tory starts, and his heart grows sick,
And his eyes grow dim, and his breath comes quick,
As he stares at the thing that bulges round
At the end of the sack that lies on the ground.
"Show me the head, ere you speak so bold!"
"Nay!" quoth the stranger. "First, the gold!
I have ridden too fast and ridden too far,
And have seen too much of your Liberty War,
To run a risk at the very end.
So out with your money, my loyal friend,
And then, I promise you, you shall get
A sight of the head of Robert Sallette!"

The gold rings out on the table there;
It lies in a heap both broad and fair,
A glittering pyramid rich and rare,
Outshining Egypt's, beyond compare.
The stranger laughs at the splendid sight,
But again his look is stern and bright.
"A bargain's a bargain—friend," he said.
"You pay right well for a homely head!
For"—he swung his hat from his forehead clear—
"The head of Robert Sallette is—here!"

There's a man who rides, and sings as he rides
And shakes in his saddle, and claps his sides,
For glee at hearing the guineas chink
In his pockets so merrily—tink! tink! tink!
He laughs "Ha! ha!" and he laughs "Ho! ho!"
And he's off to the forest like shaft from bow.
"My fine old friend, 't will be some time yet
Ere I part with the head of Robert Sallette!"

There's a Tory gentleman, rich and old,
Who sits and quakes with an icy cold.
His teeth they chatter with fear and rage,
And he says some things unbecoming his age,
As he glares at the ground, and at something round
That rolls from a sack with a thumping sound.
He grumbles and groans, and he savagely tears
In a painful way at his grizzled hairs;
And he cries: "Oh the murderous, traitorous bumpkin!
Instead of his head, he's left me a pumpkin!"

LOUISA MAY'S SOLO at the CELEBRATION.

By J. L. Harbour.

"LOUISY MAY is to sing a solo at the celebration," Mrs. Hatfield was explaining to a visitor. "And I don't know but she'll be too fine to speak to her own folks when she's rigged out in all her new things. Still, I don't begrudge her the things. She's worked real faithful pickin' strawberries and doing all sorts of chores to pay for what she's to have. She's a good girl, Louisy is."

"But has she ever sung in public before?"

"She's never sung a solo all by herself except at one or two little Sunday-school concerts. I don't know how it will be when she finds herself on the platform facing the big Fourth of July crowd."

"Oh, she'll get through it all right. I have heard that she sings beautifully."

"Well, I don't know but she does sing about as well as you could expect a girl of only 15 to sing. It's kind of curious; I can't sing no more than a blue jay, and when her pa tries it the hens scatter in terror. She gets it from her Grandfather Hatfield over in Ware. He'll be 75 come the 10th of next month, and he'll sit down to a little organ he's got and sing away by the hour. He's coming clear over from Ware to hear Louisy May sing. He's goin' to leave her his organ in his will."

"A piano would be better for her."

"Yes, Louisy May's wild to have a piano, but we can never get her one with five younger children to rear and school. Her Grandpa Hatfield mebbe could get one; but I don't know that he's able to, although he always has been close-mouthed about his money affairs. You'll be at the celebration?"

"Oh, yes; we are all going. And I expect to hear Louisy May beat 'em all."

There the conversation ended, because a red-haired girl came hurriedly into the sitting-room. She blushed furiously as she heard her name.

On the morning of the Fourth of July Louisa May was very happy as she stood before the small mirror in her bedroom and gave the last touches to her toilet. Her challis had made up very prettily, and her mother had delighted her by an unexpected gift of a pretty pink ribbon sash. She had never before had such a beautiful hat, and there was but one thing to detract from her satisfaction with her appearance.

"If only I didn't have such a mop of red hair!" she said to the mirror. "If it was mause-colored, like Amanda Dane's, or a regular brindle, like Lucy Trent's, I shouldn't care. But red! It isn't as red as it used to be, though, and I shall wear my hat while I sing—that will hide it a good deal."

There had been many holidays in Louisa May's life, and never one so full of promise of pleasure as this. She had been to the village the day before to rehearse her song with Miss Hope, who was to play the accompaniment on the organ, and Miss Hope had said that Louisa sang beautifully.

HER GRANDFATHER HELD THE FLAG.

She had a very clear and strong voice, and she said to her mother as they drove toward the grove: "I don't feel a bit nervous or afraid now."

She did, however, feel a little nervous when her turn to sing came, and she found herself on the platform before the audience that filled every part of the grove. The chairman of the day stepped forward and said:

"We will now listen to a solo, 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' by Miss Louisa May Hatfield."

At this some of the grand army men set up a shout, and Louisa May walked to the front of the platform with the large silk flag she was to hold while she sang.

The applause died away, and the organist had just begun to play the prelude, when a boy shouted shrilly:

"Red head! Red head! Better look out or the fireworks will catch!"

Louisa May's pink cheeks grew pallid. She opened her lips, but no sound came from them. She was trembling from head to foot. The flag fell from her hand down over the edge of the platform. Then in an agony of embarrassment she put both hands over her face and began to cry.

The boy who had called out "Red head" suddenly felt a hand grip the back of his collar, and he was jerked from his seat by an irate little old man.

"I'll let ye know how ye call my gran'daughter 'red head,' ye little sassbox! You take that!" and he smartly boxed the howling boy's ears. Then he hurried toward the platform and up the steps. A queer-looking little old man he was, with long white hair and beard. He had on a stiffly starched linen "duster" and bright blue jean trousers. Hurrying to Louisa May's side, he put his arm around her waist and said, soothingly:

"There, there, Louisy May! Don't you mind that impudent little sassbox! You sing your song now. Come, grandpa will start ye off on it!"

The old man picked up the flag which she had let fall to the platform, and holding its staff in one hand while his other arm was round Louisa May's waist, he began to sing in a thin, wavering, but not unmusical voice:

"Oh say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming—
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming!"

He stopped at the end of these lines and said gently to Louisa May:

"Come, now, honey, you sing, too."

She had taken her hands from her face, and as she looked into the sympathetic faces of the people before her, she felt her courage rise. When the old man began to sing the next lines Louisa May's voice, clear and steady and sweet, rose high above his own:

"And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there.
Oh! say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?"

Something of the lofty spirit of the grand old song suddenly filled Louisa May's heart, and made her forget her wounded feelings. Her grandfather held the flag so that its folds were pulling about her, and her eyes were shining and her face was smiling as she began the second stanza in a voice without the least quaver. The old man did not sing now. He stood beside her with one arm still around her, and nodded time with his snowy head and gently waved the flag above the singer.

When Louisa May's voice died away after the last lines, the applause was deafening. While it was still at its height, her grandfather stepped to the edge of the platform, holding the flag aloft. When he could be heard he called out shrilly:

"Everybody join me in singing the last two lines! Come, now, everybody sing!"

"And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

The woods and the hills rang with the melody; they rang again with the shouts of the people when the lines had been sung not only once, but three times.

The governor himself congratulated Louisa May, and handing her the beautiful little silk flag he had been holding in his hand he said:

"Let me give you this to remember me by."

Louisa May thought that she could never be any happier than she was during the rest of that day, but she felt much the same way three days later when, on coming home from the strawberry patch, she found Grandpa Hatfield waiting for her in the hall. He flung open the parlor door behind him as he kissed her, and Louisa saw in a corner of the room a beautiful shining new piano.

"Why, grandpa!" she exclaimed, and flung her arms around his neck, half-laughing and half-crying. His dim eyes had a strange light in them, and his voice was not very steady as he said:

"I tell ye, Louisy, I don't know when I have heard anything that took such hold of me as the way you sung that grand old 'Star-Spangled Banner.' I want it to be the first song you sing on your new piano. I'll play it and we'll sing it together."

A few moments later a passer-by reined up his horse in front of the house to listen to the fresh young voice and the old and quavering one singing together:

"And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Text: Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's.—Matt. 22:21.

The Text Setting.—The words of our text were spoken by Jesus in answer to a catch question put to Him by the Pharisees who sought to "entangle Him in His talk." They ask whether it is lawful to give tribute unto Caesar or not, believing that loyalty to His own nation, of which He claimed to be the long-promised Messiah and King, would compel Him to take a stand against the Roman power at this time were the rulers and oppressors of the Jewish nation. And they reasoned that if such should be His reply it would be a case for the Roman governor to deal with and their base purpose of causing His downfall would be accomplished. On the other hand, if He counseled the paying of the tribute money surely He no longer could claim to be the Deliverer and King of His nation. In the blindness of their own unbelieving hearts they thought they had the Lord "twixt the devil and the deep sea," and whichever way He turned they had Him in their power. But, as at Nazareth when His angry townspeople sought to dash Him over the brow of the hill, and the unseen hand of God had stayed their murderous purpose and He walked out of their midst unharmed, so now by the simple yet infinite wisdom of God He faces the issue squarely and puts His enemies to rout. "Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." How simple, yet how profound. In their narrow partisanship they had not reasoned that Caesar had any claim whatever upon them. It had never occurred to them before that God seeks harmony in His universe, and that even Caesar had rights which God was bound to respect. And these words of Jesus give us the one plank platform broad enough and long enough for the true patriot to stand upon and at the same time give full scope to his powers and his devotion to his country and his God.

The True Patriot's Platform.—And if here in these words of Jesus we have the fundamental principles upon which can be safely and righteously based the attitude and conduct of the loyal citizen, as well as the devout Christian, let us examine the words more closely to discover their full import and meaning, and then seek to find the way in which they can be applied in a practical manner to human life. First of all, God has but one standard, and man's ability to measure up to that standard is proportionate to the degree by which that man is actuated and directed by the Spirit of God. Failure to attain the one standard fixed by God in His infinite righteousness and equity is responsible for all the discord and misery in the world to-day, for all the clashing of nation with nation, and individual with individual, and individual with the nation. If the complex relations of human life were perfectly adjusted according to the will and purpose of God, if the things belonging to Caesar were exactly rendered unto Caesar, and the things belonging to God were exactly rendered unto God, we should find that friction and discord would cease and the harmony of the millennial age would break like sweet music upon the ear of this distracted old world.

There are two divisions to our text; two halves of one perfect whole: Caesar's things and God's things. The things of Caesar cannot belong to God, neither can the things of God belong to Caesar. The spirit and thought of the text, however, is in no least degree in conflict with the declaration of Scripture that all things were created by God and that all things belong to Him. In this sense Caesar's things and the things which are not Caesar's all belong to God and exist because of God. But just as you, my dear reader, in the broad, universal sense belong to God, and your houses and your lands, your bank account and your weekly salary belong to God, still as regards your relations to others and your responsibilities and obligations in the world, the things which you possess belong to you. God through you would administer your affairs and your possessions in such a way as to observe to a nicety the admonition of the text of rendering to the world its due and to God that which in a special sense belongs to Him. So when Christ, who created all things and to whom all things belong, spoke these words He gave beautiful recognition to God's plans in making man a responsible agent in the administration of the affairs of the world. Between Caesar's things and God's things there is no conflict or confusion except as man has failed to understand God's classification and has rendered unto Caesar the things which belong to God and unto God the things which belong to Caesar.

The Image and Superscription.—And how are we always to know which things are Caesar's and which are God's? By the image and superscription. Was it lawful for the Jews to pay tribute unto Caesar? asked the Pharisees. Let Him see the tribute money. Behold, the image and superscription of Caesar. Therefore, render unto Caesar the things which belong to Caesar and unto God the things which belong to God. How simple the answer, yet its wisdom and justice are beyond all possibility of cavil or dispute. Look for the image and superscription and then pay tribute to whom tribute is due. In determining our obligations to the world and to God it is not always as easy to distinguish the image and superscription as it was on the penny which was held out to our Lord, but the distinguishing mark is there somewhere, and should your eyes not be sharp to see it, if you will but show it to the Lord He will help you, for "if any of you lack wisdom let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." Failure to distinguish the image and superscription may rob Caesar or may rob God, which in either case results in confusion, and discord, and distress, and ruin. Individual lives have been rendered useless if not positively harmful and nations have gone to decay and ruin through failure to render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's and unto God the things which are God's. The true patriot is the one who, avoiding partisanship of every kind and blind national pride, seeks to give Caesar his due while at the same time he renders to God that which it is His right to expect and demand. It is so easy to rob God through a misdirected and intense patriotism. It is possible to rob Caesar through intense religious fervor and misdirected service to God. The perfect adjustment of the affairs of nations and individuals demands that neither Caesar nor God shall be robbed, and the true patriot recognizing this underlying principle of all government and the true religion seeks with Divine guidance and wisdom to realize it in his relations to his country and his God.

Robbing Caesar.—There are many ways in which Caesar may be robbed of his just tribute. Almost innumerable are the causes and forces which lower and vitiate the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship. The nation, the community, the home are being robbed of their just tribute by selfish love of ease, by greed for gold, by mad rush after pleasure. Space will not permit us to enumerate the long list which will readily suggest itself to one upon a moment's thought. We wish to speak of just one way in which Caesar may be robbed, and which perhaps would not readily occur to your mind. Caesar is being robbed in some cases to-day, if not in many, by a mistaken devotion to God and zeal in His service. When we get too much religion for the world, God will translate us as He did Enoch. Jesus prayed not that the Father would take His followers out of the world, but that He would keep them from the evil. As a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, who came into the world to save it, you have a responsibility towards the nation under whose flag you rest in peace and safety, towards the community in which you rear your family, in the home which should be to you the dearest, the best and brightest spot on earth, which will not cease until your spirit has departed to be with its Lord or the trumpet has sounded and you have been caught up into the air to meet your Lord as He comes in the clouds of glory with His saints. Read the thirteenth chapter of Romans, the third chapter of Titus, the second chapter of I. Peter and other portions of God's Word to which these chapters will lead in thought, if you do not realize and believe that the Christian has responsibilities and solemn obligations towards the home, the community, the nation.

I know God's Word tells me to come out and be separate from the world. I know John writes with the finger of God: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world." I know that the world is under condemnation for sin, and that Satan, like a roaring lion, goeth about seeking whom he may devour. I know that spiritually we are to dwell in heavenly places in Christ Jesus, here and now, but I don't find a line which tells me to go about in the world with my head in the clouds, shirking the paying of my just tribute to Caesar, and forgetting the world lost in sin, and which Jesus is able to save through you and me. There is a spiritual ecstasy which is selfish in its enjoyment and destructive to practical, Christlike contact with the world. Paul got away up into the heavenlies with Christ, but I notice he didn't stay there. He tells the Corinthians that he determined not to know anything among them but Jesus Christ and Him crucified; and as the crucified Lord he sees Him hanging on the tree with the sins of the world rolled upon Him, and he goes forth and becomes a servant unto all that he might gain the more for Christ. Unto the Jews he becomes as a Jew, that he might gain the Jews. To them that were without law, as without law, that he might gain them that were without law. He became all things to all men, that he might by all means save some. Paul's soul may have lived in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus, but his great heart, bursting with the world-wide love of Christ, worked in the earthly places of sin and need, and he never ceased until Roman brutality set his soul free in the arena at Rome. The fact that I belong to the Lord, bought by His precious blood; the fact that I am one of His ambassadors in this world, should make me a better father and citizen, a more loyal patriot. If "the powers that be are ordered of God," I want to cooperate with Him body, soul and spirit in bringing about His righteous purposes. If the Holy Spirit, who is in the heart of every true believer, enables me, as I submit my will and purpose to Him, to discern all things, surely I am better equipped than ever before to fulfill my obligations as a citizen of the nation, as a member of the community, as the head of my household.

There is a vast difference between loving the world so as to want to wallow in the mire of its sin and pleasure, and loving the world with the heart of Christ so as to want to get down as near it as possible in order that we may win some for Christ. The fact that evil may triumph, the fact that corruption exists in high places, the fact that unrighteousness and dishonesty preside over the ballot box, and often prevail in the counsels of political bodies, and in city, state and nation, does not in the least absolve me from my responsibility as a citizen of the nation. What I cannot help I am not responsible for. But I am responsible, most solemnly, as to how my influence is cast, whether by means of voice, or pen or ballot, or any other mediating agent which joins me with the people and nation and events around me. There is no obligation to God which ever conflicts with real duty in the home, community or nation. If you are robbing Caesar of his tribute, you are going contrary to the Divine will and losing a blessed opportunity of getting close to the world and winning some for Jesus Christ. The true patriot does not rob Caesar of his tribute.

Robbing God.—"Will a man rob God?" asks the heartbroken prophet as he views the wretchedness and distress and poverty of the Jewish people, which has come as a direct fruitage of their selfishness and disobedience. Yes, verily, he will and he does. It is too long a story to tell here. Man began to do it away back in the garden of Eden when he stole the fruit of the forbidden tree, and he has been doing it ever since. If we render not unto God the things which are God's, are we not robbing Him? Ah, what a sad, sad story it is! From the cradle to the grave man continues to rob God. In every relation of life, in every direction we see the tribute which belongs to God being withheld. Again space forbids us attempting to enumerate the ways in which man may rob God. We shall speak of but one. So-called patriotism and devotion to country may and does rob God of a great deal of the tribute that is due Him. The man who puts country before he does the God who marked out the boundaries of the continents and established the nations, and set rulers over them, is robbing God and paying unlawful tribute unto Caesar. The man who says: "My country, right or wrong," and who means that he is going to sustain that country in its wrong-doing because of a false conception of what true patriotism is may stir up a vast deal of enthusiasm at the political gathering or patriotic mass meeting and gain the reputation for intense patriotism, but he is not moved by the spirit which actuated the God-fearing patriots who, led by the Divine purpose, established this nation and ceased to pay unlawful tribute to a Cæsar across the sea. Blind, unreasoning loyalty to a nation, dictated by intense partisanship, keeps political fires burning and sweeps the country from end to end with strife and a fever of unrest. It pays, seemingly, a magnificent tribute to Cæsar, but in the paying thereof God is robbed and the nation must pay the penalty some day. The true patriot does not rob God to pay Cæsar tribute. He sees that what Cæsar may count as gain now will be strangely transferred later to the debit side of the account, and that the seeds sown in dishonest disregard of the rights of God have brought forth the certain fruit of national decay.

The true patriot, therefore, builds for the future, and is not willing to sacrifice principle or honesty for seeming present gain or advantage. If victory or success must be won by means of the questionable transaction and sharp double-dealing he prefers defeat to the glamour of unlawful tribute. Moses, the true patriot, with the eye of faith fixed on the star of promise shining away in the future, "chose rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. . . . For he had respect unto the recompense of the reward." The true patriot endures during the present in order that the future may feel the impress of his life and deeds. True patriotism is not measured by the volume of the shout, or by the brilliancy of the torch-light procession. The true patriot does shout sometimes, he may carry the lighted torch, he may wear the button of his candidate, but that is not all, for these are but the outward expression of inward principle and purpose which aim to pay Cæsar the tribute due him and to God the things which belong to God.

On one of my rambles the other day my eye caught the flight of a feathery songster as he skimmed through the fresh air and bright sunshine. With a graceful curve he dipped towards the flower-decked field and then shot up again until in the topmost branches of the swaying tree he settled down and poured out his soul in tuneful song. Over and over again he trilled the half-dozen melodious notes of his song, and each time of repetition the song sounded as sweet and fresh if not sweeter than before. It is a beautiful song, indeed, and rare, which will stand continued repetition, and never grow old. Like the song of the bird that day, whose melodious notes bore in upon my soul a new thought from God, our text is as fresh in its application to the affairs of to-day as it was when the words fell from the Master's lips. As a platform for the true patriot to stand upon it has never failed and the eternal principles set forth have not yet nor ever will be changed.

As our bird from its airy perch sent forth its song, so the words of our text sound forth from the exalted pinnacle of God's righteousness and go ringing round the earth and find their practical application in every nation, clime and condition. "Render, therefore, unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's; and unto God the things that are God's."

Thirty-Second Annual Report of the Insurance Department.

Frankfort, Ky., June 28.—The thirty-second annual report of the Kentucky insurance department on life companies operating in the state was completed Friday. The report shows 84 life companies and 35 accident, fidelity and miscellaneous companies doing business. During the year the 34 life companies issued 126,894 policies, insuring $44,895,392.54. Number of policies cancelled, 94,147, leaving in force $183,012,550.08. The 34 companies collected on policies $5,765,086, and paid claims amounting to $2,422,899. Two new life companies came into Kentucky during the year, the Northern Central Life Co., of Toledo, O., and the Minnesota Mutual Life Co.

BUNKOED A PRIEST.

Two Men Were Arrested and Locked Up in Consequence.

Louisville, Ky., June 26.—Thomas H. Ward and Smith Casler were arrested Wednesday night. Ward says he came here from Springfield, O., where his father was once chief of police. He matriculated at a medical college here.

A week ago he went to Father Zablin, of St. Martin's Catholic church, and obtained $40 from the priest. Wednesday a message was received, signed by Ward, asking for $10 more. Father Zablin suspected that he was being bunkoed, and a detective arrested Ward and Casler, who was with him. Ward alleges that the message was sent at Casler's instigation. Casler's father was once a merchant here.

Must Pay Their Taxes.

Paducah, Ky., June 28.—Revenue Agent T. C. Albritton has filed suits against the First national bank, City national and German national banks, of this city, to enforce them to pay the state, county and city taxes on their shares of stock for the years 1898-99, with the 20 per centum penalty. The aggregate capital stock of the three institutions is $530,000.

A Rich Vein of Zinc.

Paducah, Ky., June 27.—Messrs. Mat Rawls and George C. Wallace, of this city, officers in the Marion Zinc Co., have been notified that a rich vein of zinc has been found on their land, near Salem, Livingston county, and steps will be taken at once to develop it.

Will Accept the Call.

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—Dr. I. S. McElroy, for eight years pastor of the Maxwell Street Presbyterian church here, Friday night announced his decision to accept a call to the secretaryship of the National Ministerial association, with headquarters at Richmond, Va.

Life Imprisonment.

Franklin, Ky., June 28.—The case of the State vs. G. B. Alderson, tried for the assassination of P. D. Hall on the night of January 4 last, was given to the jurors. They considered the case two hours and returned into court with a verdict of guilty, fixing his punishment at hard labor in the state penitentiary for life.

Noted Turfman Dying.

Louisville, Ky., June 28.—Eam Bryant, the noted turfman, who has been very ill of dropsy for some months past, lapsed into unconsciousness Friday afternoon and the attending physicians fear he will not survive another day.

Fell From Second Story Window.

Catlettsburg, Ky., June 26.—George M. Johnson, superintendent of the Johnson county (Kentucky) schools, walked in his sleep and fell from the second-story window of the New Central hotel here.

Corn Famine in Mountains.

Mayking, Ky., June 26.—There is a corn famine throughout most of the mountain counties, and in many places the cereal can not be bought. The price is $1 a bushel straight.

Thompson M. Parrish Died Suddenly.

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—Thompson M. Parrish, of Midway, one of the wealthy men of the blue grass, died suddenly of apoplexy at a hotel in this city Friday.

To Bore For Oil Near Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., June 28.—A local company will begin boring for oil near this city in a few days. Oil experts declare that the Kentucky field extends to this county.

Brutally Murdered.

Madisonville, Ky., June 28.—At Central City Merridy Stone, a young farmer, was brutally murdered by unknown parties. It is supposed that robbery was the motive.

Electric "Buzzers."

Louisville, Ky., June 27.—Mayor Grainger and the board of public safety have determined to install the electric "buzzers" in all the fire engine and hook and ladder houses in the city, in place of the present fire alarm system.

The Drought Broken.

Owensboro, Ky., June 27.—The drought was broken by heavy rains in the different parts of this county. The farmers are much rejoiced because of it, and a great deal of tobacco was planted Thursday.

MONEY FOR ARCHITECTS.

Twenty Million Dollars Distributed Among Designers and Builders of Government Buildings.

Twenty million dollars will be distributed among architects and builders by Uncle Sam under the provisions of the omnibus public building bill, which the president has just signed. There will be a lively scramble by those who desire to participate in the division of these millions, and the force of the supervising architect's office in the treasury department is already at work preparing for the distribution. There are 118 public buildings to be designed and erected under the act, and the plans for all, costing more than $100,000, will be open for competition. The prominent architects of the country will be invited by the supervising architect to submit drawings for the more important edifices, and the invitations will be readily accepted, because the government pays the architects whose plans are selected by a commission as the most meritorious five per cent. of the contract price of the building. In Uncle Sam's generous distribution the northwest fares well, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa receiving about $600,000 each, Wisconsin about $500,000, Michigan about $350,000 and Minnesota over $300,00.

AIDS BOY WHO ROBBED HIM.

Kind-Hearted Merchant Secures Release Of and Gives Place to the Young Culprit.

Harry Dietz, aged 15, sent to the reform school three and a half years ago for stealing from a big department store at St. Paul, Minn., has been released, and given a responsible position in the store he was convicted of having robbed. At the time the boy was arrested Mr. Elsinger, proprietor of the store, who appeared as prosecuting witness, became interested in him, and investigated the case. At the reform school Dietz applied himself to his studies and worked hard.

Mr. Elsinger watched his progress, and recently secured the release of Dietz, who returned to St. Paul. Mr. Elsinger said the boy had proved himself trustworthy, and he would be advanced as rapidly as possible.

"I believe he is a good boy, and we will help him along," he said.

Favorite Jewels for Coronation.

Diamonds and emeralds will be the jewels principally worn at the coronation. More than half of them will be hired from West end and Parisian jewelers, who charge five per cent. of their value for one day's wear. But a vast quantity of paste will also be worn. No shopkeepers have done a larger business over the coronation than the imitation jewelry dealers. One firm says it has an order from a countess for an extra replica of the duchess of Marlborough's famous Vanderbilt pearls, to cost over $400, and to be indistinguishable from the real ones.

Can Sing High.

Ada Colley, an Australian variety singer, who formerly astonished Wintergarten audiences with phenomenally high notes, has made her debut in grand opera at the Theater Des Westerns, in Berlin, in "The Barber of Seville." Rossini's aria, "Una Poco Poco Fa," was transposed, to display her parade on tones reaching high C. She achieved a popular triumph. The critics say her singing is uneven, and that her acting is without finish.

Never Satisfied.

Out in Kansas, where there was a demand for guns to smash the rain clouds last summer, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, there is now a call for pumps.

MODERN CATECHISM.

In Which We Find Enlightenment Regarding the Purpose of the White-Wagon.

"What was that just whizzed past us?" asked one pedestrian of another, according to the Ohio State Journal.

"That was an automobile."

"And what is an automobile?"

"It is something which has been invented to increase the mortality rate."

"Has it been successful in doing this?"

"Yes, indeed; it has surpassed the fondest expectations."

"What would have happened if we had not got out of the way of the automobile?"

"Two funerals."

"Who is the man who is running the automobile?"

"He is called a chauffeur."

"Is that the only name he has?"

"No; people often call him many other names."

"What would he do if he were to run over some one?"

"He would smile."

"Would he stop?"

"I should say not."

"What would the police do?"

"They would arrest him."

"What then?"

"He would be fined and discharged."

"That would reform him, would it not?"

"No; he doesn't mind being fined, because he has lots of money."

"How fast is that automobile going?"

"About 50 miles an hour."

"Is not that very fast?"

"Not for an automobile."

An Old-Time Terror.

Among ancient relics at present on exhibition at Chicago, is a sheet of papyrus bearing a complaint to a chief of police who held office just 2,092 years ago, that the premises of the writer had been robbed. Whether the work was done by a porch climber, a duplicate key man, or an ordinary hall sneak is not recorded, but the antique document is suggestive that in some ways a score of centuries has not greatly changed the world. One can imagine that old-time chief threatening his dusky Egyptian force with the terrors of a "shake-up."—Buffalo Courier.

What About Your School Houses?

You may not this season be able to build a new one, or make the radical changes in the old one that you had in contemplation, but there is no school district in the United States that cannot afford to tint with Alabastine the interior of their buildings, thus making them more attractive, getting colors made with special reference to their effects on the eyes of the pupils, getting a sanitary and rock base cement coating that will not harbor disease germs.

The closely crowded school rooms need all the safeguards to the health of the pupil that intelligent officials can surround them with, and all sanitarians unite in saying that Alabastine is the only proper material to be used on such walls.

When Brains Are Needed.

It is told of a learned professor who was better at Greek than golf that after a round on the links, in which he had fooled most of his shots, he turned to his caddie for advice as to improving his play. The reply of the ruthless caddy was: "Ye see, sir, it's easy to teach laddies Latin and Greek, but it needs a head for golf."—London News.

DURING SUMMER MONTHS

Dr. Hartman Gives Free Advice to Suffering Women.

Dr. Hartman, the Famous Gynæcologist and Inventor of Pe-ru-na Offers to Treat Women Free During the Summer Months.

America is the land of nervous women. The great majority of nervous women are so because they are suffering from some form of female disease. By far the greatest number of female troubles are caused by catarrh.

Women afflicted with pelvic catarrh despair of recovery. Female trouble is so common, so prevalent, that they accept it as almost inevitable. The greatest obstacle in the way of recovery is that they do not understand that it is catarrh which is the source of their illness. In female complaint, ninety-nine cases out of one hundred are nothing but catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

The following letter was recently received:

186 W. 38th st., New York City.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

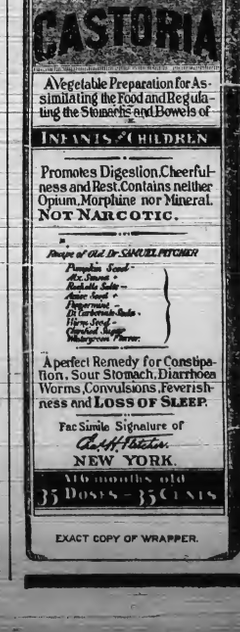
Gentlemen.—"What bread and meat means to the hungry Peruna means to the sick. It is an especially valuable medicine for sick women. I have found that no medicine so quickly restores health and places the body in a normal condition. I but voice the sentiments of women who were once sick, but are now in perfect health.

MISS LIZZIE SNEATHING.

All women who are in doubt as to what their trouble is should write Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio. Give him a full description of your trouble, previous treatment, symptoms and age. He will promptly reply with full directions for treatment free of charge. This is an opportunity which no ailing woman should miss. Dr. Hartman has become renowned through his success in treating women's diseases. His experience in these matters is vast. Correspondence is strictly confidential. No testimonials published without written consent. Dr. Hartman relies principally upon Peruna in these cases.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Mrs. Alex. Johnson, 256 University avenue, Kingston, Ontario, Can., writes:



"I have been a sufferer for years with bearing down pains and backache, and got no relief from doctor's prescriptions. I commenced taking Peruna and after taking the first bottle I felt much better and within a month I was a well woman, and heartily recommend it to any woman who is in as poor health as I was."

MRS. A. JOHNSON.

Miss Mabel Meyers, Argentine, Kansas, collector for the Kansas Temperance Union, writes: "Peruna has proved a friend to me for it cured me when I was sick and the least I can do in return is to acknowledge its value to the public. Since I was 17 years old I have suffered with headache, backache and pains in the shoulder blades. I caught cold easily and my lungs were weak. Catarrh of the lungs was what the doctors called my trouble. I took their medicine for eighteen months without any benefit and hearing about Peruna I decided to try it. I used nine bottles and was restored to health. This was two years ago, and I am now in perfect health."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be glad to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI

142 Market Street,
Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1902.

In February, 1902, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until Nov. 20th. Now I am happy! A fine baby girl which was born March 21, 1902. She baby weighs fourteen pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my house again.

Beaver Lick, Sept. 26 and Oct. 27.
Gunpowder, October 28.
Richwood, October 29.
Hebron, October 30.

This is my first year for collecting taxes, and I must settle with the State and County, December 1st, 1902, and to save penalty and cost of advertising your property, I would advise you to pay your taxes before the 1st of December. This will be all the notice you will have, and if you neglect to pay your taxes and your property is advertised, don't think hard of me. I will commence advertising January 1st, 1903, and will continue until all taxes for State and County are collected.

B. B. ALLPHIN,
Sheriff Boone County, Ky.

Immense damage has been done to the growing crops in the last ten days, especially in the west, in some States the damage being estimated as high as $5,000,000. Wind and water have both taken a hand in the carnival of destruction.

Bad weather for harvesting.

After having lived in Williamstown for "nigh" on to thirty years, Hon. W. W. Dickerson has left the "old town" and gone to Cincinnati, where he expects to make his home in the future. Mr. Dickerson came to Wiliamstown in 1874 as a boy and began the practice of law. He was then single but a sprightly, vigorous fellow. Later he married, and in Williamstown he has raised a family of five children and built up the largest law practice of any lawyer at the Grant court bar. He has held several of the best offices within the gift of these people; having been successively county attorney, representative, senator and congressman. He has played a prominent part in the political and social affairs of Grant county, and his moving away is quite a loss to our people His home will be on Walnut Hills. He will keep his office open in Williamstown and expects to retain his practice at the local bar.—Williamstown Courier.

Saves A Woman' Life.

To have given up would have meant death for Mrs. Lois Cragg, of Dorchester, Mass. For years she had endured untold misery from a severe lung trouble and obstinate cough. "Often", she writes, "I could scarcely breathe and sometimes could not speak. All doctors and remedies failed till I used Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was completely cured." Sufferers from Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung Trouble need this grand remedy, for it never disappoints. Cure is guaranteed by W. F. McKim, Burlington; Union Drug Store Union; J. G. Oelsner, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant, Grant.

AMNESTY DECLARED.

The Philippines Transferred From Military to Civil Control.

Gen. Chaffee Is Relieved of His Duties as Military Governor—Thanks to the Entire Army of the United States.

Washington, July 4.—The president has formally declared the restoration of peace in the Philippine archipelago: he has placed the Islands under complete civil control, and has extended general amnesty to the Filipinos who have been in rebellion. The amnesty proclamation is as follows:

Whereas, Many of the inhabitants of the Philippine archipelago were in insurrection against the authority and sovereignty of the kingdom of Spain at divers times from August, 1896, until the cession of the archipelago by that kingdom to the United States of America, and since such cession many of the persons so engaged in insurrection have until recently resisted the authority and sovereignty of the United States; and

Whereas, The insurrection against the authority and sovereignty of the United States is now at an end and peace has been established in all parts of the archipelago except in the country inhabited by the Moro tribes, to which this proclamation does not apply; and,

Whereas, During the course of the insurrection against the kingdom of Spain and against the Government of the United States persons engaged therein, or those in sympathy with and abetting them committed many acts in violation of the laws of civilized warfare, but it is believed that such acts were generally committeed in ignorance of those laws, and under orders issued by the civil or military insurrectionary leaders, and,

Whereas, It is deemed to be wise and human in accordance with the beneficent purposes of the government of the United States towards the Filipino people and conducive to peace, order and loyalty among them, that the doer of such acts who have not already suffered punishment shall be relieved from punishment for participation in these insurrections, and for unlawful acts committed during the course thereof by a general amnesty and pardon;

Now, Therefore be it known, that I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the power and authority vested in me by the Constitution, do hereby proclaim and declare, without reservation or condition except as hereinafter provided, a full and complete pardon and amnesty to all persons in the Philippine archipelago who have participated in the insurrections aforesaid, or who have given aid and comfort to persons participating in said insurrections, for the offenses of treason, or sedition, and for all offenses, political in their character, committed in the course of such insurrections pursuant to orders issued by the civil or military insurrectary authorities or which grew out of internal political feuds or dissensions among the Filipinos themselves during either of said insurrections;

Provided, Mowever, that the pardon hereby granted shall not include such persons committing crimes since May 1st, 1902, in any province of the archipelago in which at the time civil government was established, nor shall it include such finally convicted of the crimes of murder, rape, arson, or robbery by any military or civil tribunal organized under the authority of Spain or of the United States of America, but which special application may be made to the proper authority for pardon by any person belonging to the exempted classes, and such clemency as is consistent with humanity and justice will be liberally extended; and further,

Provided, That this amnesty and pardon shall not affect the title or right of the Government of the United States or that of the Philippine Islands to any property or property rights heretofore used or appropriated by the military or civil authorities of the Government of the United States or that of the Philippine Islands organized under authority of the United States by way of confiscation or otherwise, and,

Provided, Further, that every person who shall seek to avail himself of this proclamation shall take and subscribe to the following oath before any authority in the Philippine archipelago authorized to administer oaths:

"I ——— solemnly swear (or affirm), that I recognize and accept the supreme authority of the United States of America in the Philippine Islands, and will maintain true faith and allegiance thereto, that I impose upon myself this obligation voluntarily without mental reservation or purpose of evasion, so help me God."

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

Independence Day Was Pretty Generally Celebrated.

Washington, July 5.—With the president away and congress adjourned, the national capital had a comparatively quiet Fourth. The business sections of the city were deserted. The garrison of the United States soldiers at Fort Myer, near here, had a celebration, with games, the reading of the Declaration of Independence and an artillery salute to the American flag. The Oldest Inhabitants' association also observed the day appropriately at a suburban resort. The Potomac river resorts afforded an outing to a large number of people. The police reported that the number of casualties from fireworks was comparatively few.

Philadelphia, July 5.—As has been the custom for years, the city of Philadelphia celebrated the 126th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in this city by holding patriotic open air exercises in Independence square.

The celebration Friday was of unusual interest because of the presence of Lieut. Gen. Miles, who delivered the oration. Gen. Miles was enthusiastically greeted by 5,000 persons when he was introduced. After his address he held a reception, which lasted about a half-hour. Later in the day the general was entertained by a committee of city councilmen at luncheon, and was also an interested spectator of the regatta on the Schuykill river. He left the city late in the afternoon.

London, July 5.—Several hundred Americans attended the reception given by the United States ambassador, Joseph H. Choate, Friday afternoon in honor of the Fourth of July. It lasted from 4 to 8 p. m. Two floors of Mr. Coate's Carlton House Terrace residence were packed with Americans, among whom were Gen. Joseph Wheeler and his daughters. Rear Admiral John C. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. De Young and all the members of the embassy. A marquee was erected on the terrace, where a brilliant gathering listened to American airs played by a band.

Paris, July 5.—The Fourth of July was celebrated in this city by a reception at the United States embassy, held by Mrs. Horace Porter, wife of the United States ambassador, Gen. Porter, who is now in the United States. It was exceptionally well attended, practically the whole American colony being present. Count de Rochambeau and several members of the Rochambeau mission, which recently visited the United States, also called. The embassy, consulate, all the American houses, and many other business places displayed the stars and stripes. The American chamber of commerce gave a banquet at night.

Rome, July 5.—George von L. Meyer, the United States ambassador, being at Homburg for the cure, Lewis Morris Iddings, the secretary of the embassy, and Mrs. Iddings assisted by Mrs. Wm. H. Taft, wife of Governor Taft, of the Philippines, held the Fourth of July reception at the embassy here Friday. It was attended by over a hundred Americans. Later in the day Mgr. Seton, of Jersey City, gave a reception to Cardinal Satolli, at which President Roosevelt, the pope and Cardinal Satolli were toasted with great enthusiasm.

Colon, Colombia, July 5.—The isthmus Friday celebrated the Fourth of July. The shipping and the public and private buildings were decorated with flags. A reception was held Friday morning at the United States consulate.

LINCOLN'S FORMER HOME.

The War Veterans of Springfield, Ill., Paid the Place a Visit.

Springfield, Ill., July 5.—The G. A. R. post and affiliated bodies of this city chartered a special train Friday morning and went to Old Salem, near Petersburg, the first home of Abraham Lincoln, after he removed from Kentucky to Illinois. The pilgrims spent the day with the Sons of Veterans, in a drill, gold medal oratorical contest, music and addresses. Col. Charles F. Mills, commander of Stephenson Post G. A. R., presided, and addresses were made by Prof. Alfred Bayliss, state superintendent of public instruction, and Col. W. E. Hull, former commander of the Illinois division of the Sons of Veterans. Large numbers were also present from Petersburg and Athens.

The Fourth in Denmark.

Copenhagen, Denmark, July 5.—The American colony here celebrated the Fourth of July with a banquet at the Hotel Phœnix Friday night, at which L. S. Swenson, the United States minister, made an address. Patriotic music was played and the room was appropriately decorated.

The Hungarian Crop.

Buda Pest, Hungary, July. 5.—The official Hungarian crop estimate made in metric hundred weights is as follows: Wheat, 40,000,000; rye, 13,000,000; barley, 12,000,000; oats, 10,620,000.

Struck by a Train.

Des Moines, Ia., July 5.—Mrs. Robt. Seney and her 12-year-old daughter were killed and her son, aged 9 years, and a guest, Mrs. P. Banty, were badly injured by a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train, which struck their carriage at Sioux City.

Bullet Pierced Heart.

Blackshear, Ga., July 5.—Bud Dixon, a young farmer living four miles from here, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart with a 32-caliber pistol. He had been married only a short time.

TROLLEY CARS MEET.

Fifteen Persons Killed and Twenty-Nine Others Injured.

As It Was a Holiday There Were Many Business Men on the Coaches—City Recorder Wood Had His Back Broken.

Utica, N. Y., July 5.—On the electric railroad, near Gloversville, there was a collision between two cars crowded with passengers, by which 15 persons were killed and 29 injured.

For a distance of four miles north of Gloversville the Mountain Lake railway, an electric road, connects Gloversville with a popular place of resort or picnic ground. As it was the Fourth of July, the place was crowded with people coming home from the grounds. At 10:30 p. m., at a distance of about two miles and a half north of Gloversville, there was a collision between two cars, one bound north and one bound south. They came together head on with terrific velocity. As a result the 15 persons were killed outright and 29 injured, the latter more or less seriously.

As it was a holiday, there were many business men among those on the cars. It is impossible to get the names of all at present.

City Recorder Frank C. Wood, of Gloversville, had his back broken and is in a very critical condition.

The Mountain Lake railway tracks follow the side of a mountain, the grade being about one thousand feet in four miles. Coming down the incline, the motorman of one car carrying about 70 people, lost control of the car, which in a short distance acquired a frightful velocity. Then it met a car ascending the mountain and also carrying about seventy passengers.

BUSINESS FAILURE.

For the First Half of the Year 1902 They Number 6,165.

New York, July 5.—Commercial failures in the first half of 1902 numbered 6,165, with liabilities of $60,374,856. Although this is an increase of $4,570,160 compared with last year and $18,311,923 more than the exceptionally favorable record of 1890, it is necessary to go back fifteen years to find another more gratifying showing than that of 1902. Despite a few exceptionally heavy failures in British Columbia total liabilities in the Dominion of Canada for the first half of the year were only $5,739,451, against $5,530,926 last year, while the number of defaults, 610 compared favorably with all recent years.

CHICKAMAUGA PARK.

Thousands of People Witnessed the Field Events There.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 5.—Many thousands of people from the city augmented by crowds that came in from three states on excursion trains witnessed the field day events at Chickamauga park Friday under the auspices of the regular troops encamped here. The contests began shortly before noon and continued until late in the afternoon. Among the visitors present were the state officials of Tennesee and Govenor Candler and staff of Georgia. Many confederate veterans from this section joined those of north Georgia in an immense basket picnic at Trion, Ga., the addresses of the day being delivered by General John B. Gordon.

TRIPPLE DROWNING.

Three Men Lose Their Lives on the Galveston Beach.

Galveston, Tex., July 5.—A triple drowning occurred on the Galveston beach about 8 o'clock. James N. Davis, night editor of the Galveston News, aged 36 years; Elbridge G. Rust, proprietor of the Dispatch Printing Co. of Houston, and Walter H. Chandler, aged 28 years, son-in-law of Rust, went out beyond the life line and were caught in the undertow and carried to their death. Henry Nichols, aged 37 years, was accidentally drowned Friday afternoon by falling from a pier.

Schley Legislation.

New Orleans, July 5.—In the state legislature the Smith bill has passed the senate and gone to the governor. It bars all histories in the Louisiana public schools that do not give complete credit to Adm. W. S. Schley for the victory of Santiago. Gov. Heard undoubtedly will sign the bill.

Joe Nelson Defeats Tommy Hall.

New Haven, Conn., July 5.—Joe Nelson, of Chicago, defeated Tommy Hall, of England, in two straight five-mile heats, motor paced, at the New Haven Coliseum board track Friday night. The time of the first heat was 8:19 3-5, and of the second heat, 8:09 3-5.

Won the Sheridan Stake.

Chicago, July 5.—In the presence of 20,000 people G. C. Bennett's Aladdin won the Sheridan stake at Washington park, defeating the American Derby winner, Wyeth, and the colt which finished second in the race, Lucien Appleby.

Snow in Wyoming.

Evanston, Wyo., July 5.—Snow has been falling here for 24 hours, and in the mountains it lies on the ground to a depth of three to six inches. The mercury fell to freezing point. Friday the weather cleared.

AGUINALDO RELEASED.

Former Filipino Leader Free to Go Anywhere He Pleases.

Manila, July 7.—As a result of the proclamation of amnesty July 4, the guard of American soldiers has been withdrawn from the house where Aguinaldo lived in Manila and Lieut. Johnson, Aguinaldo's custodian, brought the Filipino Sunday to see Gen. Chaffee. It was the first meeting between the American general and the leader of the Filipinio revolution. Lieut. William E. McKinley, of the 9th cavalry, acted as interpreter.

Aguinaldo was told that he was free to go anywhere he pleased, and Gen. Chaffee asked him if he had any complaint to make of American discourtesy or harshness. Aguinaldo replied that he had no such complaint to make. He told Gen. Chaffee that he was going to visit friends at his home in Cavito Viejo, in Cavite province, and inquired what protection the American authorities would afford him. He seemed to be afraid to venture out. Gen. Chaffee replied that Aguinaldo would get the same protection as any other citizen.

The former Filipino leader then asked Gen. Chaffee to prevent the courts from requiring him to testify in civil suits. Gen. Chaffee replied that he had no authority to grant this request, and advised Aguinaldo to make a social call upon Acting Civil Gov. Wright. This Aguinaldo said he would do, but that he would go at night, as he was timid about appearing on the streets in daylight.

The release of the former Filipino leader has renewed speculation as to possible vengeance upon him by friends of Luna and his other enemies. Luna was a Filipino leader whom Aguinaldo caused to be killed in 1899.

FETES IN THE VATICAN.

The Twenty-Fourth Anniversary of the Coronation of the Pope.

Rome, July 7.—All the members of the American college at Rome, including Rev. Dr. Thomas Kennedy, rector of the college, and Fathers McCate, McCourt and Mullin, of Philadelphia, were present Sunday evening at the fetes held in the vatican in celebration of the 24th anniversary of the coronation of the pope. The entire papal court and thousands of members of all Catholic societies represented in Rome assembled at 6 o'clock Sunday evening in the great Belvidere court of the vatican and paid homage to his holiness. The court was beautifully adorned with tapestries and a profusion of plants and flowers. The pope occupied an especially constructed and richly decorated gallery. His holiness entered the court by way of the Lapidary museum and the library. He was greeted with enthusiastic acclamations and the band played the Pontifical march. A chorus, composed for the occasion, was sung by a choir of several hundred pupils from all the clerical schools in Rome, who defiled before the pope, carrying banners. The vatican officials, a number of ladies and the members of the diplomatic corps witnessed the scene from windows overlooking the court.

THE VESSEL CAPSIZED.

Wife and Daughter of Capt. Horn and Miss McMahon Drowned.

New York, July 7.—The wife of Capt. Tiemann H. Horn, of the 95th company, sea coast artillery, his daughter Frances, aged 7, and Miss Alice McMahon, of Nyack, N. Y., were drowned in Sandy Hook bay Sunday. Capt. Horn is stationed at Ft. Hancock on Sandy Hook.

Capt. Hook had made up a sailing party to go out on the bay in his small cat-rigged yacht "Midget." Those aboard were, in addition to the captain, Mrs. Horn, with her two children, Miss Horn, a sister, Dr. Waterhouse, his wife and Miss Alice McMahon, a sister of Mrs. Waterhouse. At a point about half a mile off Old Camplow dock, a strong puff of wind caused the sail to gybe and in a moment the little vessel capsized, throwing all hands in the water.

A Strange Tragedy.

St. Paul, Minn., July 7.—A special from Grand Forks, N. D., says that while their son and daughter and several young friends were singing and dancing in the parlor Charles J. McCormick, a Great Northern conductor, and his wife were dying in a bathroom upon the same floor. Their bodies were found some hours later by their young son, who went to call them.

Trick Dog Dead.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 7.—There is mourning among the Roosevelt children. While they were at breakfast the trick dog presented to Archie by Col. Closon, of Chicago, died. Tho dog's mother, "Bozzle," recently exhibited her talents at the white house and so pleased was Mrs. Roosevelt over the performance that she gave Col. Closon a handsome collar for the animal.

Swift & Co. Suffer Loss By Fire.

Chicago, July 7.—By a fire, which broke out in their plant at the stock yards Saturday night, Swift & Co. suffered a loss which is estimated by the officials of the company at $1,000,000. The fire was confined to one building at the intersection of Packers avenue and Broadway.

Church Destroyed By Lightning.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 7.—At Janesville, Wis., Sunday night during a fierce storm lightning struck the spire of St. Patrick's Catholic church and the edifice was destroyed.

STORM IN NEW YORK.

Much Damage in the Western Portion of the State.

The Genesee River Is Now a Raging Torrent a Mile Wide—All of the Lower Portion of Hornellsville Is Flooded.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 7.—A terrific rain and wind storm swept over Western New York at an early hour Sunday. Rivers and creeks rose rapidly, overflowing their banks and sweeping away houses and barns and live stock. The loss will reach into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Telegraph and telephone wires are down and communication with small towns in Wyoming, Niagara and Cattarraugus counties is difficult to establish. This city was not in the path of the storm.

A dispatch from Arcade says the flood at that place claimed one victim and did many thousand dollars damage to property. Minnie Loper, who kept a bakery on the bank of the creek, was drowned early in the day. The downpour and the cloudburst above the village turned the creek into a torrent. The water rose very rapidly and was several feet deep on the lowlands before any one realized the danger. Miss Loper's bake shop was swept out into the street, but it had not gone far before it fell apart. Miss Loper's body was recovered.

There were many narrow escapes. At Yorkshire, two miles below Arcade, the approaches to the bride were washed away but the bridge is standing. Miles of roadway are so gullied or buried in debris that they will have to be rebuilt. At Sandusky, a few miles from Arcade, it is reported that two houses were washed away. From everywhere come reports of live stock killed. The loss to individuals will be very heavy and the loss to the town from the destruction of bridges and roadbeds will also be heavy.

Portage, N. Y., July 7.—The worst storm ever known in this section is now sweeping down the Genesee valley. Rain fell heavily for 24 hours and at an early hour Sunday morning a cloudburst sent the streams over their banks. The river is now a torrent a mile wide. At 8 o'clock Sunday morning every one living in the lower part of the town had to abandon their homes. The farms are laid waste and no field crops can be saved. Houses and barns were swept down the river. The roadbed of the Pennsylvania railroad is washed out in many places.

Hornellsville, N. Y., July 7.—A tremendous downpour of rain early Sunday caused one of the worst floods of the year in this vicinity. All of the lower part of the city was soon flooded. Railroad traffic in both directions was completely tied up all day and not a train arrived in the city after 2 a. m. Three houses were undermined and carried away.

Pike, N. Y., July 7.—At daybreak Sunday morning Pike was under four feet of water. Almost every bridge over creeks in Niagara and Allegheny counties and in the southern part of Wyoming county was washed away. It is estimated that the damage in this town and in the immediate vicinity will amount to a quarter of a million dollars. Much stock was killed.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS.

A Total of Five Lives Lost in 24 Hours at Benton Harbor.

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 7.—Two men were drowned here Sunday, making a total of five lives lost here in this way in the past 24 hours. Robert Wilson, of Detroit, was drowned in the St. Joseph river in the morning while trying to swim. Sunday afternoon Ward Kiser, aged 17, of South Bend, Ind., was seized with heart failure while bathing in Lake Michigan and drowned before help could reach him.

A CLOUDBURST.

Several Houses Were Swept Away at Ellisport, Ida.

Hope, Ida., July 7.—A cloudburst at Ellisport, east of Hope, swept away 12 or 15 houses and washed out two miles of track on the Northern Pacific. There was no loss of life. For a considerable distance around Ellisport the country is flooded. The creek is wide and swift and all the trestles are gone from Clark's Fork to Hope. Passengers eastbound are transferred from Sand Point by boat to Hope and west from Hope to Sand Point. There are several slides along the road each way.

American Officers Commit Suicide.

Manila, July 7.—Capt. John H. Shellenberger, of the 10th infantry, committed suicide at Iligen, in the island of Mindanao, July 4. He acted from despondency. Second Lieut. Thomas Ryan, of the Philippine scouts, also committed suicide by shooting in the interior of the island of Mindanao June 18.

Seven Men Injured in a Wreck.

Chicago, July 7.—A freight wreck on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway at 90th street resulted in the injury of seven men who were beating their way to Chicago. Eight cars filled with tramps were telescoped.

Fire at Lorenzo Marques.

Lorenzo Marques, July 7.—The fire that began here July 3 and which by the following day had destroyed British military stores valued at £500,000 shows little signs of abating and is likely to burn for some days to come.

THE DARING OUTLAW.

Convict Tracy Held Up a Ranch Near Seattle, Wash.

After Binding and Gagging the Inmates He Made the Hired Man Row Him Down the Sound—Officers in Pursuit.

Seattle, Wash., July 7.—Harry Tracy, the Oregon convict, has again eluded his pursuers after a display of great daring. His last act was to impress a farm hand into debarking on the sound in a row boat late Saturday and at noon Sunday Sheriff Cudihee chartered the tug Sea Lion and with a posse started in pursuit. According to information received at the sheriff's office here Sunday Tracy slept in a graveyard on the outskirts of Seattle after his battle Thursday night with Seattle officers. On Friday morning he proceeded to the ranch of a man named Fisher, secured food and slept and rested in the woods all that day and night. Early Saturday morning he appeared at Meadow Point in the water front three miles north of Seattle, his original point of landing. There he compelled a Japanese fisherman to row him to Madison Point, 12 miles across and down the sound from Seattle. He dismissed the boy, declaring that the latter would be killed by Tracy's pal if he told of the trip. They landed near the home of Rancher Johnson and Tracy watched the house for an hour to make sure of the number of men there. Finding but two he entered and announced that he intended to kill every one on the ranch and take charge of the place for a few days. He added: "But after seeing your pretty little girl, I will kill no one if you all mind me. I will be here all day."

The family prepared breakfast for Tracy and put one plate on a table against the wall.

"This is not right," declared the convict, "put the table in the middle of the room and all sit down with me," which was done.

Tracy then read Friday evening's papers and after learning how Mrs. Van Horn had betrayed his presence in her house to the butcher boy, said he had been careless in not keeping every one in that house constantly under his eye. "My carelessness in this respect made it necessary to kill two officers," he said.

He forced the Johnsons to give him a bundle of clothing and hats and six day's supplies of food, cooked for him, put on Johnson's suit of Sunday black and had the food, clothing and blankets made into bundles.

At 8 o'clock he bound and tightly gagged the Johnson family, made their hired man, Anderson, carry the bundles to Johnson's rowboat, put Anderson in the boat at the oars and started down the sound.

Mrs. Johnson released herself and the others two hours later and notified Deputy Sheriff McKay, who lives at Madison Point. McKay secured a boat and sent word to Seattle Sunday morning. Sheriff Cudihee was summoned from Bothell and at 10:30 with several men started down the sound in the Sea Lion, an electric tug boat, looking for the desperado and the farm hand. However, as Tracy had 15 hours' start, it is believed he will make good his escape. The supposition is that he will row all night, probably kill Anderson, sink the boat and disappear into the wild forests of Northern Washington, where he may live many days on his supply of food.

Harry Tracy, with three other convicts, escaped from the Oregon prison, some time ago, and they have eluded pursuing officers ever since. Tracy has killed three officers since his appearance near Seattle a few days ago. Although at times almost cornered, the wily outlaw succeeded in eluding the pursuing posses.

SAIL BOAT CAPSIZED.

Three Young Men Met Watery Graves in St. Clair Flats.

Detroit, Mich., July 7.—Three young boys, Tony Henkel and Oscar Rosenberg, of Detroit, and a boy named Conrad Brede were drowned Sunday in the middle channel at the St. Clair flats by the capsizing of a sail boat. The accident occurred about 200 feet from Savage's hotel, where young Henkel and Rosenberg were stopping. A number of people saw the accident, but it was over and the boys had sunk so quickly that no aid could be given them.

Big Blaze in Chicago.

Chicago, July 7.—Fire Sunday destroyed the buildings at 305-307-309 and 311-313 Wabash avenue, causing losses aggregating over $325,000. For a time the fire threatened widespread destruction, as it was only through the utmost efforts of the firemen that the flames were prevented from spreading to the department store of Siegel, Cooper & Co., fronting on State street and separated from the burning buildings only by a narrow alley.

Mormons in Denmark.

Copenhagen, July 7.—Some three hundred American Mormons, including Former United States Senator Frank J. Cannon and his brother, and many American missionaries in Europe, attended the dedicating of the Mormon temple in this city.

Pantsmakers and Pressers Strike.

Baltimore, July 7.—Five hundred pantsmakers and pressers struck Monday morning. This was the decision of the executive committee of the Pantsmakers' union Sunday. The strike tied up 200 small shops.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, July 1.—Senate—Mr. Elkins (W. Va.) delivered an earnest speech in favor of the annexation of Cuba, maintaining that it would be in the best interests of both countries. Mr. Elkins' remarks drew a sharp fire from Mr. Platt (Ct.), and Mr. Hanna (O.), who deprecated any annexation proposition at this time, and urged that the United States ought to be sensible of its obligations to the civilized world, if not to Cuba. After a lively colloquy in which Gen. Wood was criticised, by inference, for using Cuban funds to advance the reciprocity propaganda, Mr. Elkins' resolution for annexation was referred to the Cuban relations committee. Among the many bills passed was one giving Adm. Schley the pay and allowance of a rear admiral on the active list of the navy.

House — With final adjournment probable Tuesday, the house worked under high pressure from noon Monday until far into the night. As a preliminary, several resolutions were adopted to grease the legislative wheels. The rule providing for the printing of conference reports before consideration was suspended until the end of the session and a resolution was adopted making a motion to suspend the rules in order at any time. The house then got down to work and cleaned up the unfinished business.

Washington, July 2.—Senate—The conference report on the Philippine government bill was adopted. The final conference report on the naval bill was agreed to. The senate passed the bill authorizing the construction of locks and dams in Pond river, Ky., and at 1:55 went into executive session. When the senate reconvened in legislative session at 2:25 p. m. the conference report on the Porto Rico public lands and buildings bill was agreed to without debate. A bill appropriating $75,000 for the erection of a quartermaster's warehouse in Omaha, Neb., was passed. Adjourned sine die.

House—Bills were passed to appropriate $60,000 each for bronze equestrian statues to Count Pulaski and Baron Steuben, the revolutionary heroes, said statues to be erected in this city; to promote and retire Naval Cadet William Victor Tomb as of the grade of ensign; to remove a shoal in North river, New York harbor, at a cost not to exceed $25,000; to grant condemned cannon to the city of Detroit, Mich., for an equestrian statue of Gen. Alexander Macomb; to grant certain lands to the South Platte Canal and Reservoir Co.; to pay $5,167 to Anna Eliza Isabella Von Hemert; senate bill for the suppression of train robberies. Several conference reports on belated bills then were hurried through. A bill to make confederate soldiers who enlisted in the union army previous to January 1, 1865, pensionable, aroused considerable debate but was finally passed, 97 to 19. Messrs. Payne, Cannon and Richardson (Tenn.) were named as a committee to inform the president that congress was ready to adjourn. Adjourned sine die.

KING EDWARD'S CONDITION.

Everything Points to a Satisfactory Convalescence.

London, July 4.—Everything points to a satisfactory if somewhat prolonged convalescence of the King. It is expected that the bulletins regarding his condition will soon be reduced to one a day. Only small crowds haunt the boards at Buckingham palace, which is an indication that public confidence has been restored. Only one physician remains at the palace throughout the night, and all of the doctors are to attend to the more pressing portion of their private practices. Sir Frederick Treves absented himself from the palace Thursday to attend the wedding of his only daughter to Maj. Delme Radcliffe.

A number of coronation guests left London Thursday, including the crown prince of Norway and Prince Komatsu of Japan. Both were seen off by gatherings of distinguished persons at the station, where everyone seemed to be in high spirits with regard to the condition of the King.

London, July 5.—The progress of King Edward continues satisfactory. The fact that Queen Alexandra, in company with the Duchess of Aosta, Prince Waldemar of Denmark, and Prince George of Greece, drove out Friday afternoon is taken as a sign of the king's satisfactory condition. This was the first recreation of this kind that the queen has indulged in since his majesty was taken ill. The king is allowed to read a good deal now, and he enjoys looking at the newspapers. He expressed amusement lately at some of the sensational and detailed reports of the operation in the press.

London, July 7.—King Edward's progress Sunday night continued to be good. It is said that if his improvement proceeds at the present rate he will probably, by the end of the month be well enough to be transferred to the royal yacht in Southampton waters. A bulletin posted at 9 o'clock Sunday morning said: "The king's progress continues to be in every way satisfactory."

No News From the Missing Steamers.

Seattle, Wash., July 7.—No news of the missing steamers Jeannie and Portland is the report made by steamship Indiana, Capt. E. V. Roberts, which arrived Sunday from Nome.

Independence Day in Mexico.

Laredo, Tex., July 5.—Independence day was celebrated throughout Texas Friday with music and fireworks and speech-making. Torrson celebrated on a larger scale this year than ever before. There was no public celebration in Monterey.

Editor Fined For Contempt.

Eldorado, Kan., July 3.—N. R. Cady, editor of the Augusta Journal, was fined $10 and costs for contempt of court for having criticised Judge Aikman for not granting a change of venue for Jessie Morrison.

ROOT'S SUGAR TRUST WORK.

What Appears to Be a Scheme to Filch Funds from the Cuban Treasury.

Secretary Root appears to have all the elements of the practical politician of the New York machine stripe. He knows how to get funds to carry on any campaign he is interested in. Secretary Root appears to have the Cuba reciprocity cause very much at heart for at his instance the Cuban military government, which we have just withdrawn from the island, engaged the services of that sugar patriot, who is always for the "Old Flag and an Appropriation," F. B. Thurber to enlighten the American people on the needs of Cuba and the poverty of the sugar trust.

This kind interest of Secretary Root in the cause of the sugar trust appears to have appealed to the generosity of Gen. Wood to donate and caused him to make a donation to the sugar trust campaign fund for reciprocity. The general's salary was a handsome one, some $25,000 a year, but the Root training, or perhaps his orders, persuaded Wood that the Cuban government funds would be the proper source for the sugar trust campaign fund to come from. The Thurber mode of campaigning is by circular letter, and is expensive, as will be seen from the following bill which Gen. Wood ordered paid. Not only that one, but three more of similar amount, of which the following is a true copy:

"Form 8. Voucher No. 31. Abstract 'B.' Account month of April 2, 1902.

"The United States military government of the Island of Cuba to the United States Export association, Dr.

"For sending a third edition of 80,000 circular letters and accompanying publications to leaders of thought in the United States, advocating a reduction in the duties upon Cuban products, with a reciprocal reduction in the duties upon American products imported into Cuba.....$2,880

"Received payment, United States Export Association.
(Signed) "F. B. THURBER,
"President."
"April 2, 1902.

"To service as per bill attached (see above) in support of the application of the inhabitants of the island of Cuba for reciprocal tariff relations with the United States.....$2,880

"Under authority of Gen. Wood, March 26, 1902."

The document bore the following endorsement:

"Headquarters Department of Cuba.
"Havana, April 10, 1902.

"The services herein charged for having been performed under the verbal directions and authority of the military governor, this voucher, as submitted, is approved and the auditor is authorized to pass the same.
"By direction of the military governor.
(signed) "FRANK M'COY,
"Aide de Camp."

"Paid by check No. 403,158, April 11, 1902, for $2,880, on Banco Nacional de Cuba."

We would probably never have known where the funds came from to carry on this sugar trust campaign, if Senator Teller had not drawn it out of Thurber when under oath before the senate committee on Cuban relations, which is investigating the sugar trust campaign. Thurber was rather coy at appearing before the committee, and it took some persuading to get him on the stand. Evidently he was suspicious of Senator Teller's intentions, and well he might be, for the senator also drew from him that that generous old soul, Havemeyer, had also contributed a four-figure check for the same cause.

It would thus seem that the administration, through Secretary Root and Gen Wood, are hand and glove with Havermeyer and the sugar trust, and furnishing money to carry on the sugar trust campaign, not out of their own pockets, but, Rathbone-like, out of the Cuban treasury.

How these patriots do love the Cubans! One can hardly believe such things would happen. The next thing that may be expected after such an exposure of cooperation of the administration with the trusts is that some way will be found to make a draft on the United States treasury to help the poor beef trust defend itself against that other member of the administration, the attorney general.

After this exposure of the filching of campaign funds for the sugar trust from the cuban treasury, while controlled by the administration, congress would seem to be duly bound to make an appropriation for the amount that the sugar trust campaign fund has received from the Cuban treasury. Having shown the Cubans the way to influence legislation, we may in the future expect a continuance of these campaign methods by the new Cuban government, in cooperation with Havemeyer and the sugar trust, until they get free Cuban sugar.

PROFITS OF THE STEEL TRUST

Foreigners Get the Goods Cheap While American Consumers Pay Trust Prices.

Men on the inside say that the United States steel trust will, for the first quarter of its second year, which ends June 30, make profits at the rate of $150,000,000 a year. No other industry on earth can show half as great profits.

This world's greatest industrial giant ships its products to every country of the globe. Of course it cannot dictate prices in other countries, like it can in this tariff-protected house of trusts, but it can well afford, as its profits show, to meet the prices of its unprotected competitors in foreign countries.

Mr. John W. Gates testified that his trust supplies two-thirds of all nails consumed in England. He could have added at from one-half to two-thirds of the price charged for the same nails in this country. The steel trust supplies the world with barbed wire. It also sells other wire, steel rails, structural steel and many other kinds of goods, all of which are sold to foreigners at greatly reduced prices. Even tin plate is being sold at one dollar per box below the regular American price, when it is to be used for packages to be exported.

Based partly upon the difference between the domestic and export prices of the steel trusts's products, and partly upon the fact that prices here are so high that many kinds of goods are being imported, the following table has been carefully constructed to show how much of the profits of the trust is due to the tariff:

	Production.	Tariff Profit.
Finished Products.
Steel rails, tons	1,675,623	$11,729,361
Blooms, billets and slabs	2,481,227	19,849,816
Plates	742,508	7,425,080
Merchant steel, shapes, bars and hoops	1,696,342	12,363,404
Sheets	415,229	4,983,748
Tin plate	464,746	10,115,833
Wire nails	600,000	4,000,000
Barbed wire	300,000	2,400,000
Other wire and products	378,898	7,576,760
Tubes and pipes	693,155	5,549,240
Axles and forgings	90,759	907,590
Angle bars and joints	127,582	893,071
Structural work	489,505	4,895,050
Miscellaneous	70,837	566,776
	9,486,798	$93,295,581
Deduct, as shipped to constituent cos.	2,000,000	20,000,000
	7,486,798	$73,295,581

It may be that the farmers and laborers of this country are proud of this trust, and contribute willingly to swell its profits to unheard of figures. It may be that they envy the foreigners who get our trust goods cheap and have no home trust to match ours. It may be that they still think of our steel trust as an infant that could not get along without its tariff pap. It may be that they will vote to increase tariff duties and to add more millions to the steel trust's profits. There's no telling what will please the people. Fortunately this is a matter in which the wishes of the people, expressed at the polls, will be made law.

BYRON W. HOLT.

PROTECTION TRUST COMPANY STORE.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

——Senator Elkins is somewhat right when he says President Roosevelt's message to congress on Cuban reciprocity is "applying the watercure to congress."

——The friction between the civil and military governments in the Philippines is still smouldering, though the home administration has ordered them to get together.

——A billion-dollar congress startled the country a few years ago; a two billion congress now seems probable. In the former case a democratic victory was the result. What will the harvest be this year?

——These breakfasts at Hanna's house, attended by the president and his backers, look very much like an attempt upon the part of Hanna to tie up Mr. Roosevelt as he attempted to lasso the labor leaders.

——President Roosevelt has given congress another sand-bagging on Cuban reciprocity, but the last week does not offer any new inducement over what he said in his former message. Republican congressmen are not generally mulish, and hate to get out of touch with the pie-counter.

——This congress is nearing adjournment, and, like the Fifty-sixth congress, has done nothing to lower the tariff on trust productions, which Mr. Hanna says "keep on letting well enough alone." This may be well enough for the foreigners who can buy the trust articles cheaper than we can, but, then, republican rule comes high, if we must have it.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

THE "HUMAN BOMB."

Received Probably Fatal Injuries During a Performance.

Louisville, Ky., July 3.—In the presence of 5,000 spectators witnessing an open air performance of the "Last Days of Pompeii" on the common opposite Churchill Downs Wednesday night James Dull, known as the "Human Bomb," received injuries which will probably result in his death. It is Dull's part of the performance to be hurled high in the air by a bomb which explodes, releasing a parachute by which the performer returns to earth. Wednesday night the bomb was shot into the air as usual but when it reached its greatest height it failed to explode and started to the earth with the victim unable to release himself. As the missile was within 100 feet of the ground it suddenly exploded, and, to the horror of the spectators, Dull was dashed to the earth and the performance brought to a close. When the victim was picked up it was found that his back was broken. He was taken to the city hospital.

Louisville, Ky., July 4.—Leo Stevens, the Human "Bomb," the young aeronaut, who had such a terrible fall Wednesday, died in the hospital Thursday.

New York, July 4.—Mrs. Leo Stevens, the wife of the aeronaut, said Thursday night that it was not her husband who was killed by a fall while making an ascent at Louisville. The man killed, she said, was Frank Dert, an employe of her husband, who lived in this city.

PRISON OFFICERS.

The State Prison Commission Named Them Thursday Night.

Frankfort, Ky., July 4.—The state prison commission Thursday night elected penitentiary officials for the ensuing year as follows:

Frankfort Prison—Warden, E. T. Lillard; deputy, J. H. Punch, re-elected; clerk, J. D. Kennedy, of Owensboro, succeeding G. H. Stone; physician, H. L. Tobin; engineer, R. E. Gaines, re-elected.

Eddyville Prison—Warden, Henry Hagerman, of Bowling Green, succeeding Henry Smith; deputy, Jesse Olive; clerk, Geo. Catlett; engineer, J. P. Deff, re-elected.

The commission held up the election of chaplain at the two prisons. The charge has been preferred against one of the applicants for appointment, Rev. S. C. Pete, of Union county, that during the Goebel campaign of 1899 he permitted a brother minister of the Gospel to occupy his pulpit and urge the defeat of Mr. Goebel. The charge is being investigated.

SENATOR BLACKBURN.

He Favors Primaries For the Selection of State Candidates.

Frankfort, Ky., July 3.—In response to a letter addressed him at Washington by James M. Richardson, of the state prison commission, United States Senator Jo C. S. Blackburn strongly urges the calling of a primary in Kentucky to select democratic nominees for governor and other state offices. He says: "I hope to live long enough to see it become the universal practice of our party throughout the country and to see United States senators elected by direct vote of the people. When these two things are accomplished I will be satisfied."

GOV. BECKHAM.

Reported He Will Make the Race for a Renomination.

Lexington, Ky., July 5.—Councilman John Skain, of this city, is authority for the statement that Gov. Beckham will make the race for renomination for governor and favors primary elections. Councilman Skain says he had a talk with Gov. Beckham Thursday, during which conversation Gov. Beckham avowed in unmistakable language that he was a candidate for re-election.

State Senator Resigns.

Frankfort, Ky., July 3.—Gov. Beckham Wednesday received the resignation of Republican State Senator Chas. H. Dye, of Larue county. His term expires before another regular session of the legislature. It is not likely that any one will be elected to fill the vacancy.

Plum for Lucas.

Paducah, Ky., July 4.—Attorney Frank Lucas, of this city, has been appointed auditor's revenue agent for the state at large. Mr. Lucas recently came here from Wingo in State Auditor Gus Coulter's native county, Graves.

The Date Changed.

Lexington, Ky., July 5.—Friday was the last day of the Kentucky Chautauqua's sixteenth annual meeting. The assembly decided to change the date of its annual meeting from June 30 to July 10. Dr. W. L. Davidson was re-elected superintendent.

Injured in a Runaway.

Louisville, Ky., July 4.—Mrs. Sebastian Gunther, wife of the chief of police, was bruised about the face in a runaway Thursday night, caused by the horse being frightened by a cannon cracker.

THE SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

United Mine Workers of Kentucky Will Not Sanction It.

Louisville, Ky., July 3.—The United Mine Workers of Kentucky will not sanction the calling of a sympathetic strike. Reliable information was obtained Tuesday that a secret vote had been taken on the matter with the result that the men declared that they must regard their contracts with the operators. Word of the result has been sent to the Illinois miners, who are understood to have taken the same stand. It should be remembered that the Western Kentucky Operators' association and many of the operators have an agreement with the United Mine Workers which fixes a regular scale of wages and which goes into effect April 1 and is renewed yearly. This agreement is drawn jointly and signed by the operators and likewise by the United Mine Workers' officials.

AGRICULTURE IN KENTUCKY.

Census Report Showing the Number of Farms, Etc., in the State.

Washington, July 3.—The census report on agriculture in Kentucky, issued Wednesday, shows that the farms of Kentucky, June 1, 1900, numbered 234,667, and were valued at $382,004,890 of which 76 per cent. were in land and improvements other than buildings. The value of farm implements and machinery was $15,301,860, and live stock $73,739,106. The total value of farm property was $471,045,856. The total value of farm products in 1899, which was 87 per cent. more than in 1889, was $123,266,785, of which 64 per cent. was in crops, including forest products, cut or produced on farms. The gross farm income of the state for 1899 was $102,138,255 and gross income on investment 22 per cent.

KENTUCKY BAR ASSOCIATION.

The First Annual Convention Closed With a Banquet.

Lexington, Ky., July 4.—The first annual convention of the Kentucky Bar Association closed with a banquet Thursday night. The following officers were elected: President, C. N. McElroy, Bowling Green; Vice-President, Joe Campbell, Paducah; J. M. Galloway, Bowling Green; John S. Kelley, Bardstown; F. P. Strauss, Louisville; D. S. Thornton, Versailles; S. D. Rowe, Covington; L. Apperson, Mt. Sterling; Secretary, B. Flexner, Louisville; treasurer, Kennedy Helm, Louisville; executive committee, W. C. Hall, Covington; L. McQuown, Bowling Green; M. Derman, Henderson; W. O. Harris, Louisville, R. A. Thorton, Lexington.

THE FRANCHISE TAX.

Temporary Restraining Order in Favor of the L. & N. Railway.

Frankfort, Ky., July 4.—Judge Cochran, of the United States circuit court, has issued a temporary restraining order in favor of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. against the Kentucky board of Valuation and assessment to prevent the collection of $32,099 of the franchise tax bill of $51,180 assessed against the road for last year.

The railroad company claimed that the assessment was excessive. Judge Cochran has notified Attorney General Pratt and the lawyers for the railroad company that he will hear the petition for the permanent restraining order October 7 at Covington, Ky.

Metropolis' Protest.

Paducah, Ky., July 5.—The authorities at Metropolis, Ill., 12 miles below here, are objecting because the unlicensed dogs killed here are thrown into the Ohio river and float down past that city. It is claimed that the dead dogs endanger the sanitary condition of Metropolis. Sixty dogs were killed last Friday and 40 Wednesday. Mayor Yeiser, of this city, has ordered the killing stopped.

Last Charter Member.

Paris, Ky., July 3.—In commemoration of his 50 years' continuous service as treasurer, Bourbon lodge, I. O. O. F., has presented James T. Davis with a handsome gold medal inlaid with diamonds. Davis is a charter member of Bourbon lodge, which was organized in November, 1845, and is now the sole living charter member.

Trial Continued.

Henderson, Ky., July 4.—The trial of Prof. H. A. Hayes, charged with attempting to burn the Henderson hotel, was Thursday afternoon continued until August 4, because of the absence of important witnesses for the prosecution.

Two Drowned at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., July 5.—John Kremer, a cooper living on Payne avenue, went bathing in a pond near the old Kentucky distillery Friday and was drowned. A. Venner was drowned in the river. His skiff was capsized by the waves of an outgoing steamer.

Exchange of Shots.

Paducah, Ky., July 5.—When Lewis Sample saw his wife on the depot platform at Issey with Jas. Robinson he shot at Robinson through a car window. Robinson replied with a gun, which riddled Sample's arm.

Thanks to the Flickertown correspondent for his friendly mention in week before last RECORDER. As the election is nearly 2 years off, it is hard to tell what will develop in that time. But coming as that did from our old home aud from among friends of long ago, we can hardly express our thanks in our feeble attempt.

A muddog created a great deal of excitement and uneasiness here early Tuesday morning. It bit everything that came in its way, and finally got among Clay Hensley's hogs and bit all he had. W. W. Hensley killed it while among the hogs, shooting it 8 times with a pistol. It was a white bull, and came from the direction of Burlington.

Col. Graddy is a strong advocate of a city park, and to prove his sincerity, he proposes to donate $500 if the citizens of Petersburg will contribute a like amount for a public park to be laid out and beautified on the river front near the Crisler Hotel. The location is all that could be desired for a park, and it is hoped that our public spirited citizens will give our local Carnegie an opportunity to unload a portion of his surplus that is becoming burdensome.

Jacob and Artlass Fleek and sister visited Ed Burres and wife Saturday night and Sunday. Was to have had a lemonade party but it was so rainy no one could go.

H. P. Parsons says he has passed through five locust years, but the first he was too young to remember, the other four he remembers, and paid particular attention to, and they were years of much rain, many storms and tornadoes.

Mrs. Margaret Kelly, born Dec. 12th, 1826, died at her home of heart trouble June 26th, 1902, aged 75 years, 6 months and 14 days. Miss Kelly was born, lived and died in Boone county, and in the same house. She was next to the oldest in a family of 13, 5 sisters and 8 brothers.

Jack Walton says, we must not forget to mention his new cowboy saddle. Jack feels as proud of his new saddle as a little boy with his first pants. It is an alright saddle, and has a seating capacity of 17½ inches and is immense, but when Jack gets into it there is not much saddle to be seen.

D. M. Snyder, our county school superintendent was at Lexington last week. He reports "having had a nice time, and seeing many pretty ladies, but in his travels he has not seen any better looking than our own Boone county ladies, especially those living in and around Bellevue and the Commissary." He says "Lexington is quite a town, but is not his ideal in cleanliness."

Quite a spirited argument took place in Jack Walton's barn yard one evening last week, between our worthy weather prophet, William Slayback, Jack Walton and Dan McCarty, Slayback affirming that when a lady and gentleman meet the gentleman should be the first to speak. Walton and McCarty "denied." The argument was brought about by Slayback chastising two of our young men for what he thought was a breach of etiquette on their part. The three are men of talent, possessing great argumentive abilities, and we have no doubt but their arguments were entertaining and amusing. At the close of the argument, McCarty was appointed a committee of one to confer with the Bureau of Information and get an official statement of which should speak first, the lady, or gentleman. Billy may be standard authority on the weather, but he is no good on etiquette.

IDLEWILD.—Owen Allen's dog showed signs of hydrophobia and he killed it before it bit any person or stock.

The farmers are putting up a heavy crop of hay.

Mr. E. M. and Miss Lutie Gaines have returned to Rising Sun.

Mr. Hogrifle, who has been sick for several days, is some better.

Mrs. Sarah Rector spent Thursday with her daughter, Mrs. Ben Cleek, of Richmoud.

Miss Edna Souther, of Cincinnati, is spending several days with Clarence Rector and wife.

Your correspondent was calling on Messrs. Everett Souther aud J. S. Tanner, of Point Pleasant, last Wednesday.

Quite a number from here went to Erlanger on the night of the 4th, to see the magnificent display of fire works.

Will Norman and sister, Miss Addie, Miss Mabel Huron and A. H. Norman, spent Sunday with Albert Norman, at Liberty, Indiana.

Some one "borrowed" about 4 dozen chickens from Clarence Rector, last Thursday night. Clarence says that to say that they were "Pontoed," would be casting an unkind reflection upon Ponto, for he says that Ponto would not waste time and talent on such small matters as chickens.

BELLVIEW.—The fourth passed off quietly, the farmers being busy saving their hay and grain, and tilling their crops.

The whistle of the thresher of Jas. Setters is heard in the land.

Misses Alma and Myrtle Corbin are sojourning with a cousin at Lawrenceburg.

Drury Bondurant, of Napolean, Gallatin county, broke bread with us on the 5th.

Wm Walton sold to Vest Gaines & Huey, of Rising Sun, three steers weighing 1,630 pounds each.

Jack Walton, near the Commissary, has the finest meadow in the county—25 acres without weeds or briars.

The fireworks on the evening of the fourth over at the Club house were beautiful, and were witnessed by many of our citizens.

Tony Cooke, Tim Sandford and Hogan Presser have been employed to roast the meats for the Sons of Veterans at Rising Sun.

Mrs. Eyaline Rice, who has been very sick, is some better. Mrs. Rice has passed the 89th mile-stone in the journey of life, and never had much sickness.

The rising generation of our hamlet has the bicycle craze. We are likely to report some broken bones in the near future from the tumbling we have witnessed.

Growing crops are doing well, especially corn and tobacco. The recent cool wet weather was very damaging to melons, but since the rains have ceased and the temperature changed, that great luxury is making rapid growth.

Johnny Moody and Miss Flo Arnold attended the Keeley picnic.

Miss Minnie Deck is here from the city to visit her parents for a couple of months.

J. H. Lawell and wife were visiting their son, near Burlington, last Wednesday.

They report fine fishing in the backwaters in Woolper creek. So gather up poles and lines and come down.

Vee Gaines was over last week and purchased three fine beef cattle of W. B. Walton for the Sons of Veterans Encampment at Rising Sun.

Judge Cason's appointment to fill the vacancy in the jailer's office was pronounced to be just and the right thing, first, showing respect to the deceased officer; second, showing his sympathy toward the widow; third, judgment in his selection of the man he appointed, one whose morality and honesty are above question. By this act the Judge has put another feather in his hat.

LIMABURG, July 7.—Corn and tobacco look fine.

William Garnett and family visited the Zoo, Sunday.

Chintz bugs have left the wheat fields and attacked the corn.

Ed Farrell was the first in the neighborhood to get his wheat in the barn.

Mrs. N. M. Northcutt, of Covington, came out last week and had a few pleasant days with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Rouse and Wendell, came out to the old home on the 4th—the youngster said he enjoyed the day as much as if it had been Sunday.

Our County Supt. of Schools, D. M. Snyder, was summoned here on urgent business, one day last week, and was on hand so early the next day that the business houses were barely open.

Mrs. Lorena Wills has a very pleasant outing at her mother's, Mrs. H. C. Diers, during the past fortnight, promenading with her school-mates up and down Main street. She was a school girl once again.

Little Nina McKim had an assortment of fire works that drew most of the children out on High st. Nina had invited everybody to the display, which her grandfather, Theo. Chambers was about two hours working off.

A. G. DeJarnett tarried a few hours with us, one day last week, and signified that he did not care a contiuental whether Gooch or Nadaud won, therefore held aloof from the congressional primary election held in the Old Sixth.

H. C. Diers is home on a brief vacation and shaking hands with his old acqualntances in his hearty, genial manner. The work he has been getting must have been severe as he has taken up some holes in his belt. The fall campaign may round him into good condition before winter sets in.

Mr. Louis Kuppin, brother-in-law to Mr. Isaac Kahn, and a pupil of the celebrated teacher, the late Rabbi Wise, is spending his vacation in Walton, tho he goes to the city every day to perfect himself in music and the other branches to qualify himself as a Rabbi.

The result of the recent election of officers of the Walton B. & L. Association is as follows: President, G. W. Ransler Vice President, W. R. Rouse; Secretary, S. L. Edwards; Treas., W. H. Metcalfe; Atty., F. E. Curley. Directors, A. N. Jones, Lewis Ford, T. J. Crowe, A. M. Edwards. It was a hot election, the candidates working hard.

H. L. Eskew made a business trip to Lakeland, last week, and while there was shown thru the asylum. He was so deeply impressed with the order, neatness and comfort that prevailed in the institution and the kindly care manifested toward the unfortunates, that he was amazed. Among other things the fatherly interest the Superintendent took in every one of the patients was to him very astonishing. Had Mr. Eskew been a resident of this county for a longer time and had met with him before under any circumstances he would have been impressed with the fact that he had formed the acquaintance of one of God's own make of nobility. We have for years known him and respected him as such, and Boone county may well be proud of him.

BEAVERLICK, July 7.—Richard Hoard and wife spent the 4th with James Lancaster, at Walnut Hills, Ohio.

Miss Kate Green chaperoned a crowd of little folks to the Zoo, last Monday.

Marion Johnson attended to "central" during her absence.

J. H. and C. C. Sleet and families were called to Mount Zion, Grant county, last Sunday, to attend the funeral of their sister Lucretia Franks.

Miss Lucy D. Clayton, of Hebron, was visiting the trustees of the Beaverlick school, last week, but we failed to learn whether she secured the fall term of the public school.

The people have celebrated the glorious 4th in their usually patriotic way. The day was intensely hot and every body was happy to get a few moments in a shade and make a desperate but vain effort to disperse the heat with a panama fan.

T. J. Hughes, with a large force of men, inaugurated the threshing season at the stack yard of Geo. Ossman, last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Hughes has added a straw stacker attachment to his threshing machine this year, which is proving a great convenience.

Sy Lamkin, of Big Bone, was visiting at J. B. Eldred's, last Sunday. Sy is a good judge of feminine beauty, and while attending church here Sunday took occasion to make a flattering remark upon the loveliness of Beaver's gentle sex in the congregation.

Last Sunday morning two of Mudlick's most promising young men, John Cavey and George Madin, boarded the early train at Verona and started for South Dakota, where they have the promise of paying positions. We hope their business venture will prove pleasant and profitable.

Prof. Limberg and several of his music pupils, repaired to the hospitable residence of J. L. Jones, last Saturday evening, and spent several delightful hours indulging in a choice selection of vocal and instrumental music. At 2 o'clock a refreshing repast was served and all went home feeling it was good to be there.

Three of our most cougeuial gentlemen, who have just reached the shady side of 40, R. L. Conley, G. M. Moore and J. O. Griffith, visited the city recently and returned, each possessing a brand new set of teeth, which adds greatly to their appearance as well as comfort. Widows, spinsters and maidens, sweep off the front door step and practice a sweet, cunning smile, you don't know what a day may bring forth.

HEBRON, July 8.—Chester Davis took charge of his new position in the bank at Ludlow, Monday. Chester will be greatly missed here. Wilford Bullock took his place in the store here.

The ice cream supper given at the home of Miss Grace Bullock, Friday night, was well attended—over one hundred guests were bountifully served at the tables which were gracefully decorated with ferns and flowers. The cakes were kindly donated for the occasion. Proceeds realized will be for the benefit of Hebron Lutheran church. There was a generous supply of fireworks and the many bright hued Japanese lanterns made the gathering pleasant and one which we hope was enjoyed by all present.

BUFFALO.—Robert Woods was compelled to kill his horse that had its leg broke some time since.

Wheat harvest is about over, but hay harvest is in full blast.

J. T. Davis bought a binder of Robt. Adams and is now making wheat fly.

T. J. Stephens and wife spent last Saturday and Sunday with their son and his wife, at Piatsburg.

E. E. Utz and family, and Mrs. A. J. Utz and granddaughter, Miss Jessie, spent Sunday week, with Ezra Blankenbecker and wife.

F. J. Rue and Claud Ryle spent the 4th squirrel hunting and fishing; result was 2 squirrels and 14 fish.

The chintz bugs that were in T. J. Stephen's wheat have, since the wheat was harvested, gone to his corn which is worrying him greatly.

Sunday school was organized at the Grange Hall at this place, last Sunday week, and there will be Sunday school there every Sunday afternoon at half past three.

G. L. Smith has built a fort for the rabbits, that are feasting on his late cabbage patch, by placing a row of jugs around the out side for their protection while he fires at them with his shot gun.

Mrs. Sarah White celebrated her 48 anniversary at her home, last Thursday, on Gunpowder, and entertained her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Kelly and children, of Columbus, Indiana. Their visit was a surprise to her.

VERONA, July 7.—The fourth passed off quietly here.

Miss Bertha Kennedy is on the sick list.

The threshing machines will start this week.

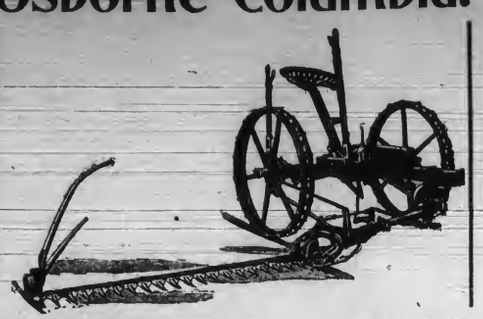
Verona turned out to be the Banner Gooch precinct of the county.

Wheat and rye have been cut and were much better than expected.

George Fling, of Flingsville, was mixing with the people here last week.

O. K. Whitson and family spent the fourth with Dr. A. N. Jones, of Walton.

The contract for papering Salem church was let to John Fink, of Walton.



Kirtley Johnson and family, of Covington, spent last Sunday with J. M. Bowers and wife.

Mrs. Fannie Noell and niece, Miss Bertha Gorden, of Beaver, spent last Sunday with Mrs. Sallie Powers.

Howe Cleek, of Beaver, visits in our burg quite often. There is some attractions here for our friend Cleek.

Misses Mary Blanch Roberts and Jennie Smith, have just returned from a pleasant visit to Dry Ridge, Grant co.

Special attractions will be given at the Lawrenceburg Fair every day—August 12-16.

Mr. Jno. DeCarris, of Georgetown, Scott, county, was the guest of Miss Ella Duncan, Sunday.

The Keeley picnic, last Saturday afternoon, was well attended and was a success in every detail.

Miss Margaret Richardson and Mr. Robt. Hughes, of Ludlow, spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Rouse.

Sheriff Allphin and wife spent the fourth and the latter part of last week with friends in Gallatin county.

Joe Revill Furnish received his donkey and cart from Lakeland, yesterday, and he is now having real pleasure.

Tony Bentler has purchased a new 16-horse power engine with which to run his separator. He will receive it in a few days.

Mrs. Lon Utz, of the Union neighborhood, was the guest of Mesdames Homer and Roy Clutterbuck, Thursday and Friday.

Arthur Scott and sister, Miss Eva, of Crescent, spent the fourth of July in Covington, with their sister, Mrs. Bart Stuntebeck.

Mrs. T. J. Adams and children desire to thank their many friends for the kindness and sympathy shown them in their severe affliction.

Eddie Rue, son of John Rue, of Lexington, is spending several days with his relatives in this county. He is a sprightly, genteel young man.

Monday Owen Conner sold to James Adams, of Pendleton county, a jennet with a jack colt by her side, for $75. The colt is only a few weeks old.

Mr. C. A. Roberts and sisters, Misses Laura and Stella, of Verona, and Mr. Howe Cleek, of Beaver, were guests of C. C. Roberts and family, Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Carrie Latham, of Florence, returned home, last Monday, after a visit of several days with her sister, Mrs. Albert Conner, of Locust Grove neighborhood,

Mr. and Mrs Timothy Westbay, and Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Walton, of Covington, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Berkshire, of Petersburg, were guests of friends in Burlington, Sunday.

Samuel Adams arrived home from Walla Walla, Washington, last Saturday afternoon, and Monday morning he qualified as jailer to fill the vacancy in that office, occasioned by the death of his father.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Adams of Pendleton county, spent several days the past week with the widow and children of his brother, the late Thomas J. Adams. Mr. Adams is a justice of the peace in Pendleton county.

Dr. Elijah L. Grant, over 80, died at his home in Petersburg at 5:30 p. m., yesterday. He had been in feeble health for some time. At the time of going to press we had not heard the arrangements for the funeral.

It was the Lawrenceburg Granite and Marble Works that put up J. W. Galnes' family monument in Bullittsburg cemetery, and not F. W. Kassabaum & Son, of Aurora, as our Idlewild correspondent stated by mistake, last week.

Mrs. Lucinda Delph, widow of James Delph, died last Sunday afternoon, aged 76 years, 1 month and 10 days. The funeral was preached at the house, yesterday at 2 p. m., by Rev. Slater, after which the remains were laid to rest by the side of those of her husband. A good woman has gone to her eternal reward.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

The fire works here on the night of the 4th were more extensive than usual, and many of the pieces were very beautiful. The only occurrence to mar the evening's pleasure, was the killing of ex Sheriff Elmer Beall's pet canine. The little dog attempted to handle a cannon cracker with its mouth, and the explosion gave it a sudden transposition to that place were all good dogs are supposed to go after having given the mortal coil the shake.

Summer complaint is usually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

The Democratic Congressional Committee of the Sixth Congressional District met at Walton Saturday and canvassed the vote cast in the late primary, and declared Hon. D. Linn Gooch, the nominee, by a majority of 4,594. The Chairman and Secretary of the committee were instructed to notify the County Clerks in each county in the district of Gooch's nomination, and instruct them to place his name on the ballot for the November election as the regular Democratic nominee for Congress. The vote by counties was as follows:

Counties.	Gooch.	Nadaud.
Boone	742	249
Campbell	886	807
Carroll	718	104
Gallatin	376	50
Grant	1,162	466
Kenton	2,223	676
Pendleton	411	105
Trimble	309	276
	6,827	2,263

The trustees of the old cemetery desire all the lot owners to clean off their lots or contribute toward having it done. If it is agreeable to all concerned the trustees would like to have the mounds over the graves leveled down, as it would make it much easier to keep the grave yard in order.

It is going the rounds of the papers that D. E. Castleman will be a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney of this district. The Recorder has authority to say he will not be a candidate; in fact he has never thought of making the race, and is perfectly satisfied to remain at home, discharging the duties of county attorney, and looking to his professional business.

The Christian Endeavor Social held at the home of Mrs. Roy Clutterbuck was well attended last Friday, despite the exibition of fireworks, which occurred earlier in the evening. The program rendered was first class in every respect, and reflects great credit on the committee in charge. Miss Sadie Kirtley surprised and pleased those assembled with her recitations.

In this issue Samuel Adams is announced as a candidate for jailer of Boone county, to fill the vacancy caused in that office by the death of his father, Thos. J. Adams, a few days since. At the time of his father's death Mr. Adams was engaged at good wages in the far west, but realizing the fact that his mother, who is partially blind and his little brother, a poor little cripple, had only a sister here to look after them, he gave up his position and came home to provide and care for them, believing that to be a duty he owed them as an obedient son and a loving brother, and to assist him in this undertaking he asks the Democratic party to make him its candidate to at least fill out the unexpired term of his lamented father, whom the party delighted to honor. Samuel Adams is a sober, quiet, industrious gentleman and will make the county a good officer, and his nomination and election will be only carrying out the will of the party, when, in 1901, it nominated and elected his father. So far as there has been any expression his appointment to the office of jailer gives the very greatest satisfaction, and it is believed that he will have no opposition for the nomination.

The Boone County Democratic Executive Committee met in Burlington, Tuesday, July 1, 1902, and the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, 1st, That a primary election be held in the twelve usual voting precincts in Boone county, on Saturday, August 23d, 1902, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., standard time, for the purpose of nominating a Democratic candidate for county jailer, a vacancy having occurred in that office by the death of Mr. Thomas Adams.

2d, That all known Democrats, who will be legal voters at the regular November election, 1902, shall be allowed to vote.

3d, That the expenses of said primary election shall be prorated among the number of candidates voted for.

4th, That the entries for said primary election shall be closed at 12 o'clock (noon) on the 8th day of August, 1902, and if there be but one announced candidate for said office, the chairman of this committee shall declare him the nominee, and, together with the secretary, shall certify said nomination to the clerk of the Boone County Court, and said nominee and candidate shall pay all expenses for arranging for said primary election.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similiar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

FLORENCE.—One of the most pleasant and appropriate celebrations of the glorious fourth, was the reunion of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Clore at their palatial residence near this place. It is not necessary to say that everyone present, both young and old, enjoyed themselves to the uttermost extent, as everyone in the county knows the hospitality and joviality of Mr. and Mrs Clore. Among the older persons present were, Leonard Crigler and wife, of Hebron; James Kelly and wife, of Burlington; Samuel Helm and wife, of Hebron; Mrs. Harry Goslien, of Columbus, Ohio; Charles Helm and Miss Alice Helm, of Bullittsville; Samuel Aylor and wife, of Hebron; Mrs. Wm. Helm, of Cincinnati; Mrs. Edgar Riggs, Mrs. Joe Mitchell, Mrs. Wm. Riggs, Mrs. Eva Riggs, Mrs. Mabel Riggs, of Erlanger; Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. E. H. Helm, of Ludlow; Wm. Aylor and wife, and Miss Pearl Aylor, of Hebron; Mrs. A. G. Fisk, Mrs. Harry Fisk, of Florence; Miss Maud Wiugate, Miss Laura Crisler, Miss Pearl Crisler, and Mr. Will Crisler, of Petersburg; Mrs. Simpson Riggs, of Birmingham, Ala.; Edward Aylor and wife, of Cincinnati. Last, but not least, came the children and grandchildren, of whom there were several, to enjoy the pleasures of the day with Grandma and Dad. It is needless to say that the merriment of the children was enjoyed by the older ones as much as by the children themselves. About 1 p. m. all were invited to the dining room where the table groaned beneath all the delicacies of the season, prepared as none but Mrs. Clore could, and to them each and everyone paid their respects. At 5 o'clock p. m. all took their leave for their homes, but with one acclaim pronounced it a fourth of July long to be remembered by all present, and wished Dad and his estimable wife may live to see many more such fourths of July.

Louis Scott and Miss Mary and Annie Miller, of Florence, attended the fire works at Erlanger, last Friday eveuing.

RICHWOOD.—Thomas Rice is quite sick.

Mrs. Carrie Robinson is on the sick list.

Wm. Woodward, of Crescent, took 25 dozen roast ngears to market on the 3d, the first of the season from about here.—Walter Grubbs visited in Covington on the 3d.—J. C. Robinson has sold his flock and gone out of the business of raising sheep.—Our people are looking to their livestock for exhibits at the fair.—Miss Anna Wilson has returned from a visit to her sister at Constance.—O. F. Clackin had a valuable Shorthorn cow to die last Saturday.—A letter from J. W. Dixon, at Cocoa, Florida, reports 97 in the shade, and mosquitoes as large as pigeons, and that these pests are armed with crowbars.—Geo. Barlow and Joseph Hughes each shipped a car load of lambs from here, Friday night.—Prof. Collins, of Covington, was the guest of his father, here last week.—Dan Haley and niece, of Covington, visited friends here last week.—No fights, jags nor casualties to report in our usually quiet town, on the fourth.—Edward Stephens is seriously ill of neuralgia.—Many of our people visited Erlanger on the evening of the 4th.—Miss Susie Woodward, of Covington, is a pleasant guest at John Tanner's.—Excelsior Grange will meet at 2 pm, July 19.—Miss Maggie Snow, of Williamstown, was the guest of Samuel Dobbins, last week.—Fielding Grubbs and Mr. Brown, of Beaver, were guests of friends here, last week.—Willie Glacken is on the sick list.—Jefferson Carpenter is able to be about again.—Wheat nearly all in the shock, clover cut and timothy begun on, oats nearly ripe.—Will and Theo. Carpenter are rubbing their stallions for the fairs. Bedinger and Carpenter will represent Richwood and will knock a few dollars down.—A telephone line is talked of from Union via Mt. Zion road to Lexington pike, thence north to Crescent. It is hoped it will go as it will connect us with the surrounding towns.—Marshall Hill and family of Covington, were guests of relatives here last week.

GASBURG, July 7.—An immense amount of coal has passed down the river in the last 3 or 4 days.

William Green, an old time resident of this end of the county, is dangerously sick at the Soldiers Home at Dayton, Ohio.—Tobacco flies were quite numerous 2 or 3 weeks ago but they have entirely disappeared.—Very few spent the 4th away from home although there were more than the usual attractions in Aurora and Lawrenceburg.—Mrs. Mat Berkshire and daughter, Mrs Wm. Crisler and children, of Brooklyn, N. Y., are visiting at Ben H. Berkshire's.—The corn and melon vines have been on the jump lately and large yield of both are anticipated.—A hound with a bell fastened to its neck is seen most any day around here.—An assessment of 15 cents on the $1 and a poll tax of 50 cents has been levied to repair our school house, which was badly damaged by a wind storm some time ago.—The water is getting dangerously near the growing crops along the river and Woolper.

LIFE'S UNCERTAINTY.

According to the Old Saw, Man Proposes, but God Disposes.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher in Which He Draws Important Lessons from Recent Events.

Text:—Go to now, ye that say: To-day or to-morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain: whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away. For that ye ought to say: If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that.—James 4:13-15.

Go to Now.—Out on the western ranges where the cowboy reigns supreme and the cattle roam almost at will, the swish of the lariat is heard as it uncoils in the air in sure pursuit of the animal which is rushing on whither it knoweth not, but still goes rushing on until the tightening lengths of the rope bring the heedless creature to its knees, while the sinewy, tough little pony, by the firmly-planted forefeet and quivering haunches, says as plainly as words could speak: "Go to now." As the world goes rushing madly on whither it knoweth not, but on, on, on, making its plans for weeks and months and years to come, heedless of time and of eternity, James, with his arm nerved by the truth of God, throws out the lariat of God's Word and seeks to bring the world up with the quick, vibrant tones of: "Go to now." Would to God that its coils would tighten around your heart, my friend, and hold you long enough for you to drink in the message which he proceeds to deliver. He would drag you from the swift, uncertain current of man-wrought schemes and plans, and wrecked purposes and desires, and plant your feet on the sure, sure ground of God's plans and purposes for you and for the world about you.

As the bottle dropped from the vessel's side is tossed hither and thither by the ever-restless waves and brings up uncertainly in an unlooked-for and unexpected quarter, so the one who seeks to navigate the unknown sea of life without chart and compass from God finally strands on an unknown shore, and what a moment before was smooth sailing and bright sunshine is found to be the grating sands of bitter disappointment, if not the adamantine rock of eternal darkness. Man, if he would sail successfully and surely and reach port at last, must let the hand of God steer his bark.

"Go to NOW." Across the rippling waves, which are kissing the sides of our stanch ship, while the sunlight plays in the swelling rigging and our hearts beat a merry tune, come the warning words.

"Why so?" we shout back, as our boat speeds on its way.

"Because the storm and the rocks are just ahead," quickly comes back the reply.

Our eye sweeps the vast expanse of the blue heavens—not a cloud in sight. The soft breeze fans our cheeks and whispers of a safe journey and a harbor head.

With self-complacency and inward confidence, which is fed by the present moment of favorable conditions, we turn with smiling face to the messenger following in our wake and shout: "This ship is bound for such and such a city. Our plans were all most surely laid before we left port yester morn. Thus far we have come upon our journey and the signs are all most auspicious. In the city at which we feel confident of arriving we shall continue for a year, and buy and sell and get gain." And at the thought we crowd on all the canvas and go bounding forth while our impatient heart speeds on ahead in hopeful anticipation.

With desperate cry the voice behind pleads: "Ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away."

With some uneasiness of conscience, for the words have struck home, we turn to the worldly-wise about us and stop our ears with their counsel and advice. On, on, we go with the full confidence of the favorable present, while the warning cry of God's messenger grows faint and fainter in the distance. Aha! we have outsailed our uncomfortable friend. The sun still shines, the soft breezes continue to blow, and our bark, cutting the waves, will soon be at the promised haven. With our ship laden with the rich spoil of the year's sojourn in the city we will return and demonstrate the fallacy of the needless warning.

But while we are thus reasoning in our hearts, suddenly the heavens darken with the rushing clouds of adversity, the lashing waves catch our now fragile ship and carry it on whither we would not have it go. Ah! how impotent are human strength and skill now! With frantic endeavor we haul in all sail and lashing ourselves to the wheel, endeavor to steady the ship in her mad careening.

The wind shrieks around our head as if all the imps of darkness were let loose in their fury. Their voices cast in mad glee in our teeth the warning we had heard during the fair and promising weather: "Go to now. For ye know not what shall be on the morrow." Alas! it is too late now! The relentless storm of our own selfseeking and human wisdom is about us, the rocks are just ahead. The next mighty wave catches our helpless ship of human plans and, dashing it upon the rock, grinds it to pieces. The rolling waters cover the wreckage of shattered plans, and perhaps we learn some answer to and teach us, but more often we don't, but continue to seek our own way and gratify our own desires. And yet God, in patience and love, continues to cry: "Go to now!"

Men-Made Plans.—What! Shall not man make plans then? Would you misapply to your own destruction the Scriptural admonition to "take no thought for the morrow?" Would you so live in the present as to bear no responsibility in thought or deed towards the future? Never! Nothing is farther from God's thoughts or more contrary to the spirit of God's Word. God wants us to plan, but not apart from Him but with Him. "For that ye ought to say: If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that." Here are the teeming millions of the earth, the multitude of nations, the busy centers of industry and activity which stud the earth like the stars of heaven, weaving the uncertain and perishable pattern of human plan and endeavor, while God looks on and mourns at the confusion and discord and destruction wrought. As one mind in the great silk mill must design the pattern and direct the forces which are appointed to work it out in its perfect beauty, so God in His infinite wisdom has planned for man and would help him in working out the perfect patern. But man in his blind willfulness sweats and groans, and struggles under the burden of life and soils and mars the pattern, and when disappointment and failure come, bitterness of heart settles down upon the life, if not self-inflicted death which is the full fruition of the sorrow of the world.

Lot made plans which led him right into the heart of the life and activity of Sodom. He came to be a great man in the city and succeeded in piling up much of its wealth about his own fireside, but, while resting in the satisfaction of his own substance and his own security, while his daughters, reared in the atmosphere of prosperity of that wicked city, were wedded to Sodomites and to the sin which later wrought their destruction; while Lot was seemingly successfully working out his own plans, the fire of God's wrath fell and licked up the city and its iniquity, and Lot barely escaped with his life. And Abraham, away back there on the hillside, as he gazed towards the burning city, realized as never before that to follow God and plan with Him meant security and safety and certain success.

"In the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away;" that man-made plans would fall like a house of cards before the on-moving plans of God. For 100 years Noah preached on one text, and while he warned the people of the coming flood they made their plans, they built their houses, had their family reunions and gay weddings, and perhaps when they had nothing else to occupy their time, they went around to see how Noah was getting along with his "fool ark," as they called it, and joked him about his old-fogy notions of God's wrath and the certain punishment of sin, just as today the world is outgrowing the good, old-fashioned Gospel of hell-fire and salvation alone through the blood of Jesus Christ, and turning to a man-made gospel of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, which robs God of His righteousness and man of true fellowship. But today Noah is with the redeemed in Heaven because He planned with God, while those who would not hear His voice but planned after the devices of their own hearts suffered the judgment of God and perished.

Friend, are you planning apart from God? Are you saying: "To-day or to-morrow I will go into such a city, and continue there for a season, and buy and sell, and get gain?" Aye, that we might awaken you to a sense of the uncertainties of life by unrolling before you the solemn panorama of the record of man which God gives us in His faithful Word. From Adam to the days of Noah, man turning from the certainties of God to the uncertainties of life and miserably perishing; from the time of the flood until the confusion of tongues at the tower of Babel, man building for himself and meeting contemptible defeat as he is scattered in confusion over the earth; from the time of the founding of the Jewish nation until the coming of the Christ, man in the pride of his own heart, serving self and making unto himself strange gods, and so writing final failure for the human race across the heavens. And in all this we find set forth the one great fact of the uncertainty of man and the uncertainty of life. And on the other hand, in bright and cheerful contrast, we read the certainty of God, as in final triumph He places over man's failure His Christ and His cross and lifts the gaze of man from earth to Heaven, from the uncertainty of the things of time to the certainty of things not seen, eternal in the Heavens.

From the days when the waters of the mighty flood rolled themselves over the inhabited world, down through the ages to the present of Mont Pelee's thunderings, we read this message to the world: The uncertainty of life. As the world reads the story of the perishing of thousands in a moment of time and a prosperous city with its massive buildings leveled with one mighty, awful burst of nature, will it not learn the lesson of the hour and realize the uncertainty of life and the certainty of God and His promises? "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away."

Again there breaks upon the eyes of the world a sad spectacle. The sovereign of a great nation elaborately plans for a magnificent ceremonial crowning, and invites the nations of the earth to share in the glories of the occasion. For weeks and months the forces of the empire have been concentrated to make the event one of surpassing grandeur. The preparations went forward to the very eve of the coronation. London's streets had filled with the gayly-attired guests of the nation, and a mock ceremony was gone through with that each, from the king down to the waiting page, might know his part and play it well, and then suddenly there breaks on the ear of the world the sad news from London. Sickness lays the great king low, and his coronation is off. The mute crowds in the streets of London see the magnificent decorations removed, hear the sound of the hammer and the saw as the miles and miles of grand stands are removed, behold the special coronation ambassadors depart to their respective countries. The sound of the grating key in the doors of Westminster abbey rasps on the ears as the vast auditorium which was to have been the scene of the crowning is closed. The powerful fleet of majestic battleships steals out of the harbor. The hotel men and the tradesmen and the insurance companies face a heavy loss instead of the harvest of golden coins. London is left in her gloom. The world reads the sad story, but will it learn the lesson? As you read the story, the shock of the distressing calamity bears in upon your soul and makes you think for the moment, but will you learn the lesson? Listen to the voice of God: "Ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away."

All the king's power and all the king's wealth, all his influence, all the wisdom of his statesmen, all the skill of his physicians, all the devotion of his subjects, all the strength of army and navy, all the sympathy of the nations of the earth, cannot stay the march of the disease that places the monarch on a bed instead of in the waiting coronation chair. Can you behold such a spectacle, can you thus stand before such impotency and weakness, and turn with untouched heart from the message of God as He declares that your life is but a vapor that appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth away? Can you stand before that silent ruin of St. Pierre with its crumbled walls and buildings and its pall of volcanic dust covering the crushed and blackened bodies of thousands upon thousands of strong men, and fair women, and little children, and be unmoved by the uncertainty of life? Again hear God speak: "Boast not thyself of to-morrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth."

In this modern day in which you and I live the island of the sea has thundered forth a message which has echoed throughout the world, telling the madly-rushing nations of the uncertainty of life. The nations' representatives have gathered while the warning of Mont Pelee was still ringing in their ears and have stood bowed before the sick bed of a king, instead of paying him homage as he sat with a magnificent crown upon his head in the coronation chair, and have turned away realizing how powerless and weak the human arm is, and that life is indeed but a vapor, that appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth away. In the name of the Lord, who loves you with a love unspeakable, learn the lesson of the hour before it is too late, and link your life into the latter thought of our text: "If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that."

Planning With God.—It is a blessed thought full of inspiration and comfort that in Christ Jesus we become linked with God in a copartnership relation which it is our privilege to realize in the everyday affairs of the home, the shop, the office, the profession, everywhere, and wherever God has set our feet and called us to labor. If we are kept by the power of God and realize it, we can serve and plan with an eye single to His glory and know that come what may we are in the hollow of the hand of the Almighty God and nothing can remove us. Misfortune may rob us of every earthly possession, but we are still rich in Him and heir to the wealth of Heaven. Calamity may come and the fire of a Mont Pelee may enwrap us, but it is only to be set free from the prison house of this body and to be forever with the Lord. Sickness may come, or cruel accident, and lay us low upon our beds, but again we can sing that we are more than conquerors through Him that loved us and gave Himself for us, and can make the sick bed and the racked body sure stepping stones to the carrying out of the plans we have made with God. Oh! it is blessed indeed, by the will of God, to do this or that, if we live. It is a weary struggle to plan and work alone. No wonder we hear on every hand the discouraged cry: "Is life worth living?" Apart from God it is not. It is a weary, uncertain struggle here and darkness beyond the grave. But with God as the active agent ruling in and over our lives the earthly walk becomes one of victory, for "we run, not as uncertainly; we fight, not as one that beateth the air."

The pattern of life we weave as we plan with God bears the impress of Heaven, and we work not uncertainly, as do those who work apart from God. We may work in the dark sometimes; we may not be able to see how our feeble effort is to become part of a perfect whole.

"But, looking above for the pattern, no need to fear;
Only let him look clear into Heaven—the perfect Pattern is there.
It is keep the face of the Saviour forever and always in sight.
His toil shall be sweeter than honey and his weaving sure to be right.

"And when his task is ended and the web is turned and shorn,
He shall hear the voice of the Master; it shall say to him: 'Well done!'
And a crown of light from the courts of Heaven to the earth to share in the glories of the occasion. For weeks and months

DDD WEAPONS OF FILIPINOS.

There Is Much Interesting Material for the Collector of Curios to Be Found Among Them.

Both the archaeologist and the collector have a noble harvest-field of curious weapons of the chase and war in the Philippines. The archipelago is not uniformly civilized, but consists of layers of social strata ranging from the educated well-bred man of Manila to the naked Gaudanes and tree-dwellers of Mindanao. They are not even members of the same race. The Tagals and Visayas are fine types of the Malay, while the Negrito is a Papuan, and the Aeta is a brother of the Ainos of Japan, and belongs to some ancient hniry race, which once held sway in this part of the world, says the New York Post.

All the men use weapons, and like to get the best they can, but with warring races, especially hunters and hunted, the lower ones are compelled to use those which they are able to make themselves. Around the big cities may be found modern rifles, such as the Mauser, the Krag-Jorgensen, and the Wincester. Further inland you run across old Springfields, Enfields and Minies. Still further in the interior you find the handsome but inefficient Spanish muskets of the latter part of the eighteenth century, and Lieut. Col. Sargent captured a couple of Tower muskets from some insurgents. At the fishing ports on the north of Luzon and on the east coast of Mindnnoa flintlocks have been seen. Thus, the whole history of firearms may be found illustrated in these islands. The Mnlay is a born fighter, and believes in fighting in close quarters. There is something of the old Berserker about him. His ideal warrior is a man who strips himself to the buff, oils his body with cocoanut oil, and with a sword in one hnnd nnd knife in the other, runs into the ranks of his foes to kill or be killed.

Frequently the blndes are ornamented. The Moros like to have a sentence of the Koran inscribed upon theirs, while the heathen of Mindanao prefer to color the channels an ugly red, so as to suggest the lden of dried blood. The poison they employ is not the same class as the wurali or curare of the Guarinis of Brazil. It is a toxin obtained from decomposing blood. For purposes of the chase, the sword or knife is inserted in the dead body of any warm-blooded animnl, and allowed to remain there for several days. It is then taken out and dried carefully in some place where insects cannot get at it. As it dries it assumes a slight glaze, and is of a reddish, brownish, or greenish-brown tint. It retains its deadly quality a long time. According to the natives, it will kill ten yenrs after it has been poisoned by insertion in a dead animal. For martial purposes the best poison is secured by inserting the creese in the body of a warrior, especially a brave one. His blood is said to be richer and stronger than that of any other animal.

All people who buy creese should boil the blade in strong lye, and then polish it until the metal has a bright surface. The Malay spear varies from n wooden pole, sharpened in the fire, to a staff at whose head is fastened a small creese. In Samar, a formidable weapon is made by binding n bolo to the end of a pole. With this a man sitting in a tree can lop off the hend of n person 15 feet below him. There are Mnlay bows and arrows, but the few that I have seen are primitive and inefficient.

GOVERNMENT HORSE RANCH.

A Project Afoot for Breeding the Animals for The American Military Service.

While the government has not as yet taken any steps toward the establishment of n horse ranch in these Islands, so as to raise its own stock, still no doubt exists but what the government will in the near future, either through compulsion or as a matter of economy, establish such a ranch, where all the horses and mules required for the milltary service in these islands can be raised at a great saving. At the present time, says the Manila Times, every head of stock landed here has cost the government nearly $1,000 (gold). Then it is generally conceded that imported stock cannot stand the climate as well as the native animals, and thnt it dies much faster. With native-bred horses, receiving the care thnt is given all government stock, deaths would be comparatively few, and such cases where cavalry regiments are, practically speaking, crippled through the lnck of monnts, would not exist.

The government can raise its own stock by having its own ranch, at a cost ranging from $50 to $100 gold a head. A horse raised here would be smaller than the average American horse, and be adapted for cavalry service in this country.

It is acknowledged by many cavalry experts that the American horses are, in the, majority of cases, too large for scouting purposes in these islands, it often being found impossible to get them over the narrow, rough and steep mountain trails, while smaller horses could easily meet the difficulty. If cavalry is to be maintained in the islands, it seems as though the war department will be forced to consider the scheme of having a horse rarch in the islands, in order to keep the mounted regiments supplied with mounts.

FASHION'S FRILLS ARE ALL OF THE SUMMERY SORT

Gowns for Garden Party Wear Are Unusually Beautiful—Other Gossip of the Modes.

GARDEN parties are in high favor at the fashionable resorts this season. As a means of displaying charming toilettes there is probably nothing better, for they offer possibilities of combinations that neither the reception, theater party nor evening dancing parties can lay claim to.

Foremost among the materials for the garden party gowns are silk batistes, figured gauzes, mousselines, veilings, pongees, crepe de chine and foulards. As for models, any definite description is impossible, as anything and everything which the season has offered is employed and repeated again and agsin in nll its modifications.

Shaped flounces, for example, have become a monotonous side of the subject since they have been worn long and varied in many ways. Yet they are quite as much the fashion as ever, and repetition in the new materials and modes of trimming combined with the variations in shape becomes almost if not quite a novelty.

The shaped flounce gives a graceful flare to the skirt which no other cut can quite accomplish, a fact which accounts for its popnlnrity. We hear of plaited skirts and of shirred skirts, and they are in sight in sufficient numbers to warrant their position well up on the list of new modes. But individual inspiration hns modified the idea somewhat, so we have the effect without the clumsiness of actual fullness plaited in.

For example, the plaits are made separately and sewn on after the skirt is cut with gores to fit the hips perfectly. The plaits graduate in width from one inch at the waist line to nearly three times that width at the hem, where they end in points just a little above.

Other skirt models have a hip yoke of shirring, lace or bands joined by an open stitch, from which the plnits hang. A pretty effect is made by trimming the skirt around in a deep yoke form with rows of lace insertion, set in with tiny bands of silk and arranging the plaits over this, giving the appearance of their being run through underneath.

Our illustrations show two very elaborate models of the garden party gown. They are in fact exceptions in point of elaborateness, and made a decided sensation among the fair denizens of Newport when they were first worn a few days ago at a fashionable late afternoon affair. One is made of rich black duchesse satin, very finely tucked and intersected in a Vandyke pattern with transparent insertions of fine Chantilly lace on which appear appliques of black velvet in a floral design. The foundation of white glace silk can be seen through the black lnce, and the bottom of the skirt is finished off with narrow frills of blnck spotted net which are edged with chenille. A very original hat which completes this costume is made of white crinoline, and has a large square crown somewhnt like thnt of the mortar boards worn by students, and ornamented with fine quillings of white tulle. The sole trimming in black ribbon velvet, which goes round the crown and ties in a large bow at the back, the loops and ends hanging down on to the hair. A really exquisite sunshade, which gives the finishing touch to the toilette, has a foundation of white silk veiled with white net in a star shape with insertions of transparent lace at the points bordered with narrow quillings of silk brillnnte. The frill is of white lace over chiffon and it is mnxated on an enameled stick.

The other is made in the softest white mousseline, hand-painted with blossoms of palest pink and blue and wwwive, and here and there patterned with shadowy sprays of black, the dainty and delightful fabric being closely tucked and still further elaborated by trails of roses applique in slimy black lace, and cleverly graduated in size. Narrow black velvet ribbons also put in an effective appearance on the bodice, encircling the folded waistbelt of blush-rose pink satin, and forming a trellis work fastened with wee paste buttons over the rose-ate yoke of satin, whose coloring is repeated by the cascading softness of plaited chiffon, which forms the vest. On the skirt, too, the velvet ribbons are threaded in and out between the lace-petaled roses which outline the deep flounce, and, finally, in three graduated widths they finish it off at the hem.

From a well posted Parisian fashion writer I learn that many of the smartest women there have returned to the short skirt. This has been gradually approaching—that is to say, skirts as a rule have been shorter—for some months past. But still, trains have continued to be worn even for walking in some degree.

The authority cited now declares, however, that "some of the most stylish women in Paris, those who are always dressed in the models of the day-after-to-morrow, have taken to wearing short skirts in the morning, and the afternoon when walking; and not only then, but there were quite a dozen women at Longchnmps, the smartest of the smart, who wore skirts to the ankles.

The old idea of edging narrow tucks with very narrow lace is to the fore again among the lawn and pongee gowns. On a tucked bodice every third or fourth tuck edged with lace gives a very soft, pretty effect. For a colored pongee this mode of trimming is especially good, the entire shaped flounce being in the tucks and frills.

One tendency which is conspicuously in evidence among the summer gowns for day wear is for less thickness about the neck. Lace with a chiffon lining is the nverage yoke and collnr band, and many of the gowns have no collars at all, while not n few are cut out quite n little below the collar band.

This is prettily illustrated in a soft yellow ecru mull gown, trimmed with square medallions of Cluny lace, which encircle the skirt, joined by bands of white ribbon. The narrow front breadth is outlined down either side with the squares, extend up the bodice, and the yoke is also of lace squares and ribbon.

The sleeves ending at the elbow in a cuff of lace, are in two puffs, and a bow of ribbon is the finish at the back.

This fashion of the collarless bodice is gaining favor every day, especially among the women who have the round, white throat which is necessary to make it a success. But the unfortunate phase of it is thnt those who can grace the mode the least are sure to adopt it. The power to see ourselves as others see us would certainly be a saving grace in the fashion world.

ELLEN OSMONDE.

Big Tunnels of the Future.

An article in the Pall Mall Gazette on the Simplon tunnel suggests speculation on the grent tunnel still to be made. One which involves great engineering difficulties was lately sanctioned by the Austrian parliament. It will pierce the Alps between the Vorarlberg and Trieste, and with its approaches will cost not less than £7,000,000 ($35,000,000). Another project of greater importance, though it has not yet gone further than being talked about, is for a tunnel under the Grimsel pass. This, indeed, may be regarded as the inevitable supplement to the Simplon, which it will couple with the Bernese Oberlnnd, enabling travel almost in a bee line from Calais to Milan. It is bound to come, therefore, in due course, but it will probably be the last big tunnel in our days. At all events one searches the map of Europe in vain for a place where the present exigencies of traffic call for or would justify another.

Bad Town for Sprinters.

In the city of Hot Springs, Ark., running is a misdemeanor. Any person going faster than a walk is arrested and fined. This law is in the intercst of invalids, who throng the streets and suffer rolapses from the excitement caused by the undue haste of a stranger. One who runs is supposed to be a thief, murderer, or escaped inmate.

HANDY BUTTER CARRIER.

A Comparatively New Device That Should Be Adopted by All Progressive Dairymen.

Rapid is the progress of the present age, and to keep pace with it one must be constantly on the alert to test thoroughly the availability of every new thing that comes up. Indeed, it is in this manner largely that success can be attained, for he who loiters by the way in the least is liable to be left far behind in the race, and that speedily. Hence the reason why I advance the idea of certain dairymen using the butter carrier presented herewith in the cut.

For those dairymen who make their butter into pound prints in the form of bricks, wrapped in parchment paper, or into brander, flatter, rectangular forms, with quarter-pound divisions marked off on them—as many to-day are doing—this carrier is of such convenience that it is almost worth its weight in gold, even when "loaded" with the golden-hued product.

Butter put up as described is very difficult to lift out of a box or anything else, for that matter, when snugly packed into it. Not so, however, with the device shown in the sketch, because it opens both at the top and side, and has shelves that slide in and out, each of which possesses a rectangular opening in the center. By means of this opening, if the row of "bricks" is only laid about it with the edge of each projecting just a trifle over it, one can readily lift out a pound of butter, so easy will it be for him to get his fingers beneath it; or, on the other hand, a shelf laden with butter can be removed from the box and carried to the customer's door, and the customer allowed to pick out the number of pounds desired. When peddling butter, this is, in fact, much the better way to do, for then the purchaser can see the product to good advantage, particularly if it be in the sunlight, and so satisfy himself fully as to its appearance and quality. Presenting butter in this manner also eliminates the necessity for handling the product directly in another's presence, which never is very desirable, even though the butter be paper covered.

Still, if butter is taken to the store, no less convenient is this carrier; and as to making it, anyone at all handy with tools can do the work and produce an elegant affair, too. Of course, good hardwood—stuff absolutely free from odors—ought to be employed for the purpose; but if nothing better is obtainable, oftentimes a box of the required size and quality can be found at a grocery or dry goods store.

For hinges use leather straps, and employ the same also for the handles by which to lift the carrier. Be sure to have the cleats on which the shelves are to slide exceedingly smooth and even. Then, to hold the doors in place when shut, use wooden buttons, as shown, and the affair, with the shelves properly constructed, may be considered as complete.—Frederick O. Sibley, in N. Y. Tribune.

DRAINING BY DREDGING.

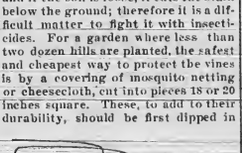
New Method by Which the Tillable Area of Many Western States Is Being Increased.

In several parts of the west new lands are being opened up by the use of steam dredges, such as are employed to deepen rivers. For a year or more some of the richest lands in Missouri have been the scene of such operations. In some cases the dredges have been able to work forward in nearly straight lines for miles, throwing the dirt up on each side of them, and leaving a broad waterway in which the scow that bears the dredging machinery floats freely. It is preparing land for drainage on a gigantic scale. The ditches being both broad and deep draw off the water from broad sections, and also act as a main ditch into which to run laterals. This land has been almost or quite worthless. By this means it will in a few years become of great value. The floating dredge is mostly used and the operations begin at the source of the ditch, so that the water may accumulate in the ditch and float the scow. The greatest problems are faced when such marsh lands are overgrown with timber of large dimensions. In this case the timber must not only be cut off, but the stumps must be cleared away. In many cases, however, it is practicable to run the ditch in a way to avoid the clumps of heavy trees. We hear of like work being done in Indiana and other states in which are considerable areas of marsh land. The tillable area of these states is thus being largely increased.—Farmers' Review.

RED AND BLACK ANTS.

Surest Way to Eradicate Them Is by Means of Carbon Bisulphide in Liquid Form.

Ants, the large red and black varieties which burrow into the ground, may be killed comparatively easily by the use of carbon bisulphide, a liquid chemical of a peculiar, disagreeable odor. To be entirely successful, however, the habits of the ants must be taken into consideration. Immediately after a rain is the accepted time to attempt their destruction, for it is then that the ants are very active, bringing out into the sun to be dried any of their stored up food supply which may have become damp. A half teacupful—more if the nest is a very large one—of the carbon bisulphide poured into the nest at this time will usually accomplish the result. The ground being damp and cool is also another decided advantage in that it prevents the too rapid absorption or volatilization of the carbon bisulphide; consequently a less quantity of the chemical is required.



A word of caution in the use of the carbon bisulphide is deemed necessary. It must at all times be borne in mind that the substance is highly inflammable, and under certain conditions explosive. Matches, pipes, etc., are to be left at home when this chemical is to be used. The carbon bisulphide can be procured from any druggist and costs 50 cents per pound, but can be bought for much less wholesale.

It is probable that the remedy is not practical on a very large scale, owing to the cost of the material, but it frequently happens that these ants select for their home, from our point of view, most undesirable places, such as public walks, or near one's door. In such cases a sure means of eradicating the pest is well worth knowing.—W. W. Skinner, Arizona Agricultural Experiment Station.

PROTECTING PLANTS.

How to Keep the Striped Beetle from Cucumber, Squash, Pumpkin and Melon Vines.

The worst enemy the cucumber, squash, pumpkin and melon vines have is the little striped beetle. It not only eats the pulp from the underside of the leaves, but destroys the stalk, and if the soil is loose, it eats the stalk below the ground; therefore it is a difficult matter to fight it with insecticides. For a garden where less than two dozen hills are planted, the safest and cheapest way to protect the vines is by a covering of mosquito netting or cheesecloth, cut into pieces 18 or 20 inches square. These, to add to their durability, should be first dipped in oil and wrung as dry as possible. Now take a piece of No. 12 or 14 galvanized wire and cut it into 20-inch lengths, bend five inches of each end at right angles, and set them two inches in the ground at the corner of each hill, as seen at a a in cut.

The netting is then spread over the frame and the edges covered with a little soil to keep it in place. This thin covering, while admitting plenty of light and rain as it falls, also keeps out the little striped beetles. Cucumbers can thus be protected until they send out laterals, and even if the vines press against the top and sides, it does not injure them. Put on the protectors just as the plants are breaking through the ground, removing them in about three weeks. Kept in a dry place when not in use they will do good service several years.—H. L. Taylor, in Farm and Home.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

The young man who secures and plants his apple orchard will not have long to wait after his trees are bearing before the profits begin.

In the use of paris green and london purple as spraying material it is necessary to make new applications each time the powder is washed off by the rain.

Lime may be regarded as an actual food for stone fruits, and it is valuable as inducing a stocky and more sturdy growth when applied to trees planted in a clay soil.

In pruning apple trees remember that open growing trees like the Grecning cannot be pruned like the Spy, the branches of which are compact and head dense. Cut off all the dead wood and all the suckers, but do not cut out the fruit spurs that appear all along the length of the branches and which can easily be distinguished from rapidly growing suckers.—Farmers' Voice.

Profit in Truck Farming.

As long as the people of this community delay in taking up the truck farming and small fruit business just so long do they neglect a fine opportunity to improve the condition of things hereabouts. A hundred acres planted in strawberries, vegetables and such like every year would be worth more in dollars and cents than a cotton factory. It would scatter more money among the people—and that is why a community wants a cotton factory. It only remains for some of our enterprising farmers and business people to take up the movement. It does not require a great amount of capital.—Grenada Sentinel.

LIQUOR AT THE CAPITOL.

How the Statesmen of Early Days Used to Stimulate Themselves When Framing Laws.

Now that some of the followers of the water wagons in the house and senate are threatening to abolish the sale of liquors from the restaurants of the great building on the hill, and the Washington authorities have imposed fines of $300 each on the keepers of the house and senate restaurants, it is interesting to look back and see how the liquid refreshments were dispensed in the days gone by, says the Chicago Tribune.

When Webster, Calhoun and other legislative giants wanted to wet their whistles when engaged in making and unmaking laws for their country, they visited what was known as the "Hole in the Wall," a small room not far removed from the post office of the senate, which at that time occupied the present supreme court chamber. This small circular room, which got the name of the "Hole in the Wall," was likewise the first restaurant the upper house ever knew, and, as may well be imagined, the menu was not to be compared to that of the present-day restaurant, the great statesmen being satisfied with a sandwich of cold beef, tongue, ham, turkey, or a few hard-boiled eggs.

While the "feed" was slow, the fluid was plentiful, and of the best, adulterated and blended whiskies not being tolerated. The liquor was good, and, as a rule, the big men took big drinks. The "Hole in the Wall" was for the convenience of senators and members, and it was seldom that the ordinary citizen managed to get a chance to let the place know his presence. Of course, the statesmen were permitted to take their friends in for a friendly bumper, but the proprietor generally turned them out when not accompanied by a senator or representative. To some extent the "Hole in the Wall" was a blind tiger, and the proprietor was afraid of being "pulled."

When the new senate wing of the capitol was finished, provision was made in its basement for the present restaurant and post office. Later on the library absorbed the old post office, incidentally taking in the "Hole in the Wall," but to-day the little circular room remains as a reminder of legislative convivialities of the days long gone.

When the Hole in the Wall disappeared there sprung up the sideboard adjunct for the committee-rooms, and these furnished with a high hand for many years, and, in truth, some of these wet goods arrangements still hold good in a few of the rooms of the have-all-he-wants senators. These sideboard arrangements were fearfully abused by many who were permitted to visit the rooms, and finally they were regarded as a nuisance. And, too, some of the papers throughout the country began to make a protest at the large sums annually set forth by the secretary of the senate as having been expended for "snuff, quinine, bear's oil, pills," etc., for which, in fact, went for the genuine old Indian fighter. The committee-room bar was anything but a success, and gave the senators a vast amount of annoyance from the fellows who were ever ready to pan-handle a little liquid refreshments.

It was in 1866 that Henry Wilson introduced a resolution in congress abolishing the sale of whisky in the building. The resolution passed, but it was never effective, and from that day to the present it has not been difficult for a drink hunter to get all he wanted, although at intervals it has been announced that the sale of liquor has ceased.

EXTINCTION OF SEA FISH.

A Question That Is Positively Answered in the Negative by Competent Authority.

In his article on "Marine Fish-Destroyers" in Harper's, Dr. McIntosh, of the Gatty Marine Laboratory, says that game laws protecting sea fish are utterly unnecessary, and states that no food fish of the sea has become extinct in modern times:

"The sum total of all the losses to fishlife by the living whales, not to include to the hordes of predaceous sharks and dog-fish in every ocean, nor to the vast destruction of food-fishes by each other, must far exceed the efforts of man. If to this is added the constant drain caused by the innumerable seals, fishing-birds and sea-otters, the grand total must, indeed, exceed belief. It is not long since a Dundee whaler could sail for 60 miles past ice-floes covered with young seals in countless numbers, yet were the sea fishes not seriously affected.

"Seeing that statistics at present are either unreliable or adverse, and that the food-fishes gain no real protection, it may be asked, what need has man to make laws and pass by-laws, close great areas and shut certain fishermen out of the sea within the three-mile limit? Nature, as revealed in her life-histories of the fishes, pays scant respect to such regulations. The only apparent result that can follow is the protection afforded to lines and nets from the powerful apparatus used in other methods of fishing. The extinction of no species of food-fish has taken place in modern seas."

Disagreeable Things.

There are a good many disagreeable things in the world. Don't let them worry you too much; there will not be much change in your time. Be careful of your own conduct; that is the best way. The man whose behavior is not good, and who annoys you, will have more trouble than you will have.—Atchison Globe.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

A large batch of Missouri officials have been indicted for playing penny ante on a fishing trip.

Oaths are said to be coming into popularity again in London society, after a century, golf and ping-pong being responsible for the revival.

One of the batsmen in a recent cricket match at Thomas Ditton drove a ball hard into the long field, where it struck a thrush which had just settled, killing it instantly.

Dr. Isaac E. Emerson, the noted Baltimore physician, who has been making a tour of the world, will arrive home about the middle of June. His yacht, the Margaret, was the first that ever visited Bombay, India, and Dr. Emerson was the first American to be elected a member of the Royal Yacht club of Bombay.

The ping-pong fad is responsible for much, and now we have the ping-pong kleptomaniac. In the Waldorf-Astoria ping-pong gallery the other night a young man in evening dress was playing. His frequent calling for new balls aroused the attention of an attendant, who at last saw him deftly slip a ball into his coattail pocket. Then the attendant called a house detective.

An attempt to climb the highest Himalayas will be made this year by a party consisting of three Englishmen, two Austrians and a Swiss, Dr Jacot-Guillarmod. They are accompanied by Swiss guides. They will begin with the Godwin Austen, 28,250 feet high, and Dapsang, 28,665 feet high. If they are successful they will then try Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world, 29,000 feet high. The Himalaya record is held by Sir Martin Conway, who climbed the Pioneer Peak, 21,000 feet high, ten years ago.

SCHOOL AND COLLEGE.

The City of Mexico, in its great preparatory school, has replaced Latin by English and made it a four years' obligatory course.

Oxford university last year spent $7,000 more than its income, and wonders how it can provide for 200 foreign students under the Rhodes bequest, which does not increase the revenue of the institution a penny.

In the Hampton institute palm leaf hats and new styles of baskets are made by the students; also rugs, and the girls use pure vegetable dyes of their own manufacture instead of the aniline colors to be found in the market.

Prof. Frederick Hirth, of the University of Munich, who is to be the first professor of the department of Chinese in Columbia university, to be inaugurated next fall, has lived in China for 27 years. For several years he was identified with the Chinese customs service.

Emory college at Oxford, Ga., at its commencement bestowed the honorary degree of Doctor of Literature upon Joel Chandler Harris, author of "Uncle Remus." It was the first time Emory college had bestowed this degree, and it was the only honorary degree conferred by the college at this commencement.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

There are now more than 1,100 pulp and paper mills in America.

Children are barred from working in 31 employments in Germany. The new law went into effect May 1.

Ship-building yards have increased in number from 500 in 1880 to 700 at present. Their output is nearly 1,100 vessels per year.

Four hundred and thirteen out of 1,000 German men live to be 50 years old. Five hundred and twenty women out of 1,000 reach the same age.

THE NORTH-WESTERN AND UNION PACIFIC NEW SCHEDULES TO DENVER.

Only One Night En Route to Colorado from Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, Indianapolis and Chicago.

A notable change has been made in the Colorado service of the Chicago & North-Western and Union Pacific Railways.

The famous Colorado Special now leaves Chicago at 6.30 p. m., arriving at Omaha 6.55 a. m., Denver 8.00 p. m. and Colorado Springs 10.20 p. m. This enables passengers from Atlantic Coast points to reach Denver with only two nights on the road, while from Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Chicago only one night is required en route. The entire train will be run solid between Chicago and Denver, with through sleeper to Colorado Springs.

East bound the train will be known as the "Chicago Special," and will leave Colorado Springs daily about 10.00 a. m., Denver 1.00 p. m., arriving in Chicago at 4.00 p. m., at a convenient hour for making connections for the east.

A train from Des Moines in connection with this new train, east bound, enables passengers to leave Des Moines at 7.00 a. m. and arrive in Chicago at 4.00 p. m.

Accommodations are provided for all classes of passengers, the equipment including free reclining chair cars, dining cars, buffet smoking cars, drawing-room sleepers and day coaches. The entire service is as nearly perfect as modern and skillful railway management can make it.

A second daily train for Colorado points leaves Chicago for Denver at 11.30 p. m.

Concerning Busts.

Some school children were being shown through the capitol the other day and visited, among other places, the vice president's room. Mr. White, the handsome young clerk of Senator Frye, undertook to play guide for the youngsters.

"Here," said he, "is the bust of George Washington, the first president of the United States. He is dead, now, you know. And here is the bust of Jefferson. He's dead, too. And this is Henry Wilson, one of the vice presidents. He died in this room."

A little girl looked up at Mr. White with wide open, wondering eyes. Did he bust, too?" she asked.—Washington Post.

THE MOUNTAIN CHAUTAUQUA.

Mountain Lake Park, Maryland. On Crest of the Allegheny Mountains.

Unquestionably the most superb and sensible summer resort in America. 3800 feet above sea level. $350,000 invested in improvements, and still the place retains its charming rural simplicity. Five hotels and 100 cottages open for boarders at reasonable rates. This resort is the site of the "Mountain Chautauqua" and summer schools, and of the great Chautauqua itself, and is annually visited by thousands of persons who are strengthened in mind by the unexcelled facilities afforded for educational work and invigorated in body by the health giving influence for which this paradise of the mountains is famous. Excursion tickets may be obtained over the B. & O. System from all points in the east to September 30th, good returning until October 31st, 1902. Special low rates during July and August for the Chautauqua and other gatherings. Information about attractions, entertainments, summer school sessions, etc., will be furnished in reply to inquiries addressed to L. A. Rudisill, Mountain Lake Park, Maryland. THINK ABOUT IT.

Is it not wiser to get a Buggy made by hand with Wrought Forgings and Oak Tanned Leather in top and good, solid work all the way through, when they can be gotten as low as

$75 from your Home Factory?

Than to buy this cheap, shoddy work with iron work cast, and made of cheapest material throughout the vehicle?

Also remember, we Repaint and Repair Work as cheap as you can get the same grade of work anywhere.

COME AND INVESTIGATE.

BRADFORD BROS., - - FLORENCE, KY.

I have had occasion to use your Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine and am pleased to say that I never used anything for stock that gave half as good satisfaction. I heartily recommend it to all owners of stock.

J. B. BELSHER, St. Louis, Mo.

Sick stock or poultry should not eat cheap stock food any more than sick persons should expect to be cared by food. When your stock and poultry are sick give them medicine. Don't stuff them with worthless stock foods. Unload the bowels and stir up the torpid liver and the animal will be cured, if it be possible to cure it. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine unloads the bowels and stirs up the torpid liver. It cures every malady of stock if taken in time. Secure a 25-cent can of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine and it will pay for itself ten times over. Horses work better. Cows give more milk. Hogs gain flesh. And hens lay more eggs. It solves the problem of making as much blood, flesh and energy as possible out of the smallest amount of food consumed. Buy a can from your dealer.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1902. NO. 39.

FRANCESVILLE, July 12.—We are now in the midst of hay harvest.

We hear that Mrs. Bruce Henry is improving some.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Julia Baisly is still quite ill.

Harry Kilgour burt one of his hands badly, Saturday, at the foundry.

Miss Ada Southorn, who has been quite sick of fever, is convalescing.

Miss Cessie Raridan, of Latonia, visited Miss Amanda Koons, last week.

Mrs. Alice Goodridge, who has had stomach trouble is improving in health.

Miss Monica Utz, of Covington, will spend several weeks with her sister, Mrs. George McGlasson.

The chintz bugs have damaged corn considerably, but we hope the recent rains has destroyed them.

Mrs. Charley Stevens and Mrs. W. B. Graves and daughter, Lenora, of Hebron, were calling on friends here, last Thursday afternoon.

Miss Nellie Markland and son, Graham, of Cincinnati, were guests of Mrs. Joe Graves, Saturday and Sunday. Graham will spend some weeks in the country.

Mrs. Alice Watts requests us to say that she would like to hear from any one having a bo yellow bronze turkey for sale, as she would like to purchase a pair. Address Bullittsville, Ky.

We have heard some expressions in favor of an all day Recorder picnic to be held at Harvest Home in August. Let all in favor of it say "I." We would say to your Commissary cor. that we profess to be no "Bureau of Information" on etiquette, but it is ruiable for ladies to speak first.

Mrs. Mary Gaines, of Richmond, is the pleasant guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Haines. On Tuesday Mrs. Gaines entertained very delightfully the following persons: Mrs. Emma Casper, of Texas; Mrs. Sidney Blankenbeker and cousin, Miss Myrtle Blankenbeker, Mrs. Johnnie Garr and son, Harold, of Louisville; Mrs. Gaines, of Richmond; Mrs. A. Corn and Miss Marie. Mrs. Matilda Goodridge, Miss Lizzie Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. Wash Watts, of Bullittsville; Mrs. Hubert Cropper, of Weneeda. The most of this party will visit at W. P. and Hubert Cropper's, next week.

COMMISSARY, July 12.—Mrs. R. M. Parsons made a business trip to Aurora, Wednesday.

Tommy Roberts, Miss Sadie Marshall and Ida May Cason spent the 4th at or in the vicinity of Hebron, and attended the Encampment at Rising Sun, Wednesday.

Fred McAtee and wife, of Indiana, visited the latter's father and mother in McVille, last Saturday night and Sunday, returning to their home in the afternoon. Mrs. McAtee's mother went home with them to spend the week.

Ben, Charley and Len Kelly, H. P. Parsons and James Botts, and their families attended the Encampment of the Sons of Veterans at Rising Sun, last Wednesday. H. P. Parsons says "it was a great big nothing—a failure in everything except flags and crowd."

Bro. White, we admit a fishfry, if properly conducted is alright. There are a great many odd combinations, and we think a fishfry in Kentucky with soft drinks is one of them. A fishfry with soft drinks is not a comfortation as a baby would be in a house full of old maids, or a soda fountain in hades, or a shaved pig's tail in a 10c loaf of bread; and all are about as much out of their natural element as a drowned mouse in a crock of cream. Aside from this, if we do have a fishfry we would have to chip in our share to defray the expenses. If the ladies prepare the grub at home, we would not have to take ours, because we have no lady to prepare it. It would not do for us to prepare it, because we would make the ladies ashamed of their cooking. Some one surely would take pity on us and invite us to dine with them, and in this way we would get a good, square meal without trouble or expense. See! It's strange how dull of comprehension some people are.

Bro. Smith, you are mistaken. We are not any lady's man, and are not a man for any lady, because we are complete within ourself—do not need a woman to make us better. We will explain: Away back at the beginning of time, when man was invented, and the model Adam was made, the Creator pronounced him, "good, very good," and said, "it is best for man not to be alone; that he would make woman a helpmate and companion for man." So, one rainy night when Adam would naturally sleep more soundly than usual, and while he was in the sleeping, unconscious of impending danger, the Creator got his big carving knife and ripped him up the back and split him in two, then made woman out of the best half of man, and ever since that time, and will as long as time lasts, men have had a yearning for the other half, part, parcel or fragment of themselves, and would look around until they find it, and then be united. The Creator in his infinite wisdom, decreed that there should be men and women, in all ages and walks in life for whom there should be no provision made in the ripping up process; men and women that are good, kind, sympathetic, grand and noble, left as standing monuments of man and woman in their primative state. Hence, they are complete within themselves. These are the old bacheiors and maids throughout the land. We belong to this class, and this is the reason, boiled down in a nutshell, why we are no lady's man, and are not a man for any lady.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

The blackberry crop is not a bonanza for anyone this year.

HATHAWAY, July 14.—E. R. Smith is quite poorly.

Jas. Sebree went to Rising Sun, Saturday.

J. L. Henderson made a business trip to Rising Sun, Wednesday.

Mrs. Joseph Riddell spent Saturday evening with Mrs. Cynthia White.

A couple of our items jumped a cog and landed in the Buffalo news, last week.

Miss Nellie Taylor, of Erlanger, was visiting at G. L. Smith's, several days last week.

Mrs. Carrie Setters, of near Bellevue, spent Sunday with her parents, on Gunpowder.

[illegible] White, of Ellerton, Ohio, came home last Saturday week and remained over Sunday.

Miss Fannie Smith spent Saturday night and Sunday with Miss Sallie Rich, of Big Bone.

Richard Stephens, of Lick creek, was out on Gunpowder last Saturday, hunting stock bogs to purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Rice, of Bellevue, spent Tuesday with Mrs. J. W. Kelly and children at the home of her parents at this place.

Robert Adams and wife, of Grant county, were guests of Harry Stephens and family, and visited Mrs. Caroline Ryle, Saturday.

Robert Harrold, the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stephen's died of spinal meningitis, last Tuesday, after a week's illness. The remains were taken to Big Bone and interred, after a brief funeral service by Rev. Taylor, of Erlanger.

Grim death again invaded this neighborhood, last Wednesday, and took from our midst the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Rouse, which died of a complication of diseases. The remains were taken to Big Bone, and after a brief funeral conducted by Rev. Taylor, were interred in the cemetery near the church.

CRESCENT, July 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Darby, of Cincinnati, were guests of Clarence Rector and family, Sunday.

Mrs. Celia Darby, who has been sick for several weeks, is some better.

Mr. and Mrs. John Flanigan and Jas. Lowery and family, of Newport, spent Sunday at the home of Henry Groger.

Some of our folks are talking of organizing a Sunday school at this place. The meetings will be held at Beech Grove school house.

Miss Maud Morin, of Cincinnati, after a pleasant visit of several weeks with friends and relatives at this place, returned home, Saturday.

In the case of T. A. Huey vs. A. C. Forsyth, a forcible entry and detainer suit, tried before Judge Tarvin, at Independence, Tuesday, a verdict for the plaintiff was rendered. In a former trial a verdict for the defendent was found.

Thos. Northcutt, a fireman on the Q. and C. is at the home of his father, Robt. Northcutt, and is suffering with a badly bruised arm and side. Young Northcutt was in the freight wreck at Crittenden, last Tuesday, and in jumping from his engine he struck upon a stack of ties, and narrowly escaped being seriously injured. As it is, Tom says, that with a few days' rest, he thinks he will be able to return to Lexington and resume throwing the "black diamond" at "old number 579." Fortunately no one was fatally injured in the wreck.

PLATTSBURG, July 14.—Earnest Baldon, of New Albany, Indiana, is visiting his uncle, John Baldon.

J. W. Gaines has been quite sick for several days.

We agree with the Petersburg cor. as to an all day picnic.

Dogs killed several sheep for Wood Sullivan a few days ago.

Cage Stephens' father and mother were visiting him last week.

Henry Smith and wife were visiting Mrs. Smiths' parents, Sunday.

C. E. Botts and wife attended E. L. Grant funeral, last Thursday.

The prospects for a good crop of corn are the best for several years, so far.

Mrs. J. W. Gaines and mother spent last Monday with Mrs. Essie Voshell and mother.

John Smith and Mrs. Lelia Grant and, were visiting at S. T. Gaines', last Saturday night.

IDLEWILD.—Lawrence Chambers is very low of typhoid fever, and his sister, Mrs. Milo Atkinson, of Vanceburg, is with him.

J. W. Kirtley, jr., and Mrs. Perry Kirtley are both sick.

Miss Lizzie Walton, of Petersburg, is the guest of Miss Beulah Gaines.

Mrs. N. S. Walton spent two days, last week, with her brother, near Constance.

J. W. Gaines, of Plattsburg neighborhood, had a stroke of facial paralysis, Friday night.

A couple of friends from Pittsburg, Penn., were guests of Mrs. R. C. Gaines one day last week.

The ladies all endorse Judge Cason's act in appointing a jailer as noble, unselfish and humane.

R. C. Gaines' two mules got crippled, last week, at a time when he needed them badly.

Mrs. W. L. Cropper was visiting her sister, Mrs. W. O. Kirtley, of Petersburg, a few days since.

Mrs. Geo. Kreyleich entertained a large number of friends in a royal manner, a few days since.

We compliment Mr. Thomas as the most original, humorous and entertaining of all your local scribes.

The relatives and friends of Dr. E. L. Grant paid their last act of respect, last Thursday, and sympathize with his sons.

Rev. J. S. Kirtley, of Kansas City, will preach at Bullittsburg church on Sunday the 20th inst., while here on a visit to his sister.

At Mrs Fannie Harris' on last Sunday were assembled four generations of a family. Mrs. Swetnam, great-grandmother; her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Harris; her son and daughter, Mr. Ed Harris and Mrs. John Watson, and the children of the same latter.

John and Eddie Kipp were out to see their parents last Sunday, looking very well. You will pardon the introductiou of so many young men, but Walton is proud of them and it is seldom so many of them are at the home village at the same time.

The Women's Missionary Society of Walton Baptist church, will hold an all day meeting July 23. An interesting program on missions will be rendered and lunch will be served. The ladies of the churches of North Bend Association and other neighboring churches are cordially invited to be present.

The Baptist church has just closed the most successful protracted meeting held here for many years. There were 41 accessions to its membership. It was truly a great revival. The pastor, T. C. Eaglan, of Georgetown, did the preaching in a manner highly acceptable to the large crowds that attended the meetings, and showed a good and popular leader of his people.

The annual meeting of the Women's Home Mission Society, of Covington, District, M. E. Church South, was held Saturday and Sunday, July 5th and 6th. There was a large concourse in attendance and much interest and enthusiasm was manifested in the exercises, which were greatly enjoyed by all present. Saturday night was the children's exhibition, which was so pleasing and attractive as to make it regretable that the youngsters had not more exercises.

Bro. R. W. Wallace, former pastor of the Christian church at this place, now of Meridian, Miss., had to remain over a short time for a train on Thursday, and embraced the opportunity to call on all his friends living close to the L. & N. depot, by whom he was welcomed and sincerely congratulated on his having secured the pastorate of one of the largest congregations in Mississippi. He promised to make another call on his return trip and see all his old friends if he had time to do so. Bro. Wallace was highly appreciated here and has bosts of friends not only among the members of his church, but also among the outsiders.

Miss Lulah Jones has had the pleasure again of entertaining the charming twin sisters, Misses Bessie and Jessie Allison, of Washington, Mason county. Readers of the Recorder will remember their visit about a year ago and the sensation their advent created. The past year must have added to their captivating powers to have our young gentlemen become more gallant. The colonial porch of Richard Jones' residence has been so frequently graced with the presence of attentive young gentlemen during the two weeks past as to make one think that the young ladies are carrying the town by storm, as it were. Mrs. Jones chaperoned the young lady, Miss Bessie, home last Saturday. Miss Jessie had returned to her home a few days previously.

A strapping young six footer, with a curious kind of a smile, stepped up to the Recorder man last Sunday and said, "I think you don't know me any more, do you?" The newspaper man reflected a few minutes and concluded it was some one he knew in years gone by and said, "how do you suppose I can keep the run of 10 or 12 year old boys who have grown 2 or 3 feet in height, and whose voice has changed, and whom I have not seen during that time?" "Well look againcous." "Hold on," said the gatherer of news. "It is Tom Northcutt, Bob's son, ant it?" "Yes," he said "I'm laid off just now, and I was going up here about a mile to see Willie Frank, when I saw you and wasnt certain it was yourself. The newspaper man was glad to see what a well grown, fine looking young man he had gotten to be—the boy had often been in his mind.

July 15.—A section hand named Chas. Howard was walking along the L. & N. track just north of town yesterday, and was watching a freight train on the Q. & C. that had broken in two. He did not hear the warning signal of an approaching L. & N. train which struck him, hurling him 200 feet against a telegraph pole, killing him instantly.

PETERSBURG, July 12.—Belden has unloaded 2 barges=26,000 bushels—of coal.

Wheat is yielding about 15 bushels per acre.

Capt. Alden is having a new engine and wheel put on the Pauline. Her speed will be greatly increased.

W. T. Stott has in his possession the coat that was worn by his uncle, Marion Carson, during the war. It is gray jeans and well preserved. In one of the pockets is a twist of tobacco which has been there ever since the war—nearly 40 years.

UNION, July 14.—Joseph Collins and wife spent last week with Dr. H. G. Lassing's family.

Miss Joy Frizer, of Cynthiana, is the guest of Mrs. J. W. Kennedy, this week.

Miss Elva Utz entertained a few friends Wednesday with a delightful dinner.

Joe Weaver and Miss Eva Smith spent Saturday and Sunday with friends in Georgetown.

Mrs. Martin Weaver and little daughter, of Tennessee, are guests of her sister, Mrs. R. D. Hedges.

The entertainment for the benefit of Golden Grange Library will be given at Union Town Hall, Saturday night, July 19th.

Mrs. Elbert Rice and Mrs. Katharine Cleek spent several days last week in Erlanger, with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Stephens.

Mrs. Phillip Feil, after a ten days' visit with relatives here, has returned to her home at Alexandria, Ind., accompanied by her father, Mr. H. W. Riley.

Misses Essie Parish, of Erlanger; Bessie Harter, of Marietta, Ohio; Ella Millsfero, of Corinth; Wallace Wolf, of Williamstown, and H. G. Blanton, of Erlanger, were guests of J. J. Garrison and wife, Sunday.

Miss Alma Baker, one of Covington's leading educators, is spending the heated term with friends here. Miss Baker, who is a native of Union, is associate principal with Prof. A. C. Collins, of the new Fifth District, Boone is justly proud of both Prof. Collins and Miss Baker.

Glencoe, Missouri, was the scene of a pretty wedding, last Monday, when Miss Gertrude Fraizer and Mr. Linceus B. Carroll, of St. Louis, were married. The ceremony took place very quietly, only a few friends being present. The bride is a niece of Mrs. J. N. Gibson and J. L. Frazier, of this place.

BIG BONE, July 14.—Born, on the 5th inst, to W. O. B. Rich and wife a 10 pound boy, and on the 10th, to Chas. Hamilton and wife, a son—its weight not learned.

C. A. McLaughlin, who has been very low for several days of partial paralysis, is some better.

The three pretty daughters of W. R. Miller, of Covington, are spending the summer at the springs.

Baker, Black, Burrows & Co. started their steam thresher, last Saturday, and the indications are that the season will be a good one for the thresher.

Quite a number of M. D's. visited the Springs, last Thursday, and enjoyed a feast in Bro. Mc.'s grove, the occasion being a regular meeting of the North Kentucky Medical Society.

Dr. T. H. Baker, Louisville's popular Postmaster, accompanied by his family, spent the 4th at the Springs, and visited relatives. Tom, as he is familiarly called, is one of Boone's self-made men.

Gen. Z. T. Baker and Col. Chas. B. Stevenson attended the Sons of Veterans' Encampment at Rising Sun, last Thursday, and like Admirals Sampson and Schley they are both claiming the credit for victories in the past, and the discensions arising will have to be referred to a court of inquiry.

RABBIT HASH.—There is an unusual amount of sickness in this neighborhood.

W. B. Ryle was on the sick list two or three days last week.

Jno. VanNess, who works at Hamilton, Ohio, visited home folks, Sunday.

The Grange will have its entertainment the 4th Saturday in this month.

Wm. Wingate shipped his crop of Heaglow apples to Cincinnati, Sunday night.

Mrs. Jessie Wilson, of Lawrenceburg, and her mother Mrs. Victoria Stephens, spent the day at Mrs. Maud Walton's, last Thursday.

James Setters is in this neighborhood with his thresher. There is an unusually small amount of threshing to be done in this immediate vicinity.

The Rising Sun Local gives Mr. Summers credit for the cooking of the meat at the barbecue held there Wednesday, when it was three Kentuckians, who really did the cooking.

This part of the country was practically deserted, last Wednesday, as everybody spent that day in Rising Sun, and were royally entertained all day and night of the night. The balloon ascension was a great success as was also the fireworks at night on the river front. The tragedy in the evening put a damper on the spirits of a great many.

GUNPOWDER, July 14.—Miss Lizzie Michaels, of Covington, is a pleasant guest of Mrs. Ella Tanner.

W. H. Garnett is numbered among the sick.

B. C. Surface, who has been confined to his bed for three weeks, is improving slowly, but is not able to sit up.

Robert Tanner and wife had the misfortune to lose their only child, whose death occurred on the 7th inst., aged 8 months. It had been a sufferer of eczema nearly all its life, and suffered most intensely until called to its reward. It was interred in Hopeful cemetery, Thursday the 8th inst., in the presence of a host of friends and relatives. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved parents.

CONSTANCE, July 15.—Yesterday a stranger accompanied by 2 boys came down to the ferry boat landing on the Ohio side, and the boys went in swimming, against which Louie Kottmeyer protested on the grounds that ladies were liable to come to the boat at any time. The man flew into a passion and was swearing and cavoiting around in a terrible rate, and he and Henry Kottmeyer hooked up. Loule parted the combatants before either was disfigured. Loule and Henry went on the boat, on which the stranger began a rapid fire with boulders, refusing to stop, though repeatedly commanded so to do. Finally Louie went into the cabin and got his rifle, and fired into the rocks in the direction of the man, when the ball glanced, giving the stranger a slight flesh wound in one leg. Mr. Kottmeyer surrendered to a city policeman.

BUFFALO, July 12.—Mrs. Joe Love is very sick at this writing.

T. M. Rich, of Covington, spent last week very pleasantly with his daughter, Mrs. Noah Clore, near town. He came armed with rod and line and spent several hours with the Gunpowder finny inhabitants. He went home Monday.

[Warsaw Independent.]

O. M. Wood, the public spirited merchant at Carrollton, who has been making an extraordinary effort to secure the right of way for the traction railroad from Milton to Cincinnati without resorting to legal proceedings, has announced that the right of way, with few exceptions, has been obtained along the entire route, and condemnation proceedings will now be instituted against all those who have refused to grant the right of way and a jury will name the amount that should be paid, but as such people are as greatly benefitted as those who are public spirited enough to give the right of way, a jury will give very small damages. Arrangements are now being made to hold a meeting of the incorporators and take the preliminary steps toward building the road. Regarding this move the Cincinnati Times-Star of Tuesday has the following: "The directors of the Cincinnati & Milton (Ky.) trolley line expect to hold a meeting within the next few days, at which contracts will be made for the first work on this trolley line, which is destined to eventually connect Cincinnati with Louisville. Plans and estimates have about been completed by Chief Engineer Layman, who has charge of the engineering corps. Mr. Layman states that the survey which he recently completed between Florence, Ky., and Carrollton is one of the most free from grades ever made by a railroad or traction line. Much of it follows the old survey made a dozen years ago by Collis P. Huntington, when the latter threatened to build a railroad to connect Louisville & Cincinnati to compete with the L. & N. because he could secure no concessions from that road in the way of handling his freight for Louisville. With the exception of a few small trestles and a $75,000 bridge across the Kentucky river at Carrollton, most of the survey will only require surface grading. This is the line which is being pushed by Ex-Congressman Albert Berry and other Kentucky capitalists."

The wheat recently cut is not in very good shape owing to the recent wet weather prevailing while the wheat was in the shock, many reporting it sprouting and others that it has spoiled and smells sour. The yield was above the average and where it was damaged it is chiefly because it was put up in too large sized shocks and packed too close together.

Dr. B. F. Stevenson, many years ago a citizen of Burlington, died Monday at his home in Norwood, a Cincinnati snburb. He was about 90 years old. Interment in the family lot in the cemetery here a 2 o'clock this afternoon.

If each of the RECORDER's correspondents who desires to attend the fair on either of the last two days will notify this office, he or she will be furnished free admission for that particular day. This will take the place of a picnic that has been agitated recently.

RETURN POSTAL CARD.

Commission Appointed to Consider the Plan Will Report Favorable.

Washington, July 11.—The commission consisting of the four assistant postmasters general, appointed by Postmaster General Payne, to consider the question of the establishment of a return postal card system with postage to be paid upon the return of the card, has concluded its labors and will soon unite on a report favorable to the plan. The commission will recommend that two different systems be tried, one requiring that all the return postal card business of each city shall be done through a corporation and the other providing for direct dealing between the government and the firms sending out the cards. The commission suggests that each of the plans be tried in six cities in order that there may be a thorough test. Business houses which do large advertising and order business are urging the experiment. It is understood that Postmaster General Payne is not entirely clear as to his right under the law to entertain on the experiment, so that early action on the report of the commission is not assured.

MUCH PROPERTY DESTROYED.

The Greatest Flood in the History of Greene County, Pennsylvania.

Waynesburg, Pa., July 11.—Communication from this town to outside territory was opened about noon Thursday for the first time since Wednesday night. Ten Mile creek and its two branches running north from here Wednesday night and early Thursday morning caused the greatest flood in Greene county's history. Thursday over a score of houses, twice as many stables, miles of railroad track and roadbed, innumerable barns and stock houses and outhouses are scattered over the country, some of them five miles from their original foundations. As yet no loss of life has been reported, although many had narrow escapes. The flood was caused by a cloudburst, extensive in its area and sudden in its descent. The total loss is estimated at $200,000.

ARE STILL ON STRIKE.

Business Men Attempt to Settle Freight Handlers' Troubles.

The Strikers Will Reject All Proposals Which Shall Not Stipulate For the Payment of the Union Wage Scale.

Chicago, July 11.—Business men of the city took an active part in attempting to settle the strike of the freight handlers Thursday, and at midnight, although nothing had been definitely settled, some little progress had been made.

An agreement was secured from the Freight Handlers' union that the organization would abide by the decision of the Chicago board of arbitration if that organization could arrange meetings with the general managers of the railroads, and secure their consent also to arbitration.

Prices of fruit and vegetables have already risen materially as a result of the strike, and unless it shall be settled within a few days, the chances are that prices will be increased enormously.

Chicago, July 12.—Mutual concessions by the freight handlers and by the railroads have paved the way for conferences between the managers and their employes which, it is hoped, will lead to the settlement of the freight handlers' strike. These conferences, which will be the result of the Chicago board of arbitration, will be held in the offices of the respective general managers.

The demands of the men are as follows: Abolition of the time of probation for new men; all freight handlers to receive full pay from the start; 18 cents an hour for truckmen (the railroads offer 17 cents); time and one-half for overtime.

Chicago, July 14.—Final overtures for the settlement of the strike of freight handlers and teamsters were made at meetings of the two unions Sunday night. At the instigation of the members of the Chicago board of arbitration, the freight handlers agreed to send committees to all the railroads Monday morning. This agreement was made after the board had announced to the union men that eight of the largest railroads entering Chicago had agreed to pay 17½ cents an hour to truckers, and pay for overtime and to do away with the demand for a probationary period of service.

The general managers of two of the railroads declared that they had agreed to no such proposition. They declared that when the committees shall visit the railroad offices Monday, the roads will offer them the same terms as those which were rejected by the union men Saturday. The statement from the general managers destroyed the hope of a settlement of the strike Monday, on the basis of the terms suggested by the general managers of the railroads.

Even if the general managers had not insisted upon maintaining their position it is not probable that a settlement could be effected. The freight handlers agreed to make another effort to reach a settlement with the railroads only to please the teamsters, who previously had endorsed the attempt of the board of arbitration to settle the strike.

There is lack of evidence of their intention to make a serious effort to settle the controversy. President Curran, of the Freight Handlers' union, stated Sunday night that the committees Monday morning will insist on the payment of 18 cents an hour, instead of 17½ cents, which the railroads are reported to have offered.

He also stated that the freight handlers will make no more overtures and hereafter will reject all proposals which shall not stipulate for the payment of the wage scale as formulated by the union, and the recognition of the organization.

FREIGHT HANDLERS' STRIKE.

Fruit and Vegetable Growers Much Alarmed Over the Situation.

Carbondale, Ill., July 14.—Fruit and vegetable growers of Southern Illinois are much alarmed over the strike of the freight handlers in Chicago. Thousands of dollars' worth of tomatoes are rotting in the fields. Much fruit, including peaches and apples, is ripening and will be in marketable condition during the present week. None of the growers or shipping associations in the fruit belt will ship to Chicago under present conditions.

Two Boys Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., July 14.—Two boys, Anthony Rukang, aged 16, and Adolph Budelier, aged 18, residents of this city, were drowned Sunday in Cass lake, a small body of water about 25 miles from here. In company with May Wiesler they were rowing. The boat began leaking and finally tipped over before they could reach shore. The girl was saved, but both boys sank before rescuers could get to them.

Acreage of Corn.

Washington, July 11.—Preliminary returns to the statistician of the department of agriculture on the acreage of corn planted, indicate an increase of about 3,520,000 acres, or 3.9 per cent. on the area harvested last year.

French Flag Hoisted.

London, July 11.—A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Hong Kong says it is reported that the French flag has been hoisted at Hehati, a fishing bay between the Portuguese seaport of Macao and Canton.

SKIN-GRAFTING.

Fellow Employes Contribute Cuticle to Aid a Girl's Recovery.

Fall River, Mass., July 12.—Eight employes of the Marshall Bros.' hat factory showed their sympathy for an injured female operative by contributing pieces of their skin to aid in her recovery.

A short time ago Miss Rose Silvia was caught by her hair in a shafting, and her scalp was entirely torn from her head, commencing just above the eyes, taking off the eyebrows, all but a small portion of the left ear and most of the skin of the left cheek.

It was announced that it would be necessary to have new skin grafted upon the affected parts if complete recovery was to be expected and eight of the operatives went to the Union hospital where Dr. Dolan took from the inside of their thighs 20 pieces of skin, each two inches long by one inch in width.

ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION.

Cuba Accepts An Invitation to Make An Exhibit.

Washington, July 12.—A cablegram received from Minister Squiers, at Havana, by Charles M. Pepper, the commissioner of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, to Cuba, stating that the invitation for the new republic to participate in the exposition had been accepted. While this action had been anticipated, formal acceptance by the Cuban government was not expected so early. The exhibit which Cuba makes at St. Louis, it is explained, in the acceptance of the invitation, will depend upon the funds hereafter to be appropriated by the Cuban congress. The St. Louis exposition will be the first one in which the island has had the opportunity to participate as an independent nation.

ALABAMA MINERS.

The Joint Convention Agreed on a Scale of Wages.

Birmingham, Ala., July 12.—After a short discussion the joint convention of the United Mine Workers and coal operators agreed on a scale. Two trivial concessions on the part of the operators brought the miners over. The scale agreed upon provides for a maximum price of 90 cents for mining coal and a uniform scale of wages for day laborers. The miners had demanded an increase of five cents per ton and a two weeks pay day and an eight-hour work day. They lost all of these contentions but gained a point in the establishment of a uniform scale of wages for day laborers.

REV. DR. A. C. HIRST.

One of the Best Known Methodist Preachers in United States Dead.

Omaha, Neb., July 12.—Rev. Dr. A. C. Hirst, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, died early Friday at the home of his sister in Chicago. Dr. Hirst was one of the best known preachers in the Methodist church of the United States, and had filled some of its most important pulpits. He was a long time president of the university of the Pacific coast, at San Francisco, resigning that place to go to Chicago to become pastor of the Century church in that city. He also has filled similar positions at Pittsburg, Pa., Chillicothe and Columbus, O.

SENATOR M'LAURIN.

May Be Appointed to Bench of United States Court of Claims.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 12.—Senator McLaurin, after spending nearly two hours with the president, left on a late afternoon train for New York. While he declined to discuss the likelihood of his appointment to the bench of the United States court of claims, it is understood that such appointment has been agreed upon. The probability is that, although Senator McLaurin's term in the senate will expire on the 4th of next March, he will not complete his term but will resign to accept the offered judicial position.

THE SOUFRIERE VOLCANO.

Three Loud Detonations Were Heard Wednesday Night.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., July 12.—On Wednesday there were three loud detonations from the Soufriere volcano on the island of St. Vincent between 8 and 9 o'clock at night.

Advices from Barbadoes say that loud detonations were heard there Wednesday night from a westerly direction.

Fort De France, Island of Martinique, July 12.—There was a fresh eruption of Mont Pelee Friday morning.

Drowned in the Flood.

Des Moines, Ia., July 12.—Tommy Crooks, well known boxer and athletic manager, was drowned in the flooded district. He was driving along a road with which he was not familiar and drove off the roadway into 28 feet of water.

Thirty-Five Persons Drowned.

Valparaiso, Chili, July 12.—Thirty-five persons were drowned and a house was destroyed on the estate of Claudio Vienna, at Las Palmy, as a result of the recent bursting of a reservoir there.

TERRIBLE CALAMITY.

Many of Lives Were Lost by an Explosion in a Mine.

Two More Deaths of Rescued Victims Occurred Sunday morning, Making the Total Number of Dead Up to Date 114.

Johnstown, Pa., July 11.—Johnstown has again been visited by an appalling disaster.

It is only less frightful than the awful calamity of May 31, 1889, in cost of life, but in its terrible consequences it has brought the shadow of sorrow in hundreds of homes made desolate by a mine explosion which took place in the Cambria Steel Co. rolling mill mine under Westmont hill at 12:20 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—Friday was a day of heroic rescues at the ill-fated Rolling Mill mine of the Cambria Steel Co. Thrilling experiences attended the efforts of the 40 brave and daring fellows who went down into the bowels of the earth with a very faint hope to spur them that still they might be in time to restore to life some of those who are entombed. Death lurked everywhere around them, but undaunted they surged forward, swayed with the noblest of human purposes.

The reward of their efforts was the saving of the lives of 14 of their fellow men and bringing them back again into the sunlight and back to living families.

Dead and maimed bodies were located, but no effort was made to bring them out of the vast theater of death until every human energy was put forward towards seeing that no living soul might escape their aid. That done, the dead were attended to and put in tram cars, brought up and exposed to morbid gaze while being transferred to wagons in which to be taken to the morgue. Eighty-seven dead bodies were recovered from the mine between daylight and nightfall. Still a party of officials and miners battled on, three miles inside the mine. Occasionally would come to the surface by some mysterious means that another heap of remains had been exposed to the vision of the searchers.

Johnstown, Pa., July 14.—Two more deaths of rescued victims from the Rolling Mill mine have occurred since Saturday night. Early Sunday morning John Sehr and Yasante Sibolia died at the Cambria general hospital. These men were among the six living last brought out of the mine Friday afternoon, of which four others have died. These deaths raise the total fatalities to 114, although the company records have it one less. Much confusion has attended the compilation of the record.

Most interest centered Sunday in the funeral services which were scattered throughout the city. The black cloud of mourning was heaviest over Cambria City, where the foreign population dwells. Scenes of sorrow in this section were repeated, but only with sterner force. It was a grim fete day in which the number of the participants was augmented by throngs the morning trains brought in. The outsiders came from towns within a radius of 50 miles or more. These visitors spread themselves out in squads and took in the various points of interest associated with the tragedy. The foot of the tramway leading up to the main pit mouth all paid a visit. Hundreds gathered there at a time in the vain hope of seeing newly discovered bodies brought forth to gratify their curious gaze.

All the churches of Johnstown paid more or less attention in their morning services to the disaster. Collections were lifted in many for the benefit of the bereft families of the poorer victims. Special masses were said in the Catholic churches.

The afternoon was devoted to funerals. Incessantly processions moved out along Chestnut street toward the Catholic cemeteries near Morrellville.

The funeral sermon commenced at 2 o'clock. The church was filled with affecting expressions of grief. Five coffins at one time were distributed in front of the altar. At 3 o'clock they commenced to leave for the cemetery. As the throngs commenced to evacuate the church the bell broke forth into wild ringing. Around the corner at St. Mary's Greek Catholic church there were being held services for the dead simultaneously with those of St. Stephens. Further down the street the Cretans were having their funerals. In all the foreign churches the congregations displayed emblems of their societies. Variegated colors were worn by the women, robbing the scene somewhat of its mournful character.

All Saturday night workmen dug graves in the Morrellville cemeteries. By Saturday morning they had enough completed to care for the day's arrivals and for those who were taken to the cemetery entrance on Saturday and had to be stored in a barn until excavations could be made for them.

Panama, Columbia, July 12.—Passengers who have arrived here from Costa Rican ports bring reports of the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua. They are responsible for a rumor that Bluefields, Nicaragua, has been captured.

Death of a Giant.

Chicago, July 12.—Lewis Wilkins, 30 years old, eight feet two inches in height, and when in health weighing 365 pounds, is dead at the Presbyterian hospital from a tumor on the brain.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot Ease Trade-Mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot-Ease." Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

Senator Proctor's Finest Speech.

Senator Proctor, of Vermont, says the finest speech he ever made consisted of only four words. It was in retort to Senator Hoar's sarcastic little thrust in a speech directed at the Green mountain senator. He said: "No man in Vermont is allowed to vote, unless he has made $5,000 trading with Massachusetts people." Wherein Proctor said: "And we all vote."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

SALISBURY RESIGNS.

A. J. Balfour Succeeds Him as Premier of Great Britain.

The Main Reason of Lord Salisbury's Withdrawal Is a Desire For a Quiet Life, as He Is Well Advanced in Years.

London, July 14.—The fact of the resignation of the premiership of Great Britain by Lord Salisbury was officially given out Sunday evening. The prime minister laid down the responsibility of his office July 11. Within 24 hours his majesty elevated Mr. A. J. Balfour, the government's chief representative in the house of commons, to the position of premier.

While it was expected in official and political circles that Lord Salisbury's retirement would be co-incident with the coronation of King Edward, it was scarcely looked for prior to that event. Consequently about the only surprise expressed as the news spread through London concerned the date, rather than the fact, of the resignation. The real interest was not so much in reference to Lord Salisbury's withdrawal as it was in the appointment of his successor.

The liveliest speculation is rife as to the personnel of the new cabinet. The most discussed feature of the pending changes is the position of Mr. Chamberlain (the colonial secretary) who, in many quarters, has been regarded as the most promising candidate for the premiership.

A reporter learns that prior to the acceptance of his new office, Mr. Balfour first had an interview with Mr. Chamberlain and then consulted with his other cabinet assistants. This is regarded as assurance that the future relative positions of Messrs. Balfour and Chamberlain will be satisfactory to both. Mr. Chamberlain's friends say he always recognized the reversion of the premiership to be Mr. Balfour's right as government leader in the house of commons.

As to Lord Salisbury's withdrawal, the main reason is considered by all the best informed persons to have been simply a desire for a quiet life on the part of a man advanced in years, whose activities have been unusual, and whose scientific tastes predispose him to study and seclusion. That the retiring premier's health has failed to some extent is undeniable; but this is not more than, perhaps, is to be expected in a man of his years, and the close of the war in South Africa and the return of the commanding general there is considered to be an appropriate time for his withdrawal.

It is learned that Lord Salisbury, in resigning, expressed the desire that no new title or honors should be conferred upon him. The retirement of this last great statesman of the Victorian age is universally regarded as the transition from one generation to another and as marking the close of an era in the national life.

AFTER A LINGERING ILLNESS.

Mrs. Ada Eugenia Vrooman Leslie, Well-Known Writer, Dead.

New York, July 14.—Mrs. Ada Eugenie Vrooman Leslie died Sunday at her home in this city after a lingering illness. She was born in 1846, and when only 16 years of age was widely known by her contributions in prose to the leading periodicals. She married Alfred Leslie, a son of Frank Leslie. After his death Mrs. Leslie edited the "Ladies' Bazaar" and a number of other periodicals. In recent years she assisted her sons, Arthur and Frank, in organizing the Leslie syndicate.

IN SOUTH AFRICA.

It Is Predicted That Peace Will Not Last Two Years.

Colorado Springs, Col., July 14.—H. C. Deroey, an adjutant in the Boer war under Delarey, is in the city on a visit. He says in his opinion peace will not last two years in the Transvaal. The arms turned into the British are worthless and good ones have been buried in secret places. He says England is trying to make Englishmen of the Boers, and when they put on the screws too hard the latter will rebel.

Buying American Machinery.

Berlin, July 14.—A private dispatch received here from Warsaw says the agricultural societies of Poland are negotiating with American manufacturers direct for the purchase of machinery, excluding the German middlemen. This step is believed to be aimed at South German machinery.

This May Settle It.

Springfield, Ill., July 14.—The United Mine Workers of Illinois will not vote for a general strike at the national convention to be held at Indianapolis next week. Without the votes of the Illinois delegates, it is said, it will be impossible to call out the soft coal men.

Plot Against President of Uruguay.

Montevideo, Uruguay, July 14.—President Juan L. Cuestas, of the republic of Uruguay, recently discovered the existence of a plot against his life. As a result two senators have been banished and a number of military officers are under arrest.

Deposed the Admiral.

Port-Au-Prince, Hayti, July 14.—The commission of Adm. Killick, commander of the Haitian fleet, has been revoked because of the admiral's refusal to obey the orders of the provisional government of Haiti.

MISSING STEAMERS.

No Tidings Received From the Portland and Jeanie, Long Overdue.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 14.—The steamship Oregon, from Dutch Harbor, July 4, brings no news from the missing steamers Portland and Jeanie, long overdue at Nome. Many searching vessels have returned with absolutely no tidings from the overdue steamers and the belief comes more unavoidable that each has been crushed in the ice and all on board have perished. The Oregon was forced to return with a jury rudder, her own steering gear having broken down on the second day after the vessel left the sound. The cutter Manning reports that there is no truth in the rumor that the Jeanie blew up and sank at Nunivek island.

Seattle, Wash., July 14.—The steamer Portland arrived at St. Michaels July 2, according to a special dispatch received by the Post Intelligencer from Dawson. The news was telegraphed up river to Nulato, where the steamer Sarah brought it on to Eagle. Thence it was wired to Dawson. The vessel is in good condition and the passengers and crew are well.

RECURRENT DEMENTIA.

Miss Ada Barker, in An Insane Asylum, Recovers Her Mind.

Terrell, Tex., July 14.—The young woman, Miss Ada Barker, who was brought to the state insane asylum here by the sheriff of El Paso county a week ago in a supposedly demented condition, has so far recovered that she remembers having left her home in New York during the latter part of May for the Galveston carnival. After reaching Galveston Miss Barker's mind is a blank until within the last few days. The young woman was well supplied with money on leaving New York, and still retains a portion of it. She has written relatives in New York apprising them of her whereabouts and condition. Physicians pronounce her case one of double consciousness of recurrent dementia.

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL.

He Pays a Visit to the Czar and Czarina of Russia.

St. Petersburg, July 14.—Emperor Nicholas II., wearing the chain of the order of the Annunziata; the czarowitch, the Russian grand dukes, Count Lamsdorff, the minister of foreign affairs; the other cabinet ministers and a number of officers greeted King Emmanuel of Italy upon his arrival at the railway station here Sunday afternoon. Preceded by a band playing the Italian national anthem, a guard of honor escorted their majesties to the palace, where the czarina and dowager empress welcomed King Victor. A banquet in honor of the royal guest was given in the hall of Peter the Great in the palace at which the cabinet, ministers, the members of the Italian embassy and high court dignitaries were present.

GEN. THOMAS J. MORGAN.

Succumbed to Kidney Disease at His Home in Yonkers, N. Y.

New York, July 14.—Gen. Thomas J. Morgan, who has been ill at Yonkers, where he lived, died Sunday, aged 62. Death was due to kidney disease. Gen. Morgan was born in Franklin, Ind. At the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted as a private and rose to the rank of brevet brigadier general. President Harrison made him commissioner of Indian affairs. At the time of his death Gen. Morgan was secretary of the Home Mission society of the Baptist church. The body will be taken to Rochester, N. Y., for burial.

Mont Pelee in Eruption.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, July 14.—Saturday night and Sunday Mont Pelee was in eruption, the activity being as great as that of Saturday and Wednesday last. Morne Rouge, Ajoupa Bouillon and Maconia were covered with cinders and were rendered uninhabitable for several hours. The volcano emitted a dense column of flame and at the same time electrical phenomena were observed. The eruption was accompanied by a deep rumbling resembling continuous thunder.

Catholic Mass Meeting.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 14.—A mass meeting of the Catholics was held here Sunday night to protest against the United States forcing the friars out of the Philippines. All the Catholic clergy, including Bishop Richter, attended.

Tien Tsin to Be Restored to China.

Peking, July 14.—The foreign ministers to China have agreed upon the conditions for the restoration of the government of Tien Tsin to China, and these conditions only await the signature of the Italian minister.

The Santa Fe Strikers.

Cleburne, Tex., July 14.—The Santa Fe strikers Sunday gave out a statement that the engineers have promised not to handle locomotives on which repair work is done by the machinists now being imported to take the places of the strikers.

Training Ship Mohican.

Seattle, Wash., July 14.—The United States Training ship Mohican arrived at Dutch Harbor June 23 out of fuel and short of food supplies. She replenished, sailing June 30, for Honolulu.

PROTECTION'S OTHER SIDE.

The Logical Result of Legislation in the Interest of Vested Interests.

The protectionists never weary of telling how much they have done for the benefit of the farmers and laborers; but, "the half has never yet been told." They have modestly said nothing about the real effects of the protective tariff upon the prices of commodities consumed by the farmers and laborers. Nor have they told the truth about the effect upon wages of labor and prices of farm products. The laborers are told that it is the tariff which keeps up their wages. In fact the protective tariff has never acted to raise the wages of labor one cent. On the contrary, by a meddlesome interference with the most economical utilization of capital and labor, protection has made industry less productive and in so much has reduced both wages and interest. Meanwhile the bosses of protected industries have grown enormously rich. This would be an unavoidable result even with an honestly framed tariff law. But it is a notorious fact that our tariff laws have been framed in the secrecy of the committee room, by the cotton and woolen manufacturers, sugar refiners, wool growers, and other special interests. The result has been the worst possible form of legalized robbery, and the farmers and laborers have had to pay the bill. This is the logical result of legislation of vested interests, by vested interests, and for vested interests.

But the farmers have been protected, too! Oh, yes! Duties have been levied upon cattle, wheat, corn, oats and other products which are exported from the United States in large quantities and never imported. If the farmers could form a huge trust and limit production they could force up the prices of agricultural products and get wealthy at the expense of all other classes. The tariff would then be a protection from outside interference and would make it easier to control the market, just as the tariff on meat and animals helped the meat trust to hold up the consumers of meat. The farmers have never been able to form a successful trust, so the tariff as yet has not helped them any in forcing up the prices of food products.

There is another result of the tariff however that affects the farmer directly, as well as the laborers. The protection granted to manufacturers enables them to charge from 25 to 100 per cent. more at home than abroad for the same commodities. When the American farmer goes to market he is treated like a prince. He is privileged to pay the United States steel trust $2.25 (wholesale) a keg for wire nails, which are knocked down to the despised and impoverished foreigner for $1.30. In the same way he pays $3.75 (retail) for a coil of barbed wire which the foreigner buys for about $2.20. He pays twice the foreign price for axle grease, twice as much for a washboard, 30 per cent. more for a shovel, 175 per cent. more for sugar and 60 per cent. more for glass fruit jars. When he buys a sewing machine for his wife he pays $50 for the same kind of machine that is sold the foreign purchaser for $17.

Who will dare assert that the American farmer is not benefited by protection? He is allowed to pay a great deal more than English, German and Russian farmers for exactly the same goods. This raises him far above the ignorant European peasants. If there were no protective tariff, it would cost the American farmer about one-half as much to live as it now does. This would be a great calamity, for, as Barnum expressed it, nothing delights the true American so much as to be humbugged.

The present tariff has been protecting us for nearly six years, and while trusts have grown fat and saucy, the wool grower, with the highest tariff ever exacted, is not getting as much for his wool as under the lower tariff of the rascally democrats. Why this is so is respectfully referred to the Wool Growers' Protective association. The balance of us who have to buy the "cheap wool" clothing and find it is made of cotton and shoddy, would like to see the all-wool-and-a-yard-wide cloth that would wear a month without getting threadbare.

LEGISLATIVE PATCHWORK.

The Philippine Bill Is Nothing More Nor Less Than a Wretched Fiasco.

The Philippine "civil government" bill as it emerged from the conference committee and became a law is a piece of legislative patchwork far from creditable to the American congress, says the Chicago Chronicle.

The two most important features are those which deal with the money of the islands and with the legislative body representing the people.

As to the first, the senate provision for the silver standard and the house provision for the gold standard are replaced by a paragraph which will enable the commission to issue a subsidiary silver coinage, leaving the Mexican silver dollar to take its chances as a standard as it has done for years.

It is plain that this paragraph is a miserable makeshift. It was necessary not only to the credit of the insular government, but also of individuals and corporations that a standard should be established and that it should be the gold standard.

The great boast of our republican statesmen has been that in the legislation which they would perfect they would do by the people of the archipelago immense good in a material way, and would shower upon them such blessings of prosperity that they never more would think of independence, but would cleave to us as the benefactors so firmly that no force could ever wrench them away.

Yet the very first serious attempt to legislate for them is a wretched fiasco in that it fails to provide the most important of all things for the development of the resources and the highest economic prosperity of the islands.

As now constituted the Taft commission is pretty sound on the money question, and it may take upon itself a great deal of power under the grant of authority to emit "subsidiary" coin. In fact, that is all that silver coin in the archipelago ought to be and all that the commissioners wish it to be.

They are likely to exercise their power pretty freely under the bill, as they have done in the absence of any bill, and they may exercise it beneficially in this matter, however they may exercise it in other respects.

As to the native legislative chamber, the conference bill grants it only if the islands remain peaceful for two years after a census has been taken.

This is equivalent to indefinite postponement, because the time when the census shall be taken and the question whether the islands are peaceful are left entirely with the administration.

It follows, therefore, that the autocratic military regime is perpetuated indefinitely by deliberate act of congress.

All the fine things that we have heard about the rights of the natives, etc., are mere chaff. The bald fact underlying the whole matter is autocratic presidential rule, practically irresponsible, with the commission as his nominally civil hand of velvet and the army as his one effective hand of iron, with the people of the islands as subjects, having no rights which the autocrat is bound to respect.

This bill is an interesting commentary upon the spectacular performance promised for the Fourth of July in the islands, when officials of the war department say "military control of the Philippines will cease absolutely" and Gen. Chaffee will "surrender his functions" with great pomp and circumstance.

There are some Filipinos and a good many Americans who will not be greatly deceived by this stage play.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

"Steve" Elkins' vociferous demand for the immediate annexation of Cuba indicates that there are unexampled facilities for the establishment of postal "star routes" in the ever-faithful isle.—Chicago Chronicle.

To show how independent the beef barons are, and how little they fear the prosecution of President Roosevelt's attorney general, the report comes from Boston that a beef combine of $100,000,000 is in process of forming, to include all the great packing houses.

ARE THE PEOPLE SO EASILY FOOLED?

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

IN THE SHADOWS OF JAIL.

Banker Under Sentence Said to Have Married Former Stenographer.

Louisville, Ky., July 10.—Though all the parties connected with the affair refuse to say anything, there is reason to believe that Albert German, under sentence of ten years for making false entries in the books of the Third national bank, where he was individual bookkeeper, was married late Tuesday afternoon to Miss Lulu Leonard Lee. The marriage is said to have been performed at the office of the Monarch Manufacturing Co., of which German had been president, and where Miss Lee was stenographer.

By permission of the United States marshal German had made several visits to a dentist. Tuesday he asked leave to get married. This was denied, but he was allowed to pay another visit to his dentist under surveillance of Turnkey McCarthy, of the county jail. On the way he asked the turnkey to let him go to his office for a few minutes. McCarthy consented, and a few minutes later the marriage ceremony is said to have been performed, the bride and a preacher being in waiting. Jailer Pfanz may be cited for contempt by Judge Evans, of the federal court.

FIRE AT BURGIN.

The Town Narrowly Escaped Destruction.—One Man Severely Burned.

Burgin, Ky., July 12.—This town narrowly escaped being wiped out by fire Friday morning. John Rowan, a colored man who runs the gasoline engine for the Burgin Elevator Co., was endeavoring to start the engine. He let a lantern down near the tank, which exploded, burning the beard from his face and setting fire to his clothing, burning him about the lower limbs. He escaped cremation by leaping into a tank of water close by and burying himself in its depths. The elevator, which is the largest building in the town, was enveloped in flames, but the heavy metal covering saved it from destruction. Had it burned, the whole town would have gone up in flames, as it is situated in the center of the town, and is surrounded by business houses.

A WOMAN'S STORY.

Grabbed Wife and Fired Three Bullets Into Her Body.

Owensboro, Ky., July 10.—Joshua Anderson, aged 28, shot and killed his wife, aged 25, at the home or her father, Charles Stevens, three miles below the city Tuesday midnight. He mistreated and left her and she sued for a divorce. Tuesday night he went to her father's home and demanded to see her. He caught her and fired one bullet into her head and two into her body. She died almost instantly. Georgia Winter, charged with shooting Field Long, says Anderson is her cousin and that he told her a few days ago he was going to kill his wife. He is in jail and feeling against him runs high.

IN MIDAIR.

Louisville Man Electrocuted While Repairing a Broken Wire.

Louisville, Ky., July 11.—The electric light failed in South Louisville Thursday night, and men were sent out to repair the lines. Thomas Roach found a break and climbed a pole to repair it. He lost his balance, and, falling between some loaded wires, which were strong enough to support his body, was electrocuted in midair. His body was taken down with difficulty and sent to his home at 16th and Market steets.

UNUSUAL RECORD.

Triplets Came Thrice to the Wife of Hiram Taylor.

Whitesburg, Ky., July 12.—Mrs. Geneva Taylor, aged 36, wife of Hiram Taylor, a poor farmer at the Looney Creek (Va.) mines, a few miles from the Kentucky border, gave birth to triplets—all girls—Thursday night. Their weights were 4, 5 and 6 pounds, making a total of 15 pounds. This is the third time Mrs. Taylor has given birth to triplets.

Two Boys Drowned.

Covington, Ky., July 12.—Joe Nunnery, aged 14, and his brother Ben, 8, sons of L. J. Nunnery, a laborer, living with his wife and six children in a shanty boat at the foot of Russell street, were drowned in the Ohio river shortly after noon Friday, before the eyes of their 6-year-old brother Eddie. The little fellow was so badly frightened that he did not tell his mother of the accident until after 6 o'clock.

Million Dollar Packing Plant.

Louisville, Ky., July 11.—Capitalists from Pittsburg, Chicago and other eastern cities are arranging a company to erect a million dollar packing plant here. The eastern market will be supplied with spring lambs direct from the proposed packing house.

To Try Young Cockrell.

Lexington, Ky., July 11.—Allie Young, chairman of the democratic state central committee, has been appointed by Gov. Beckham to try Thos. Cockrell for the murder of Ben Hargis at Jackson.

A DETERMINED EFFORT.

Owensbor is Laying Plans to Secure the Confederate Home.

Owensboro, Ky., July 12.—This city is making a determined effort to secure the confederate home provided for at the late session of the general assembly. At a mass meeting of citizens at the courthouse a strong committee was appointed, which will endeavor to raise such an amount of money and lay such favorable plans before the trustees of the home as will result in the selection of Owensboro for its location. A large amount has already been subscribed and the committee believes that the necessary sum can easily be raised.

An option has been secured on several tracts of land, any one of which would be an excellent location for a home. Another thing that is urged is the fact that there are so many ex-confederate soldiers in Owensboro and Daviess county as to make the selection of this place most fitting for the location of a home.

FOUR TEST CASES.

Covington Merchants to Be Arraigned For Keeping Open Sundays.

Covington, Ky., July 10.—J. S. Schmitt, business agent of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association, swore out warrants for the arrest of H. W. Haglage, Moses Markswitz, Theodore Kotzin and Dan Cohen, four of Covington's most prominent retail merchants, charging them with keeping open their places of business on Sunday, which, it is charged, constitutes a violation of the Kentucky statutes prohibiting common labor on Sunday. The cases were set for trial next Thursday in the police court. This movement is a new tack in the retail clerks' campaign for Sabbath closing. If successful here the same thing may be attempted all over the state.

CIRCUIT COURT DISCISION.

A Newspaper Plant is Not a Manufacturing Establishment.

Louisville, Ky., July 11.—Judge Miller, of the circuit court, Thursday ruled in denying the claim of a certain creditor to a lien on the property of the Dispatch Publishing Co., that a newspaper is not a manufacturing establishment, like a rolling mill or foundry, as specified by the statute.

The following is from the opinion: It is true that a newspaper is sometimes spoken of as a manufacturer of public opinion, but in using this description it is not intended to convey the impression that a newspaper makes or manufactures public opinion for sale, in the sense that a rolling mill or foundry manufactures iron or iron implements for sale.

CHILDREN OUTWITTED.

Aged J. Woodson Fassett Quietly Married to Miss Emily Lane.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., July 11.—Thursday night, at the residence of John W. Jones, in this city, J. Woodson Fassett, of Bath county, was married to Miss Emily Lane, Rev. H. D. Clark officiating. Mr. Fassett, who is 73 years old, has been a suitor for the hand of Miss Lane, many years his junior, for several months. His children objected, and last Saturday he attempted to take his life by the morphine route after driving a knife five inches into his breast. He was given up to die, but rapidly recovered, and the wedding Thursday night is the result. Fassett's children objected to the match, but it seems they were outwitted.

Three Prisoners Escape.

Mayfield, Ky., July 11.—Three white prisoners escaped from the county jail. They were Tom Tinker, Lee Goins and Norman Walpole. The hall door leading to the back yard was left open while the deputy jauer was carrying quilts from the cells. The prisoners from the back yard climbed a 16-foot fence and made good their escape.

Father and Son Held.

Harrodsburg, Ky., July 10.—The result of the examining trials of W. M. Boss for killing Sargent, and of his father, Adam Boss, as accessory, before County Judge Roach Wednesday morning, resulted in holding the prisoners in sums of $500 and $300 respectively.

Kentucky Charters.

Frankfort, Ky., July 11.—The following new companies filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state: Paducah Laundry Co., of Paducah, capital stock $10,000; Common Sense Oil and Gas Co., of Knox county, capital stock $5,000.

Sued For Damages.

Hartford, Ky., July 12.—Elvis Stevens, of Beaver Dam, Ohio county, has filed a damage suit in Hartford against Richard Jarnigan, the postmaster of Beaver Dam. Stevens alleges that Jarnigan went to his (Stevens) home and made an improper proposal to Mrs. Stevens.

County Attorneys' Association.

Versailles, Ky., July 12.—The convention of the Kentucky County Attorneys' association at Estill Springs adjourned Friday afternoon to meet in July 1903, at Dawson Springs, Ky.

A STATE PRIMARY.

[Kentucky Journal.

National Committeeman Urey Woodson opposes a State Primary which it is generally believed will be called by the State Democratic Committee. Mr. Woodson after reciting some of the difficulties encountered in the recent Congressional Primary in the First District makes a suggestion that if a primary is called it should be framed so as to give all voters a chance to express their first, second and third choices as between candidates for State offices and thus prevent the nomination of minority candidates. In the course of an editorial in the Paducah News-Democrat Mr. Woodson says:

"If the candidates who appeared before the Democratic Convention in 1899 had been required to put up $1,000 each, in addition to personal expenses, more than half of them would have dropped out, and of those who were nominated several of them found great difficulty in paying to the State Committee their prorata of the very modest assessment that was made upon the nominees. If the State committee had been compelled to depend for funds in 1899 or 1900 upon the forty nominees it would have gone into bankruptcy long before the election in both years, for lack of money to pay for postage, stationery, and stenographers. It is not discreditable to the Democratic nominees that they were, most of them, very poor men, but this is history; and it is quite as profitable that many of the candidates next year—unless they are bluffed out by the prospect of expenses they will be unable to bear—will also be poor men.

Let a State Primary be called after a volantary subscription fund has been raised to defray all the expenses of the primary, and after a plan has been devised to allow every voter to vote for his first, second and third choice in each race, so that no minority candidates may be chosen."

It is very evident that primary elections are growing more popular with the Democrats in the South, and in Georgia one was called but a few days ago to nominate a Democratic State ticket. Those who have investigated the matter and are familiar with the cost of holding State conventions in Kentucky do not hesitate to claim that a primary election would be much the cheaper to the candidates as the cost would be reduced, practically, to the cost of printing of the ballots, and it is evident that it would result in much greater satisfaction to the rank and file of the party, as each voter would have a voice in organizing the State ticket, and the business of the political slatemakers would become a lost art.

The one, two, three vote suggested by the Paducah gentleman would be barren of results, other than causing trouble. That plan has been tried in this county on several occasions, and invariably the candidate who had the plurality on the first count had a plurality on the last count, and in no instance was it ever known to result in a majority nomination. One vote is enough—let the longest pole knock the persimmon.

Mr. Robert L. Green has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for clerk of the court of appeals. He has been a deputy in the office since 1886.

A GOOD MAN GONE.

When the RECORDER went to press last week it had only time to announce the death of one of the county's oldest and well and favorably known citizens, Dr. Elijah L. Grant.

Dr. Elijah L. Grant, died at his residence in Petersburg on the 8th inst. He was 85 years of age, and in his death Kentucky sustains the loss of one of her purest and best sons. He had, for many years, been one of the most influential men of this county—a genial, upright, cultured gentleman, who could always be relied upon to lend his influence and means in the support of every measure that had for its object the promotion of the public good.

In the course of his long career he made no enemies, but won the love and esteem of everyone who knew him. He was a firm believer in the future state, and welcomed the opportunity to pass into the spirit world, perfectly confident that great happiness awaited him there.

Dr. Grant was born on Licking River, where the town of Visalia now stands, December 11, 1816, and his death removes from this life the oldest survivor of those who were descended from the first settlers of Kentucky. Col. John Grant, the grand-father of the doctor, was a brother-in-law of Daniel Boone, having married his sister, Elizabeth Boone, in North Carolina. The Colonel, with a company of militia and the families of a number of his neighbors, came to Kentucky and built a block house fort, known as Grant's Station, about midway between Bryan Station and Versailles. Col. Grant was well known as a military man, and nobly earned the fame which links his name with the history of Kentucky.

Dr. Grant was educated at Augusta college, Ky., and graduated in medicine at the university of Louisville in 1832, where he was a private student of the renound Professor S. D. Groves. In that year he married Miss J. R. Prest, an English lady of Louisville, and opened an office at First and Jefferson Sts. He soon returned to this county, where he was living for the past 60 years. Nearly twenty years ago he lost his first wife, and was married a second time to Mrs. A. E. Allen, widow of Nathan W. Allen. She survives him. Four children by his first wife are living. The oldest, Hon. J. Frank Grant, of Baltimore, Md., Secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F. of the world. He is one of the best and most favorably known Odd-Fellows in the United States. Dr. W. Ed and H. Horace Grant live in Louisville and are well known in the medical profession. Dr. W. Ed Grant is a general practitioner and professor of anatomy, and Medico Life Insurance, also professor of anatomy in the medical department of the Kentucky University and professor of anatomy in the Louisville College of Dentistry. Dr. H. Horace Grant is one of the leading surgeons of the State. He occupies the Chair of Proffessor of Surgery in the Hospital College of Medicine, Louisville, and the Louisville College of Dentistry. The youngest son, Mr. Ernest L. Grant, owns the old family homestead in this county, and is a farmer and stock grower.

After a short funeral at the house Thursday at 3. p. m., by Rev. T. B. Cook, the remains were laid to rest by the side of those of his first wife in the Petersburg cemetery. His four sons above named and two nephews, Dr. J. M. Grant and Thomas Grant, were the pall-bearers.

The deceased was truly a friend of the writer, and if there be one soul at whose approach the pearly gates of the celestial city shall open wide and offer free entrance to its eternal glories surely it must be the one who in life strove hardest to aid the weak, shelter the defenseless, to lighten the burdens of the heavy laden, and who brought the most smiles and fewest tears into this world. Whether we shall meet him again we cannot tell. We only know that we shall see him here on earth no more; but a faith that will not be uprooted bids us hope—a faith that antedates the Christian promise and rests upon the ties that bind us to each other. We are not willing to believe that the hearts affection which brightens, adorn and purify our lives, the love of mother and child, of husband and wife, of kindreds and friends are all buried in the grave. Humanity revolts at the suggestion. But for this faith in a future life would perish from among men.

Keep in mind the Granger picnic, August 2, in the afternoon.

Wild geese and brants are known to travel, during the migratory season, very far south. Recently a large wild goose was killed not far from Spokane City, Wash., which had evidently winged its way from the remote Eskimo lands. When the hunter picked up the bird he was surprised to observe a slender piece of ivory protruding from its breast just below one of its wings. With much difficulty he succeeded in pulling out the piece, for the flesh had grown tightly around it. It proved to be an arrowhead, about eight inches long, which had some queer carvings on the stem where it had been fastened to the shaft. The carvings were delicate, though quite distinct. On a careful inspection by some Klondike miners the carvings were pronounced to be of Eskimo origin. No arrowpoint of that kind was ever known to have been used by the Indians of Washington or British Columbia. The head was of fine ivory, no doubt carved from a walrus tusk. Evidently the goose had been shot by an Eskimo hunter in the Arctic regions, the wound had healed, the flesh had grown around the weapon, and in its long flight the bird had no doubt broken off the arrowshaft.

Reports from the great wheat and corn belts are that the loss to crops from the long wet spell will approximate $7,000,000. The loss to wheat in Kansas is placed at 8,000,000 bushels. The condition in the Northwest is critical. A dry and hot July is regarded as indispensible to the saving of the crops.

High prices for beef, mutton and pork have raised the price of salted and pickled horse meat only a very little in the United States, so far as is known at this time. The horse meat packing plant at Linnton, Ore., recently got a drove of 500 cayuse ponies in one shipment and proceeded to barrel up the edible portions thereof, but the advance, as stated in press dispatches from the West, is only about a cent a pound though the demand is much more active than it has ever been before. A second drove of 500 head has been contracted for and it is the intention to make up prices another notch when the meat is ready for sale. It is stated that despite the fact that beef is away up in Portland no effort has been made at all from that city to procure fresh cayuse meat at Linnton.

Editor Walton and the stockholders of the Lexington Democrat are in a "wow and a wumpus." The Democrat has not been a success as a dividend payer, the blame for which the stockholdels lay at Mr. Walton's door, and he takes issue with them in a very emphatic manner in the columns of the Democrat.

This weather is favorable to flux, and there is some around.

"There was probably never a time in the history of the State when there were so many fakirs wandering around trying to swindle farmers and other people out of their eye teeth or anything else of value," says the Hodgenville Herald. You can scarcely pick up an exchange but what you read of this man or that buying a gold brick of the most pronounced type. It is one game this time and a new one the next time. Each fellow teaches a new trick and you can't learn them all without going busted.

"People are inclined to do their dealings with 'furreners.' They will send their money off to a mail order house or give it to a fakir wandering over the country, when the same goods could be bought for less money right at home. In one case you have the word of your home dealer and you know he will make matters right. In the other case you have the slick, sugar-coated promise of a stranger, whom you never see again and who never wants to see you. Home merchants are compelled to sell the best goods, because their honor and reputation are at stake. Mail order houses sell seconds of all goods and the purchaser is sometimes glad to get anything and never complains when he fails to find a scarcity of kinship or complection between the sample or description and the goods itself.

"It's human nature, and until human nature changes home merchants will be deprived of trade that belongs to them and the general public will be hard up for the benefit of the dear people in other states."

On the 4th inst., Miss Mary Kenney lost a silk umbrella between her home and Richwood. The finder will confer a favor by returning it to the home of her father, Wm. Kenney.

Summer complaint is usually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

Useful Hints.

If any fat has spattered the stove while frying or boiling wipe it off immediately with a newpaper.

It is said that freckles can be removed by washing the skin in water in which is dissolved a small quantity of borax.

A mote may be removed from the eye, or the pain at least alleviated, by putting a grain of flaxseed under the lid.

Never add wine or flavoring extracts to a dish till it is cold. If put in while hot much of the flavor passes off in the steam.

A little linseed oil brushed over faded green blinds will, if they are not too far gone, make them look almost as good as new.

A little saltpeter or baking soda mixed with water in which cut flowers are placed will keep them fresh for a long time.

A paste of chloride of lime and water well rubbed in will take ink stains from silver or plated ware. Wash and wipe as usual.

Do not use coal oil lamps in bedrooms with wick trimmed down low. They produce asthma, heart disease, throat disease, etc.

Wash Valenciennes lace in lukewarm water with fine soap, and iron over several thicknesses of flannel to bring out the pattern.

To clean mirrors and window panes mix some powdered whiting to a thin paste and rub this over the surface. Wipe with a dry cloth and polish with chamois leather. Clean only a small portion of glass at a time, as whiting is difficult to remove if allowed to dry. Be careful not to touch the gilt frames of your mirror with the mixture.

In the joint speaking at Burksville between Hons. Vincent Boreing, David Colson and Ed Parker, candidates for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Eleventh district, the first named candidate devoted considerable time to telling of his influence in Washington, which he urged as one reason why he should be renominated. In reply, Colson said: Now, Boreing talks a great deal about his influence at the White House, but I can prove to you he hasn't got as much standing there as a negro for the president has invited Booker Washington to dine at the White House, but Boreing has never yet been asked to put his feet under the mahogany with Teddy" The crowd yelled, and even the negroes present seemed to be greatly tickled at the joke.

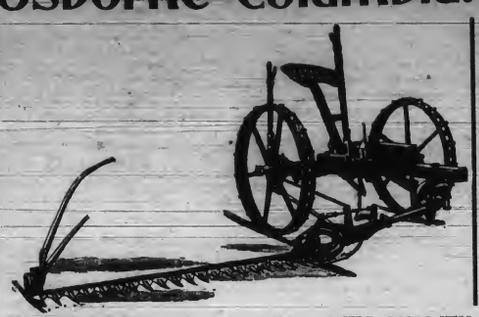
Few people realize the value of birds, as scavengers, such as the swallow, martins and bee birds, as well as the wood and earth scavengers, wood-peckers, orioles, wrens, flickers, meadowlarks, quails, sapsuckers, etc. If for five years no migratory birds were to visit this county human life would be most miserable by the hundreds of millions of insects. "Every insect that has no stinger is at some time in its career ideal bird food, and provided in nature's economy to serve that purpose. Those insects left undestroyed by the birds, turn upon and destroy fruit, grain or vegetables intended for human consumption. If we cater to native bird life and recognize their value as machinery in orchard, field and garden then we profit in money as well as in musical entertainment."

And were it not for bees, especially bumblebees, we should be largely deprived of beautiful flowers and all kinds of fruit.

A farmer near Spears has lost many dollars by holding his wheat too long. Last February Sharp & Demois offered him 90 cents a bushel for his crop, which he refused, waiting the time when it would reach the dollar mark. Last week he decided to sell and when the crop was examined he found the damp weather and weevil had almost totally destroyed it. At present he can't sell it for more than 25 cents a bushel, or the loss of 65 cents for the privilege of "waiting for something to turn up".—Jessamine News.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.



We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

An interesting discussion is in progress between Representative Wheeler, of Kentucky, and Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, as to the relative merits of Kentucky "sour mash" whisky, as it is called in that State, and "corn" whisky, as it is known among the tar heels. Up to the present time Mr. Kitchin has the best of the argument, because he tells this story:

"Down in my district," he says, "a drummer happened to mention that he had been in Clinton county Ohio. 'I have a rbother living out there,' said a sad-eyed man, sitting on a box in the store, and if you ever see him I wish you would tell him that I am mighty hard up, my farm is mortgaged, and I don't believe I will ever be able to educate my children. But anyway he added, 'let's take a drink.'

"So they took one drink of corn whisky and then the sad-eyed man had another message for his brother. 'Tell him,' he said, 'that I am getting along tolerably well, even though I haven't much money.'

"Then the drummer proposed another drink, and the sorrowful man grew happier. Tell my brother when you see him,' he remarked, 'that I am making a good living and getting along first-rate.'

"After that there were several interchanges of hospitality, and the man, sad-eyed no longer, addressed the drummer. 'Tell my brother when you see him,' was his final message, 'that if he ever wants anything to draw on me!'

"If that doesn't beat anything you can produce in Kentucky," said Kitchin to Wheeler, "I will send you a case with my compliments.

"Why is it," asked the man of the physician, "that so many people are suffering these days with appendicitis, and have to be operated upon, when there didn't use to be any of them?"

"My young friend," the doctor answered, "this disease has been in the world ever since Adam was—perhaps that story of his losing a rib may have arisen because he was operated on for appendicitis. When your grandfather was a boy his neighbors had it all around him, and so they did when you were a boy. But they called it inflammation of the bowels, stomach ache, acute indigestion, liver trouble, or something of that sort. The patient got well or he died, but no one ever opened him when living to see what the matter was. Perhaps it is as well that they did not, for much of the surgery of those days was more dangerous than any disease."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

One of the greatest sources of disappointment to amateur horse breeders and farmers is the cross breeding of different breeds with the idea of striking a happy medium which would be superior to either of the originals. In speed breeding this thing does not so often occur, but with those who breed for the ordinary market, and especially the coach horse and carriage horse market, cross breeding the heavy, and light specimens is the prevailing idea with the inexperienced breeder. The law of average is the great law with this class of breeders and nothing seems more logical to them than that the produce of a 900 pound, 15 hand high roadster mare and a 2,000 pound 17 hand high draft stallion should be an ideal 1,200 pound, 16 hand high coach or carriage horse. Twenty disappointments to one satisfactory product is a fair average of results in this line of breeding.—Western Horseman.

An agricultural association of Germany has offered a prize of $7,143 for the best method of drying potatoes for feeding cattle. Consul General Guenther, at Frankfort, who reports this matter to the State Department says:

"German agriculture has been increasing its potato crop very largely. The technical progress made in cultivating potatoes and the choice of certain kinds yielding a larger crop have made it apparent that Germany will continue to have a surplus of this vegetable.

"Already 40 per cent of the total crop is used as fodder, but, as potatoes deteriorate after 6 or 7 months they must be fed within that time. Transportation, also is expensive on account of the large percentage of water they contain. Three and one-half tons of fresh potatoes yield one ton of dried ones. It is predicted that a good method of drying potatoes will greatly benefit German agriculture, and it is intended to use the process on a large scale."

The Philadelphia Record calls attention to the fact that so inadequate is the supply of domestic wool for clothing that in the last ten months of the fiscal year the importations of foreign clothing wool amounted to nearly 65,000,000 pounds, besides 78,000,000 pounds of carpet wool. Some of the carpet wool was doubtless diverted to the manufacture of clothing fabrics. The importation of clothing wool is more than double that of the same period of the preceding fiscal year. Yet this is small in comparsion with the imports when wool was free under the Wilson tariff. Then the woolen clothing of the American people was pure and abundant. Now, in consequence of the inadequate supply of wool by reason of the decline of the domestic production and the high duties on imports, the woolen clothing is largely adulterated with cotton and other substitutes. Very true. But then something must be done to encourage the delusion that the farmer gets some benefit from the tarift.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similiar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera ond Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

The method of summer soil cultivation for conserving the moisture in the soil brings results that are profitable. As a rule, such cultivation should be of the surface soil only, rarely more than two inches deep; but it should be remembered that this applies only to soils that have been well worked and plowed to a good depth before the seed was sown. A shallow plowed soil, or a field that is inclined to bake after heavy rains, needs more than the shallow soil cultivation, at least for a number of times after each rain. This plan may destroy some of the roots of the plants growing near the surface, but this is better than to permit the soil to remain hard for any considerable depth. Whenever the soil has been sufficiently loosened after it has become hard, then the shallow cultivation should be put in practice again. On the other hand, as first stated, the deeper cultivation should not be done unless the condition of the soil requires it.

FATHERHOOD OF GOD

Relationship Which Exists Between the Creator and the Creature.

Sermon by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher in Which He Utters Some Plain Truths on a Popular But Fallacious Doctrine.

(Copyright, 1902, by A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.)

Chicago, July 13, 1902.

Text:—For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.—Rom. 8:14-15.

Universal Fatherhood of God.—As the progenitor of the human race, God is its Father. The relationship thus existing between God, the Creator, and man, the created, is one of origin rather than that of active association and fellowship. That this is true is not due to any change in purpose or desire of God towards the people of the world, for He is the same yesterday, to-day and forever, but it is owing to the prodigality of the human race, which, beginning in the garden of Eden with Adam, departed from the Father's house, and is no longer worthy to be called the son of God. Since the will of man was set up against the perfect and righteous will of God, and every man has sought his own way, he has been in the far country feeding on the husks of the perishable things of the world, while the Father sits in His house eternal in the Heavens awaiting the return of the prodigal, whom He longs to receive back into the loving relationship of son.

The Fatherhood of God is universal in the sense that "we are His offspring," and that as Father He longs and waits for the return of His wayward and self-seeking children. The Fatherhood of God is limited in the sense that only those who repeat and return to the Father's House by the way which He has provided are privileged to call Him Father and have a right to a place again in the family circle. Man may reason and speculate all he pleases, and lull to sleep the conscience by high and broad-sounding sentiments and subtle sophistries, he may drag down to human levels God's love and God's righteousness and make himself believe that he is a son of God and entitled to a place in the Father's House, but when he comes to the end of himself he will find that he is still in the far country, and that the father of his thought and reason was a God-head "graven by art and man's device." Satan hoodwinked Adam into believing that he could erect for himself a god, knowing good and evil, and the father of liars has been at it ever since. He doesn't care how beautifully you talk of the love and Fatherhood of God, or how you denounce him (the devil), if you only do not come to yourself, repent and return to the Father's House.

And if, while the world is talking of the universal Fatherhood of God, it has no atom of truth on which to base its claim, God's Word comes, and with its message of light proves the universal Fatherhood of God by the universal plan of salvation which it offers. The testimony of God's Word does not seek to rob the world of a Father, but gives to the world a Father, if it will only accept Him on God's reasonable terms. "For this is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." The fact that the world so strenuously argues its sonship relation to God and God's Fatherhood relation to the world proves how much it really longs for and needs the true Father's love and care. And God's Word, and this feeble message which we seek to deliver in the name of our "Father which art in Heaven," only longs to unmask the world's false notion of the Fatherhood of God, which would leave it at last naked and undone in the presence of the righteous Judge, and give it a loving and forgiving Heavenly Father, who sees the repentant child while "he is yet a great way off" and, rushing out to meet him, writes with the finger of His love dipped in the blood of His only begotten Son, His full and free forgiveness, and, hushing his pleading to be taken back as a servant, He reinstates him in his lost position, and makes him a son indeed.

The Mark of Sonship.—"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." Here is the distinguishing mark, the livery by which we may identify those who have a right to turn their faces upward and cry: "Abba, Father." And on the other hand, the sons of men as distinguished from the sons of God wear the livery of this world and are ruled by the "spirit of man which is in him." In the second chapter of 1 Corinthians Paul develops this thought fully and shows that "the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." Failure to recognize this important truth is the fruitful source of error and false doctrine. It disqualifies man as a judge of God's thoughts and God's ways, and encourages him to put his trust in the "enticing words of man's wisdom" rather than in the "demonstration of the Spirit and of power." Except as the Spirit of God teachea us there cannot come one single gleam of light of eternal truth to our soule. We may be able to quote Scripture as glibly as did Satan when he met our Lord in the wilderness and was forever vanquished; we may be skillful enough to prop up man-made doctrine with the God-given Word; we may, with the eloquence and logic of an Ingeraoll, pull the Bible to pieces and prove the mistakes of Moses; yea, verily, we may be able to move our audience of thousands with our brilliant and eloquent man-made sermon based upon God's Holy Word, and yet not receive one ray of light ourselves from God's throne, or give out one single gleam that will light some poor, dying soul to Heaven. "For God hath revealed them unto us by His Spirit; for the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God."

The Office of the Spirit.—And if the distinguishing mark of the sons of God is the Spirit by which they are led, how does the working of that Spirit manifest itself? Jesus, on the eve of His sacrifice for the sins of the world, told His disciples that upon His departure to be with the Father He would send His Paraclete or Representative back to earth. "And," said He, "When He is come, He will convince the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment; of sin, because they believe not on Me; of righteousness, because I go to My Father, and ye see Me no more; of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged." The office of the Spirit is therefore threefold, and, in His operation on the human heart, marks the sons of God. First of all the Spirit is a sin convincer.

The world, consciously or unconsciously, is striving to get away from this thought of sin. Culture and intellectualism would seek to lead the world to believe that it can uproot and outgrow sin. The process of veneering the sin-sick, sin-marred world so as to make man presentable to man's eyes goes busily on in the workshop of Satan, who is no more pleased with the disgusting rags of filthy wickedness than you are, but is seeking to turn out a polished product which he imagines he can hold up against the blood-washed product of Heaven and God not detect the shem. "And He will convince the world of sin"—not because it is a seething cesspool of crime and horrible vice—but because the world in its polished elegance and refinement, "believes not on Me" (the Christ).

False doctrine is insidiously at work robbing the world of the God-sent message that "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God," and again: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. . . . If we say that we have not sinned, we make Him a liar, and His Word is not in us." The fundamental doctrine of one of the modern-day false religions, which is one of the anti-Christs God's Word declares shall become manifest in the last days, is that there is no such thing as sin, and that the thought of sin only exists as a mistaken notion in the material mind of man. Oh, what heresy in the light of God's Word, which from Genesis to Revelation progressively develops God's marvelous plan of salvation from sin! Take away the Divine indictment of the world for sin and what further need have we for the Christ or His matchless sacrifice as the sin-bearer of the world?

Again, careless indifference and self-centered ease and gratification are blinding the world and hindering the Spirit in His work of convincing the world of sin. This is what kept the prodigal in the far country and made him an alien and no longer a son of the father out of whose loins he had sprung. In the far country amidst its sin, and yet not conscious of sin! What a pitiable condition! How day and night the heart of that father was wrung with anguish for that wayward boy! How during the troubled dreams of the night and the anxious hours of the day his thoughts followed that boy as he went heedless and heedlong to the miry depths in which the swine were wallowing! Ah, we who are fathers can feel the fevered pulsation of that agonized heart, and you, young men, in whom is planted the seed of fatherhood, can in some degree understand; yea, all, young and old, mothers and daughters, are moved by the deep sorrow of that home! Ah! how the tenderest chords of the human heart are set to vibrating in minor strain under the sad story! But, turn you to a sadder picture and try to understand in faint degree what that sorrow in Heaven must be as the Heavenly Father sees His sons in the far country and they turn a deaf ear to His tender pleading to return home to the Father's House.

Undoubtedly the father of the prodigal exhausted every means at his command to win his boy back to the homeland and the old roof-tree; but God has done infinitely more to win the wayward sons of men back to sonship with God and a right to a place in the Father's House, "for He so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." In the counsels of Heaven the Father's heart went out to the sons in the far country, and as Jesus, the Heavenly-begotten Son of God, saw the anguish of His Father's heart He offered Himself as an Ambassador to earth to win men back to God.

The Faithful Father.—And it was necessary that He should come and become a substitute for sinful man as He stood convicted of sin before the judgment seat of God after centuries of trial and constant and repeated failure. The prodigal son could not bring any of the filthy rags of the far country back to his father's house. Notice how he is stripped of his own covering and is provided with suitable clothing out of the father's storehouse. Man cannot come back to God wearing the livery of the world, but he must be stripped and be clothed upon with the righteousness which is of God through Christ. Because the father of the prodigal was a faithful father he must needs remove all marks of the far country from the repentant boy. Because God is a faithful Father He must needs remove every sin-stain of the world before the sons in the far country can be taken back again as sons and given a place in the Father's House. "The soul that sinneth it shall die" were the words of God as He placed man in the garden He had prepared in all its beauty for him. Ah, how the moaning of the trees must have sent shivering through the spaces of the garden to the hearts of that guilty pair these words of the righteous God, and how out on the thorn-covered ground outside the garden must have begun to be realized the meaning of this awful judgment for sin as the father and mother for the first time saw death in the body as they gazed in anguish upon the face of their dead boy, killed by the hand of his brother, and that hand moved to the deed by the sin of his parents! "The soul that sinneth shall die!" That judgment of a righteous God cannot be altered. It never has been altered and never will be altered. But God, "not willing that any should perish," hath provided a way of escape through the blessed substitute. The sinless One became sin for us and bore the guilt of the world in His body on the tree and died for us that we might be free from the guilt and consequences of sin. Herein is manifested the perfect righteousness of God, and the Spirit of God, having convicted the soul of sin, leads that soul out into the light which sees Christ as its Saviour and the way back to the Father's House and true sonship with God. God's Son in the world, God's Son on the cross, God's Son in the tomb, God's Son triumphant over death with the glory of the resurrection surrounding Him, God's Son ascended and at the right hand of the Father. (Oh, how wonderful! God help us to understand such marvelous truths and the infinite love that gave them birth!) God's Son come into the midst of the far country and lending the way back Home to a Father's love and care. Yes, "for as many as are led by the Spirit of God" realize their dend and lost condition in sin and turn to Jesus Christ as a Saviour, and thus become true sons of God.

Sons of God! Oh, friend, it will take the years of eternity to fully tell the riches and glory summed up in that relationship. "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God: therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew Him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is." The world hath nothing to offer which can compare with this matchless provision which God has made for man in finding his way back to Him, and the glory and blessing of that sonship is not a future hope beyond the grave, but a present reality, "for," our text goes on to declare, "ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear." Fear of what? Fear of sin and Satan. Who else is there to fear but Satan? For "the whole world lieth in the wicked one," and "because your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." Yes, and again he comes as an angel of light and would lend astray the very elect if it were possible.

Perfect Deliverance.—But don't suppose for a moment that the devil has everything his own way, for the sons of God "have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear.". Satan has no longer any claim on you and can no longer touch you if you, as a son of God, take refuge in the One who has completely overcome him. The Spirit, leading you as a son of God, brings you out into the light of His completed work in the soul, as you realize the meaning of the third part of His mission in the world, that of "convincing of judgment, because the prince of this world is judged."

Poor Christian on his way to the celestial city, seeing the lions in the path ahead, was filled with fear and dread and hesitated to pass that point until, as he drew nearer, he found that the lions were chained. Blessed be God, He has not left His sons to be torn by unchained lions of the devil's breeding. They are chained here and now, and can't touch us if we stay in the narrow path and keep our eyes on Jesus, our conquering Saviour. During the millennial age the devil is to be chained from the world, but praise God, ever since the complete undoing of Satan in Gethsemane and on Calvary, Satan has been chained from the sons of God, and he can't touch them unless they backslide into the far country and fail to claim complete deliverance. What! Do you mean to say that I do not need to fight the Christian warfare? that Satan will not buffet me and ensnare my feet in his hidden traps? No, I did not say that. You cannot expect to be any freer from such experiences than was St. Paul, who was buffeted sorely, but who fought a good fight and came off more than conqueror through Christ Jesus. But God does say, in the text He has given us, that the spirit of God "have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear." We have to fight, and fight desperately sometimes, until the cold sweat stands out on our foreheads and everything fails but our faith in God and His promise that He will not permit us to be tempted above that we are able. Yes, we have to fight, but not in fear of Satan, the enemy of our souls, but in full confidence in Him who has won the victory over him for us. The Spirit bears in upon our souls the truth that the prince of this world has been judged, and that the sons of God are free, and as we turn our faces towards the Homeland and see our Saviour's face we joyfully cry: "Abba, Father," and hear Him speaking back to our hearts,

"The soul that on Jesus hath leaned for repose
I will not, I will not desert to his foes;
That soul, though all hell should endeavor to shake,
I'll never, no never, no never forsake."

IT WAS EVEN UP.

Trade Dealing Between a Farmer and Merchant That Were of the See-Saw Order.

"I have read of people getting ahead of Uncle Josh, from the country," said a Detroiter, who used to be in the produce commission business, relates the Free Press, "but my opinion is that he can take good care of himself. One fall, when I was in business, I paid an extra price for a barrel of apples for my own use, and it turned out that half the contents was refuse that a hog would hardly eat. It was a clear swindle, but I didn't say a word. In a few days the farmer wanted a barrel of vinegar, and I fixed up one that was 90 per cent. water. He loaded it up and took it home, and he never made a kick. I realized that he would lay for me, however, and when he sent in five barrels of potatoes I had them opened and inspected before selling them. They were all O. K., as was a shipment of onions, but within a month he cheated me outrageously on three crocks of butter. It was my turn to get even again, and when he ordered a barrel of kerosene through me, I saw it was 12 gallons short. A few days thereafter he came lounging in and carelessly inquired if I could handle any beeswax.

"'I can,' I replied, 'but you know the trade has grown very particular about beeswax.'

"'As to how?'

"'Well, I shouldn't care to handle it before cutting up cakes to see whether they were all wax or half cornmeal.'

"'I see,' he said, as he scratched the back of his neck. 'It kind o' looks as if you mistrusted my honesty.'

"'Oh, not at all. Haven't I dealt with you?'

"'You have, and, durn my buttons, if you mistrust me, I do you, and I guess I'd better send you in five bags of 'taters and sell that beeswex to somebody else.'"

THE SEASON'S COSTUMES.

Materials and Trimmings That Are in Favor with Fashionable Dressers.

Among the favorites of the new season for general wear are costumes of linen in contrasting colors, most frequently ornamented with applique or handings in harmonizing shades. White linen gowns with embroidered polka dots and flounces, or in more dressy attire, with the addition of lace ornaments, make pretty summer frocks. Embroidered muslins with various flounces in needlework, cream batistes over silk and flower garlanded Swisses, are also attractive and artistic in effect, says American Queen.

Costumes which are made with special reference to washing qualities are short and flaring, usually finished with a plain or irregular circular flounce. Linen, pongee, pique, duck, silk-gingham, and even the sheer fabrics are used in the creation of these simple dresses, the trimmings being of insertion, fancy steam stitches, tucks and embroidery. The accompanying corsage is more frequently in a stylish shirt-waist form or a blouse having a lace yoke.

Grass linen, always a favorite in its plain or fancy varieties, makes charming little frocks for simple occasions, lined with fashionably tinted silk or lawn.

Robe dresses of canvas and linen come in attractive patterns, suitable for both dressy and the plainer gowns.

Imported linen gowns in ecrue or yellow, brown appear trimmed with strappings of black moire. All-black linens are very stylish banded with the same, or lightened by white bands, heavily stitched. Crash gowns trimmed with twine guipure outlining the flounce and forming yoke and cuffs are also in favor for present summer wear.

Gooseberry Shortcake.

Stew and sweeten one quart of berries, or canned ones may be used when the fresh are out of season. The cake: Rub one teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of butter into two cupfuls of sifted flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder being sifted with the flour; add one tablespoonful of sugar, one egg, and sweet milk sufficient to make a stiff batter. Drop on a buttered pie plate and bake from 15 to 20 minutes in a quick oven. When done transfer to a large dish; let stand five minutes. Split open, butter both of the inner sides, and fill with fruit, adding it slowly, so that the cake will absorb the juice. Replace the top crust and cover with a thick layer of the fruit. Place a cover over the dish, and keep in a warm place until served. Sweetened cream may be eaten with it.—Ladies' World, New York.

Baked Peach Pudding.

Stir to a cream one cupful of sugar and one-half of a cupful of butter; add a cupful of rich milk, two well-beaten eggs, a pint of flour in which two teaspoonfuls of baking powder have been sifted, and a pinch of salt. Into this batter stir pared and sliced fresh peaches or sliced canned peaches (one's taste must decide how many peaches to use.) Pour into a buttered dish and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven. Serve hot or cold with cream and sugar, or with sauce.—Housekeeper.

Like and Unlike.

A Gossipy Discussion of the Summer Fashions

Hints on What to Wear in the Warm Days of July and August. Dainty Materials in Dainty Garments.

TO THOSE away, happily away it behooves one to think, in the depth and peace of the country, food for reflection may be found in the vogue of some new and eminently dainty little shirts of silk mousseline, crepe de chine or soft silk, the chief decorative detail whereof is comprised in a yoke of lace, that is either continued in a straight narrow line down the center of the front, or in three tapering points, an effect mostly repented at the back.

All manner of lace is requisitioned toward this latest ornamental decree, from the coarse darned filet, to the filmiest Chantilly. A white silk maltese, shaped to form a tapering point down the center, asserted itself the piece de resistance on a white crepe de chine, while a very cobweb-like French lace, after amiably shaping a yoke piece, gradually tailed off in sharp "deuts" in a round to simulate a bolero, the main fabric of the affair being a lovely pale blue silk lawn. Although, if the truth be told, lace takes a fully equal share in the promotion of these really sweet little shirts. And the notion, when one comes to reflect, is most ingenious, since the decree is steadfast that the simple little silhouette shall be maintained. Wherefore is there nothing left but an infinite variety of cutting.

Collars, when they are affected at all, are mostly of the pelerine order, that is, if it be so desired, that the sternest dictates of fashion be followed. These pelerines are fitted slightly below the base of the throat, that a suspicion of chemisette may be revealed, which latter is usually privileged to form one with a close collar band. And I perceive a somewhat happy example occurs in the cause of that simple muslin frock pictured. A spotted white or cream quality muslin is intended, the skirt deftly stitched into three graduated tucks. The bodice is practically a blouse, surmounted by one of the above-mentioned pelerines of coarse chiny lace set on beneath little revers of pastel blue panne, a color relief that finds much tasteful repetition at the waist. While a further and still more effective break is declared in a smart broad plateau formed entirely of geranium leaves, with a handsome cluster of pink bloom placed high at the left side. And the en tout cas is of geranium pink silk hemmed with grass lawn.

My best respects invariably attend the woman who dares the boldly contrasting hat. But such boldness asks to be lived up to. There must be throughout an emphatic note of chic, an impression of individual knowledge, and absolutely no suggestion of a tentative searching after novelty; rather an assured sense of what is right. Here, for example, is a scheme at once charming and successful. Navy blue coat and skirt, pale mauve shirt, and chapeau with predominant note of green. On another, a biscuit linen suit, old rose silk or lawn shirt with black silk cravat, and hat of faded mauve roses; and so on. The individual colorist is always such a relief, as equally indeed is the individual dresser throughout.

Reverting to grass lawn, I have to chronicle a great revival in favor of this study ephemerality. It lends itself to a very plethora of ornamental ends in the shape of selvedge hems, foundations for collars; while hemstitched and tucked, is it privileged to fashion quite the most successful collars for the linen coatee. Spotted again, particularly pin spotted with black, does it create quite charming frocks, tucked and inset with either black or beige lace, the neutral harmony relieved by that insistent emerald green, in the shape of en tout cas, jupon, and wings or foliage in the chapeau.

In proportion as the detail of dress grows more insistent, so are we the more persuaded as to the varying possibilities of neutral tints, to which the very last recruit is "nefle" or medlar. In either voile or souple cloth is this most worthy to be considered, and being almost a color—if one may so say—the temptation to introduce that tempering touch of black is well-nigh irresistible. I know of a gown, built of this "nefle" cloth, that boasts a most original basqued bodice, a basque cut away in front and falling in a decidedly long point at the back, where it is laid in flat folds. The waist is defined by a rather high folded ceinture of black souple satin, while the top of the corsage is cut appreciably decollete, and the sleeves thrown back at the elbow with cavalier cuffs, to show an under-bodice of tucked white taffeta, with cravat ends of plisse black chiffon falling either side the front, each from a respective paste button.

But as was authoritatively predicted quite early in the spring, it is the white gown which is carrying all before it. The coarse white crash linen is really adorable, and makes up into the neatest, most chic little costumes imaginable. This material is, of itself, so thoroughly characteristic, a perfect build and stitched strappings are all the assistance asked towards its elegant completion. While a still more resisting variety, though one of rather freer weave, is spotted the size of a sixpence in colors on a neutral-tinted ground, and requisitioned to the particular cause of the yachting and boating shirt, the edge of the "marin" collar outlined by a waved insertion of braid lace. A successful career may safely be prophesied for such a brave departure, allied either to a coat and skirt of navy blue serge or the more immediately pressing linen suit.

And coarse white linen, while I remember, is the last fad for chemisettes or veats, completed by turned-down linen collars, for wearing with yachting or river costumes. It is, of course, the lightest of the coarse quality procurable, wherefore will the prescnce of the stitched, tucked ornamentation, not be misunderstood. Though of a fact nothing is impossible in these days to the dexterous needlewoman.

Just what is going to become of all the elaborated dust cloaks prepared for races and the summer festivities, is a story that has yet to be written. Since the bulk of fashionable affection is being obviously bestowed on the simple loose sacque coats of cloth, with roomy bell-shaped sleeves. Here is the prevailing idea pictured in a zinc white cloth as fine and souple as silk, a model that tests for its sole success on bold effective outline. The buttons, only visible when the coat is closed, are gilt of the new convex center set in square mounts.

ELLEN OSMONDE.

A Good Religionist.

A young matron has for her guide, philosopher and friend, and incidentally for maid, a very bright young woman of irrepressible wit and a member of the Catholic church. No long ago, when there was so much complaint by New Yorkers of sediment, and even of infinitesimal animals, in their drinking water, the maid, not long from running streams, made mild objection. The time was during Lent. One day she discovered two or three little red live things in a tumbler of water which she was about to swallow, and she exclaimed, throwing up her hands: "Good gracious! I can't drink your New York water; it's full of bugs, and I don't eat meat in Lent."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

GENERAL PURPOSE BARN.

It Affords Shelter for Stock and Room for the Convenient Storage of All Feeds.

To save time and labor should be a desidentum in the selection of plans for a barn or outbuildings. My barn affords shelter for stock, room for the convenient storing and feeding of feeds, accommodations for storage of manure without waste, and many conveniences for the doing of chores.

The barn is 40x60 feet. On the south side is a covered barnyard 30x60 feet. The west side of the barnyard is boarded up or protected by an adjoining building, thus leaving the south and east sides open. This affords an excellent place for carefully saving all manure, which is of great importance; also for allowing animals exercise on stormy days, and at the same time protection from the weather, also provides shelter for any additional stock which the barn would not accommodate. The roof over the barnyard is built high enough to give storing room for straw, bedding, etc., which should be used plentifully so as to always keep the barnyard dry.

My barn contains three horse stalls, with mangers, harness closet and work shop, all on one side. Opposite are quarters for storage of implements and tools and feed bins. There are eight comfortable cow stalls with mangers. Besides the driveway, there is plenty of feed room or floor space for doing such work as may be necessary.

The floor over the barnyard should be high enough to admit a load of hay, or about 11 or 12 feet. The pump and watering trough are also located in the barnyard. The basement should be built in a small bank (if any) so as to admit a driveway to both basement and first floor. This basement should be eight or nine feet high and provided with plenty of light. Floors of stables should be carefully constructed so as to save all liquid manure. The work shop should contain an assortment of tools, enabling the farmer to do the most of his own repairing, and affording work during inclement weather. Grain bins for storing various feeds enable the farmer to feed a properly balanced ration.

The first floor is altogether for mow room with driveway 12 feet wide. Part of the space may be set off for granaries if desired. Open chutes admit of putting down feed to basement and also serve as ventilators. Sides of chutes are boarded up two or three feet high. A cupola is placed on the roof, dimensions being in proportion to size of barn. Doors should be hung on anti-friction rolling hangers. The barn should be built of good material, kept well painted to preserve the wood, as well as for the sake of appearance. It will then be an ornament as well as a necessity on any farm.—Wilbur F. Kennedy, in Farm and Home.

Fruits on Poultry Farms.

The owner of a poultry farm should raise all the summer fruits needed for the table, all the vegetables that can be eaten at home, with enough for the poultry, all the grass he will need for the chickens and hay for wintering a few cows, and all the milk and butter for home use. Here we have one crop helping another. We plant a few acres of clover, which gives the chickens fresh green food in the season and good hay for winter. The fruits supply the table with what we need and then add to the diet of the chickens. Likewise the vegetables lessen the cost of our living, and give to the egg layers the very food they require.—Farmers' Voice.

Plea for the Wild Grape.

Why should not the wild grape secure more attention from the landscape gardener? Its hardiness and vigor are beyond question. Its foliage is unusually beautiful and its clusters of fruit are a delight to the eye at least. Is there anything better for hiding ugly places than its lattice work of vines? Why should we be forever searching the corners of the earth for rare trees and vines when we have these at home which are far more beautiful, besides needing no acclimatizing. As loyal Americans, we ought to give our own the preference.—Rural World.

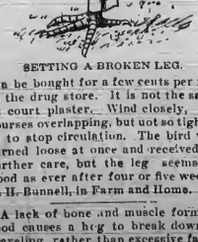
THE CATALPA SPECIOSA.

Farmers Can Plant No Tree Which Is More Ornamental or Useful Than This One.

Catalpa speciosa is a soft wood, and all soft woods that I am acquainted with, with the exception of this one, are of little value except for inside work. What gives catalpa wood its remarkable durability is not yet well understood, but experience has proven it to be far more durable than oak, both in the ground and above it. It grows very rapidly from seed. I planted some seed in a piece of rich soil, and many of the plants reached a height of five feet that season. The seedlings have an immense tap root that goes deep into the grounnd and makes the digging of the seedlings, if well grown, no easy task. The wood of these young trees has much the appearance of cottonwood, and one would judge it to be of little value, but as the trees increase in size the wood becomes more dense, though never hard like oak. No matter how dry it becomes it is never hard to cut or drive nails into, and for this reason it would make a much better post than oak, even if it did not last three or four times as long as oak.

This is the wood for farmers to grow. If they would plant a billion trees this year it would mean that the country would soon be a billion dollars richer. If you can buy the seedlings buy them. They can be had for about three dollars a thousand. If you cannot afford seedlings buy an ounce of seed, sow it in drills in rich soil, keep all weeds out, and next spring set the trees where they are to stand. Whether you buy the seedlings or seed be sure that they are Speciosa. Be doubly sure of it. If you have a rough spot or a side hill cover it with this valuable tree. Set them about six by eight feet apart, and when they reach post size cut out each alternate tree, leaving them eight by 12 feet apart. The catalpa must have room. It will not bear crowding after it gets up 30 feet or so. The seed is winged like maple seed and should be covered about an inch deep. Drop them about six inches apart. If the seed does not all appear sound drop two in a hill. If planted where they are to stand permanently drop three in a place, and pull out all but one plant when a foot high. Both seed and seedlings can be had at the leading nurseries.—Fred Grundy, in Farm and Fireside.

THE GROWTH OF PIGS.



A Subject Which Should Be Studied Patiently and Thoroughly by Every Farmer.

It is now pretty generally understood that sheep and cattle make gains at the least cost near the birth period, and also that most rapidly, says the Farmer, of St. Paul, Minn. This is owing to the greater activity of the secretions when animals are young. But this explanation does not so well apply to the case of swine. After several years of experimenting at the Minnesota experiment station, it has been ascertained that pigs do not gain nearly so rapidly when they are young as when of more mature age. When they are on the sow it was difficult to make them gain a pound a day. After weaning for two or three months they seldom made more than one and one-half pounds per day, but after, say, five or six months they gained well on two pounds per day. Thus it has been shown in several instances that between the ages of two and eight months pigs have made the most rapid increase in weight. The experiments referred to were not made with a view to test this question but these results came out incidentally in a large number of tests. As a result of the casual manner in which these conclusions were reached, the relative cost of the gains cannot be given, but it is probable those made near the birth period were the least costly, owing to the small amount relatively of the food consumed. This is a great question. It ought to be further investigated. The experience referred to calls up the thought that it may be possible to market pork too young to bring the grower the greater profit, even when swine are sold as young as six or seven months, the popular age at which to sell. These results in swine growing, so different from those obtained in growing cattle and sheep, are well worth the closest study.

The bird was turned loose at once and received no further care, but the leg seems as good as ever after four or five weeks.—D. H. Bunnell, in Farm and Home.

"GOOD EVENING, WHERE IS EVELYN?"

BENEFICIAL NICKNAMES.

Those Reminding One of Some Failing May Serve to Correct the Imperfection.

"Isn't it too mean," began Mrs. Emmons, according to the New York Tribune, when her husband had quietly settled himself for the evening; "the boys on our block have given Harold a horrid nickname. They're calling him Reddy, and you know he isn't."

"Nicknames are a splendid thing, my dear," replied Mr. Emmons; "I have often thought of writing a little essay on the medicinal value of nicknames. They have a fine effect on the character if applied early enough. You know that when I was younger I was genuinely lazy. Accordingly I was duly dubbed Fatty, and the word was a spiritual tonic. I joined the track team and the boxing class; and, if I recollect rightly, made a slightly better showing in my college curriculum. I have been giving the little imp who first so designated me 30 years of thanks. I question to-day if I would have been secretary of the Tiddledewinks club but for him.

"Let me philosophize further. I have seen the name Annie when applied to a sickly and rather little boy change him into a manly fellow who kept his hair cut short. 'Kid' will cure a slouch. Name a boy from his moral weakness, and it is odds but you cure him. The Indians are in the right of it when they name a man from some item in his biography, some event where he has failed or conquered. What you call a man that he becomes."

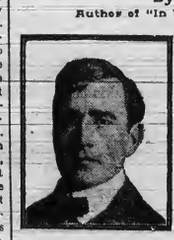
"But do you think it's nice to make fun of a deformity?" asked Mrs. Emmons, only half convinced; "there's that poor little Smith boy. You know his ears stick out, so the youngsters call him 'Wing-and-Wing.' Do you really uphold making fun of one's personal appearance?"

"Of course, that isn't so nice," responded Mr. Emmons, "but I think even that is valuable. You know George William Curtis' little fable of a man who lived very many years before he saw himself, and what a shock that was; and it is not necessary to end the quotation. 'I wad some power the giftie gie us!' Now, there's no danger of any such tragedy when there is an active gang of boys in the same district. It is no bad thing that a man should know he has red hair and that certain features are not entirely Grecian. Nicknames are the salvation of many of us."

Somewhat Different.

"Whither away?" called the inquisitive man after an acquaintance who was hurrying down the street.

"To the coronation," answered the hurried one as he checked his speed for a minute.



"What?" exclaimed the human interrogation point. "Not to England?"

"Oh, no," replied the other as he started to get up steam again; "only to the dental emporium to have a tooth crowned."—Chicago Daily News.

A LESSON FROM MARY McLANE

By FORREST CRISSEY,

Author of "In Thompson's Woods," "The Exile," Etc.

Happily the best lesson taught by the notorious Story of Mary McLane is to be had without reading the book! But it has a moral worth the pointing—even worth wading through a few chapters of the best-abused volume of the day to get at.

In the fact that this raw and undomesticated literary effort could find a reputable publisher there is encouragement for budding literary ambition, no matter how isolated from influences of culture, how untrained in methods or ingenious in outlook.

What gives the "Story of Mary McLane" its only excuse for publicity? Its suggestiveness? its brilliancy of wit? its subtlety of sarcasm? its originality of ideas? None of these! The book is not strikingly nasty; its flashes of wit are not so frequent as to blind the reader's eyes; its attempts at irony are often ponderous and far-fetched and its boldest originality consists in a brazen confession of shamelessness—a lack of the sentiment of common decency.

But still the book has a legitimate claim upon the interest of the respectable reader, despite its commonplaceness and crudity. And in that claim is the hope of the obscure and embryo writer.

No matter how crudely it may be done, there is a sure welcome waiting for the author who lets us WATCH the workings of an AVERAGE HUMAN MIND, who uncovers the SENSATIONS of an ORDINARY SOUL, who takes the cap off and allows us to SEE THE MENTAL WHEELS GO ROUND, who lets us look upon the chemicalization of genuine human emotion. THAT WRITER IS GOING TO HAVE A HEARING! And he need not descend to nastiness to gain his audience, either. It will not be necessary, so long as he gives us the real thing in other lines. The truth about trivial things is often interesting and EVERY HUMAN HEARTS BEATS QUICKER when it is INVITED TO SHARE THE SECRET THOUGHTS of another mind on the deeper problems of life. And how seldom are those thoughts actually shared! Often we pretend to do so—almost every book published is a pretense of this kind—but the drapery of conventionality is generally hugged about our mental nakedness.

On many lines it is far better thus—and the exposure of a mind vulgar and deformed is revolting. The soul which can boast of nothing but its nakedness has no call to reveal itself.

But there are sure laurels for the literary novice of average mental and emotional force who will THINK OUT LOUD—which is to say on paper—about the INSIDE EXPERIENCES which are COMMON TO ALL HUMANITY.

THIS IS THE SHORTEST ROAD POSSIBLE TO QUICK LITERARY SUCCESS, and it need not lead into the mire, either.

One thing is sure, however. It will take NERVE to do it with the thoroughness that means success. Only a brave heart can travel that path to fame.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

The Women Also Recommend Pe-ru-na.

Miss Blanch Grey, 174 Alabama street, Memphis, Tenn., a society woman of Memphis, writes:

"To a society woman whose nervous force is often taxed to the utmost from lack of rest and irregular meals I know of nothing which is of so much benefit as Peruna. I took it a few months ago when I felt my strength giving away, and it soon made itself manifest in giving me new strength and health."—Miss Blanch Grey.

Mrs. X. Schneider, 2409 Thirty-seventh Place, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"After taking several remedies without result, I began last year to take your valuable remedy, Peruna. I was a complete wreck. Had palpitation of the heart, cold hands and feet, female weakness, no appetite, trembling, sinking feeling nearly all the time. You said I was suffering with systemic catarrh, and I believe that I received your help in the nick of time. I followed your directions carefully and can say to-day that I am well again. I cannot thank you enough for my cure."

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

A free book written by Dr. Hartman, on the subject of catarrh in its different phases and stages, will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan.

DR. LLEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

REMINISCENCES OF WAR.

[From Winchester Sun.]

The following interesting letter to Dr. Browne, answering questions is from one of Pete Everett's men, who was in the battle when General Morgan was killed.

ERLANGER, Ky., May 15, 1902.

DR. M. S. BROWNE:

MY DEAR SIR AND COMRADE:—In answer to your questions, I will say, General Morgan left Abingdon, Va., on the first day of September 1864 and arrived at Greenville, Tenn., on the evening of the 3rd day of September.

The main column went into camp, in the rear of Greenville, and General Morgan, with his staff, and one hundred men, under Pete Everett, rode into town to Mrs. Williams' house, and the Company went out about a mile from town, went into camp and put out pickets on the road. Pete Everett was not in camp that night; I did not see him the next morning. They failed to put out a gun in the town, through some misunderstanding. Mrs. Williams had a son in the Confederate army whose wife lived with her and she was a Unionist: they told us she got on a horse that night and rode to General Gillhams, camp and reported to him the situation of things in and around Greenville.

It rained very hard all night; the next morning Bob Scott and myself got up before day and made a fire and were drying our wet blankets when we heard the firing of guns out on the Bulls Gap Road, which we thought at first was Col. Hayne's men firing off their wet guns; but when we heard the artillery, we knew there was a fight on; so we woke the balance of the men, saddled our horses, fell in line and waited for orders, but none came, and we thought the best thing we could do was to report to Colonel Smith, which we did and found everything in a hubbub; Colonel Smith was much excited.

By this time the town was full of Yankees and they charged us and Major L. C. Norman met them with a squad on the outskirts of the town and drove them back. Col. Smith called me and told me to tell the Captain of the artillery to unlimber and open on the town; about the time they unlimbered he galloped up and told the officer to limber up and fall back; just about that time I saw Colonel Hayne's regiment falling back on another road, which I reported to Colonel Smith and asked if he had not better send a courier and have them brought up, but he did not do it. The men were becoming demoralized and did not know what to do. I saw Captain Bart Jenkins coming down the road with his company and I rode up to him and told him to stop all stragglers and form them in line with his company. He jumped off his horse with a pistol in each hand ordered them to fall in line, threatening to kill the first man that undertook to pass him.

The whole command was in full retreat: the railroad ran parallel with the dirt road we were on; and the Yankee Cavalry was on the opposite side from us, on high ground pouring it in to us every jump; they killed and wounded several of our men. When we got back to the forks of the Greenville and Babs Mill road, we found Colonel Henry Giltner's Brigade formed in line of battle. He took command and sent Captain John McAfee back with a flag of truce, after General Morgan's body. On our way back, we came across Captain Tom Quick and Captain Geter, who went back with us. We found several of our men that had been killed or wounded; one of the dead was Bob Scott, of Nicholasville, Ky., and another was a man by the name of Laile from some of the upper counties. We found General Morgan's body laid out in the parlor of Mrs. Williams. We washed and dressed the body, put it in the coffin, got a spring wagon and put the body in and started down the street, and a lady called to me and gave me a nice robe to put over the coffin.

We drove out a few miles from town and about dusk stopped at a farm house and drove the wagon into the yard, and stayed there, standing guard over the coffin all night; I was on guard until eleven o'clock; about half past ten some Yankee cavalrymen rode up to the fence and asked me if it was General Morgan's body in the coffin, saying they wanted to see him. I told them I could not think of opening the coffin. They said they would see it anyhow, I told them we were there under a flag of truce and were entitled to protection. They insisted and I called to the men in the house, who came rushing out with their guns and pistols in their hands and the marauders left in a hurry. The next day we took the body to Jonesboro, and put it on the train to be taken to Abingdon for burial. General Duke and General Morgan's wife met us there.

Some of the southern people at Greenville told us after General Morgan was killed a Yankee soldier cut the body on a horse and rode up and down the street, yelling, "here's your horse thief," he then carried the body out to headquarters and General Gillam had the body put in an ambulance, and sent back to Mrs. Williams', with orders to have it decently buried.

Captain Harry Clay, Captain Jim Rogers and Major Gosset were captured at Mrs. Williams' house.

General Morgan was killed on the 4th day of September, 1864, and his body was taken to Abingdon on the 5th of September.

Yours very truly.

At Hopkinsville Jasper Cunningham is sueing Rachel Cunningham for a divorce, alleging abandonment. He says that in the year 1882 defendant went to Nashville on a visit and never returned.

Mr. A. M. Summers, of Goodnight had twenty-eight sheep killed by dogs last Thursday night. The next night he put poison on the carcasses of the sheep, and on Saturday morning found sixteen dead dogs on his premises.

Geo. Elliott a farmer of Mercer county, hanged himself in his barn. Later his wife was found on the roadside with her head mutilated and dying. Previous to this Elliott had told a neighbor a horse had kicked her. They had had trouble.

Dr. Elmer Northcutt, of Nicholasville, who is drilling oil wells in Powell county, reopened an old well drilled near the center of Clay City some thirteen years ago, and found that oil had raised within a few feet of the top. It is of fine quality, and promises to be in paying quantities.

Harrison Shelby, colored, was arraigned in the Boyle County Court, charged with procuring liquor for another person. This is the first case under the Farris anti-blind tiger law that has come up in Boyle county. Shelby was fined $50 and given ten days in jail, from which he has taken an appeal to the Circuit Court.

The Georgetown Times says: Saturday night some person or persons unknown dynamited or poisoned the fish in the pond of Mr. Will N. Offutt. Hundreds of dead fish, many of them of fine size, were found on the water Sunday. Last fall Mr. Offutt put in the pond a large quantity of bass, furnished by the Government. They were growing rapidly, and in a few years there would have been fine bass fishing.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 1902. NO. 40

COMMISSARY, July 19.—W. L. Ryle and wife, visited her father and mother, last Saturday night and Sunday.

W. O. Rouse and wife, went to the city last Saturday.

T. J. Walton went to Rising Sun, Tuesday, on business.

Idlewild, thanks for your compliment. We hope to meet you at the fair.

Ransom Ryle, of Harrison, Ohio, was down, last Sunday, circulating among friends.

Miss Pearl Botts spent Saturday night and Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Clyde Berkshire.

Mrs. Flave Louden and Mrs. Rolen McCurty spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Richard Louden.

Eugene Kelly and wife, spent last Saturday night and Sunday with his brother, near Hebron.

Bernard Rogers and wife spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. Rogers' two sisters, Miss Arsie and Stella Ryle, near here.

Misses Arsie and Stella Ryle visited Mrs. Daisy Riggs in Point Pleasant neighborhood, Tuesday night and Wednesday with her brother, Ed, and sister, Pearl Botts.

Francesville, we are not much on etiquette ourselves. We live on a pike at a crossroad, and see a great many people as they pass and repass, and people coming to the shop gives us an opportunity to know what is going on, and because we are generally posted in this particular, we are called the "bureau of information."

T. J. Walton says, he thinks he will have 75 tons of hay. Early in the spring he said, "I will have to sell some of my cattle and the like; as I was going to say, my meadows are no good." Jack is either down in the cellar, or up in the garret. Fred Utz says he will have 150 tons if he gets it all cut and cured. Quite a difference in the estimate of the two men.

A short time a go we read some advice given by Bill Arp to young men, which we think good, sensible advice, and we will repeat it. Bill said, "young man, when you call on your best girl to take her pleasure riding or spend the evening with her, and find her in the parlor in the easy chair and her mother out in the kitchen, don't ask her to take a ride; make your call as short as possible and never repeat the call. If you find her in the kitchen, barefooted, dress pitching up half way to her knees, sleeves rolled up to her ears, ready to wash the dishes, and when asked if she would take a ride, and she says, yes sir with pleasure, but you will have to wait until I wash the dishes.' Sit right down on the doorstep and wait for that girl, for she is a jewel—worthy to be the fragment of any man." I may not have used Bill's exact language, but I have expressed his meaning. We enjoy, very much, reading Bill Arp's letters in the Atlanta Constitution. By the way, we are agent for the Constitution and Sunny South, both good papers. Any one desiring one or both, we would be glad to receive your subscription. We will receive and forward subscriptions for the RECORDER. Every one should take and read his own county paper; we intend to do all we can for the RECORDER.

We have been reliably informed that our writing pleases the ladies. This encourages us to greater efforts. Say, Mr. Editor, would you give a fellow two comps? If you will we'll look around, and if we can find some lady that thinks she is some part, parcel or fragment of us and if we can find such an one, we will take her to the fair; goddarned if we don't. We think this would add greatly to the attractions of the fair.

FLICKERTOWN.—Earl Baldon, of Carrollton, was visiting at his uncle John Baldon's near here last week.

Mrs. Lillie Hensly was very sick last week.

The recent splendid rains will about make the early corn.

Henry Deck is the champion bumble bee fighter in this neighborhood.

Ennis Mullins has gone to Addyston, Ohio, to work in the pipe foundry.

The whistle of the threshing machine is heard in the land quite often again.

This neighborhood was visited by a severe wind storm, last Friday afternoon.

Jack Barnett's horse came very near being killed by a falling tree a few days ago.

Cage Stephens was the first in this neighborhood to feast on roastingears, his own production.

Charlie Klopp and wife, of Lawrenceburg, were visiting his parents near here, last week.

RICHWOOD STATION.—Miss Virginia Southgate has returned from Michigan.

Miss Norvel Bedinger is spending part of her vacation in Ohio.

Miss Jessie Bedinger, of Cuba, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. P. Gregory.

Miss Sallie Moreland, of New York, is at the home of Mrs. Daniel Bedinger.

Mrs. Robert C. Green and daughter, Miss Louise, visited friends here last week.

Miss Olivia Rauson, who has been at school in Brooklyn, is at home for the summer.

Miss Sara, daughter of Mr. Legrand Gaines, entertained her little friends at a delightful lawn party, Thursday afternoon.

Stanley Stephenson, of New York City, was gladly welcomed on his arrival here to spend several weeks with his sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Ranson.

The little girls, who were pupils of Miss Jean Chambers, enjoyed their teacher's hospitality at her beautiful home, Saturday afternoon, July 12.

Mrs. Robert K. Briley Delaney, of Erlanger; Mrs. Robert Pace Tupman and daughters, Misses Elisabeth and Laura, of Los Angeles county, Cala., were guests of Mrs Jane F. Conner on last Friday.

Electrical storms are very detrimental to telephone interests.

WALTON, July 21.—Last Sunday morning N. M. Northcutt and wife, of Covington, came out for a week's vacation.

Squire Curley is having a protection wall of brick built on the north side of his house.

Lewis Sullivan, aged 11, was engaged in carrying water to the workmen on the school house, when he fell between the joist, but, fortunately came out with some bruises, but no broken bones.

A. P. Tompkins, commercial traveler in the harness line, has removed from Sparta to this place. He says the organizing of a graded school had much to do with his selection of a place of residence.

It is understood that a petition will be presented by the ladies at the next meeting of the Town Council to pass an ordinance that will put an end to the occupation of the sidewalks by gangs of men, especially in the vicinity of the postoffice.

The trustees of Walton Graded school at the last meeting, selected Prof. W. G. Dickey, of Mississippi, an able educator, for principal; Miss Harriet Bedinger, teacher of the High School, Mrs. Alice Coffman, the Intermediate school and Miss Lizzie Rogers, of the Primary School. The selection of Prof. Dickey for Principal is a very fortunate one, as it means success for the school. His testimonials are of the highest character, he having always taught with the most eminent success.

"Till Hymen bro't his love delighted hour,
There dwelt no joy in Eden's rosy bower."

The young society people of the town were taken by surprise on Wednesday last when a quartet of their number left town in a carriage and proceeded northward on the Lexington pike. Almost instantly it was whispered around that the inmates had gone on a matrimonial expedition. The party consisted of Miss Myrtle Jones and Miss Sallie Herndon, Dr. B. F. Meade and Mr. Garfield Slater. They had a license authorizing the marriage of Miss Jones and Mr. Slater. When they reached Covington they proceeded to the residence of the Rev. G. W. Hill and were made man and wife. They then went to the Burnet House, and Thursday came home.

Another youthful couple from our town had gone in a contrary direction and were married the same day in Owenton. Miss Hattie Vest and J. Sleet Yarnell were the second candidates for wedded bliss; and they had some more trouble in getting married than the first couple. Sleet took the early morning train to Louisville and got off at Sparta to go for the minister, who had only a few weeks previously baptized the two at the great Baptist revival here. By some mischance Sleet's letter did not reach the reverend gentleman in time and he was not on hand. Meanwhile Miss Hattie had boarded the Tuesday's early train and she was among relatives at Mr. Ben Roberts', Sanders, Owen county. Yarnell was equal to any emergency. Procuring a horse and buggy he conveyed Miss Vest to Owenton where the Baptist minister soon tied the knot to their great satisfaction, To both of the newly married couples the Recorder tenders the warmest congratulations and heartfelt wishes for their future welfare.

Hall of Walton Lodge, No. 163 I. O. O. F., Walton, Ky., July 25th, 1902:

Whereas, The Grand Master of the Universe has taken from our membership, Past Grand S. W. Houston, therefore,

Resolved, That Walton Lodge No. 163 and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows have sustained thereby the loss of a faithful, zealous and efficient worker for the great principles which our beloved order advocates, and the widow, the orphan, the sick and distressed, a valued friend.

Resolved, That the sympathy and assistance of this lodge be tendered to his bereaved widow and children.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on the records of this lodge and a copy of same be presented to the family of our deceased brother and to the Boone County Recorder.

Committee:—J. E. Botts, A. M. Jones.

GUNPOWDER, July 21.—John Gladfelter and wife, of Hamilton, Ohio, spent several days in this neighborhood last week.

Mrs. Malinda Utz has malarial fever.

Mrs. Mary Zimerman entertained a number of her friends from Florence, last Sunday.

B. C. Surface is still improving slowly, but is confined to his bed. Mrs. Surface has fully recovered.

Harrison Clore and wife and your cor. and family, ate watermelon with J. C. Hankins, last Sunday.

J. C. Hankins was on the sick list several days last week, but has about recovered, and is at his post of duty again.

A severe electrical storm passed over this neighborhood last Saturday night, but did no damage so far as we have learned.

William Phillips, who has been in the employ of Rouse Bros. for several years, has accepted a position in Covington, and will move there.

The harvest was delayed somewhat on account of the rains the latter part of last week, but with a few days fair weather the work of harvesting will be completed.

W. H. Tanner, of Florence, gave us the following item. He dug a hill of early Ohio potatoes and got two potatoes which weighed 2¼ lbs., and one of them measured 10 inches in circumference.

We appreciate the generous offer of the RECORDER in which it is made possible for us to attend the fair one day with a complimentary ticket for that office, and will say you may look us for Friday.

For a pleasant afternoon attend the half day Grange picnic at the Harvest Home Ground on Saturday, August 2. The music will be excellent.

UNION, July 22.—Preaching at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

Miss Bessie Harter is the guest of Mrs. W. M. Rachal.

Mr. and Mrs. Becker are entertaining relatives from Cincinnati.

Miss Ray Cross, of Walton, is the guest of Miss Rachal Wilson.

Charles Allen is improving after a severe attack of rheumatism.

James Fall, of Alexandria, Ind., is the guest of the Misses Riley.

Elbert Rice has a splendid position in a hardware store in Cincinnati.

Miss Frazier left Monday after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Kennedy.

Miss Lottie Williams, who has been quite sick for several days, is better.

Mrs. Elbert Rice is spending some time in Erlanger with N. B. Stephens and wife.

William Huey, of Carrollton, is visiting his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

The entertainment mentioned in last week's issue was a success notwithstanding the storm.

Joe Williams, wife and daughter, of Camp Washington, are spending a few days with B. L. Norman and wife.

Miss Lizzie Stevens and nieces, Hulda, Eaulce, and Marietta Stevens, spent several days with Mrs. J. W. Couner, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Poindexter, of Cynthiana, have returned from their eastern trip and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

Miss Ella Norman, who has been visiting Mrs. Asbury, in Mason county, returned Saturday, much to the pleasure of her friends.

HATHAWAY, July 22.—Roastingears are on the bill of fare.

Claud Utz suffered with a large boil on his ankle last week.

Chester Quick, of Covington, is spending several days here visiting relatives.

Mrs. B. H. Stephens was the guest of Mrs. Cynthia White, Thursday evening.

Miss Nettie Hensley, of Locust Grove was the guest of Miss Fannie Smith, Thursday.

Your writer and wife are entertaining a 10 pound daughter at their home this week.

Mrs. J. H. Mason entertained several of her lady friends at dinner, last Thursday.

Miss Edna McElroy was calling on Miss Imogene Neal, of Erlanger, last Thursday.

J. M. Rice is talking of moving to Union, where he will locate and run a blacksmith shop.

Bro. Thomas, as the Editor has taken the responsibility upon himself I guess we will have to abandon picnics, fishries, etc., and go to the fair with him and have a bigger time than we anticipated. The band will play just the same any way. At the fair there will be more enthusiasm to enjoy, so to speak.

After a serious illness of twelve days, the little three months old baby of Harry and Nannie Stephens passed away July 9th.

"We saw his suffering, heard his sighs,
With the throbbing hearts and weeping eyes;
But now he camly sleeps at last,
All grief, all pain, all suffering past,
God loved him too, and he thought best—
To take him home to be at rest."

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. S. Taylor. He read the 90th and 23rd Psalms, and after a few excellent remarks and prayers, the remains were interred in Big Bonetcemetery. The parents desire to thank their many friends for kindness shown them during their baby's illness.

BEAVERLICK, July 21.—Miss Ethel Carroll, of Covington, is the guest of Miss Maud Hume.

Little Mary Gilipin is very ill with malarial fever.

Sheriff B. B. Allphin was visiting B. B. Hume, last Saturday.

J. O. Griffith lost a very fine Hereford cow, one day last week.

John Haley and wife were visiting Geo. Slayback and family, Sunday.

Born, to James French and wife, on the 16th inst., a bouncing baby boy.

Mrs. Jas. Lassley, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, is visiting friends at this place.

Miss Nora Lockhart, of Newport, is spending the week with John Lockhart and family.

A. A. Roter has added greatly to the appearance of his newly built home by a fresh coat of paint.

Garfield Slater and his pretty bride passed through here, Thursday, enroute to their future home at Hume.

Mrs. Josie Grady and daughter, Morris and William Haley, of Covington, were visiting at Jno. Haley's last week.

The community was blest with a number of fine showers of rain last week, and the farmers are thereby rejoiced.

Several of our young society people attended the entertainment at Union, last Saturday evening, and pronounce it very interesting.

Robt. Conley left for Greencastle, Ind., last Saturday, for a visit of some weeks with two of his married daughters, who reside there.

J. C. Hughes sold his fine 5-year old, pesmium pair of harness mares to Mr. Obe Cole, of Butler, last Thursday, for the handsome price of $450.

A goodly number of Beaver's sporting contingent attended the ice cream supper at the home of William Sturgeon near Verona, and report a general good time.

Quite a number of young folks were visiting at the hospitable home of Mr. Richard Hoard, last Sunday, enjoying the day listening to sweet music and social conversation.

Theodore Chambers, of Walton, has just finished plastering the Methodist parsonage here, and F. D. Grubbs, contractor, will soon have the pretty building ready for occupancy.

Jake Hughes has sold out his entire dry goods and grocery business to the Beverlick Mercantile Co., and will now give his attention to his rapidly growing telephone system.

We learn that Robt. Litterell has sold his farm in Jackson county and will at an early date open a nice grocery store at his place in Beaver in connection with his coal oil and gasoline depot.

Several of our farmers have engaged their wheat to Joe Collins, of Crittenden, for 72c; but others who believe wheat, are long, will reach the government regulation price of $1 per bushel, are holding their grain.

BELLEVUE, July 21.—Clayton Rogers, of Louisville, is visiting his parents near here.

Mrs. H. E. Arnold was visiting in Petersburg, last week.

G. Marshall Terrill is building up a good deutal practice here.

Mrs. Minnie Carpenter was visiting her parents here, last Saturday.

E. L. Grant delivered fourteen 1,000 pound steers to F. J. Kelly, last week.

J. J. Walton treated himself to a new buggy when in Aurora, last Thursday.

Miss Mary Huey was visiting her brother, Robert, near Burlington, last week.

James Conner made a tour of this neighborhood, one day last week, buying stock.

James Rogers sold to James Conner, of Cincinnati, 26 steers that averaged 1,370 pounds.

We had the pleasure of calling on several of our friends while in Petersburg, one day last week.

Mrs. Carrie Goodridge, of Middle Creek neighborhood, is very low. We hope her recovery will be speedy.

Theodore Birkie and his lady cousin from the city, were visiting the neighborhood of Petersburg, last Sunday.

When Bro. Thomas speaks of his cooking making the ladies ashamed of theirs, he forgets that self praise is half scandal.

Misses Artie and Stella Ryle, of the Commissary, were guests of their sister, Mrs Bernard Rogers, last Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Susie Tou, after spending a month or more with Miss Julia Dinsmore, returned to her home in New York, last week.

School teachers are getting a move on. There are three or four here every week to see the trustees. Who will be the lucky one?

The boys seem to have let John M. Lassing, Sim Terrill and Sam Adams hang the political bluff on them, and are afraid to tackle it here.

Whether we have the opportunity or not to accept the Recorder's offer of a free pass to the Florence fair one day, we appreciate it all the same.

Jack Barnett reports that a hard wind and rain storm struck Woolper valley about noon, last Friday, scattering wheat and hay shocks all over the fields.

Our old friend, A. P. Marshall, of Aurora, was shaking hands with his old acquaintances here, one day last week. He was in fine spirits, and looking well and hearty.

James Rogers and Arnold Bros. shipped 9,000 bushels of wheat to Cincinnati and Lawrenceburg, last week.—[The prices brought by farm produce and livestock would interest many of the readers.—ED.]

CRESCENT, July 21.—Frank Williams sold several cows to F. A. Utz, of Florence, last week.

Hugh Hanley, of Covington, spent Sunday with relatives, near here.

Mrs. Lucy Pabst, of Cincinnati, is the guest of relatives at this place.

Miss Clara Tanner, of Richwood, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Ella Rector.

Price Conner started threshing last Tuesday, Price has a new machine and is doing excellent work.

The Misses Norman entertained quite a number of friends with a lawn fete on the evening of the 14 inst.

Mrs. N. E. Brown and son, Hubert Earl, of Cincinnati, are visiting at the home of her father, Robt. Northcutt.

GASBURG, July 21.—The oats crop has been badly damaged by wind and rain.

Melons will begin going to market next week.

It is said a land trade of considerable magnitude is on in this place.

A Lawrenceburg fire co. spent Sunday at Split Rock. They brought along a splendid band, which made fine music and plenty of it throughout the day.

As we were present when Gen. Morgan was killed, we read T. J. Childress' article in the last Recorder with much interest, and can vouch for the truthfulness of most of it, but Jeff's memory failed him when he says he did not see Pete Everett the day of the fight and I think he will agree with me when I cite him to the following incident: After we had fallen back several miles from the battle field, Jeff rode up with a 12 pound shell that he took out of a caisou where a piece of artillery was abandoned in the flight. He laid it on the ground and before he knew it one of our company pulled the plug out and poured the powder on the ground. This enraged Jeff so that he made a lunge for the fellow, grabbing him by the ears and commenced shaking him and roaring like a lion, and bawling like a calf, when Pete Everett dashed up, and in his impetuous way, ordered Jeff to desist, saying, at the same time, that it was time to be fighting the damned Yankees and not one another.

RABBIT HASH.—Fine rains here Saturday and Sunday.

Born, to Joseph Walton and wife, a boy.

Mrs. Robert Platt entertained her father, Sunday.

Bro. Atwood preached at East Bend, Sunday evening.

Mrs. E. L. Stephens entertained a crowd of young people, Sunday.

Solon Stephens passed here Sunday evening enroute to the Commissary.

Little Eddie McConnell, of East Bend, fell off of a load of hay, a few days ago, and one wheel passed over him, breaking his collar bone and shoulder blades. He will recover.

VERONA, July 21.—J. G. Hudson, who has been working in the interest of Arizona land, is at W. M. Whitson's on a brief visit.

Mrs. Addie Edensone and children, of Louisville, are visiting her parents here, J. H. Callahan and wife.

Mrs. J. F. Cleek, of Walton, was the pleasant guest of Miss Margaret Franks at the residence of Robert O. Rouse, last Sunday eve.

A revival meeting will begin at New Bethel church, Mouday night, August 4th. Rev. W. E. Morris will assist Bro. L. Johnson in the meeting. It is hoped a successful meeting will result.

IDLEWILD.—Lawrence Chambers is much better.

Mesdames J. A. Gaines and George Walton are on the sick list.

Our pastor was visiting his members here last week, especially the sick.

Miss Lizzie Graddy will return to Lexington on account of the illness of her brother, Joe.

Saturday has been proverbial this summer for hard wind and rain storms and heavy thunder.

Mesdames George Kreyleich and Clay Duncan each entertained several friends at dinner after church, last Sunday.

Mrs. James T. Gaines entertained, last Wednesday, in honor of Mesdames Perry Kirtley, of Kansas City, and George Dunlap, of Peoria, Illinois.

Sunday was a pleasant day, and Rev. J. S. Kirtley had a very large crowd of relatives and friends to welcome him and hear his spleudid sermon at Bullittsburg.

FLORENCE.—Born on the 20th, to Charles Whitson, and wife, a son.

The ladies of Erlanger M. E. church will give a social next Friday evening.

Master Harold Kirk, of Covington, is spending his vacation with relatives in this vicinity.

A locust telephone pole a mile out on the pike has sent forth branches until it represents a thrifty growing tree.

E. P. Berkshire, a Nashville, Tenn., druggist, was visiting his brother, Ben R. Berkshire, near here, a few days ago.

Mr. H. P. Crisler has returned home from a short visit with his daughter at Mexico, Mo. He reports a fine prospect for corn all along the route he traveled home.

Friday morning at 10 o'clock, July 18th, after an illness of two days, little Ethel May, the only daughter of Lewis Jarrell and wife, died at the age of 7 months and 10 days. Just at the age when the father and mother had learned to love it most, God called it from its earthly life to a higher and sweeter home, where it shall never know sorrow, care or pain, so through tears of sorrow and distress its earthly parents can say, "All is well," and prepare to meet it in the future life. May its beckoning hand draw them closer to the Father of all.

The many friends of Joe B. Harris, oldest son of Rev. J. W. Harris, will be rejoiced to hear of the honors he has won in recent contests. At the Kentucky Wesleyan College Oratorical Contest, he captured the first prize. It was the universal verdict that the judges were correct in their decision. No sooner had he won this prize than he entered Chatauqua Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest, winning the first prize, $75. His subject was, "Napoleon's Personality." This was Kentucky Wesleyan's first State victory, and we are glad to know that Joe was the winner of it, as he is a noble yonng man. May this be but a prophecy of the nobler victories that he shall gain in life.

July 21.—Our ball team went to Patriot Sunday and what they did for the Hoosiers in the frog pond was a plenty. Not a single Hoosier lad ever crossed the home plate, while Petersburg bronght four men to the goal.

Rev. Edgar D. Jones will give "An Evening with the Dialect Poets," at the Christian church next Saturday evening. Admission, free. Everyone invited. On the following day his sermons will be on the following subjects: Morning—Prevailing Prayer. Evening—Relation of Baptism to Salvation.

Three men and two boys started out from Aurora, late Sunday afternoon in a frail little craft for a sail on the river, and when about 100 yards below the distillery at this place, the waves from the Golden Gate capsized the little craft and the three men, whose names were Miller, Kennedy and Lechner, were drowned. The two boys swam ashore. The bodies of the unfortunate men were recovered about 11 o'clock Sunday night. The accident cast a pall of sorrow over the entire city of Aurora, where the young men were very popular.

RICHWOOD.—Rev. Means preached a splendid sermon at Mt. Zion, Sunday.

An Automobile passed here, Sunday, at a terrific clip.

Miss Kate Combs arrived home last Tuesday after a two weeks' visit at the lakes.

Mrs. Sallie Waller and Miss Lena, of Verona, were guests of J. T. Powers, Sunday.

Mrs. Sallie Fulton, of Florence, spent a few days last week the guest of John Tanner and wife.

Haying has been interrupted with rain, but it now seems we will be blessed with God's sunshine again.

Uncle Samuel Dobbins had a severe stroke of paralysis last Thursday, but he rallied quickly and is very much improved.

An effort is being made to have the name of our postoffice changed. It is claimed that much mail matter for this office goes to Richmond, which is true. Use a capital W in spelling Richwood and the trouble will be remedied.

John Dwyer, living a mile north of here was killed by an L. & N. train, last Sunday afternoon. He was walking along the track and did not see the approaching train, or was bewildered. He was terribly crushed, death being instant. He was 21 years old and sober and industrious.

Thomas Dixon, of this neighborhood met a horrible death on the farm of his brother in-law, Henry Tanner, near Floreuce, at 1 p. m., last Wednesday. He, with three others, was on a load of hay, when in some unexplainable manner the hay toppled over, catching him under the frame, the entire load of hay resting on it, crushing him so badly that he died at 6 p. m. It took more than an hour to get the unfortunate man from under the mass of hay, although several willing hands engaged in the work. Mr. Dixon was nearly 47 years old, and was loved and respected by all. Out of a family of 11 children of Berry Dixon only two are living, Ollie and Mrs. Henry Tanner. Services were held by Rev. Sister at Hopeful church Thursday at 11 a. m., after which the remains were interred.

The last issue of the Carrollton Democrat published the following letter:

My Dear Ernest:—We have a very strong combination looking to take an interest in our road to the extent of 25 per cent. of the capital stock, which will answer the demands of the Eastern capitalists, and it looks very favorable. I wrote Mr. Barker about it. There is not a man who examines it all but says it will certainly pay. I may go East about August 1st, and will make an effort there.

I have not yet gotten the report of Mr. Layman, but hope to in a day or two, when I will publish the prospectus. We will strike the right combination, after a while, I feel confident.

With klud regards, yours,

A. S. BERRY.

While the above letter was intended to be private, we publish it, inasmuch as it will perhaps give as much information in regard to our proposed road as is possible at this time ascertainable. The directors are pushing the matter as rapidly as possible.

Wokum Lodge No. 66, K. P., will entertain Grand Chancellor Logan and other Grand officers, in Petersburg, on Friday, the 25th inst. Secret session of the lodge at 3 p. m., Grand Chancellor presiding. Public addresses at Methodist church at 7:30 p. m. by Hon. Aubrey Barbour, of Newport, Ky., and Judge George Downey, of Aurora, Ind., and Grand Lodge Officers. Music by Prof. Chas. Gardner and others. Banquet at Gordon's Hall to members of order at 10 p. m. Public is cordially invited to exercises at church.

The Best Liniment for Strains.

Mr. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains. I used it last winter for a severe lameness in the side, resulting from a strain, and was greatly pleased with the quick relief and cure it effected." For sale by all druggists.

The Harvest Home will be held this year on Saturday, September 13. The premium list will be issued this week.

THE VACATION REST.

Seasonable Sermon by the "High-way and Byway" Preacher.

How Jesus Provided a Needful Outing for His Disciples, and Helpful Lessons Drawn Therefrom.

(Copyright, 1902, by A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.)

Chicago, July 20, 1902.

Text: And He said unto them: Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest awhile.—Mark 6:31.

Vacation Rest.—Scripture records at least one instance where our Lord called His disciples aside from the busy activity of the world for a period of rest. The words of our text reveal to us the tender solicitude with which Christ regarded the physical as well as spiritual needs of His followers. Doubtless there were other occasions during the three years of the active ministry of Christ when He and His disciples withdrew themselves for the recreation of the weary and exhausted bodies, as well as the renewing of their spiritual strength. Certainly the circumstances which gave rise to the words of our text afford us ample warrant in making them the basis of a vacation-time sermon. As we study the words, and the incidents surrounding them, and dig beneath the surface for light as to the Divine mind regarding summer-time rest and recreation, we shall spend a helpful and blessed half-hour together.

The mistake is very often made in supposing that God is a hard task master, and that He views with disapproval vacation time and vacation rest. With this thought consciously or unconsciously burdening the heart, many a dear and weary child of God steals off, half guiltily, to his vacation rest, almost feeling that he has left his Lord behind to follow him with a sad and disappointed look. And in so doing half the joy and blessing of the vacation is lost. Ah, if we would draw close to the Saviour's side when the burdens of life press hard and the summer's heat saps our vitality, we would hear Him say again, as He did of yore: "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest awhile." And instead of leaving Him behind, we would find the Lord present at our side, making glad every moment and opening up new avenues of refreshing service for Him. Yes, He who draws the shades of night at the close of the busy day, and puts the world to rest; He who rested Himself on the Sabbath day and bids the world to rest with Him, is not unmindful of the further needs of His children. The call, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," sounds with alluring tenderness from the shaded nook and rippling waterside sometimes, and as we draw ourselves apart for awhile we find the Lord there awaiting us to soothe our weary bodies and aching brains back to normal vigor again.

If the declination, "The devil never takes a vacation," is not of hell's own coinage, it is often used by the devil and his minions to put the mark of disapproval upon the vacation excursion of one whom the Lord is calling apart for a season of needful rest. It may be true that the prince of this world never does take a vacation. If so, it is only another instance of his hellish excess which is self-destructive. He cannot and will not hear God speak, but you, dear friend, have that privilege.

If you will read the entire sixth chapter of Mark's Gospel, from which our text is taken, you will find that the disciples have been journeying in bands of two, preaching the Gospel of repentance, casting out devils and healing the sick. They return and relate their experiences to Jesus, while the people of Capernaum eagerly crowd around in their unrest and need. Surely here is opportunity of further and greater work right at hand. Ah, if many a struggling disciple of Christ to-day had been there, how he would have groaned and exhausted his energies under that seeming urgent call to duty! But Jesus knew that rest was imperative, and turning from the crowds for a season He leads His disciples out into the uninhabited but fragrant fields and sloping hill-sides to the northeast of the Lake of Galilee. How vain it would have been for any of the disciples to tarry behind, when Jesus had planned a refreshing lake trip and a run in the meadows. And, behold, while fresh lake breezes kiss the color back into their faces and the fragrance of the nodding flowers bring new messages of God's love and care to their souls; while the tuneful birds sing Nature's hymn of praise and restful harmony, and they feel their flagging spirits reviving; behold, new channels of service open up and their brief outing is turned into a vast picnic, at which the hungry multitudes partake of the Lord's bounty, and the disciples become the renewed channels through which the Divine power can be poured. Here is vacation rest worthy the name. Vacation rest does not mean listless idleness or reckless abandon. Vacation rest which would supply the needs of the body at the sacrifice of the soul is a perversion and an iniquity. Such is really not vacation rest at all, but vacation unrest.

Vacation Unrest.—And for fear some misguided but weary soul may read the foregoing and encourage a self-seeking heart in indulging in pursuit of worldly diversions and pleasure, we wish to talk for a few moments about vacation unrest. Many a vacation is spoiled by the encouraging to excesses and indulgences which would never be thought of in the soberer moments. It is robbing a privilege of its wholesome fruit, and is changing in the world's laboratory of opportunity, by the chemistry of reckless human ingenuity, a blessing into a positive curse. Here is where the warning note wants to be struck. Here is where God's voice needs to be heard and heeded. Not a cry against vacation rest, but against the unrest of the age, which turns the Saturday half-holiday into a blighting influence and the summer-time outing into a period of unrestrained indulgence in every whim and caprice the self-indulgent flesh hankers after. The perversion of the Saturday half-holiday is beginning to cast its miasmal pall over the Lord's day and is sapping the spiritual life and strength of the disciples of Jesus Christ. And to many it is proving the easy gateway to the downward road of self-indulgence and pleasure, and the very threshold of hell. The modern development of the vacation habit is proving an allurement whose swift, broad current is yearly drawing its thousands and hundreds of thousands away from wholesome influences to the distractions of summer resort life and merely sensual indulgences.

The place to which our Lord led His disciples for their vacation rest was a quiet and restful spot, where the beat of the heart of Nature could be felt, and where God could bless soul as well as body. To-day, think you, He would lead to some of the popular resorts and watering places? Do you believe He would be found with His disciples at many of the pleasure places and roof gardens, and Sunday excursions and outings, which to-day are filling the land and the world with their distractions? Pleasure, such as the world can give, and plenty of it, but not that body and soul invigorating rest which comes as a wholesome portion to him who, following the bidding of the Master, withdraws with Him apart into a desert place. Not desert in the sense of a wilderness waste, but a desert which is a stranger to the whirl and allurements of the world and where the voice of Nature can be heard. Where one has time to listen to the "heavens declare the glory of God" and the firmament shew forth His handiwork; where day unto day may utter speech and night unto night shew forth knowledge. Not where gay companionship is essential to happiness, but where Bryant found the inspiration for his lines:

"To him who in the love of Nature holds
Communion with her visible forms, she speaks
A various language."

Vacation Purpose.—The man of Jesus' parable, who heedlessly built his house upon the sand because it happened to be the most convenient spot available at the time, was not less wickedly careless than is he who thoughtlessly runs hither or thither on his vacation with no other purpose than that of going somewhere or doing something in quest of recreation and change and so-called rest. The vacation should be definitely purposeful. Three elements are discernible in the purpose of our Lord in providing an outing for His weary disciples. Primarily it was that they might obtain much-needed rest. But as the events of that short vacation rapidly unfold under the quick pen of Mark, we find that Jesus sought to lead His disciples' thoughts away from the things of men to the things of God, to help them to know Nature and Nature's God better, and to feel the pulsation and throb of God's almighty arm as it reaches out to shelter and protect and feed a needy world. And lastly, He wanted them to learn that the most perfect rest was to be found in a new and enlarged service. And without these three elements, vacation plans are lacking and fail to provide adequately for the weary body and needy soul. Rest for the body, enlargement for the soul and new channels of service—where these three conditions can be best realized, there is where the Lord is calling you apart to rest awhile.

Rest for the Body.—It is interesting to note that the disciples were so interested in the work in which they had been engaged as apparently to be unconscious of their bodily needs until Christ said unto them: "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest awhile." How blessed it would be if to-day Jesus' disciples were so engrossed in the Master's business! There would not be so much self-planning weeks and months ahead as to the summer outing, if such were the case. To-day Christian people have hardly returned from one outing and taken up the dropped work before their heads are full of plans for future rest and recreation, and they get ready to let go again. Keep busy in the work of the Lord; don't think so much of your weary body as you do of the great need all about you, and even while you are telling the Lord about the work in which you are so much interested, He will bid you come apart for needful rest. And a 24-hour vacation to which the Lord leads you will bring more refreshing to the body than a month of self-appropriated idleness and change.

A night with the Lord on the water and a walk with Him through the fields in the early morning before the crowds are again pressing about Him can put renewed strength into those weary muscles, can quiet the throb of that aching head, can send new and vigorous life throbbing through every vein and artery of your being. Picture to yourself the trip that night. A handful of weary disciples gathered with their Lord up that rude sailing craft. As the receding shore of Capernaum, black with its restless life of humanity, is left behind, the disciples begin to realize how tired they are. But apart with Jesus means that all the forces of Nature are united to revive and refresh, and the mighty wind which was hushed to quiet by the voice of the Master on another occasion now fans the cheeks of the disciples and whispers a message of new life and hope. As their relaxed and tired bodies are stretched out on the deck and their faces are turned upward, what inexpressible calm and rest roll in upon the soul from the eternal heavens above them, and as each star in its own individual beauty breaks on their vision, what messages they bring, for the One whose hand has placed them far above in the distant blue is with them in the boat caring for them. Their weariness is gone, and, as the early morning sun begins to tinge the east with its glories, they awaken to find their boat grating on the sands of the shore and Jesus smilingly leading the way to land. The clear notes of the birds greet them, and the grass and trees and flowers bid them welcome. Ah, how Nature must have rejoiced at the coming of its Lord and Creator, even while an unbelieving world was turning from Him in self-seeking blindness! Rest for the body is needed, and it can best be found where the Lord leads apart for a little while, and where we can hear Him say: "I am come that ye might have life, and that ye might have it more abundantly."

Enlargement for the Soul.—"The groves were God's first temples," and how the soul has a chance to expand as it goes afield with its Lord in the early morning. Perfect vacation rest must include enlargement of the soul. The wayside well, the blooming lilies of the field, the twittering sparrows, the ripening fields of grain, the mustard seed, the barren fig tree, the field of wheat and tares, the flocks feeding on the hillside, the vine-clad slopes of Mount Olivet, all were the mediums through which the Lord bore home to the hearts of His disciples the spiritual lessons of which they stood in need. And Nature today is just as faithful a medium of conveying to the human heart the Heaven-sent message. The time of the vacation rest is when Nature ought to find us in our most teachable mood, even as the summer clothes her in her most attractive dress and makes her a most willing and faithful teacher. As we withdraw from the busy activity of the work-a-day world, we then have time for reflection. That little bird in the leafy tops of the tree under which we swing in restful ease in our hammock can teach us of a Father's love and care, for "not a sparrow falleth to the ground without your Father."

As the flowers and the birds and the rippling waters of the lake spoke their lessons to the hearts of the disciples on that morning how it must have prepared them for the evidence of God's love and care as He feeds that vast multitude with the few loaves and fishes. Their hearts made tender by Nature's wooing to receive the larger lesson of God's miraculous power. Do you know, dear friend, that if during your vacation rest you will sit at the feet of Nature and humbly learn her secrets and hear her testify of the Heavenly Father who careth for you, your eyes will be opened to see the miraculous workings of the Spirit of God on the hearts of men and you will find yourself longing to become the willing channel through which God can pour His power and His blessing upon the needy world? And so the enlargement of the soul under the expanding touch of Nature will open up new channels of service.

New Channels of Service.—Had the disciples remained behind to serve that needy multitude in the weariness of their own bodies and their human limitations they would have failed, miserably failed, and in discouragement, perhaps, given up their Christian service altogether. But Christ calls them apart for awhile, and when they are refreshed, behold, the multitude, which has skirted the shores of the lake in its eagerness to be near the Lord, is once more before them and an unexpected opportunity presents itself for serving them. In obedience to the Lord's command they seat the motley throng in companies that they may be better served; then, taking the loaves and fishes, over which have been spoken the words of blessing by the Lord, they pass around breaking the loaves and fishes and dealing out bountifully and yet always with an armful to give to the hungry soul just beyond. Here is the lesson for you and for me. The perfect vacation rest opens up new channels of service, gives us new opportunities of helping those about us and the needy ones left behind when we went on our summer outing.

Many a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ has found in the quiet hours of the season of rest the solution to problems which have vexed him sore during the heat of battle. As the body has become rested and the soul has expanded under Nature's touch, clearer vision has come, and later the opportunity has presented itself to feed the hungry soul with the bread which Christ has placed in our hands. Many a soul which has resisted the entreaty of the face-to-face appeal has been touched by some token of remembrance or a penned message from the one who has been called apart for awhile by the Lord for a vacation rest. The vacation rest need not be the devil's opportunity except as we by our careless indifference allow it to become such. Learn this secret, and as the Lord calls you apart during the summer days for the vacation rest, find that perfect rest which comes from the opening of the soul to the Nature about you and the seeing of new channels of service for your Lord and Master.

HAVE A GOOD TEMPER.

Amiability Is the Secret of Wedded Happiness and a Charm That Never Dies.

If it were necessary to give an opinion as to what is the first and chief constituent of a happy marriage one might hesitate for a moment over the thought of many almost indispensable virtues, and daily over that of absolute trustfulness on both sides, but one, if thinking and weighing deliberately, would decide presently that the real requisite for happiness in marriage is good nature. Not that a tempest once in a great while may not be worth while to clear the air and to show how good the other is, but in the long, round year the sunshine and fair weather is the best, writes Harriet P. Spofford, in the Washington Star.

What will you not pardon to a sunny-faced rogue? A man may commit countless peccadilloes, a thousand offenses against good taste, even be guilty of sins, but an unfailing sweetness of disposition will win forgiveness for them all. A woman may be extravagant, a poor housekeeper, even shiftern, or a provoker of scandal, but there is no disruption in the household of which she is mistress as long as with a smile she acknowledges her fault, though her sin is ever before us. A pair of dimples has saved many a little scamp from a whipping; they are just as useful when the scamp is older and the dimples are slipping into wrinkles. For the dimple is not only evidence of the smile itself, but it stimulates the smiles of others.

Who can rebuke too sharply or too frequently when reproach is always received without retort, without affront? Who is not made to feel upon the spot that good nature is better than any impeccability?

We have, most of us, seen exquisite housekeepers who all but follow the intruder about with a broom, who are ready to dust the chair you rise from, require overshoes to be left outside the door; who, if you take a book from one room and lay it down, carry it back before your eyes; who make more circumstance of broken china than of broken bones. And most of us prefer for a companion the home-body, who makes no fuss about anything, but who is tender and caressing and gay and consoling and sympathetic and always sweet-tempered, although there be fluff on her floors, and nicks on her dishes, and no meal ready at its appointed hour.

And most of us, again, rather than with the petulant and fault-finding man, or with the stern and sour and solemn incarnation of all the virtues, or with the lofty and superior soul, without whose wisdom and learning the world could not revolve, would choose companionship with the offhand, happy-go-lucky fellow, who, if the dinner is late, says: "Never mind; it will be all the better when it does come," or if we ourselves are late for church or theater or outing, says: "Well, we will enjoy it all the more when we get there;" or, if the servants are rebellious, condones it by declaring: "We can't expect perfection for the price we pay." And this man may have his better faults, he may not be at home as much as you would like, he may be too careful about the spending of his money, he may have various habits unpleasant to you; but you love him quite aside from them; you regard them as exterior affairs for which he is hardly responsible; you find some one else to be blamed for them, he himself is the sunny creature who brightens gloom wherever he goes, and of whose love you feel assured, whether in truth it is yours or not. And, after all, the assurance of love produces happiness.

In fact, good nature is a charm that never dies. Beauty fades, accomplishments fail, but good nature survives till all else falls to dust. It blends the opposing and contradictory elements like a fortunate solvent. It acts precisely as sunshine does, and where you find it happiness flourishes and life is enriched. In any individual it declares the existence of a calm and strong nervous temperament, and nothing lends itself more to peace and prosperity in a household than that. It is a blessed thing, then, that such a trait can be established; that repression here and expression there, and determination everywhere will make it grow and thrive and become a habit. It is the outer embodiment of love; and the man who is seldom without it is the one to whom the town turns, on whom the beggars smile, after whom the children run, whose presence soothes trouble, and whose wife is sure that even if she wears her old bonnet she is lovely in his eyes.

Gooseberry Dessert.

Cook one quart of the green fruit until soft, mash to a pulp, add two small cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of powdered bread crumbs, the yolks of four eggs and whites of two beaten separately, and a piece of butter the size of an egg. Bake 20 minutes. Remove from the oven and spread over the meringue made from the whites of the two eggs beaten to a stiff froth, and four teaspoonfuls of sugar added one teaspoonful at a time and whipped lightly in. Return to the oven and brown. In making a meringue always be sparing of the sugar if you wish it to be light and foamy; too much sugar will cause it to fall or become crisp and sugary.—Ladies' World, New York.

Berry Pudding, Steamed.

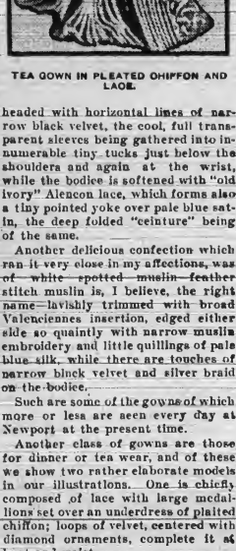
The Fancies of Fashion That Are Seasonable



Some Charming Gowns and Beautiful Materials for Mid-Summer Wear.

THE daintiness of the muslins, those that are printed in color as well as those painted by hand, is something to see, baffling description in the delicacy of shading and beauty of effects. Lace incrustations and insertions give additional lightness to these fairylike confections. A novelty, one of the few that we are being permitted this year, is the use of the open-work embroidery on cambric, that we know under the generic name of "Swiss work," as a dress trimming. This is used in combination with lace.

Voiles, canvases and open weaves under various names—neolienne and etamene, and so on—are extremely fashionable, and many gowns are prepared in these light semitransparent fabrics. The combination of green of a vivid tone and dark blue, vulgar in its essence as it certainly is, claims many suffrages.

A pale blue glace, covered with a green canvas, the lining well shown by lines and diamonds of lace, is pretty and smart; it has a belt and sash ends in a dainty chene silk, in which green predominates, and a chou of the same silk is at the bust, under a yoke of the blue glace, left plainly unfolded and unpinited, but trimmed with insertions of lace.

A fawn-colored neolienne is placed over rose-pink glace, and trimmed with pink-tinted lace; the skirt has a deep flounce of the lace, headed by several rows of pink silk machine stitching, showing well enough on the fawn; above that, the skirt is in long-wise tuckings. The bodice has a narrow vest of the pink lace, and the edges of the bodice are tied across this with straps of silver braid, each fastened with a silver tassel ornament. The sides of the bodice are tucked liberally, and there is no collar band.

LACE AND CHIFFON TEA GOWN.

One of the prettiest things in the world of dress at the present moment is spotted chiffon. Hitherto we have fallen enthusiastic victims to spotted muslin, spotted veiling, spotted foulard, to everything spotted, in fact, except spotted chiffon, and I have never seen anything daintier than a white chiffon frock pin-spotted with black, the skirt adorned with three graduated flounces trimmed and headed with horizontal lines of narrow black velvet, the cool, full transparent sleeves being gathered into innumerable tiny tucks just below the shoulders and again at the wrist, while the bodice is softened with "old ivory" Alencon lace, which forms also a tiny pointed yoke over pale blue satin, the deep folded "ceinture" being of the same.

Another delicious confection which ran it very close in my affections, was of white spotted muslin feather stitch muslin is, I believe, the right name—lavishly trimmed with broad Valenciennes insertion, edged either side so quaintly with narrow muslin embroidery and little quillings of pale blue silk, while there are touches of narrow black velvet and silver braid on the bodice.

Such are some of the gowns of which more or less are seen every day at Newport at the present time.

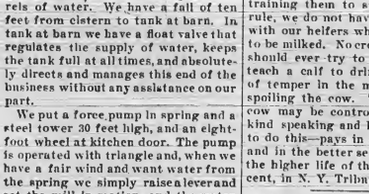
Another class of gowns are those for dinner or tea wear, and of these we show two rather elaborate models in our illustrations. One is chiefly composed of lace with large medallions set over an underdress of plaited chiffon; loops of velvet, centered with diamond ornaments, complete it at bust and waist.

The other is in accordion-plaited chiffon or gauze, with a deep cape collar and stole front, cut slightly low, is finished with a scarf of black chiffon, and fastened with a diamond ornament, a similar touch of black completing the waist, all of which form an effective toilette.

ELLEN OSMONDE.

TWO PARISIAN FASHION LEADERS

Mme. Jeanne Granier, of the Theater des Varieties in Paris, is one of those popular actresses who have much to do with the making of our modes. Of the present fashions she approves most heartily. "I do not know that I ever liked any better," she says. "I think the modern line is delightful." What she likes particularly about modern dresses is the loose aspect of the bust. This enables the outline of the shoulders and the upper part of the arm to be divined, "and," she says, "the puffing of the sleeves adds to the effect if it is not exaggerated." The above picture shows Mme. Granier in one of her favorite [illegible]



Mme. Borel, of the Theater Francais in Paris, is another of the actresses who have much to do with the making of our modes, but she is not pleased with the present tendency. She thinks that women now dress too plainly and too little; that there is too much of the masculine and not enough of the feminine about the toilettes of the day. Her idea of fashion is the eighteenth century, and she indulges her taste as far as possible in her dress, which much resembles the evocation of fashion in bygone days. The above picture shows Mme. Borel in a gown that is as near her ideal as possible, and yet conforms to the lines [illegible]

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

HARNESS THE WIND.

How the Farm House Can Be Easily Supplied with an Abundance of Good Water.

For many years we have suffered serious inconvenience in obtaining a sufficient supply of water for house use, especially for the last 18 or 20 months. For more than 12 months of this time we have carried water for house use a distance of 476 feet and had to tramp up hill 42 feet.. We have a spring of water discharging about one barrel per hour every hour winter and summer, wet or dry. This spring is 42 feet lower than the kitchen door and 476 feet distant. Last summer we built a reservoir or tank of stone laid up in Portland cement, over and around the spring, holding about 14 barrels of water. We then laid one-inch galvanized iron pipe (inside measure) 30 inches under ground from spring to kitchen door, and put a galvanized iron tank holding one barrel of water inside kitchen door; put an overflow pipe in tank and carried this pipe under ground 30 inches, half way to barn. Here we built a cistern lined up with brick and cemented, holding 59 barrels of water. We carry water under ground from this cistern to barn where we have a galvanized iron tank holding six barrels of water. We have a fall of ten feet from cistern to tank at barn. In tank at barn we have a float valve that regulates the supply of water, keeps the tank full at all times, and absolutely directs and manages this end of the business without any assistance on our part.

We put a force pump in spring and a steel tower 30 feet high, and an eight-foot wheel at kitchen door. The pump is operated with triangle and, when we have a fair wind and want water from the spring we simply raise a lever and set the mill in motion, and the water (as pure as there is on earth) passes through our kitchen at the rate of one barrel every 30 minutes. The outfit and the wind does the work and don't stop to rest. While many of our friends and neighbors are suffering great inconvenience and hardship forced upon them by the unusual scarcity of water, we feel truly thankful that we have an abundance. It is a good thing to have a good credit at a good bank. The next best thing is to have a good spring of water on which we can draw at any time. Sam Jones says the poet was a prophet when he wrote:

"Death rides on every passing breeze
And lurks in every flower,
Each season has its own disease,
Its perils every hour."

We realize that a passing breeze in many cases brings joy and gladness. A passing breeze in connection with well-directed ingenuity will force water a distance of 476 feet, elevate it 42 feet and put it in the most desirable place in our dwelling in abundance.—John Pugh, in Ohio Farmer.

TREES FROM NURSERIES.

How to Handle Them So as to Insure Their Living When Placed in New Locations.

It is something of a science to transplant trees that have been received from a distant nursery and have them live. It used to be thought that there must always be a large percentage of loss anyway—even under the best conditions. Both the nurserymen and the planters have now learned that trees of all kinds can be handled in a way to insure their living when placed in their new locations. A well-packed tree has its roots kept moist by being rolled in damp moss and tied up in bagging. The old scheme of pulling trees out of the ground, exposing their roots and sending them away without any protection was the cause of many a tree proving a failure. When these trees arrived at the distant station they were thrown out on the platform and left there exposed to the heat of the sun and the drying effects of the wind. In the course of time the purchaser drove around and got his consignment, perhaps a couple of days after their arrival. By that time their roots were good and dry. He drove home and set out his trees in any old way. Even had he set them in the best possible way it is altogether likely that a good many trees would have perished owing to the drying out of the roots. When a large part of his trees failed to grow of course the nurseryman was to blame—so the buyer said. He was right to some extent, in that the trees were sent away with roots not properly protected. In sending trees long or short distances the roots and their moisture supply furnish the key to the situation. Proper treatment of the tree from the time it comes out of the nursery row to the time it goes into the place assigned to it in the orchard will insure a good healthy tree. In setting a hundred of these there need be no failures.—Farmers' Review.

Give the animals plenty of room in the stable in which to lie down, if you would make them comfortable.

ILL-MANNERED COWS.

Many Animals Are Made Cross and Unruly by the Men Who Have Care of Them.

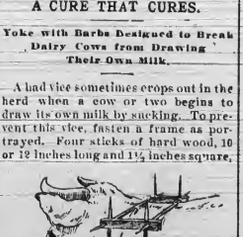
Many cows are made cross and unruly by the men who have the care of them. Take almost any nervous, high-strung cow and place her under the care of ill-tempered, impatient men, and the result is not difficult to foresee. It will be only a little while before we will have a kicking cow. And one kicking cow in a herd will do more to destroy the value of the dairy than can be estimated. This loss will not only be with the kicking cow herself, but with all the rest of the herd; for it cannot be disputed that the temper of all will be aroused by the actions of the one which is really unruly, and of her master. Anything that disturbs the quiet of the dairy has a direct effect on the yield of milk, and its worth in dollars and cents. The kicking cow will kick more value out of the milkpail than we can feed in from the meal barrel.

But why have kicking cows? What is the use of having such times as are often witnessed in the stable when-ever milking time comes round? I remember working for one man when I was a lad who had a cow that was light footed. Before milking her master would put a strap about her leg and haul her away back toward the side of the barn, in which position she was expected to stand during the process of milking. If she became tired and flounced about there was a scene. Shouts of anger, mingled with heavy blows, and a general stirring up of the animals all over the barn, ensued. It was a shame.

The incorrigible kicker might as well go to the butcher shop first as last. It would be money in the pocket of her owner, even though she were the best cow in the barn. Then her progeny should also be weeded out, for it is a fact that kicking cows leave their mark on their calves. Sometimes by taking the heifers from such cows and treating them kindly, as all heifers should be treated, one may succeed in training them to stand nicely. As a rule, we do not have patience enough with our heifers when teaching them to be milked. No cross, impatient man should ever try to break a heifer or teach a calf to drink. It is a waste of temper in the man and a risk of spoiling the cow. The most nervous cow may be controlled by uniformly kind speaking and handling. It pays to do this—pays in dollars and cents, and in the better sense which touches the higher life of the man.—E. L. Vincent, in N. Y. Tribune.

LIFE OF FENCE POSTS.

By a Simple Process of Saturation by Lime It May Be Prolonged for Several Years.



In many sections of the country where timber is scarce the question of fence posts is a serious one. In timberless regions where soft woods are grown for the purpose, about four years apparently ends the usefulness of a post that is cut and set in the usual way. If well seasoned before setting, another year or two may be added, but the post problem is very unsatisfactory.

The posts may be doubled or more, in durability by a simple process of saturation by lime. A pit is dug three feet deep, and three inches of fresh quicklime is spread on the bottom; the posts, already pointed for driving, are set on end in the pit close together, with as much lime scattered among them as is possible—up to the level of the ground. A ridge of earth is raised around the stack of posts, and water is poured upon the lime, to slack it. The slacking of lime causes considerable heat, by which the moisture of the timber is driven out by the expansion. The cooling of the posts and lime, after the slacking is over (care being taken to make the lime sufficiently liquid) causes the timber to absorb moisture again, and thus the liquid lime is absorbed by the wood, the acid of which is thus neutralized; as it is this acid which causes the otherwise rapid decay of the timber, the destruction of it by the lime avoids this effect, and the timber is very much increased in durability. To get the best results the posts should be seasoned. If they are laid down in the trench the whole post will benefit by the treatment.—Epitomist.

A CURE THAT CURES.

Yoke with Barbs Designed to Break Dairy Cows from Drawing Their Own Milk.

A bad vice sometimes crops out in the herd when a cow or two begins to draw its own milk by sucking. To prevent this vice, fasten a frame as portrayed. Four sticks of hard wood, 10 or 12 inches long and 1¼ inches square, are held together by eight round pointed sticks of tough, hard wood, two feet long and one inch in diameter, passing through the hard wood sticks. These dimensions may be too large for a small neck. Fasten the round sticks in the desired place with screws three-quarters of an inch long. The yoke may then be removed or adjusted to fit a large or small neck.—G. M. Powderly, in Farm and Home.

YOKE FOR VICIOUS COWS.

MANILA HOLDS TO CUSTOMS.

There Has Been But Little Improvement in the People Since the American Invasion.

More than four years have elapsed since the invasion of American forces into the Philippines. One would imagine that in that time the natives would have picked up and clung to many of the manners, customs and habits of their white-faced brethren from over the seas by infiltration, by induction or by the free play of their mimetic faculties. But such is not the case, says a Manila correspondence of the Chicago Chronicle. The American has infused no fresher blood into the ways of business. He tried it for awhile and then sat down under the shade of a tree and rested just as the Filipino does.

It is true that sanitary conditions have been improved somewhat; that mercantile establishments display their goods more attractively than before; that American money is commoner than Spanish coin; that some of the women who travel the streets peddling fruits, tortillas and tamales have been induced to wear shoes; that Kentucky whiskies and spirits made in cellars of Chicago and Denver saloons have, in a measure, substituted the native drink, but otherwise Manila is the same old sleepy, indolent care-free town that it was ten years ago and will be 20 years hence.

Perhaps when peace is permanently established with all the islands Americans will be more conspicuous, but as a matter of fact little capital from "God's country" is being invested. There have been prospectors and men with money to land here looking for places to put in some cash. But in nearly every instance they have returned home with all they had when they left, except, of course, that which they spent for passage and food. The prices of all foodstuffs have risen correspondingly with the reported advances in America. No one in ordinary circumstances can afford to patronize the better class of restaurants, and as for beefsteak such as one could get in the cheaper restaurants in Chicago they are not here at all. Pork chops are almost unknown, stuff that is called veal tastes like boiled shoestrings and as for lamb and mutton the meat smells like a dog pound and has a flavor that is a cross between dogwood blossoms and a bunch of jimson weeds.

Business and pleasure are duly mingled in each day's routine and needed rest and sleep to overcome the enervating effects of the tropics are never forgotten. With Englishmen as with the American some exercise is taken daily, as is required. Without it they could not stand the climate and, although the conditions of health here are in other hot climates, are unfavorable as compared to the higher belts, still good health may be preserved if one is careful of his diet. Here one engaged in business usually reaches his office about eight o'clock; at noon he has lunch, after which he takes a "nap," lasting for two or three hours.

All traffic is practically suspended between 12 and 4 o'clock p. m. Later comes dinner parties, that is among the rich. The hour is eight o'clock. Calls are seldom if ever made except among the closest friends after that time, but are confined to the earlier hours of the evening, when chocolate is served by the lady of the house.

Manila now supports four or five vaudeville shows, the performers coming here from San Francisco and wishing they were back. The houses are poorly patronized. A week's salary of an actor barely keeps him in cigarettes and food. There are two first-class theaters where Italian and Spanish talent are employed and these performances are fairly well attended. Especially prominent are the mestizo girls and young women daughters of the richer merchants who usually wear gowns of the most brilliant color. A stranger who enters pit or loge is stared at from the time he takes his seat until he leaves and if he looks like "ready money," he will find these stares the preliminary skirmishes for a better acquaintance. The Spanish women continue to dress in the style of their sisters in Spain, apparently caring nothing for the patterns set by the American women. Most of them have flashing black eyes and some are extremely pretty, but as an Indianan expressed it: "Why, I wouldn't give the ugliest girl on Pizen hill for all the beauties of Manila. They can't cook, they can't wash clothes, they can't make a quilt or sweep a floor and when they whip a child instead of spanking it, they choke it. None of 'em for Johnny."

When the native learns to discard the ring-nosed bull for the American mule, remember that chickens were created to lay eggs and for broiling and frying purposes and not to fight, that a bath is not harmful and the wearing of shoes and clean linen not a sign of physical degeneracy, then there may be some hope. But—well these new conditions might prove burdensome.

How the Nickname Originated.

Time and again in the world's history has a name applied in derision been adopted by the persons sneered at and later been considered with pride. Gotham, New York's alias, was originally applied in derision—doubtless because of some alleged foolishness of New Yorkers, the name being taken from "The Merry Tales of the Madmen of Gotham," satirical stories written in the fifteenth century by Adam Borde, a Carthaginian monk, who afterward died in the Tower of London.—Chicago Chronicle.

"The Home of the Gods."

The Black Hills, where the red man made his last stand against civilization, was named in Indian parlance Pa-Ha-Sap-Pa—the Home of the Gods. The region is justly so-called.

The hills from the distance appear a deep blue; at closer view they are black, because of the fir growth covering them. The scenery is wonderful! The tumultuous streams hurling themselves down the hillsides are abundantly stocked with trout. The scientist would find a paradise there, the geologist a heaven, the miner an earth full of precious metals. Gold was first discovered in July, 1874, near Custer City, by Mr. N. Ross, chief scout of Gen. Custer. The Black Hills are said to be the richest Klondike America has yet discovered.

In the midst of the Black Hills is situated Hot Springs, the Carlsbad of America. The weather is summery the larger part of the year—always pleasant and healthful. As a health resort Hot Springs is exceptional. The health-giving properties of its seventy-five springs are phenomenal.

Sightseers from all over the world are learning of the interest this locality holds, and every year the hotels entertain larger lists of visitors.

The Chicago & Northwestern takes the traveler in a Pullman sleeper to Buffalo Gap, where a change is made for the short ride into the Hills to reach Hot Springs.

South of Buffalo Gap is the Cheyenne river which has cut its way between banks of shale. In this shale, once the bed of an ocean, are fossils, petrified fish and snakes, and myriads of other animal and vegetable things found in the bottom of a sea.

Horseshoe curve, near Hot Springs, is world-famous by now. Cry-tal cave is also becoming familiar in the minds of tourists. Of the town of Deadwood every American and many a European has heard.

After leaving Deadwood one enters Spearfish canyon, at the bottom of which is cut and founs the Spearfish river. The river has a deep fall in one place, making one of the prettiest cascades one would care to see. And, by the way, if one is partial to waterfalls, the Cheyenne river falls should not be missed. Spearfish canyon, thirty-two miles long, is a most impressive freak of nature.

Battle mountain, the Wind cave, the Onyx cave, the many queer-shaped rocks that are known by various names, the gulches and little lakes and rivers, the famous "Dakota Bad Lands," the big geyser at Cascade Springs, are all wonderful, beautiful, inspiring, and interesting. The most-traveled traveler's knowledge and enjoyment is incomplete if he has not visited the Black Hills.

A Disagreement.

The owner of a small yacht has in his employ a Finn who acts in the double capacity of cook and deckhand and whom he had always regarded as single. The other day the Finn admitted that he had a wife and two boys in Finland, for whom he proudly boasted, he recently purchased a $900 home out of his earnings as a sailor.

"Why doesn't your wife live over here?" asked his employer.

"Vell, sir, she don't agree vith the climate!" was the response.—N. Y. Post.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME.
Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Notre Dame University, one of the leading educational institutions of the West, which appears in another column of this paper. Those of our readers who may have occasion to look up a college for their sons during the coming year would do well to correspond with the President, who will send them a catalogue free of charge, as well as all particulars regarding terms, courses of studies, etc.

There is a thorough preparatory school in connection with the University, in which students of all grades will have every opportunity of preparing themselves for higher studies. The Commercial Course intended for young men preparing for business, may be finished in one or two years according to the ability of the student. ST. EDWARD'S HALL, for boys under thirteen, has an unique department of the institution. The higher courses are thorough in every respect, and students will find every opportunity of perfecting themselves in any line of work they may choose to select. Thoroughness in class work, exactness in the care of students, and devotion to the best interests of all, are the distinguishing characteristics of Notre Dame University.

Fifty-seven years of active work in the cause of education have made this institution famous all over the country.

"What is the original idea in this novel of yours?" asked the publisher. "My hero and heroine hate each other so heartily," said the long-haired and wistful-eyed young author, "that they marry for revenge and make each other miserable for life."—Indianapolis News.

THE YOUNG IDEA.

Setbacks to the Enthusiasm of an Instructor Who Was Training It to Shoot.

Teachers often find the "developing" process discouraging. A young minister, seeking to impress the beauties of nature upon his class of East side boys, had been describing the gradual unfolding of the springtime, relates the New York Judge. Pausing impressively at the end of his speech he asked:

"Now tell me, boys, in your own language, what comes in the spring?"

The rent man!" quavered a pathetic little treble.

Again the developer's enthusiasm was chilled when urging upon his pupils the importance of attendance upon Friday evening exercises.

"Remember, children," said the pastor, "our church is open on Friday as well as on Sunday. On the Sabbath day we have the regular morning and evening services. Now"—with a friendly expectant look—"what do we have on Friday?"

"Fresh fish, sir!" answered the boys.

True, Too True.

"I was to come on the stage stealthily and say 'Hist!'" explained the fledgling actor.

"And—"

"And I said it—and I was," he mournfully concluded.—Stray Stories.

BOONE CO., RECORDER
Wednesday, - - July 23, 1902.
W. L. RIDDELL, - - Publisher.

For State Senator.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce J. W. CAMMACK, of Owenton, as a candidate for State Senator in the 23rd Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Boone, Owen and Gallatin, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For Circuit Clerk.

We are authorized to announce S. E. TERRILL, of Idlewild, as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

For Jailer.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce SAMUEL ADAMS as a candidate for Jailer of Boone county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.—Primary electiyn, Aug. 23d, 1902.

SENATOR MCLAURIN, of South Carolina, has declined the proffered appointment to the vacancy on the bench of the United States Court of Claims.

Go to Michigan, young men, and raise ginseng. One fellow up there produced $15,000 worth of the herb on one acre in a year. At what can you do better?

CANDIDATES for State offices to be filled by election next year are coming to the front in every direction, and State politics will begin warming up before many months pass.

THE wheat crop in Ohio is breaking all records in that State. One farmer threshed 2,200 bushels from 40 acres, and the average yield in the wheat belt will be 40 bushels per acre.

THE teachers who have contracted to teach a public school this fall and winter for the public money will not be pleased with the announcement from Frankfort that the per capita will be less this year than it was last.

JUDGE LASSING and Robert Wood, of Gallatin county, found it easy to secure the nominations for the offices to which they aspire, Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney, respectively, and have been declared the nominees for these positions.

IT begins to look like President Roosevelt is making great headway towards securing his nomination by the next Republican national convention. He does not believe that his party can afford to repudiate his administration by nominating another for the Presidency.

THE proposition to hold a primary election for nominating the Democratic State ticket to be voted for next year, is being pretty thoroughly discussed throughout the State. The question of cost to the candidates is the only objection urged, while there are numerous good reasons given why the nominations should be made by that plan.

CHAIRMAN GRIGGS of the Democratic Campaign Committee, has obtained exporters' prices from five of the two hundred exporting firms of the United States, showing that American wares are sold for less in European markets than at home. In many instances the article costs the consumer abroad less than half of what is asked from the domestic purchaser.

IT is said that Congressman Boering of the Eleventh District is calling on the Revenue force in this district for contributions to assist him to defeat Colson and Parker for the Congressional nomination. This can hardly be true as he could not expect the salaried Republicans down here to take such an active part in Eleventh District affairs as between members of the party.

THE Republican political hand book to be issued in a few days for the use of the speakers in the campaign this fall, will have a great deal to say about President Roosevelt as a civil service reformer, and will tell of the thousands of places he has put under civil service. His record in civil service matters will be praised from every stump from which a Republican speaks.

THE property of the Royer Wheel Works destroyed by fire in Aurora a few days ago will be replaced at once, the city giving the firm additional financial assistance. Aurora is struggling hard to obtain and retain all the manufacturing establishments possible; and gives them liberal encouragement. That is the way to build up and maintain a thrifty city.

THIS is what Urey Woodson has to say of politics, in the Owensboro Messenger, and most men who have dabbled therein will heartily endorse the sentiment. "It is a nasty game. It is heartless and selfish. It begets liars, hypocrites, ingrates and scalawags. It utterly destroys the confidence of men in men. It is worse than an empty bauble. If it were only that it would not be so bad. It destroys the capacity of men to make of themselves useful and successful citizens in other pursuits."

An exchange remarks: "The sporty individuals who paid fancy prices for Panama hats early in the season are already beginning to regret their rashness. The whole country is being flooded with cheap imitations so skillfully put together that unless subjected to a close scrutiny they can scarcely be distinguished from the real thing. The men who paid anywhere from $30 to $75 for their hats a month ago, and who then were proud of their purchases, have recently shown an inclination to hedge. Besides too they have realized the futility of trying to make ten cent heads any more valuable with such expensive covering."

FROM all indications the housewife will have to pay a high price for her brooms in the near future. A careful summary of the reports from the broom-corn districts of Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas shows that the acreage planted in broom corn is fully 30 per cent, short of the acreage of the year 1900. The shortage in the crop has resulted in an advance of $10 to $20 a ton in the price of brooms, and within the next week or two a meeting of the National Broom Manufacturers' Association will be held in Chicago to consider how much they shall advance the price of brooms.

A Northern Kentucky paper, says the C. J., prints this more or less veracious recital of the accomplishments of a shifty trader in that region:

It is told as an actual fact that a Boone county man recently bought a horse for eighty cents, and afterward traded the animal for a yearling heifer, six shoats, four barrels of corn and a gallon and a half of molasses. He sold the heifer the next day for the neat sum of $10. He contemplates making a good profit on the remaining articles.

The person above referred to is one of the following three, it is believed: James Thompson, of Petersburg; W. E. Vest, of Burlington; Owen Ross, of Limaburg.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction McChesney, after securing Auditor Coulter's estimate as to the amount that will accrue to the school fund from this year's taxes, has fixed the school per capita for the current year at $2 32 and issued the following notice to the County Superintendents and Treasurers of the city School Board:

"The per capita for the current year will be $2 32. The decrease from the per capita of last year ($2 50) is the result of a heavy falling off in the collections made for the year just closed from licenses, state banks and miscellaneous coporations. The shortage from these sources caused a large deficit which had to be taken into account in estimating the per capita for this year. Another cause of the decrease is that the recent General Assembly passed an act refunding to state banks taxes they had paid under the Hewitt law in excess of what they should have paid."

If the Kentucky war claim is collected next winter $200,000 of it will go to the school fund, and will serve to largely increase the per capita for next year.

The school census for the state shows 732,784, and the estimate of the total fund is $1,730,221.

THE Democratic Congressional Committee is highly pleased over the action of President Roosevelt in summarily retiring Gen. Smith.

"The outcome of the case sustains," said a Democratic Senator "the contention of Democratic Senators, and refutes the plea made by the supporters of the Administration. Smith was openly defended and excused and eulogized on the floor of the Senate. Republican Senators contended that the soldiers were so infuriated by Fillipino outrages that they could not be restrained from acts of vengeance.

"The Democrats contended on the other hand that the outrages committed in this province were the acts of Smith, and that the soldiers and subordinate officers were the unwilling instruments of his ferocity. The Democratic contention is sustained by the President."

WHEAT, from the time it is threshed, will shrink two quarts to the bushel, or six per cent in six months, hence 94 cents a bu. in August, when first threshed is as good, taking into account shrinkage alone, as one dollar in the following February. Corn shrinks much more from the time it is first husked. One hundred bushels of ears, as they come from the field in November, will be reduced to not far from eighty, so that 40 cents a bushel as it comes from the field, is as good as 50 cents in March. In the case of potatoes, considering rot and shrinkage, between October and June there will be a loss to the holder of 33 per cent.

Another Old Citizens Gone.

Edward R. Smith, an old citizen and resident of the lower Gunpowder neighborhood died on the 16th inst., in his 90th year since the 29th day of March last.

He was born in Bourbon county, this State as was also his wife, a Miss Cummins, who died several years ago. He had been a citizen of this county, where he reared a large family of children, each of whom is an excellent citizen.

Mr. Smith was not a member of any church, but belonged to Big Bone Masonic Lodge, and was beloved by all the brethren.

The funeral services were conducted by the Masons at 10 a. m. at the residence, last Friday, after which the remains were laid to rest by the side of those of his wife, in the family cemetery near the house on the summit of a hill that overlooks the Gunpowder valley for miles each way.

In the death of Edward Smith the county has lost another very old and highly respected citizen, a man esteemed by all with whom he was acquainted. He was a man who looked on the bright side of life, and his home was one where it could be truly said the latch-string hung on the outside at all times, and he will be missed greatly by those with whom he has been associated so long.

A writer in the Farmer's Home Journal, who speaks from experience very highly recommends the cow pea as a fertilizer, and among other things says:

"All over the country where the cow pea can be grown, farmers are waking up on the subject, as they are no doubt a great land improver. There are some, however, who are inclined to think that peas can be grown on same land year after year, and improve the soil without using any plant food. This is a mistake. Cow peas, like every other crop, will impoverish the soil if we do not use a fertilizer to prevent it. Peas, as we all know, make nitrogen by forming nodules on the roots, though they draw a great deal of potash and phosphoric acid from the soil; whereas if the pea be grown year after year on same land, after a few years they will leave the soil much poorer than they found it if no fertilizer be used. I prefer the cow pea to any other crop for improving the soil, though I do not expect the soil to be improved unless properly treated. All farmers know nitrogen is the most expensive part of a complete fertilizer, this we do not have to buy if we grow the cow pea on a large scale.

"Cow peas, like every other crop, do better on well pulverized soil, though they can be grown on land that clover, etc., will not, and improve the land. I usually raise fine peas sown broadcast after wheat say about the last of June and the first of July, using in advance potash and phosphoricacid. I use a good deal of the above when wheat is sown in the fall, putting enough for wheat and peas at one time."

IN MEMORY OF MRS. JOHN CROPPER.

My Friend Who is in the city of God.

The Angel of Death has again visited our community and church, calling at the home of R. C. Gaines entering the room of Mrs. John Cropper, at midnight, June 25th, to carry from her mortal casket her immortal spirit to that beautiful city whose builder and maker is God.

She was born Feby. 22, 1831. Her father was James Gaines and her mother before marriage was Miss Virginia Watts. As they had always lived in Boone county, her lot was cast in pleasant places by having a large circle of relatives and friends.

Her amiable, happy girlhood matured, and on Christmas day, 1864, she was united in marriage to Mr. John Cropper by Rev. Ben Lampton. Although under christian influence, she did not accept Christ as her savior until a most precious revival at Bullittsburg, held by Rev. W. H. Felix in December, 1877, when with her husband, she was baptized by our old pastor, and in newness of life they have served God together for almost 25 years. She was an humble, faithful, consistent christian, whose example many of us should imitate. Unless prevented by her health which was very delicate, she was always present and in time at the services of her church, for in all truth I can say, sanctioned by friendship, that we have none like her left with us. Her prominent characteristics were punctuality, order and prudence. She was a loving, true wife, a faithful devoted mother, and her character is indelibly stamped upon the lives of her two children, Mr. W. Lee Cropper and Mrs. R. C. Gaines. She was dearly beloved by her sister, Mrs. L. Huey, and her two brothers.

A friend with a willing heart and ready hand for any act of kindness, we will ever miss her, and when the labor of the day is over and the hours of twilight bring us rest, then we will think of you and your many virtues, and our tears will often be shed in rememberance, as friendship, ties of sympathy and love are strong church ties are eternal, but home ties are the strongest to sever and hardest to forget, for they will think of you at home every day. Words of comfort and sympathy to them fail for Jesus alone can heal their broken hearts.

"As Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot cure," we know God loved you as He so deeply chastised you, even with the loving care and tender ministries of her loved ones was given her, as she laid upon her bed for months, suffering, and, for several weeks, intensely, until death released her, and calm and conscious she paid her debt of humanity, for sin and her life's labor were ended. As her confiding faith in Christ was strong and in meek submission to His will, she was ready and willing to obey. She possessed the sentiments of Christ's sermon on the mount of Olives, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God," and with that sweet peace the gift of God's love, and only trusting Him, in whom she believed, that when the shadows gathered around the sunset of life's day, they lifted her abiding faith in the fullest and most glorious triumph.

We will not ask how sister Jennie is now, for we know she is well and happy in her heavenly home, so sweetly asleep that death is only a dream, but Jesus will awaken her on that bright morn when "He comes the second time without sin unto salvation."

Some sweet day sister Jennie, your loved ones will stand,
All gathered at the river, a happy, glorious band.
Earth, with its sin and sorrow; eternity will change and blest,
For Jesus, has promised truly, His weary ones shall rest.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similiar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.

This one has appeared in some of the papers. You can receive or reject it as you see fit. John Filson, a farmer, living seven miles south of Eminence, is the proud father of 44 little chickens, but much of the credit for the results is due to his wife. Filson has been ill with fever, and she decided to utilize him as an incubator. She borrowed the eggs and placed them about his body. Only four failed to produce chickens.

Local News.

Pretty good October weather last Sunday.

Mrs. Harriet Sanders, aged 82, died at Waltou Monday.

People went about Monday, making a frigid appearance.

Not much blackberry jam will grace the tables this winter.

The showers, last week, interrupted the hay harvest some.

Conner & Hogan received considerable tobacco last week.

It is said that the weather always gets warm in summer time.

The Dearbon county, Indiana, Teachers' Institute will convene August 18, at Lawrenceburg.

The interest in the coming fair is on the increase, and requests for pemium lists come from far and near.

The Lawrenceburg fair presents the greatest variety of amusements of any fair in this part of the country.

The Handkerchief Bazaar, on which several of the ladies of the town are at work, will come off at an early date.

The Boone County Telephone Company wired the court house, last Thursday, and placed telephones in the several offices.

The Lawrenceburg Register says the prospect for a big crop of corn in the bottoms was never more flattering at this season of the year.

The Grangers will give a picnic at Harvest Home Grounds on the afternoon of Saturday, August 2. The best of music has been engaged.

Several very large, ugly hissing vipers have been killed here in town this season. They appear to have a liking for proximity to the habitation of man.

A great deal of fine hay has been saved this season, while the oats crop is yielding well. It now looks like the farmers will have an abundance of food for their stock next winter.

The Teachers' Institute will meet here in a few weeks, and with the cooperation of the people Superintendent Snyder will endeavor to make it one of the most interesting ever held. Lend him a helping hand.

Considerable tobacco is being topped this week at from 14 to 16 leaves. The crop is in first class condition in this county, and everything points to the production of an average number of pounds of a better quality of tobacco this year.

Lightning gave G. T. Gaines and family a considerable fright, last Friday evening. It struck a large locust tree that stands within a few feet of the kitchen, but did no damage other than to the tree. Mrs. Gaines was in the kitchen at the time and received a considerable shock. She says balls of fire flew in every direction in the room. The building has lightning rods, but the electric current preferred the locust tree.

The Boone County Fair at Florence Ky., will be held Aug. 27th to 30th, 1902. We have before us the premium list which shows varied and extensive premiums. The treasurer of the Fair Association is Mr. A. B. Rouse, private Secretary of our Congressman, D. Linn Gooch. Mr. Rouse is an excellent young man of the highest qualifications that go to make manhood. Seeing his name among those of the officers we are quite favorably impressed with the Boone County Fair.—Trimble Democrat.

Summer complaint is usually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time.—Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by all druggists.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

JUDGE TAFT'S NOTE.

Replies to Communication Sent From the Vatican.

Suggests That Future Negotiations on Points Raised Be Held in Manila Between An Apostolic Delegate and the Governor.

Rome, July 17.—The following is, in part, Judge Taft's note to the vatican, it is addressed to Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, and begins thus:

"In reply to the two notes of your eminence of June 21 and July 9, I have just received a communication from the secretary of war, in precise and exhaustive terms, which are here reproduced integrally. Secretary Root says he is glad to see by the two notes received from the vatican that the holy see is animated by the best intentions to come to an understanding with Washington about the relations between church and state in the Philippines, that your eminence has declared the vatican to be disposed to give clear and precise instructions to the friars to occupy themselves with religion only, abstaining entirely from politics, and that the holy see proposes to introduce, little by little, ecclesiastics of other nationalities, especially American. Secretary Root adds that he can not do less than acknowledge the wisdom of these propositions, but that he must observe that they would not solve the question.

"The United States has no desire to violate the treaty of Paris and seeks not a forcible but a voluntary withdrawal of certain persons, who happen to be Spaniards, and whose previous experiences in the islands had thrown them into antagonistic relations with the people and with the Catholic laity and native clergy, many of whom have left their parishes and can only be reinstated by using material force, which the United States can not permit. This proves that the government of the Philippines has no intention to propose measures contrary to the interests of the vatican and in fact its interests in the church.

"If the question of withdrawal be left unsolved, now that the Washington government has persuaded the ecclesiastical authorities to see the necessity of carrying out this step, the latter withdrawal of the friars under order of the religious superior could not be regarded as anything but voluntary and would not violate the treaty of Paris; nor could such order be regarded as affirming or admitting any accusations against the friars, because the American government made no such accusation. The United States did not desire the withdrawal for itself—it was indifferent to the presence of the friars—but in the interest of the whole people of the Philippines who were bitterly opposed to their presence.

"It was thought by the generous proposal of a contract which would bind the Philippine government to certain financial and other obligations to secure the much longed for desire of the Philippine people in the withdrawal of the friars. Now that the vatican does not see its way clear to make a definite withdrawal the American government has deemed it wiser to recur to the methods of settlement of the various questions at issue suggested by Cardinal Rampolla's first communication of June 21, namely:

"First, an investigation by both sides into the possible and probable liabilities and claims and the settlement of them by an accredited apostolic delegate with the governor in Manila after the conditions with respect to the titles of the friars to land and the amount of claims for rental have been presented by the representative of the church to the representatives of the Philippine government in Manila.

"As to the indemnity for the friars' land, your eminence has pointed out the difficulty of computing so precipitately the exact value, but this might be done by examining the title deeds. The Washington government will immediately order the general commanding the forces in the Philippines to furnish all indications necessary to ascertain what damage has been done by the military occupation. Although regretful that all the questions have not been decided definitely, the government is glad to express satisfaction at the results obtained."

Secretary Root in his communication declares that Judge Taft's journey is quite compensated for by the fact that it is possible to fix general lines on which later can be amicably solved all the questions now pending. Judge Taft concludes his note to the vatican thus:

"In obedience to Secretary Root's dispatch I request that the future negotiations on the points raised be held in Manila between an apostolic delegate and the governor after the information suggested above by Secretary Root has been ascertained and presented."

TERRIBLE FLOODS.

The Loss in Eastern Iowa Will Foot Up About $4,000,000.

Keokuk, Ia., July 19.—Heavy rains in Central Iowa are sending a flood down upon prosperous Missouri farmers which will ruin many of them and cause losses aggregating at a conservative estimate of $2,500,000. There seems to be no hope for the country between the Mississippi river and the Missouri bluffs between Keokuk and Hannibal, 300 square miles, in which much corn is laid by, together with several thousands of acres of wheat in the shock.

A rise of one and a half feet in a short time at Ottumwa and a further rise throughout its length below the capital city was prevented from running out freely by a rise of a foot and a half at Davenport, increasing and coming down rapidly.

The observer of the weather bureau at Keokuk, in charge of this district, sent telegraphic warning to all points south to prepare for danger. The Eyptian levee, which stood the flood just receding after strenuous efforts to hold it, including the destruction of farm houses to secure lumber for strengthening the dike, is only slightly above the water now and the coming flood in the Des Moines will top it certainly. This lets the water into hundreds of square miles, including the town of Alexandria, Mo.

The corn crop is all made and wheat is in the shock, entailing a total loss of the year's work. Crops were never finer and the yield promised is immense. Grain men say the above estimate of value is too low and put the figures of the loss from the overflow nearer $4,000,000 between Keokuk and Hannibal.

Heavy rains were reported in Southeastern Iowa Friday and Friday night indicates still higher water. Lowland farmers, river men and the weather bureau observer alike predict the greatest damage ever known from flood on the upper river.

IMMIGRATION.

The Number Arriving in the United States in 1902 By Countries.

Washington, July 19.—A statement has been prepared at the immigration bureau showing the number of immigrants who arrived in the United States by countries during the fiscal year, 1902, as compared with 1901. The total arrivals for the last fiscal year were 646,743 immigrants and 82,055 other alien passengers, making a total of 730,798. This is an increase of 160,825 immigrants over 1901. The principal increase during the last year as compared with 1901 were as follows:

Austria-Hungary, 58,599; Italy, including Sicily and Sardinia, 42,379; Russian empire and Finland, 22,000; Japan, 9,001; Sweden, 7,563; German empire, 6,653; Norway, 5,236; Greece, 2,194; Denmark, 2,005.

The principal decreases are: Ireland, 1,425; China, 810; Turkey in Europe, 200.

Following are the names of the countries from which the largest number of immigrants came during the last fiscal year: Italy, including Sicily and Sardinia, 178,375; Austria-Hungary, 171,989; Russian empire and Finland, 107,347; Sweden, 30,894; Ireland, 29,138; German empire, 28,304; Norway, 17,484; Japan, 14,270; England, 13,575.

TO ASSASSINATE THE KING.

An Anarchist Placed Under Arrest Near Turin, Italy.

London, July 19.—A dispatch from Milan, Italy, to the Daily Telegraph, reports the arrest by the police at Bra, near Turin, of a young barber who recently arrived there from Paterson, N. J. The prisoner gives his name as Tonetti, which is believed to be assumed, and confesses that he is an anarchist. Papers which were seized at his lodgings include correspondence with Paterson anarchists and a document indicating that it was Tonetti's intention to assassinate King Victor Emmanel, who frequently traverses Bra in a motor car on his way to his private estate.

THE VATICAN'S REPLY.

Apostolic Delegate to Be Sent to the Philippine.

The Pontiff Is Intensely Displeased at the Way in Which the Commission of Cardinals Has Conducted Negotiations.

Rome, July 19.—The following note from the vatican was presented to Gov. Taft:

"I hasten to acknowledge the receipt of the letter by which you kindly communicated to me the cablegram from Secretary Root answering my note of July 9, which explained the counter project of the vatican for the regulation of religious affairs in the Philippines. While thanking you for this important communication I am happy to assure you that the holy see has learned with the liveliest satisfaction the high consideration in which Mr. Root, in the name of the government of the United States, holds the fitness of the measures which the vatican independently of the solution of any economic question designed taking to ameliorate the religious situation in the archipelago and to co-operate in the pacification of the people under American sovereignty. The measures are indicated in my memorandum of June 21 and my letter of July 9. These declarations of Mr. Root do honor to the deep political wisdom of the government of the United States which knows how to appreciate the happy influence of the holy see for the religious and civil elevation of the people, especially Catholics.

"With equal satisfaction the pontiff has taken into account the assurances of Secretary Root that the American authorities in the Philippines and at Washington will put forth all possible efforts to maintain the good understanding happily established with the authorities of the Catholic church. On his part, the pontiff will not fail to give the apostolic delegate soon to be sent to the Philippines the most precise instructions according to my former note.

"The main lines for future negotiations, indicated in the notes, having been accepted by Secretary Root, the representative of the vatican in the archipelago will enter into relations with the authorities in the Philippines on the four points indicated by Mr. Root at the end of his cablegram.

"The holy see does not doubt that mutual confidence, combined with the action of its representatives and that of the American government, will easily produce a happy solution of the pending questions, inaugurating for that noble country a new era of peace and true progress.

"It is my agreeable duty in ending this letter to be able to render homage to the very great courtesy and high capacity of which you have filled the delicate mission which the government and president of the United States confided to you. Willingly I admit that the favorable result of the negotiations be attributed in very very large part to your high personal qualities.

"While flattering myself that this first success will be a guarantee of the happy issues of ulterior negotiations in Manila,

"I have the honor to be, etc., Rampolla."

Gov. Taft was informed Friday night that the pope had fixed July 21 for his farewell audience. Gov. Taft will start Saturday for Vallombrosa, near Florence, where he will stay with his family until Monday, when he will return for his audience with the pope.

London, July 19.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says the pope is intensely displeased at the way in which the commission of cardinals has conducted the negotiations with Judge Taft in the matter of the friars in the Philippines.

"I learn from an authoritative source," says the correspondent, "that besides annulling the proceedure of the commission of cardinals, the pope has summarily dissolved it, expressing his view that the American demands were reasonable and signifying his readiness to treat with Judge Taft personally."

SWEPT BY A TORNADO.

Much Property Was Destroyed Near Dannemora, N. Y.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., July 19.—A tornado swept over Mofittsville, a small village near Dannemora, in Clinton county, destroying a starch factory, a carding mill, the Chateauguay Ore and Iron Co.'s sawmill and other property.

The same storm sunk a steam launch in the Upper Chateauguay lake belonging to Seth Thomas, the well-known cloak manufacturer of Connecticut, and destroyed his fine camp and boat house on the lake. The storm also demolished the fine cottage owned by Frank Sawyer, of Chicago, located near the Seth Thomas cottage, on Upper Chateaguay lake, severely injuring one man.

Waylaid and Killed.

Atoka, I. T., July 19.—Near Stringtown, Mrs. Daniel Grant, her daughter, Mrs. Jacob Reeves, and a man named Nuckles were waylaid and killed while returning from church. Mrs. Reeves and been separated from her husband.

Four Killed and Two Injured in a Riot.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 19.—News has been received here of a riot at Chicago, in Cumberland county, Tenn., which resulted in the death of two white men and two Negroes and the wounding of a number of other persons.

RIOT AT NEBRASKA CITY.

The Law and Order League Prevented a Baseball Game.

Lincoln, Neb., July 21.—A telephone message from Nebraska City says there was a riot at the baseball grounds there Sunday afternoon when the Law and Order league attempted to prevent the game. The warrant, sworn out by members of the league, was placed into the hands of Sheriff Brower for the arrest of the two teams. When he arrived on the grounds an angry crowd surrounded and hustled him violently. His revolver was taken away from him. He succeeded in arresting four players and took them to a justice's office, where they were placed under bonds.

A number of city pastors were at the justice's office, and when they left, friends of the players threatened and jostled them. A rock was thrown at Rev. C. M. Shepperd, of the Methodist church, striking a companion and knocking him down. Mr. Shepperd was chased to his home. Later, alleging that his life had been threatened and the church property was in danger, Mr. Shepperd applied to the mayor for a police guard for himself and the church property and it was promised.

Sunday's outbreak is the outcome of a long and bitter fight between the Law and Order league and friends of Sunday ball. Saturday the question was put to a vote of citizens and there was practicall a unanimous vote for Sunday ball.

JOHN W. MACKAY DEAD.

Passed Away at His Residence on Carlton House Terrace, London.

London, July 21.—John W. Mackay, of San Francisco, who had been suffering from heat prostration since Tuesday last, died at his residence on Carlton House Terrace at 6:30 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mr. Mackay's condition, as stated Saturday, had improved, but the patient had a bad night, and Sunday morning a consultation was held by three physicians. Mr. Mackay grew worse as the day progressed. He was unconscious most of the time, and died very peacefully. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure. The right lung was found to be congested and the symptoms indicated pneumonia.

Mrs. Mackay, her mother and Countess Telfener were present when Mr. Mackay died, and Princess Calatro Colonna arrived from Paris a half-hour after her stepfather's death.

THE NEW BATTLESHIPS.

They Will Be Named the Louisiana and the Connecticut.

Washington, July 19.—The navy department announced that the two battleships to be built under the authority of the last naval appropriation bill are to be named the Louisiana and Connecticut, and the two cruisers the Tennessee and Washington. The battleship to be built at the New York yard will be the Connecticut. The battleships will cost $4,212,000 and the cruisers $4,659,000 each. The two tugs authorized by the act are to be built, one at the Mare Island yard and the other at Boston.

Adm. Bowles has prepared an elaborate plan for keeping the accounts in connection with the cost of the Connecticut in such order that when she is finished comparisons can be made between the respective cost of building ships in government and private yards.

FIRE AT DALLAS, TEX.

Main Exposition Building and Other Property Destroyed.

Dallas, Tex., July 21.—Fire broke out shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday morning in the exposition grounds, located in the suburbs of East Dallas, and in 30 minutes the main exposition building, one of the largest buildings in the country, the music hall annex, the poultry building, the private buildings of the J. I. Case Plow Co., Southern Rock Island Plow Co. and that of the Parlin Orendorff Co. were destroyed. The loss will reach $100,000, with insurance of probably $30,000.

The fire will not interfere with the holding of the annual state fair.

The Dallas fire department is crippled through the absence of its acting chief and four firemen, who have gone to the Pasteur institute in St. Louis to be treated for supposed hydrophobia, caused by the bite of a mad horse.

THE WRECKED CAMPANILE.

It Is Desirable That It Be Rebuilt Solely By Aid of Italian Subscriptions.

London, July 21.—The Venice correspondent of the Daily Mail says the Italian minister of fine arts considers it desirable that the campanile should be rebuilt solely by the aid of Italian subscriptions; and it has been suggested, in view of the world wide manifestations of sympathy, to use the foreign donations to build a temple in honor of human fraternity.

A Five Million Dollar Fire.

Working Miners to Be Assessed to Support Strikers.

The Miners Hope to Raise $250,000 a Week From the Public Contributions, as That Much Will Be Needed.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 21.—The convention of United Mine Workers adjourned, after declaring against a general strike, providing for the raising of a fund with which to aid the striking anthracite miners and issuing an appeal to the American people for support.

The convention passed resolutions appealing to district and local unions to donate from the surplus in their treasuries, directing an immediate donation of $50,000 from the funds of the national treasury; levying an assessment of 10 per cent. on all members of local unions in districts Nos. 6, 8, 12, 19, 23 and 25 and an assessment of $1 per week on all members of local unions in districts Nos. 2, 5, 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 20 and 21. An assessment of 25 per cent. is levied upon the wages, salaries or percentage received from the organization of all national, district and sub-district officers and organizers. Assessments to begin July 16, 1902.

The care of the national organization will be to see to the collection of the defense fund with which to carry on the strike. Secretary Wilson, who is the financial head of the union, will be in charge of this work and will lose no time in providing to handle the sums. It is believed that all the voluntary contributions from the various districts, sub-districts and local organizations will be turned into his hands within the next ten days. These contributions are estimated at about $400,000.

A part of the contribution money has already been turned in. The Ohio men, before leaving, turned over to Secretary Wilson a check for their $10,000. The $50,000 from Illinois was expected to arrive Monday. Indiana and Iowa are expected to make their contributions at once and the other districts will do the same.

A systematic method will be adopted for canvassing for outside subscriptions in the large cities. The miners hope to raise $250,000 a week from the public contributions, as that much will be needed to bring the sum up to $500,000.

In some of the largest cities of the country, such as Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and others, headquarters will be established from which the work will be conducted and committees will be appointed to make the canvass.

President Mitchell has made the following estimate of the number of strikers and dependents in each district and weekly revenues to be derived from each district under the decision of the convention.

Cost of maintaining strike: District No. 1, Pennsylvania (anthracite), miners on strike (estimated), 79,500. Number of dependents (estimated), 397,000. District No. 7, Pennsylvania (anthracite), miners on strike (estimated), 18,000; number of dependents (estimated), 90,000. District No. 9, Pennsylvania (anthracite), miners on strike (estimated), 52,500; number of dependents (estimated), 262,500. Total strikers in anthracite field (estimated), 150,000. Total number dependents in anthracite field (estimated), 750,000. Estimated weekly expense in anthracite field, $500,000.

District No. 17, West Virginia (bituminous), number of strikers (estimated), 25,000; number of dependents (estimated), 75,000.

Revenue for defraying strike expenses: Estimated contributions from districts, $100,000. Estimated contributions from sub-districts, $100,000. Estimated contributions from locals, $200,000. Total, $400,000.

Death List Increased.

Johnstown, Pa., July 21.—John Rotallick, one of the fire bosses who was rescued alive from the Cambria Rolling Mill mine after the explosion of July 10, died Sunday. He was 53 years old and is survived by a wife and daughter. The death list is now 112.

Cocke and Lauderdale Must Hang.

Jackson, Miss., July 21.—It was learned here that Associate Justice Howard D. White, of the United States supreme court, who is at Narragansett Pier, R. I., has declined to grant a writ of error prayed for by the attorneys of Ashley Cooke and Thos. Lauderdale, sentenced to hang at Greenville July 22, for the murder of Engineer Rea.

Gov. Taft Granted An Interview.

London, July 21.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Rome says the pope granted an audience Monday to Judge Wm. H. Taft, governor of the Philippine islands, and his assistant in the negotiations with the vatican regarding religious conditions in the Philippines.

Captured An Armadillo.

Metropolis, Ill., July 21.—An armadillo, the first specimen of its species ever discovered in this part of the country, was captured here at the ferry wharf by a steamboat rouster. Where it came from is a mystery, as it was swimming in the river when found.

Steamship Sinks—135 Lives Lost.

Hamburg, July 21.—The steamship Premius, with 185 passengers on board, was cut in two and sunk by the tug Hansel, on the Elbe at 12:30 o'clock Monday morning. Only about 30 on board were saved.

A MISSISSIPPI FLOOD.

The Loss Will Aggregate About Six Million Dollars.

Thousands of Shocks of Wheat Washed to the Gulf—In Ons Place the River is From Five to Ten Miles in Width.

Keokuk, Ia., July 21.—Exploration of the flooded districts of the Mississippi river from Keokuk south shows conditions beyond the appreciation of realization of any but people of long experience with the father of waters in its most destructive mood.

The situation is growing worse hourly and a great conflagration in a great city would not be more rapidly destructive of values than the antithesis a hundred miles below Keokuk.

There is absolutely not the slightest chance of stopping this dozen times most costly flood in the history of the great river above St. Louis.

A correspondent went all over the worst damaged area Sunday in the steamer Silver Crescent and found everywhere the greatest crops ever known under water deep enough to float a steamboat. People at the river cities give an immense mass of details all to be generalized in losses aggregating many millions of dollars, hundreds of farmers rich ten days ago penniless and homeless, hundreds watching and praying that the great levees may hold, which are now their bulwark against additional millions of loss and many cases of penury.

Careful estimates of the territory covered and generalization of the statements of best informed people indicate the loss up to Sunday is about six million dollars, with every prospect of two or three millions additional by the rise above not yet reaching the lower stretches of the river. Most of this loss is on the Missouri side of the river between Keokuk and Hannibal.

Passing the water-lapped lumber yards of Keokuk the mouths of the Des Moines river seem to be nearly two miles wide. Normally there are two mouths and an island delta covered with farms which are now under raging torrents.

Gregory is submerged except the white church in which service was held Sunday, the praying congregation from the country reaching the house of God by the railroad track which is still above the flood in a waste of water miles wide.

Immense fields are seen in a great lake with the shore line, visible only with a glass, where the high bluffs bound the bottoms. Islands dotting the river at its normal stage have disappeared except for the tops of trees or fringe of high shore willows slightly protruding like a circular green coral reef. Occasionally a house on piles or stilts is seen, but generally only roofs protrude to mark the center of farms of corn. On the edge of the flood river corn gradually rises on a slope, tassels, tops, ears, stalks appearing in order. In a few of the half submerged fields is shocked wheat in the background, the remnants of many more washed to the Gulf of Mexico. In the middle of the present river the tracks of the St. Louis, Keokuk & Northwestern railroad, normally the Missouri shore, are now a few inches above the water, and under it in some stretches. Shore lights for pilots are standing in the midst of a waste of water where steamboats can run over them. The river is five to ten miles wide and 70 miles long, and another great lake is added to the geography. All this territory was practically covered with water a fortnight ago estimated to make 75 to 100 bushels to the acre. Previous estimates of the loss have been greatly increased by the prospective yield being found much greater than ever before, experts telling of many farms that were good for 100 bushels to the acre before the flood. The loss is total.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

One Man Killed, One Fatally Hurt and Another Injured at Knoxville.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 21.—As the result of a queer accident in the local yards of the Atlanta, Knoxville & Northern railroad Sunday, David Monday was instantly killed, his brother, Elisha Monday, was fatally hurt, and James Palmer and other employes were badly shaken up. The men were cleaning an engine on a side track when another engine, approaching on the next track, jumped the rails and ploughed its way into the group of men.

Two Excursionists Drowned.

Tolchester, Md., July 21.—James B. Post, aged 20, and Theodore C. Parker, aged 21, of Baltimore, who came here Sunday on an excursion, were drowned Sunday afternoon. They, with four companions, were rowing in the bay. A wind squall overturned the boat. The other occupants of the little craft clung to it until rescued.

Secretary Baer Resigns.

Boston, July 21.—John Willis Baer, secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, has tendered his resignation to take effect on October 1, and has accepted a position as assistant secretary of the Presbyterian board of home missions.

Old-Time Minstrel Expired.

Boston, July 21.—James J. Kelly, an old-time minstrel who during his professional career appeared in nearly every part of the country, died at his home in this city Sunday. He was 69 years old.

A FIERCE TORNADO.

Eleven Persons Lost Their Lives in Baltimore—Much Damage.

Baltimore, July 21.—A fierce tornado, characterized by a windstorm of extraordinary velocity, thunder, vivid lightning, and heavy rain, suddenly burst upon Baltimore at 1:30 p. m. Sunday, coming from the southwest, with the net result that 11 persons lost their lives, hundreds of houses were unroofed, trees in the public parks and streets were torn up by the roots, many buildings damaged, and several people injured. The storm exhausted its fury in less than 15 minutes. The damage done in the business part of the city was comparatively slight, being confined to the blowing down of signs and injuries to roofs. It was in the residence portions of the city, along the river front and in the harbor where the wind spent its violence.

Of those who perished nine were drowned in the harbor from open boats, one was killed by a falling tree, and one by a live wire.

Three of the victims were out in a rowboat on the river with three other companions. When the storm broke the boat was capsized, three being drowned and three being rescued by a tugboat. The boy killed by a live wire had, in company with two other boys, gone into a shed for protection when the shed blew down and a live wire fell on one of them, resulting in his death.

The drowning of Mrs. Schuler and her children was the most pathetic incident of the hurricane. Michael Schuler, with his wife and three children, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Joseph Cook, and his wife, had gone out in the harbor for a sail in a 30-foot boat. When the storm came Schuler and Cook took in sails. Schuler sent his wife and children into the little cabin, and he stood at the tiller to keep the vessel's head toward the wind. A sudden gust of wind threw the boom of the vessel around, knocked Schuler down and pinned him to the deck. Another gust capsized the boat, releasing Schuler, who, with Cooper and his wife, were thrown into the water, leaving Mrs. Schuler and her children penned in the cabin. Cooper saved himself and his wife by hanging to the bottom of the overturned boat, and Schuler saved himself in the same way, after making frantic efforts to get at his imprisoned wife and children. A crew from the schooner Edward H. Hunt rescued Schuler and Cooper and wife and towed the capsized vessel to the wharf, where it was righted and the dead bodies of Mrs. Schuler and her three children were taken from the cabin.

A colored camp meeting was in progress in Paradise grove, near Powhattan, on the Liberty road. The congregation had just been dismissed when the storm broke. A hugo tree fell upon the tent in which the services had been held. Several of the worshipers were caught beneath it as it fell. The tree had to be sawed into pieces before the imprisoned men and women could be released. William Cornish was crushed to death by the falling tree. The others were not seriously hurt.

A hole several feet in diameter was blown in the wall of St. Mary, Star of the Sea, Catholic church, in South Baltimore. A portion of the stone cornice weighing more than a ton fell to the street. Fortunately no one was injured by the falling stone and brick. The damage to the church is estimated at $7,000.

At the foot of Concord street the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Co.'s warehouse was unroofed, with small damage to building, but the rain poured in on the valuable cargo stored therein, doing a damage which is estimated from $100,000 to $300,000.

TRIPLE CLOUDBURST.

Four Persons Are Dead and Two Seriously Injured.

Binghampton, N. Y., July 21.—The heavy rains prevailing in this section for the past few days reached a climax Saturday night when three separate cloudbursts occurred within the limits of Broome county and several in surrounding territory to the northward, breaking mill dams, washing out railroad tracks and highway bridges, and doing much other damage, besides delaying trains. Four persons are dead and two are seriously injured. The loss to property will reach $200,000.

A CLOUDBURST.

Three Persons Drowned and Much Damage Wrought at Coventry.

Binghampton, N. Y., July 21.—A cloudburst at Coventry, this county, sent Lump creek over its banks, wrecking several mills and buildings at Afton. The family of James Cook, consisting of three persons, were drowned and their bodies not found until Sunday. Three separate cloudbursts were reported in the county, and much minor damage has been done.

Eleven Stores Burned.

Macon, Ga., July 21.—Fire Sunday at Colquitt, Ga., destroyed 11 stores along the public square. Among the buildings burned were the post office and the Masonic temple. The more important stores were general merand the Masonic temple. Loss $25,000.

To Curtail Production.

Berlin, July 21.—The West German cotton spinners are agitating for a general curtailment of production. They claim they lose eight pfennigs to every pound of yarn sold the daily losses amounting to $50,000.

DEFEAT OF THE PRESIDENT.

Chief Executive Is Foiled by the Machinations of Sugar Trust Republicans.

The defeat of the Cuban reciprocity legislation is a great blow to the administration of President Roosevelt. His attempt to coerce congress to do his bidding, which he emphasized in two messages to that body, has been spurned by a large faction of the republican party in the interest of the beet sugar trust. It is now stated that the president will call an extra session of congress if action is not taken at the present one. The members of the beet sugar faction in the house of representatives, joining with the democrats, have passed the bill reducing the 20 per cent. on Cuban products, with another section added which was insisted on by the democrats, repealing the differential duty on refined sugar. The republican members of the senate found themselves in the same dilemma as the members of their party in the house of representatives. They were compelled to take the bill as it came from the house, with the democratic antitrust section, or take the responsibility of no legislation.

The democratic position is unique. The members of that party voted in the house and were ready to vote in the senate for the president's recommendation for reciprocity with Cuba. But knowing that this 20 per cent. reduction on Cuban products would, in the case of sugar, inure in a great measure to the benefit of the trust, they compel at the same time the repeal of the differential duty, under which the trust is allowed to collect about $6,000,000 additional tax from the American consumer, and if the countervailing duties are added, that sum can be multiplied fourfold. This legislation, if enacted, would probably aid the Cuban planter somewhat and would reduce the price of refined sugar in the United States by as much, or more, as the sugar trust would gain on the 20 per cent. decrease of duty it would pay on imported raw sugar from Cuba.

This double reduction did not suit the sugar trust, nor did it suit its allies, the administration senators.

If President Roosevelt had really wanted to aid the Cubans and strike a blow at one of the great trust monopolies, why did he not recommend the reduction of the tariff on refined sugar equal to the advantage the sugar trust would gain by the 20 per cent reduction on Cuban raw sugar?

Havemeyer would not, of course, under these circumstances, give a large check to the republican campaign fund, but the consumer of sugar in the United States would be benefitted, even if the collector for the campaign fund had to hunt from other trust quarters the necessary cash to make up the deficiency.

The republican organs are quite exercised about revising the tariff, and the republican leaders in congress have declared that it can only be revised by its friends. But as these republican friends happen also to be the friends of the trusts, who are the chief beneficiaries of protection, the opportunity for the people to obtain relief from that quarter is a slim one.

The beef trust is laughing in its sleeve at the attempt of Mr. Roosevelt's attorney general to stop its exactions. A giant trust with a capital of $300,000,000 is said to be organizing, to include all the packing houses in the country. If Mr. Roosevelt would order criminal proceedings commenced, how quickly he could bring them to time.

President Roosevelt should cease to cherish the delusion that the breath of life still lingers in the Cuban tariff policy. The foxy old republican senators are merely wondering whether they hadn't better bury his 1904 candidacy in the same cemetery lot.—Albany Argus.

The ton of coal the trust compels the miners to dig weighs 2,700 pounds; the ton sold to the coal jenlers is 2,400 pounds; the ton sold to the consumer is 2,000 pounds, and the latter thinks himself lucky if he gets that much.

HOW FILIPINOS ARE TAUGHT.

The Administration's Boast of Educational Progress Punctured by Ocular Evidence.

The special correspondent in the Philippines of the Washington Evening Star, in a letter dated Gimian, Samar, April 22, 1902, brings out two highly instructive points concerning American teachers in those islands and their relation to the natives and the army. The administration has been tickling us with the idea of the vast progress the natives were making in their studies, but from the testimony given below, it must be concluded that these teachers, as a class, are useless, expensive and mischievous. He says:

"I would advise overworked teachers in the States to get an appointment over here, where the work is light and the pay good. Knowledge is not required, but patience one must have. The first month you teach the scholars 'Good-morning,' the second 'Good-evening' and the third 'Good-by.' The fourth month you teach them 'How are you?' and the fifth 'Very well, thank you.'

"There are two American teachers here who have been teaching five months, and as the above is the present vocabulary of the pupils, the formula is correct. These teachers were notified last week that in view of their hard work during the past five months, they would be granted a three-months' vacation with full pay. Three for five is a good allowance, but I fear that the vacation is so long that the pupils will forget the vocabulary and the five months will count for naught. So I repeat the advice for all careworn teachers to pack their carpet bags and come this way, as the work is light and the pay is good.

"It was rumored among the soldiers that the teachers had warned the native girls to beware of the boys in khaki, as they were the scum of the States. Indignation meetings were held and the teachers denounced in the strongest of English. The other day one of the soldiers filled up with native drinks until he was fighting mad, and he then started for the teachers' residence for a contradiction, apology or fight.

"The teachers were thoroughly scared, and they treated him with great courtesy. They assured him that the rumor was false, and that they could not imagine how it ever originnted.

"Some of the pupils claim that they did make the remark, however, but I do not think they will do so again, as they are now good and wise, and when they speak of the soldier in the future they will think long and speak slowly."

How Republicans Love the Flag.

Ambassador Choate and Whitelaw Reid, our special ambassador to the court of St. James, are so English, "don't you know," that they have lost track of the number of stars and stripes in the American flag. The press reports from London state: "Much comment, humorous as well as indignant, has been evoked from many Americans here by the fact that the so-called American flags at Brooke house are grossly incorrect in composition. The flag shows ten stripes and 25 stars! Americans are inclined to regard with some amazement the apparent ignorance of Mr. Choate and Mr. Reid as to the proper composition of the emblems of the country they represent. They do not relish the prospect of the United States becoming the target for British witticisms on this score, and a movement is under way to jog the memories of both ambassadors and bring about a correction of the errors."

The steel trust gives out its profits for the year as nearly $151,000,000; $40,000,000 more than last year, and yet this is an infant industry sucking at the protection bottle which a republican congress has just refused to stop subsidizing through the protective tariff.

They have some leaky officials at the war department, and we could hardly blame Secretary Root for discharging the few democratic clerks that have managed to slip in there, but he will find this won't stop the leak.

THE NEW MAN IN CHARGE.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

CREATED A SENSATION.

Pistols Stolen in Lexington Found in a Paducah Pawnshop.

Paducah, Ky., July 18.—A sensation was created Thursday when Police Capt. Henry Bailey arrested David Levy, a prominent merchant and pawnbroker, on the charge of aiding and abetting the robbery of Vanderen's wholesale hardware store in Lexington, Ky., on April 25 last.

Some of the pistols taken from the Lexington store were found in Levy's place, and he said they were a purchase from a traveling salesman at the Palmer house. Local policemen accompanied him to the hotel to let Levy locate the room in which they were brought, but he could not. Three men are under arrest at Henderson, Ky., charged with the burglary, and a letter from one of them to Levy pleads for money or the goods they sold him. The letter was intercepted by the jailer, and the finding of the goods in Levy's shop followed. Levy is out on bond pending the trial of habeas corpus proceedings next Tuesday.

SHOT BY AN UNKNOWN PARTY.

One of Two Brothers Killed in a Buggy Near Burgoo, Ky.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 21.—While Frank and John White, prominent young planters, were driving home from Burgoo the former was shot and killed. John White, who was drinking, claimed his brother was fired on from ambush, and he made an effort to kill John Knight, a boy whom he accused of the crime. Knight established an alibi. The verdict at the inquest was that Frank was shot by a party unknown. The dead man's coat was burned by the powder, and the ball entered the left side ranging upward through the heart. It is generally believed that John White accidentally killed his brother.

IN A CRITICAL CONDITION.

An Eight-Year-Old Girl Impaled By a Rabid Cow.

Petersburg, Ky., July 18.—Miss Ileen Hoffman, 8-year-old daughter of Chas. Hoffman, was hooked oy a cow Thursday. One horn went through her right cheek, another entered her side. She is in a critical condition. It is supposed that the cow was bit by a mad dog that passed through here about eight days ago. The dog bit several hogs belonging to Clay Hansley, and was finally killed by City Marshal Hansley and his deputy, Earl Buchanan.

LUCILLE BLACKBURN LANE.

Daughter of Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, Dies in Washington.

Washington, July 19.—Mrs. Lucille Blackburn Lane, daughter of Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, and widow of the late Thomas F. Lane, of this city, died Friday at her residence here of brain fever and nervous prostration. She had been unconscious for more than a week. Her father and two sisters, Mrs. Hall and Miss Blackburn, were with her.

BIG FIRE AT CADIZ, KY.

Property to the Amount of $60,000 Destroyed—Insurance $25,000.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 21.—A conflagration of unknown origin destroyed the principal business block in Cadiz, Trigg county. Rawles' saloon, in which the fire started; the Cadiz hotel, Cumberland Telephone exchange, J. J. Garton's dry goods store, H. M. Carton's Sons' hardware store, and C. A. Chappell's grocery were consumed. Loss $60,000; insurance $25,000.

Married at Daybreak.

Harrodsburg, Ky., July 19.—Joseph Orkies and Miss Margaret Christiana Simms, of Washington county, arrived at the Commercial hotel here at about daybreak. A runner was dispatched to the residence of Rev. W. M. Wood, summoning him to the hotel parlors, where he united them in marriage. They belong to well-known families.

Adjudged Insane.

Lexington, Ky., July 18.—R. L. Lyons, who was arrested at Winchester on the charge of embezzlement in failing to account for certain property to an installment house, was adjudged insane and committed to the Eastern Kentucky lunatic asylum. The case of embezzlement was filed away.

Married on the Roadside.

Sergeant, Ky., July 21.—John M. Gibson, a farmer, aged 24, eloped from Beaver creek, Floyd county, with Miss Malissa Gibson, aged 18, his cousin, and were married on the roadside here.

Killed By a Bug.

Mt. Olivet, Ky., July 19.—About two weeks ago Stanfield Youngmans, of this county, was bitten on the ear by a bug. Blood poison developed. Surgical aid was summoned, and two operations were performed. The patient continued to grow worse, and died. He was 53 years old.

Fell One Hundred Feet.

Middlesboro, Ky., July 19.—Tom Harvin received fatal injuries by falling 100 feet from an elevator at the iron furnaces of the Virginia Coal, Coke and Iron Co.

THE LELAND POOLROOM.

Closed Because of a Diminished Bank Account.

Lexington, Ky., July 18.—The Leland poolroom was closed Thursday because of a diminished bank roll. F. T. Graves, one of the operators of the room, went to Cincinnati Thursday afternoon to try to have the interested parties in Covington, John T. Payne & Co., open up the purse strings somewhat. It is claimed that Wednesday the room had an opportunity to make a lot of money on St. Manor, a horse which brought a large crowd with money from Woodford county, but, being [illegible] could only lay enough to stand a $700 loss in case the good thing won. St. Manor lost, and the Versailles men dropped all the money they could place here, which was about $3,000. Phil T. Chinn, son of Col. Jack Chinn, is also interested in the room, which is the only one of the three rooms here operated under the "wire system."

RAILWAY EMPLOYES.

A Division With 1,010 Charter Members Organized in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., July 21.—A division of the United Order of Railway Employes was organized in this city Sunday with 1,010 charter members. The order, which has a membership of 147,000 in the United States, comprises the engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen, telegraph operators, agents, clerks, carmen, shopmen, freight handlers, bridgemen and trackmen, and has its headquarters in San Francisco.

The local branch was organized by F. W. Forsting and J. P. Mulligan, of California, vice presidents for this districts.

LIKE OUTLAW TRACY.

Tom Tinker Defies Arrest, Camping in Woods, Heavily Armed.

Mayfield, Ky., July 19.—Tom Tinker was seen again near here Friday with two big pistols buckled around him and carrying a Winchester rifle. Tinker is camping in the woods near this place and seems to be taking matters as coolly as Tracy does in Washington. He succeeds in eluding the officers on every hand, who are expecting a hot time when he is overtaken, as he is one of the most nervy criminals in Western Kentucky.

Died of Lockjaw.

Newport, Ky., July 21.—Mrs. Lizzie Luck, a widow, 60 years of age, living at Persimmons Grove, some time ago cut a corn from the small toe of her right foot. Blood poisoning set in. The toe was amputated, but the entire limb began to swell to such a size that the doctors found it necessary to amputate it above the knee. Four hours later lockjaw set in, and the unfortunate woman died in agony.

Jersey Cow's Good Record.

Taylorsville, Ky., July 19.—Mrs. Ivy Lawrence, of Briar Ridge, reports an extraordinary yield of butter from one of her Jersey cows, and says she thinks she has the record beaten. She states that in 55 consecutive days she weighed up for sale 65 pounds of butter, besides what her family of five used during this time. The cow is seven years old and well bred.

Two Fatalities at Livingston.

Livingston, Ky., July 21.—Lapsley Howell, aged 18, while attempting to board a moving L. & N. train, fell and the wheels cut him in twain. Arthur Brown, of Broadhead, Ky., a bridge carpenter working on Roundstone river bridge, near here, fell to the ground below, receiving probably fatal injuries.

Body Found on a Railroad Track.

Covington, Ky., July 21.—The body of a man apparently about 25 years old was found on the C. & O. railroad track near Banklick Station, Kentou county, Ky., Sunday evening by trainmen on the C. & O. Falmouth accommodation. The man was about 5 feet 9 inches tall, face beardless, blue eyes and red hair.

Barn and Tobacco Burned.

Carrollton, Ky., July 19.—J. B. Rollin's barn burned, where J. W. Wilson, a tobacco rehandler, had 182,000 lbs of tobacco stored. Barn and contents are a total loss. No insurance on barn; $9,000 on tobacco. Perry Oaks' barn burned, being struck by lightning.

Fulton's Hot Local Campaign.

Fulton, Ky., July 17.—There is a hot local option campaign on here. Rev. J. N. Hall, editor of the Baptist Flag, has issued a challenge to the liquor advocates and the fight from now until September 23 will be warm and exciting.

Doctor Injured in a Runaway.

Bowling Green, Ky., July 19.—Dr. W. H. Taylor, of Richardsville, this county, while driving to town, sustained injuries which are thought to be fatal. His horse became frightened at a train and ran away, throwing the doctor out into a fence.

Constable Dies Suddenly.

Lexington, Ky., July 19.—Anthony McFadden, aged 38 years, died here suddenly of heart disease. He was constable in the court of Magistrate F. S. Graves, and was on duty when attacked.

GRANT COUNTY.

[Williamstown Courier.]

Threshing has begun and wheat and rye are turning out very nicely we are told. Oats are being harvested this week and the crop is as good as was ever raised in the county and the farmers are correspondingly happy.

Hon. W. W. Dickerson, who has recently moved to Cincinnati, has formed a very desirable partnership with Hon. Joel C. Clore of that city. Mr. Clore is a Boone county man, a good lawyer and has a very extensive practice. The partnership is a good one and ought to be highly profitable to all parties concerned.

Tom Jump, Turnpike Commissioner of Grant county, says that the great rains in the county during the past six weeks have damaged the turnpike roads of the county to the extent of $5,000. It is always going to be a difficult question to keep the turnpike roads of the county up to a high standard of condition on account of the rains and the winter and spring freezes and thaws, until the roads are remodeled and built on more scientific lines. The Fiscal Court have a very knotty question to wrestle with in this turnpike matter.

An old grudge in the Mt. Zion neighborhood between neighbors bore bloody fruit on Wednesday morning. James Vaughn is a prominent citizen of the Mt. Zion neighborhood. He also runs a threshing machine. James Perkins is his neighbor, and between the two there has been bad blood for a good many moons. Wednesday morning they met at the threshing machine on Vaughns farm. Just how the "fuss" began no one seems to know; anyway Vaughn was armed with an old fashioned horse pistol loaded with buckshot, and the trouble had hardly begun until the horse pistol came into play. Vaughn proved to be a good shot and filled Perkins face full of buckshot at the first fire. Perkins is badly hurt. Dr. Tomlin says that he will certainly lose both eyes and has little chance of ultimate recovery.

State News.

Stock men predict that cattle will pass the $9 mark and that hogs will nearly reach it.

Thos. Bradley, of Boyle county, sold to Ben Sanders, of Mercer, 50 fat hogs at $7 per cwt.

John W. Gates, the big operator, says corn will yet go to $1.25, but thinks it will be wise to sell at $1 per bushel.

The Tomato crop is being badly damaged by the worms, which bore into the tomato, completely destroying it.

M. C. Sanders & Co., of Clark county, sold to McClintock & Co., of Bourbon, a car load of hogs at $6.65 per cwt.

John Evans, of Popular Plains, owns a piece of land, 15 acres, that has been in corn for 100 years, and has refused $100 per acre for it.

McIntyre & McClintock, of Bourbon county, shipped last week to New York 750 lambs that averaged 81 pounds. They cost 5½ cents.

A bunch of Polled Angus cattle sold in Chicago recently averaged 1,286 pounds, at $8.35 per hundred, which is the highest price on record.

Report says Jas. McGowan, of Kentucky has sold his 5-y-o pacing stallion, Cotillon, by Baron Rogers, 2:09½ dam Allie Russell, for $10,600.

Brent Brothers, of Paris, bought of W. A. Thomasson, of the county 10,000 bushels of blue grass seed for August delivery at 75½ cents per bushel.

The greater part of 3,000 head of cattle that were slopped at the distilleries, in Daviess county, have been sold and they brought a sum estimated at $175,000.

P. W. Ray, of Lexington, purchased of Walker Lyons, of Lincoln county, the four-year old black saddle gelding Hamlet King, by King Chester, dam Hamlet Girl, by Hamlet, for $1,200.

R. Pen Taylor, of Clark county, sold to Simon Weil 93 export cattle at $6.90 per cwt. J. L. Brown, of same county, sold to same a car load of export cattle to go in August, weight 1,350 to 1,500 pounds, at 6¼ cents.

Wheat threshing is progressing, yielding from 10 to 28 bushels in Shawhan neighborhood. Capt. T. E. Moore got 28 bushels per acre from eleven acres, others got 20 bushels; general average about 15 bushels. Capt. Moore's made 61 pounds per bushel.—Kentuckian Citizen.

Although the corn crops of Letcher county have been considerably damaged by storms during the past three weeks there never was better prospects for a fine crop. The acreage is unusually large and there doubtless will be more corn gathered this fall than in any previous year in the history of the county.

What is probably the record price ever offered for a saddle horse was made by R. E. Hisey, of Mexico, Mo., to Ralph Orthwein, president of the American League Baseball Club, the latter's great show horse, Rex McDonald, being the coveted horse. The price offered was $9,000. John T. Hughes, of Lexington, sold him to Missouri parties for $5,000.

The Executive Committee of the Farmerss, and Tobacco Growers' Association met at Worthville last Wednesday to hear reports from the various counties already organized and to discuss means to push the organization of the other counties in the burley district. It was decided to put several organizers in the field so as to complete the organization as soon as possible. All the money needed to run the association is guaranteed as soon as the organization is complete and the farmers will be paid in full for their tobacco when it is delivered to the association.

"After my first baby was born I did not seem to regain my strength although the doctor gave me a tonic which he should not very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband insisted that I take Wine of Cardui for a week and see what it would do for me. I did take the medicine and was very grateful to find my strength and health slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my social duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

Wine of Cardui reinforces the organs of generation for the ordeal of pregnancy and childbirth. It prevents miscarriage. No woman who takes Wine of Cardui need fear the coming of her child. If Mrs. Unrath had taken Wine of Cardui before her baby came she would not have been weakened as she was. Her rapid recovery should commend this great remedy to every expectant mother. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1902. NO. 41.

WALTON, July 28.—H. C. Diss has returned home very unexpectedly.

Hons. John S. Gaunt and S. W. Tolin were in town, last Friday.

C. C. Fry, of Dry Ridge, a former resident here, stopped off on his way to visit his sister in Ohio, to view the progress of the town.

Miss Gertrude Curley has gone to Covington, thinking she can have a livelier time in the warm season than this metropolis can afford,

Miss Ada Lermon left on Saturday morning to spend her brief vacation with her uncle and aunt, Mrs. Delvin S. and Mrs. Louise Stamler Lermond, of Paris.

Master C. W. Botts thinks that torrid heat is more endurable at home than with his grandfather in Shelby county, and showed himself up at home last Saturday morning.

The Christian Church is fortunate in having secured Rev. D. T. Buck as pastor for the ensuing year. The congregations yesterday and last night were very large and the sermons the ablest preached in that church for many a day.

Misses Dena and Jaylia, the charming daughters of Mr. Jas. B. Merhoney, one of the oldest if not the oldest engineer on the Short Line, and Miss Eleanor, the daughter of Thos. J. Walsh, were taking note of the great improvement since their last visit to Walton three years ago. Miss Ollie Corston, the guest of Mrs. Ruth Hind, who has not been here for 12 or 13 years, was greatly astonished at the changes and great improvements that have been made in that time.

W. M. Rogers, agent of the Boone County Insurance Co., whose business takes him all over the county, says that excepting the Walton district, there has not been such a prospect for corn in his recollection, and no man has traversed the ground more than himself. W. H. Metcalfe, superintendent of the cannery, thinks there will be tomatoes galore. The hay crop has never shown up better, and all in all the farmer may be in a better fix than was anticipated a short time ago.

The drowning of Estill J. Edwards in the afternoon of the 24th, has cast a gloom over the youth's relatives and friends and saddened their hearts to an extent plainly to be seen. He was a very bright and intelligent young man and had already achieved an honorable distinction in R. R. circles being at the time of his death, secretary to the Superintendent of the Southern Division of the L. & N. Railroad. He and his cousin, Willie Holder, were in the lake on his grandfather's farm when Willie discovered that Estill was drowning and in a fruitless effort to save him came near being drowned himself—hardly knowing how to escape the fate of the one he was trying to save.

BUFFALO, July 28.—Farmers are done harvesting.

Ras Stephens and wife went to the city shopping, last Wednesday.

Mrs. Woods, of this vicinity, spent last week with her grandson, near Middle Creek.

W. L. Stephens and wife were visiting his father at this place, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. A. J. Utz and granddaughter, Jessie, spent last Saturday with relatives at Erlanger.

L. J. Riley and wife, and T. J. Stephens and wife spent last Wednesday with P. P. Neal and wife.

H. C. Presser and family, of Milldale, spent Friday night and Saturday with Sidney Clements and wife.

Mrs. Lottie Davrainville and little daughters, Stella and Pearl, of Newport, are visiting J. Q. Elston and wife.

L. J. Riley is able to be out again. He spent several days with his daughter, Mrs. L. W. Stephens, on Gunpowder, last week.

Clyde, the little son of Robert and Myrtle Clements, who has been very sick with spinal meningitis, we are glad to report able to sit up.

The little daughter of Elmer Conly and wife, died last Monday. The remains were interred in Union cemetery last Tuesday. May God comfort the parents in their affliction.

PLATTSBURG.—John W. Gaines is some better.

Mrs. Egbert Nichols is very sick.

We are having nice, growing weather.

Miss Alice Deck was visiting at Grant last Sunday.

A. B. Gaines and family spent Sunday with his father.

Your scribe has been suffering with flux for several days.

James Botts and wife spent Sunday with Sebern Scott and wife.

Will Sebree and family spent the day with W. S. Acra, Sunday.

John Duncan and wife spent Sunday with J. W. Gaines and wife.

Mrs. Essie Voshell and mother were visiting their aunt, Caroline Ryle, on Gunpowder, last Monday.

GUNPOWDER, July 28.—Robert Houston, of Hathaway, passed through our burg last Thursday.

Pat Norman, of Union, with his best girl, passed here last Sunday evening.

J. C. Hankins and family and the writer and family broke bread with J. H. Tanner, last Sunday.

Aunt Susie Utz and grand daughter, of Buffalo, were guests of her son, Rev. T. L. Utz, of Florence, last Saturday.

Aunt Polly Rouse returned home, last Thursday, after a visit of several days among her children in Kenton county.

We are glad to report the condition of B. C. Surface very much improved since our last. He is now able to sit up and walk around in the house.

Price Conner, of Kenton county, threshed several crops of grain in this neighborhood last week. The wheat is yielding well and is of good quality.

The meetings which were previously announced began at Hopeful last Monday night, and our sister denominations are invited to participate with us.

COMMISSARY, July 26.—Good old grains we had last week.

W. T. Ryle and wife, visited a sick aunt on Gunpowder, Wednesday.

Jesse Louden and wife visited at his father's Saturday night and Sunday.

T. J. Walton sold to F. A. Utz, last week, at 6cts. per pound, 11 cattle that averaged 1,317.

Lawrence Phipps passed the Commissary, last Monday, on his way to Aurora after lumber.

Fred McAtee, a former resident of this county, living back of Aurora on North Bogan, had three head of cattle killed by lightning, last week.

Tom Marshall, of Paris, Jefferson county, Ind., called on H. P. Parsons, last Monday. Mr. Marshall is here visiting his daughter, Mrs. Karl Kelly.

Quite a goodly number of congenial young people met at Rolen McCarty's last Saturday night, and drank lemonade, ate ice cream, and cast goo goo eyes at each other to their hearts content.

Joe Lillard and Zen Scott went to Rising Sun, last Saturday, and purchased a new 6 foot cut Deering mower. Mr. Lillard is well pleased with it, and Zen says "its a clipper, and runs through the grass as easy and natural as butter off a hot biscuit."

Bro. Acra, we did not forget. We know there is an old saying, "that self-praise is half scandal," but when a fellow can backup what he says, there is no scandal about it,—it is all wool and a yard wide. When you say, "the boys let Lassing, Terrill and Adams hang the political binff on them," you forget that there is none from whose shoulders hang the limb more conspicuously than your own.

Brother White, the band will play whether we have a picnic or not, and we have no doubt but there will be more enthusiasm at the fair than would have been at the picnic. We know they had it last year, because we know some of the boys got it, but could not catch onto what they called for. This is the first time we ever heard it called enthusiasm. Glad you mentioned it, because if we want a wee drap of the critter while at the fair, we will know what to call for.

A gathering or mixing together of congenial souls generates brotherly love and a fraternal feeling, and a spirit of willingness. Congeniality is the mother of social harmony; of return movements, and of matrimony. When two congenial hearts beat as one, and all the environments is harmonious the preacher is soon called. The minister was called, and a few friends met at the Baptist church in Bellevue at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, and witnessed the welding of the spikes that made Charles Birkle and Miss Rilla Ryle man and wife; an event that starts them to scratching expenses out of nature for the current events that are sure to follow, so to speak, or words to that effect.

CRESCENT, July 28.—S. D. Rector and wife, of Morgansville, spent Thursday at the home of Henry Grover.

Miss Blanche Northcutt is the guest of relatives, near Morgansville.

Elbert Brown and wife, of Cincinnati after a pleasant visit of several days with relatives near here, returned home, Sunday.

Sunday School at Beech Grove was organized, Saturday, the 19 inst. Wm. Rouse was chosen superintendent, and Mrs. Ida Carpenter and Mrs. B. F. Bristow, teacher.

Will Norman, Albert Tanner, Mrs. John Tanner and daughters, Misses Clara and Nellie, Miss Susie Woodyard, and your correspondent, spent Sunday at the home of Frank Rouse, near Burlington.

Mrs. Celia Darby, who has been living with her daughter, Mrs. Rector, died, on Tuesday, the 22d inst, aged 72 years. Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Mayhew, a sister of the deceased, near Delhi, Ohio. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. H. J. Rector, of this place, and Mrs. Everett Souther, of Point Pleasant, and one son, Rodney Darby, of Cincinnati, to mourn her death.

John B. Dwyer, a young man living near this place, met a horrible death by being struck by an L. & N. train on the afternoon of the 20th inst. He and a companion had been calling on friends near Independence Station, and were returning home. On their way they walked a short distance on the track and had sit down to rest, and did not hear the approach of the 3:30 north bound express. Young Dwyer was struck and thrown a distance of 80 feet, death being instant. The funeral was held at the home of the deceased, on Monday, after which the remains were interred in the family cemetery. The unfortunate young man was 23 years of age, was an only son and was loved and respected by all who knew him. He was noted for his gentleness and filial love and obedience, and when his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dwyer realized that their idol and the staff of their declining years had been given into the keeping of the Angel of Death, they were almost prostrated with grief. To the stricken parents we extend our deepest sympathy.

RABBIT HASH, July 28.—The river is very muddy and rising.

Hubert Brady has bought a new horse. Price, $90.

We are glad to report Eddie McConnell as still improving.

Mrs. Benton Stephens, of Missouri, is visiting relatives here.

The largest fleet of coal that ever went down the Ohio, passed, Sunday.

We regret to report that Mrs. Caleb Ryle is very ill at the home of her sister.

George Ward shipped some hogs to Cincinnati the first of last week. They brought $7.65 per cwt.

Mrs. Eunie Wingate went to T. C. S. Ryles' last week, to keep house for him the rest of the summer.

The seven months' old child of Mrs. Mary Hillis was taken sick on Saturday and died Sunday morning.

The Grangers' entertainment given at the K. P. Hall here, Saturday night, was a great success financially, as the hall was crowded, even standing room was all taken, while a number were compelled to stand outside and look in at the window.

Miss Lillian Ryle, of this place, and Mr. Charles Birkle, of Grant, were united in marriage at the Baptist church at Grant, last Wednesday evening. After the ceremony a reception was held at home of the groom, at which a number of guests were present.

HATHAWAY, July 28.—Wheat all in the stack.

Jno. S. Mason started his thresher, last week.

W. H. Moore has just finished harvesting a large oats crop.

Some of the farmers in this vicinity have topped considerable tobacco.

Misses Rector, of Locust Grove spent last Friday with Miss Pearl Willis.

Mrs. Myrtle Sebree was the guest of Mrs. Florence Smith, last Thursday.

There are flattering prospects for a good corn crop in this neighborhood.

The timothy hay is all in the barns or stack, and it made quite a good yield.

W. S. White was visiting his son, James, of near Burlington, last Friday night.

H. O. Adams delivered his old tobacco, and last year's crop of wheat, at Rising Sun, last week.

Mrs. Eliza Riddell was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Setter's, of near Bellevue, last Friday.

With a few more excellent rains there will be a good second crop of clover to cut and thresh for seed.

Mrs. Bettie Sullivan, of Aurora, Ind., is spending several days in the Big Bone neighborhood, visiting relatives.

H. C. Presser and family, of Milldale, are spending the heated term in this neighborhood, visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. Editor, you may book me for the fair on Friday. We all ought to go that day and call it RECORDER day, if it suits all of the correspondents and the RECORDER force.

James H. Aylor, gave the Gimlet Gap road from Gunpowder to Hathaway some work last week, and now an experienced driver can drive or ride to our sanctum if he travel's the road in daylight.

PETERSBURG, July 28.—The K. P. meeting was held according to the program, and a most delightful time was had by all.

Ab Black jugged a 30 pound cat fish a few days since.

Homer Grant's wheat turned out 30 bushels to the acre.

Misses Pearl Crisler and Maud Wingate are visiting in Ludlow.

There are quite a number of city boarders at Mr. Guiselinger's.

Will Barnett and family, of Covington, were visiting here, Sunday.

Julius Stumpf, of Rising Sun, was visiting Harry McWethy, Sunday.

Miss Ada Wychoff, of Norwood, Ohio, is a guest at Mr. Guiselinger's.

Henry Terrill is having his beautiful residence, 2 miles below town, painted.

W. W. Botts and wife, of Bellevue, were visiting Mrs. Botts' mother, Sunday.

Mrs. Hattie Davis, of Louisville, was visiting H. C. Wingate and family, last week.

Miss Mary Gaines, of Bullittsville, was visiting Miss Jean Berkshire, last week.

Otto Rector and Elbert Cox are conducting a greenhouse in Aurora, doing a good business.

Elmer McWethy, well known railroad man of Memphis, Tenn., is visiting his parents here.

Carl Grant has gone to Louisville to attend medical lectures at the Hospital College of Medicine.

W. O. Kirtley has moved to Lawrenceburg. Scrap Grant has left for he was one of our best citizens.

Next Sunday is Rev. T. B. Cook's last sermon till after Conference, which may send a new preacher here.

Hon. T. B. Mathews will leave for San Francisco, Cal., in a few days as a delegate to the Grand Lodge K. of P.

Miss Mae Cutter, an accomplished young lady, of Cincinnati, is the guest of Miss Julia Smith, on Ashby Fork.

John Nugent, of Grant county, was visiting relatives here last week. He is 20 years old and weighs only 58 pounds.

Charles Beiden, of California, is visiting his brother, Ben, at this place. He leaves for his home in the far west, shortly.

BASIS OF HARMONY.

Subject of Speech Delivered by Hon. Wm. J. Bryan.

Addresses Democrats of New England at Boston—Says Party Must Always Fight for the People.

At the dinner of the New England Democratic league, held at Boston, July 24, Hon. William J. Bryan responded to the toast, "The Basis of Harmony," and spoke as follows:

"In view of numerous harmony dinners, and the discord they have created, it may not be out of place to consider the basis of harmony. The word 'harmony' is euphonious, and the idea which it conveys is a delightful one. Harmony! How it soothes our ears and calls up visions of peace and love and joy. Harmony, whether among the heavenly bodies, whose movements make the music of the spheres, or among bodies terrestrial, with their conflicting interests and varying moods, who can resist its claims or dispute its sway? Harmony is but a synonym for order, and is the result of obedience to a law, but a product of inexorable law. The musician must learn the scale and properly arrange the notes, or harmony, no matter how earnestly he seeks, can never be won.

"Harmony in government is likewise the result of fixed and unchangeable rules. Jefferson states two of these rules clearly, absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority and frequent elections—the second aids the first by giving hope of a remedy from present ills, how-ever severe. If he were to-day his observation would probably suggest a third rule, namely, the ascertainment of the will of the methods so direct, so fair and so honest that the minority cannot doubt that that will has been actually expressed.

"Jefferson also laid down the rules by which, and by which alone, a party can be secured in a party. I say real harmony, for that harmony cannot be considered worthy of the name which, like the harmony temporarily existing between the confidence man and his victim, is purposely employed for deception and injury.
